PASSENGER STEAMER ALASKA IS SUNK; MANY LIVES ARE LOST.

Bound from Seattle to San Francisco, Hits Reef in Fog and Goes Down in Fifteen Minutes; Ships Are Hastening to Pick Up Surviving Members.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.—The steamer Alaska sank in fifteen minutes with the loss of many lives, according to a radio message picked up by the harbor department here at 11:55 p.m.

The message said the vessel listed to starboard and began sinking immediately after striking the rocks.

The harbor department said the flash came from the steamer Anyox. The message added the Anyox had picked up the second boatload from the Alaska.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—A radio message from the steamer Anyox received here shortly after midnight said the Alaska, which struck on Blunt's Reef tonight, had listed to starboard, [illegible] and sunk in fifteen minutes with loss of many lives. The Anyox reported she was standing by, picking up survivors from the water and from the boats of the Alaska.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 6.—The [illegible] and Portland Liner [illegible] with a large number of passengers aboard, ran ashore tonight on [illegible] Reef, near Eureka, Cal., during a heavy fog. A series of S.O.S. calls from the steamer were picked up at [illegible]head, Wash., and Seattle. [illegible] the calls ceased, indicating the probability that the steamer had gone down.

[illegible] to the final message, the [illegible] wirelessed that she was putting over her boats. This circumstance seemed to warrant the hope that at least a portion of her passengers would be saved.

[illegible] her first distress call, the Alaska wirelessed that she was [illegible]. It was apparent that [illegible] slipped off the reef after [illegible] the rocks.

The Alaska carried 131 passengers [illegible] here, of whom 123 were in cabin and eight in the steerage.

France for Trade With Russia.

Senator Determined Congress Shall Take Prompt Action on His Return.

Hopes to Convince American People Act is Needed to Put Country on Feet.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, Aug. 6.—Senator Joseph I. France of Maryland is determined to take the Russian recognition bull by the horns. He announced today that he is determined, on his return to the Senate to concentrate his efforts towards forcing recognition of the soviet government as soon as Congress meets for its regular session. He wishes to avoid a long, drawn-out process beginning with the appointment of a special commission, which would undoubtedly consume a long time in studying the situation, eventually, he thinks, recommending a course of action which would better be taken without delay.

Senator France expects wide public support of his plan. This formal act of recognition, he hopes to con-

Made Impossible by Destruction.

Nava Officer Claims Tests Have Proved That Battleships Are Useless.

Declares No Nation Again Could Transport an Army Across the Ocean.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—"There will be no more wars, and disarmament is coming because fighting has been made impossible."

This is the assertion of a naval officer, who watched Gen. Mitchell's bombs sink the German battleship Ostfriesland.

"A period has been put to battleship building," said he. "You cannot escape that conclusion. Glenn Martin, who built the Martin bombers, which carried the ten bombs that smashed the Ostfriesland, is building a larger plane that will carry a four-ton bomb. He says that the carrying of a ten-ton bomb is only a matter of building larger planes. His new four-ton bomber can go 500 miles at sea and return."

CAN SINK ANY SHIP.

Such a bomber, the officer said, can sink any ship that floats today. Our Pennsylvania, our Tennessee, any of our magnificent new dreadnoughts would be as easy for it as a duckling is for a chicken hawk. The bombing experiments on the Pacific Coast not long ago proved that. Capt. Mostyn dropped a smoke screen down over the Pacific battleship fleet and then went in safely with his bomber. Theoretically he got the flagship. His attack was hidden behind the screen.

"No battleship fleet," said the speaker, "could approach within 500 miles of our coasts under such conditions, even if protected by a fleet of aircraft carried on ships. Such a fleet might be able to keep the shore fleet of aircraft away from the invaders.

"Not likely, of course, for more aircraft can be stabled on a shore than can be carried on a fleet. But such a fleet might keep the air clear above its battleships during the day. It could not at night.

If it is impossible for an invading

Harding's Vacation Over; President Makes Speech in Maine Town.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Me.) Aug. 6.—President Harding ended his vacation [illegible] White Mountains in New Hampshire today and crossed Maine to [illegible] the yacht Mayflower here to return to Washington. Accompanied [illegible] Mrs. Harding and other members of the party, the President made the [illegible] cross-country trip by automobile, starting early today from Lancaster, N. H., where he has been guest of Secretary Weeks since Tuesday.

[illegible] visited a soldiers' sanatorium at [illegible], Me.; stopped at Poland [illegible] for lunch and a game of [illegible], and accepted an invitation to [illegible] a speech at Westbrook, just [illegible] of Portland. Sailing tonight, the Mayflower is expected to reach Washington Tuesday noon.

THOUSANDS HEAR SPEECH.

The stop at Westbrook was arranged at the request of Senator [illegible] of this State. Several thousand [illegible] to hear the President's [illegible], reiterating his prediction [illegible] America would find it possible [illegible] the leadership for world [illegible] at the coming disarmament [illegible].

"[illegible] happy," said the President [illegible] speech at Westbrook, "to say [illegible] how grateful we are for the cordial greetings we have received in Maine and New Hampshire.

CHANGE HAS COME.

"I have thought what a change has come about. You haven't gathered here to greet me personally; because I've been here before, and you scarcely noticed it. But you have come to me tonight because I am your spokesman. When a man is a candidate, he is always seeking to come among you and make himself heard, but when a man is in office, the people want him to come among them, and he ought to come among them.

"That's as it should be, for this popular government, and let me say that no President ever could do anything of which the American people did not approve."

S. S. Harvard Last Word in Luxury—Like Great White Swan, Sails Smoothly.

BY S. FRED HOGUE

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Floating serenely across the Golden Gate like a great white swan, the great passengr liner Harvard, one of the twin vessels of the white squadron of the Los Angeles Steamship Company, entered the harbor this morning, bringing 300 passengers from Los Angeles and other Southern California points.

Hundreds of persons lined the docks north of the Ferry Building to greet the welcome visitor, and her progress past Alcatraz Island and Telegraph Hill was a veritable ovation. For the people of San Francisco are even more alive than those of Los Angeles to the meaning of the establishment of a passenger service on the Pacific equal to the best that the Atlantic has hitherto afforded.

REAL FLOATING PALACE.

Referring to the Harvard as a veritable floating palace may sound trite, for it has been said before of vessels which, measured by the latest standards of marine passenger service, were little worthy the name. But what other comparison shall I make to conjure for those from the interior of the country a vessel whose construction and furnishings cost more than the two best hotels in either Los Angeles or San Francisco?

Few private palaces have cost as much as $2,500,000, yet that is a conservative estimate of the value of the Harvard or her sister ship, the Yale. The owners are reported to have refused a larger sum for them when they were recommissioned.

San Francisco is essentially a seaport city, and San Francisco knows the worth of the added attraction of a line of passenger steamers which enables one to travel along the California coast in all the comfort and luxury that once was to be found only on the ships sailing from New York to Plymouth and Calais.

LAST WORD IN LUXURY.

President Wilson did not travel more luxuriously to the Peace Conference than did the 300 of us who came north last night from Los Angeles Harbor on the Harvard. The George Washington made twenty knots an hour, but we did a little better than that during the first half of the trip. Strong head winds off Point Sur delayed us somewhat this morning, but the running time for the trip was twenty miles an hour.

There was a time when only those could speak of luxurious ocean travel who had ridden on the fast liners plying between New York and Europe. It will seem incedible to the old-timers in Los Angeles that there is now a service between there and San Francisco equal to the best that the East Coast can offer. But those who have tried both, and there were more than 100 who have done so on the Harvard today, are fully convinced.

TYPICALLY WESTERN.

The thing that pleases me most about the Harvard is that every-

GOV. SMALL WILL GO TO CAPITAL.

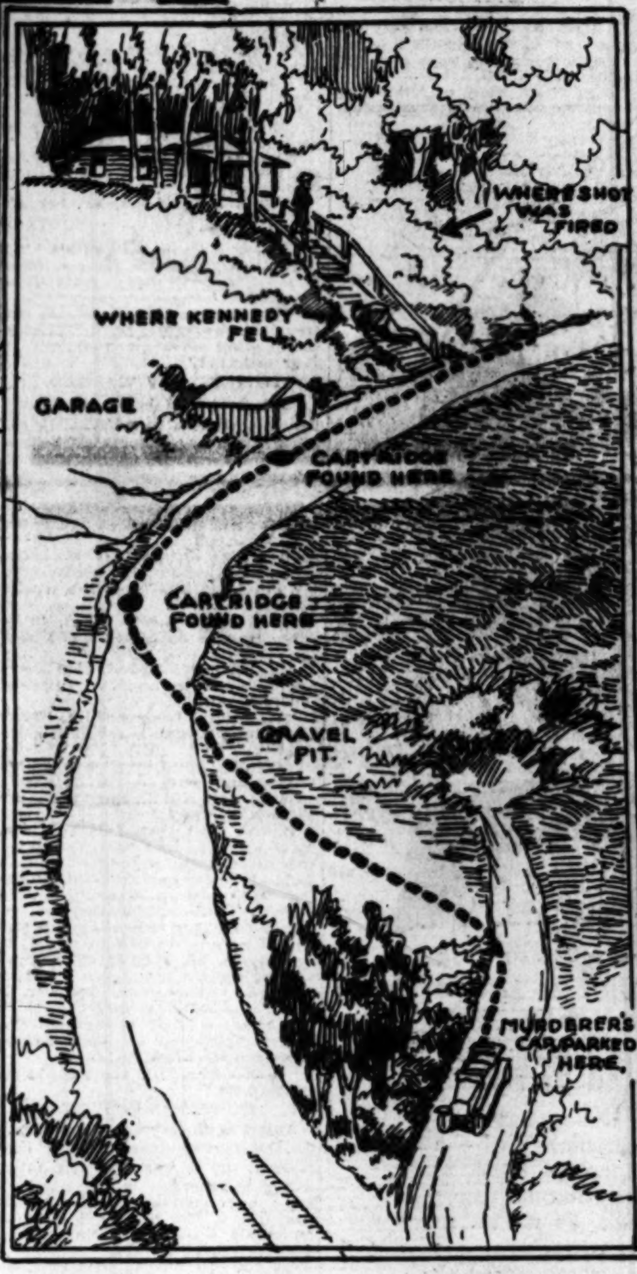
Announces He Will Return to Where Sheriff Waits Next Tuesday.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Gov. Small announced today that he would return to Springfield next Tuesday, at which time Sheriff Mester is expected to arrest him on three warrants charging embezzlement and conspiracy. The Governor did not outline his plan of action further than to say he would go back to the capital. Two courses are open to him. One is to go into court and surrender himself and give bonds, or to refuse to be arrested and try to evade service on the warrants by the use of force.

The Governor has evaded service for two weeks while he has been touring the State. Sheriff Mester refused to serve the warrants anywhere outside Sangamon county. The feeling toward the Governor in Sangamon county is hostile, and he doubtless will ask a change of venue.

Lieut.-Gov. Sterling was also in Chicago today. He has already surrendered on similar charges and is at liberty under bonds. It is understood that the Lieutenant Governor refused to enter into any joint defense plans with the Governor until the latter has surrendered.



Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain and John B. Kennedy,

And diagram showing where Mr. Kennedy was murdered while Mrs. Obenchain was near; the route taken by the assassin in his flight, as marked by two empty shotgun shells, and the masked road where his car was parked while the tragedy was enacted.

SON OF MINISTER ARRESTED AS MAN WHO KILLED KENNEDY.

Arthur C. Burch, in Custody in Nevada, to be Held on Murder Charge; Death Watch Long Kept on Slain Broker Here; Suspect Prominent in East.

Arthur C. Burch, identified as the son of Rev. W. A. Burch of Evanston, Ill., a graduate of Northwestern University and well known in Chicago, was taken in custody on a Salt Lake train at Las Vegas, Nev., late last night on the request of Los Angeles authorities, who suspect he is the man who murdered J. Belton Kennedy, youthful and prominent insurance broker, last Friday night on the steps of the latter's summer cottage in Beverly Glen.

Undersheriff Biscailuz asked that Burch be held for murder.

The suspect and his family, according to Chicago advices, are well known here. He married the daughter of Bishop W. A. Quaile of St. Louis, it was declared, and was sued for divorce last November. He is 26 years old and was a track athlete at Northwestern University.

Suspicion was first directed to Burch late yesterday afternoon while the investigating officers were quizzing Mrs. Madalynne Obenchain, 28 years of age, Mr. Kennedy's atractive companion and sole witness of the tragedy, in the District Attorney's office. From that moment, though the case was shrouded in mystery and tangled in complicating circumstances for many hours, new clews were rapidly uncovered, all of which pointed to the man who is now suspected of the crime.

Mrs. Obenchain is detained in jail as a material witness.

That which remains to be found is the motive. Burch is an intimate friend of Mrs. Obenchain, according to her own admission. As far as could be learned, that is all he is—just a friend. His home is at Evanston, Ill., the home of Mrs. Obenchain. He attended the same school which she attended. He worked beside her in social service activities in Chicago.

Mrs. Obenchain came to Los Angeles from Chicago early in July. In her statement to the officers she said she came by way of San Francisco, where she stopped to keep an appointment with Mr. Kennedy. She said she waited a week in San Francisco for him. They had planned to be married there, but he failed to appear. She then came to Los Angeles and on July 6 registered at the Alexandria.

Burch arrived in Los Angeles on July 24—at least, that is the date on which he registered at a hotel here and from where every move of his has been traced. On several occasions, Mrs. Obenchain admitted, he visited her apartment at the Alexandria, where he discussed with her the failure of Mr. Kennedy to keep his marriage appointment in San Francisco.

Mrs. Obenchain's original statement that she saw two men fleeing from the scene shortly after the murder of Mr. Kennedy was weakened by an investigation conducted by Times reporters on and in the vicinity of the scene of the tragedy. From this investigation it was practically established that only one man committed the crime.

Incidents leading up to the moment of the shooting strongly indicated that Mr. Kennedy had not originally planned to visit his mountain cottage Friday night. He did not possess the keys to the house; yet, according to Mrs. Obenchain's story, they went there on a mission of looking for "a good luck penny," which the woman said she had hidden beneath a rock on a previous trip to Beverly Glen.

LURKS IN BRUSH.

When Mr. Kennedy and Mrs. Obenchain first ascended the steps leading to the cottage, the slayer was undoubtedly hiding in the brush beside the stairs. Yet he did not choose to slay the youth with Mrs. Obenchain at his side. They reached the house, but in the darkness the penny could not be found. Mrs. Obenchain suggested that Mr. Kennedy return to the car on the road below and obtain matches. He went alone. When he had reached the lower end of the stairs he was killed.

He was slain by two charges of buckshot fired from a 12-gauge double-barreled shotgun. The two empty cartridge shells, still containing the smell of powder, were found by Times men. One lay at the side of the road, about thirty feet from the cottage. The other was lying against a wire fence, about thirty feet farther south, indicating that the slayer made his escape along the west side of the road, ejecting the shells as he ran.

The man who fired the shots evidently knew that Mr. Kennedy was to visit the cottage, yet Mr. Kennedy's trips to the glen were very infrequent. Neighbors stated that his last trip was made about two weeks ago. Another trip was made about four weeks ago. Always he came early in the evening with some young woman—whether it was the same woman on all trips could not be determined—and always departed around midnight.

Mr. Kennedy did not contemplate visiting the cottage Friday night, for he did not carry the key with him—yet the slayer knew he would be there.

From Ralph Cummings, a resident in the glen, the Times men learned that an automobile was hidden in the brush about 125 yards south of the Kennedy cottage, on the east side of the road. Mr. Cummings stated that he was returning to his cabin at a time between 8:45 p.m. and 9 p.m. on the night of the slaying and about half an hour before the tragedy occurred when, in passing an opening in the underbrush, he saw an automobile with dimmed lights backed off the road. The car was in an obscure location and had evidently been backed into the brush to hide it. It contained no occupants.

Tracks of the tires revealed that the driver had had some difficulty in leaving the hiding place. The tire tracks showed that one right tire, evidently the front one, had a ribbed tread. The other imprint in the sand indicated the tire had a tread of three or four rows of small squares. The car could not be found in the little gulch shortly after the shooting.

Burch, it appears, is suspected of having been the driver of this car, which is believed had been rented without a driver.

DEATH WATCH.

It is believed he trapped Mr. Kennedy after a long, ceaseless vigil of two weeks. From a room on the third floor of a hotel directly opposite the business offices of Mr. Kennedy and his father, some man had constantly watched every move Mr. Kennedy had made.

A man supposed to be Burch first appeared at the hotel on July 24. He telephoned to the manager and asked him if he had a room fronting on Broadway. The manager told him one room remained unoccupied on the third floor, facing Broadway.

Gambling is Resumed at Border Town.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 6.—Tijuana was busy again today when gambling was resumed in all of the cafes and gaming houses of the Mexican "Old Town," through an order from Gov. I. Ybarra. The word that the games had reopened soon reached San Diego and hundreds crossed the line.

This is the first gambling in Tijuana since early last December, when President Obregon ordered all gambling in Mexico stopped. The order that permitted gambling today was given, it was said, because of a Mexican fiesta to be held for twenty days. President Obregon has permitted gambling in cases of fiestas in Mexico.

Sunset Inn, Baron Long's gambling resort and restaurant in Tijuana, is not open, but it is stated that the games there will start next Wednesday.

ALBANIANS CHARGE SERBS WITH ATTACK.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Aug. 6.—An official communique issued by the Albanian Press bureau here today says that 1200 Serbian irregulars under command of two reserve officers of the Serbian regular army attacked Albanian troops in the direction of Mirdita and that they were repulsed after eleven hours' of combat, leaving eleven dead and thirty prisoners.

The communique charges that the attack was organized by Serbian authorities for the purpose of causing uprisings of the Mirdites.

PICTURES THWARTED LOVE.

Woman Slayer of Kinkead Bares Cause of Killing; Wife Reiterates Faith in Murdered Man.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The story of thwarted love was told today by Miss Olivia Stone, Cincinnati nurse, after she had been held without bail on a charge of homicide in connection with the shooting of Ellis Guy Kinkead, former corporation counselor of Cincinnati, in Brooklyn yesterday. Mrs. Marie Louise Kinkead, who was preparing to take her husband's body to Covington, Ky., for burial, would only reiterate her faith in her husband.

Miss Stone recovered her composure today, when she first was taken to police headquarters for further questioning, and then was arraigned.

She said that she had met Kinkead in Cincinnati in 1918, when she nursed him for a nervous breakdown.

Then he made love to her. "Oh, he was a very fast worker," was the way she put it.

That she gave him $1000 to invest for her, but that she never saw it again.

That his love waned and she had got him discharged from the faculty of the Cincinnati law school in 1920, after he had refused to marry her.

That he then had married Marie Louise Gormley of Covington, and disappeared from town.

That she sued him for divorce, alleging herself to be his common-law wife; had been awarded $5000 alimony, but never had received a cent.

That she had purchased a revolver for her protection, came to New York to effect a reconciliation, had located him and had laid in wait for him near his home.

Describing last night's shooting, she said:

"When I saw him crossing the street I approached him and said: 'How do you do, Mr. Ellis Kinkead, you dirty rat, you're surprised to see me aren't you?'"

"What followed?" she was asked.

"I don't remember," she replied.

"An awful chill overcame me. I don't know what I did. Next I was in the station house. They told me I shot him in the knee. Later they told me I had killed him.

"I don't regret it, I am the happiest woman in the world. Ellis Kinkead is now in the place where the dawn comes up like thunder."

Mrs. Kinkead in a statement, said:

"I want it understood that there is no malice in my heart against the woman.

"That is not the first time she had had trouble with me.

"I have receipts for money my husband paid her for blackmail.

"I still believe in my husband and that his relations with her were simply that of patient and nurse."

Russian Dictator Allured by Bait to Secure Trade With British.

WILL HANG RUSSIAN REDS IN AMERICA, SAYS YANKEE

Vanderlip Tells Lenin That Soviets Haven't Slightest Chance to Get Anywhere in United States.

BY WASHINGTON B. VANDERLIP.

[Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.]

Communist officials, all wearing the Red Star of their creed, received me ceremoniously but affably when, early in September, 1920, I finished my down-country journey and stepped off the train in the capital of soviet Russia, Moscow. In those days everybody wore the Red Star—many with passionate pride, others because it was the easy thing to do, and many, I suspect, out of sheer terror of seeming different from the mob. This emblem of radicalism controlling an empire carries in its center the symbols of agriculture and of industry, sickle and hammer crossed.

These civil functionaries, together with a few Red soldiers, escorted me to the residence of the one-time sugar king of Russia, Harritonaka, who had several such gorgeous mansions in various countries of Europe. This establishment in size, appointments, furniture and decorations was magnificent in the way that Russians only seem really to create. It was a curious combination of oriental and occidental luxury, containing in a perfectly startling way the art expression of a dozen centuries. I am not exaggerating in the least when I tell you that there hung upon the walls of this palace more than $1,000,000 worth of paintings and lovely tapestries. The French school of painting was particularly represented, especially in the dim landscapes of Corot, and there were a number of Whistlers that would have opened the eyes of devotees of that singular genius.

LUXURIOUS SURROUNDINGS.

The walls of my own suite were hung with brocaded silks, which charmingly matched similarly brocaded furniture. I was somewhat astonished to see still in existence so many evidences of the elaborate luxury of the old regime, but I learned later that, with the coming of the Commune, there was really very little looting in the grand ducal and the other noble palaces, or in the mansions of the plutocratic bourgeoisie. At the outset, in the unbridled reaction from poverty and restraint that seized upon these people, there were attempts at looting, at stripping such houses of their costly furniture, but the soviet leaders stopped it almost immediately, and the Red soldiers administered about the only kind of medicine that is effective in checking such diseases—lead. Indeed, they shot some of their own comrades before the lesson was driven home that all property was now the property of the people, and that he who robs a store or a dwelling-house was robbing the people, and, therefore, a traitor.

In this palace of the one-time sugar king, even the silver services were undisturbed, and the sideboards and tables bore innumerable objects of beauty and utility, done in silver, gold and lacquer. This was really astonishing, because such things were so easily removable and could readily have been sold for fine prices. In my own suite I used magnificent china, gold plate and cut glass, the most beautiful I ever saw. The old butler, who dated from Harritonaka's time and who is still the head of the household servants, took particular pride in pointing out to me the symbols of his old master's wealth. He was at great pains, also, to explain, very privately, in whispers, that he, himself, was not a Communist. The other servants in the house wore the Red Star quite proudly at that time.

SOVIETS RETAIN SERVANTS.

In my simple American way, I had conceived the notion, somehow, that servants had been abolished in this millenium brought to Russia, and that Russians were no longer content to take menial orders from comrades in the great experiment. But it amused me to note that I had been wrong about this, for servitude is recognized as a necessary and even dignified activity in the Communist system. Under the supreme dispensation of authority men were designated for household labors pretty much as in the former days.

Magnificent as it was, this palace plainly revealed lack of intelligence and efficient care. The roof leaked from the neglect of several years and whenever rain fell or snow melted streams of water cascaded down the gorgeously draped walls and soaked tapestries that would have delighted the heart of an art dealer or connoisseur. The Communist never repaired anything. If a comrade in enthusiasm of spirit chucked a stone through a window pane, the hole remained. The pane was not replaced. In very truth the Russians have moved in the Spanish spirit of manana—let it go until tomorrow.

The windows were so filthy that I could scarcely see through them. Dust had collected everywhere. The tops of beautifully carved mahogany tables were stained and marred with grease spots. Doubtless there had been intention to keep the place clean and orderly, but "Nitchevo"—always tomorrow.

GREETED BY LENIN.

Lenin's offices were in the fourth story of an administration building of the Kremlin, the Hall of Justice. High officials of the Czar's government used this suite in the old days and very few changes have been made by the Communists. When I reached Lenin's workroom the morning after I arrived in Moscow I walked first through a commodious outer office where a dozen stenographers, both men and women, were busily pecking at typewriters, a scene quite similar to that which meets the eye in the outer office of any large American business establishment. I went then into a large simply furnished private office, occupied by Lenin and his secretary, a woman. The dictator was at his desk when I was admitted and he arose instantly and came across the room to greet me.

I was instantly impressed with the personality and the bearing of this remarkable man. He stands, I should say, about five feet eight inches and weighs 165 or 170 pounds. His build is chunky, as we say in America. He looked to me to be in excellent physical condition, to possess the sort of well-cared-for and unpampered body that should go with a keenly working intellect. His eyes, which are hazel, are extremely sharp and brilliant and he looks one straight in the face.

LENIN AN ATHEIST.

I had purposely read a good deal about Lenin. He was an avowed atheist and was always pleased to state that fact to his callers. He said so to me, with certain expressions which marked the fatalism that ruled his being.

Lenin thrust forth his right hand in a rapid, nervous gesture of welcome and he accompanied the gesture with a smile which I found pleasing. We spoke in Russian.

"Mr. Vanderlip, I have had so many wireless messages from you and regarding you, I feel as if I almost knew you."

He paused, adding dryly, with a glint of humor in his keen eyes:

"And I assure you, my visitor out of the West, that I know a great deal about you."

All this was friendly, affable, easy and perfectly human. I said:

"I have never been so curious, Mr. Lenin, about anything in my life as I have about you. I scarcely need to tell you that you are a mystery to the outside world."

"Tell me," he shot at me, "when are you going to have a revolution over there?"

"Not in 10,000 years, Mr. Lenin," I replied.

"Why not?"

"Because," I explained with a kind of impudence, which amazed even myself, "we will hang every Bolshevist you send over there."

"Then, Mr. Vanderlip, you do not actually believe that the real rights of mankind have much chance in your country?"

SOVIETS NOT WANTED.

"It is because I believe they have the best chance, Mr. Lenin," I replied, "that I say that Bolshevism has no chance west of the Atlantic Ocean. I mean simply that our people for more than a century and a half have had opportunities for growth and development and the acquisition of happiness and the good things of life that were denied altogether to your people. To my mind, sir, the cases are wholly different."

"Is it true," Lenin asked, "that every man in America owns a motor car?"

"Not quite," I smiled, "but every man in America carries an unsigned order for one."

"Ah, I see," Lenin nodded. "Then you don't want a revolution, do you?"

"Frankly, Mr. Lenin," I told him, "there isn't what we of California used to call a Chinaman's chance of such an upset."

It was then that I leaned forward suddenly and with the finger tips of both hands touched Lenin's head above the ears, and that, starting backward in amazement, he demanded the explanation so remarkable. And when I told him that I merely wanted to see if he had horns, his startlement and irritation quickly disappeared, and he laughed. There was, however, a trace of something very curious in his voice, possibly of sadness and regret, although I may be too imaginative, when he said:

"Is that what they think about me in America?"

DOWN TO BUSINESS.

This was all by way of preliminary to the real business of our conference, but it was light and interesting interchange which gave me some understanding of the mental workings of this master of millions. Gradually the conversation became very intense. At first our chairs were six feet apart, but as we began to talk about Russia and her need, and the possibilities of the future and of what America might be able to do for Russia, Lenin became more and more intense and gradually hitched his chair toward mine. So that, within a quarter of an hour, we were sitting with knees almost touching, and frequently we were touching each other on the shoulders or on the chest in gestures, emphasizing the points we sought to make. In the course of this drumfire conversation, Lenin asked:

"Mr. Vanderlip, as I understand it, you are over here for three things—to lease Kamchatka,' with Avatcha Bay and another naval base, so that your country may forestall Japanese ambition in the North Pacific, and finally, I understand, to secure a contract to act as the fiscal agent of Russia in the purchasing of $3,000,000,000 worth of goods in America. I have not been able to gather satisfactorily from the wireless reports just what is behind your scheme."

EXPLAINS SCHEME.

"Behind my scheme, Mr. Lenin," I told him squarely, "is the purpose to drive England into trade relations with Russia."

The frankness of this seemed literally to astound the soviet Premier. Obviously he was not prepared for anything quite so downright.

"How do you work that out, Mr. Vanderlip?" he queried.

"It was cupidity that started the great war, was it not?"

"Yes," nodded Lenin.

"Well," I said, "I know from physics that to start anything in motion and to bring anything to rest one must use the same force. In other words, one must use the same force to end the fighting in Europe that started the fighting in Europe."

"You mean?"

"I mean cupidity," I said.

"What is your plan?"

"Put into my hands a contract that will startle Europe. Give me a contract not for millions or hundreds of millions, but for billions. Give me something big, smashing. Give me something that will fairly shock the merchants of Europe. Then you will see."

Lenin drew back a little and looked into space for perhaps a full minute. I pressed him hard.

"Russia," I said, "needs $3,000,000,000 worth of raw materials and goods of all sorts from America—is that not true?"

RUSSIA'S GREAT NEEDS.

"Absolutely. We need 10,000 motor cars and trucks and 2000 tractors," said Lenin. "We need 500, perhaps 1000 locomotives at once. There are 12,000 to 15,000 old locomotives that must be repaired or permanently consigned to the junk pile. We need rails. We need manufactured goods. We need raw materials of every sort. Our needs are gigantic. They scream in our ears every day. I tell you frankly, Mr. Vanderlip, I would like to buy these things in your country. I will tell you with equal truth that Russia has or will find the money to pay for these things. All that Russia needs is a chance to get solidly upon her feet. Will America give her that chance?"

"I believe so. That is why I am here," I said. "Give the $3,000,000,000 contract to the Vanderlip syndicate, and even if my country is slow in sensing the inevitable, I feel sure that when British labor learns the opportunity that has been offered to American labor, that the British workingmen will force their government into trade relations with Russia. Eventually America and the rest of the world must come in."

"I see," said Lenin, thoughtfully. "I believe you are right. I will do what I can. I will take this matter up with the Economic Council."

BELIEVES LENIN SINCERE.

My conference with Nikolai Lenin lasted considerably more than an hour, and in that hour I received strong and definite impressions of the man, of his keenness, concentration, swift grasp of points (in which he reminded me of the late President Roosevelt,) and courtesy. He acted like a good fellow all the way through, walking to the door with me and retaining his clasp of my hand until I bowed my adieu. I have studied men all over the earth and I made up my mind that whatever else Lenin may be, he is sincere. At the end of my interview with him I realized that here was a man of extraordinary thinking and imaginative qualities; a man who would be cordially hated by his opponents and devotedly loved by his followers; a dual condition to which all strong men are subjected.

As we parted at the door the conversation took a curious twist. Lenin said:

"Some of these days when it is all over I want to make a tour of the world. I would be very much interested in visiting America. You would never guess, Mr. Vanderlip, two objects of my interest?"

"I imagine that they would not be the usual objects of the conventional tourist," I suggested discreetly.

"Possibly you are right," Lenin smiled. "As a matter of fact I am extremely curious to see in the flesh your Charlie Chaplin and to see what your American game of baseball is like. Your people seem to be quite mad about both."

INVITED TO LOS ANGELES.

"Don't fail to pause in Los Angeles, then," I said, "because there I can show you both."

During the interview we discussed many things. We laughed often. Lenin has a laugh that I like. There is a great difference in the way men laugh. He has a strong sense of humor which is typical of his people, for Russians resemble Americans, more than any other people with whom I have come in contact, in the quickness of the functioning of the brain in this respect. He is the type of man easy to enlist in any hazardous adventure—the type of man we are not unfamiliar with in this country. It is a type contemptuous and resentful of the inevitably slow processes of progress, and that seeks to obtain the dream of perverted reasoning at a single bound.

Knowing that his country was suffering from the persecutions of a corrupt Church and still more corrupt State, Lenin sought to destroy both by sudden violence and to change, although only a man himself, the very fundamental nature of man. He forgot or never knew that the nature of man is formed by the slow, imperceptible changes of evolution.

MEETS DICTATOR'S WIFE.

I saw a great deal of Mr. Lenin in the next few weeks, as my propositions dragged through the Economic Council and I was greatly interested in the simplicity of his personal life. The Premier is 51 years of age and Madame Lenin, who is known all over Russia as "Krupskaya" is about 50, I believe, a pale, slight woman, with prominent blue eyes and dark hair, now graying, which is parted in the middle and brushed severely back. She wears simple, conventional clothes, usually black. Suffering from goiter, she has been in bad health for a long time.

In the soviet scheme of things, where women as a rule, are ignored, and pushed aside by the lords of the race, she has exceptional influence, due as much to her own intellectual qualities, as to her husband's preeminence. Her particular work is education. She heads this department of work for the whole republic and her plans are being carried out from Siberia to the Caucasus. Education is demanded by the law itself in Russia now and severe penalties are exacted upto the age of fifty.

I was told from all sides in Moscow that the family life of the Lenins is beautiful and devoted. They have suffered poverty and exile together. They have never had any children. I know this, that it was a pleasure to hear any man speak so enthusiastically and appreciatively of his wife—especially a man who hod been married twenty-five years.

Mme. Lenin speaks English, but with the uncertain groping for words of one who is not in practice. A woman friend of mine in Moscow, who called on Mme. Lenin, noticed a sleek and well-fed cat, which was obviously a great pet in the little household. She asked Mme. Lenin if the story was true that Lenin is devoted to cats, and if, according to reports, he kept seven in the house.

TRUTH STRETCHED.

"Oh, yes, he likes them," Mme. Lenin explained. "He loves all animals. But we have only one cat between us. An American newspaper man once sent out a story that my husband had seven cats and four sisters. The truth is he has only one cat and one sister. I fear that American journalists sometimes stretch the truth a bit in order to make a good story. Foreign writers usually exaggerate when they write about Russia, I have observed."

It is a cool and restful little apartment, where the soviet Premier seeks relaxation from worries and problems. Along a single window ledge there are small pots holding geraniums, primroses and begonias. There are no pictures in the apartment for some strange reason, but "Krupskaya," with her black dress, her extreme paleness, her rigidly dressed dark hair, and her white, slender hands, is picture enough for the simple place.

WORKS FOR EDUCATION.

She has retained her own vocabulary by reading English books, particularly novels and essays by English and American writers of liberal, radical trend. She is particularly interested in the schools for adults, which, starting behind the lines, are now spreading over all vast Russia. There are forbidding difficulties in this educational movement which seks to teach Ivan his A B C's and his three R's at so late a time in his life, and there is a great lack of competent teachers. But Mme. Lenin, immensely enthusiastic about this work, keeps closely in touch with the educational committees in spite of her poor health, I formed the impression that she is really doing a great work.

These interesting personalities, Lenin and his wife, attracted me greatly in the long and rather trying period that the Economic Council spent in deliberating over my proposition. As I have already written, the Russian leaders were "gun shy." They were doubtful, fretful and suspicious. I found that Lenin had laid before them with characteristic clarity the requests I had made, together with the scope of the project and the design of forcing England into trade relations, but the various groups could not be rushed to a decision. One cannot hurry a Russian. His mind simply refuses to gallop.

Mr. Lenin subsequently said to me:

"You seem to understand our Russian people better than any American who has ever been in this country. I have watched you. Why is it?"

I said:

"I spent fourteen years in the Far East, dealing with orientals."

"Say no more," laughed Lenin.

USES AMERICAN BLUFF.

On one occasion and one occasion only, I ran a good, strong American bluff. That was at the showdown stage of my negotiations with the Economic Council. We had come to the point as to whether soviet or American methods should be applied to the government and the development of Kamchatka. The soviet leaders demanded that their system and theories be applied to the great province, even if it was to be given into American control and placed under the Stars and Stripes. I was equally determined that neither Socialism nor Socialists should have any part in securing the treasures of this land for Russia and for America. We reached an impasse. We were at a dead standstill. I said:

"Gentlemen, after thirty days we get nowhere. I now demand my passports. I leave tomorrow."

Lenin's personal representative (he sends one to every important meeting or conference that he is himself unable to attend) gave me a keen look, then instantly left the conference room. I surmised where he was going.

That afternoon Lenin 'phoned to the council: "Give Vanderlip what he wants."

GETS VAST CONCESSION.

The rest was simple. The documents were drawn up at once. The proper seals were attached. I received a concession for sixty years of Kamchatka with its 400,000 square miles and of the two naval bases, including Avatcha Bay, of course.

I can now reveal the secret that the contract constituting me, or the Vanderlip syndicate, fiscal agent in America for Russia, and empowered to purchase $3,000,000,000 worth of goods, was never signed. That contract—the whole fiscal agency scheme, with its attractive picture of billions of Russian money and materials to be spent in America—was merely a lure for the British imagination. It was the baited hook which I cast into British waters. My great purpose was to understand Russia and to detect the certain trend of events. Included in that purpose was the ambition to acquire Kamchatka for America. And a corollary of the Kamchatka design was to lay a solid foundation for the future friendship of Russia and the United States. To secure these things I paid in the coin of ideas. I presented free to Lenin a priceless suggestion. I opened his eyes as to the method to be employed in drawing Great Britain into trade relations with the soviet. We will see presently just how the scheme worked back in England.

Kamchatka can wait. It has been where it is for a good many centuries. Nobody is going to run away with it or with the naval bases that belong to it. Our American concession to that great province holds fast. The British may ardently desire the Gibraltar of the North Pacific, and who can blame them? But they won't get it. The wily Japanese may intrigue and threaten and bribe in their eagerness to use it as a driven wedge between the east and the west. They will not get it.

DISLIKES THE JAPANESE.

Lenin has no use for the Japanese. He told me so in the frankest possible words. There is no liking in all Russia for Japan or Japanese aggressions. No greater contrast is possible than the open, almost childish admiration for Americans, and the equally frank dislike for the Japanese.

Some of these days a revived, restored, purified and mighty Russian nation will reverse the Treaty of Portsmouth and will regain for Russia the territory and the prestige that passed in 1905 into the hands of the yellow race.

Hear the words of Lenin himself—no mere challenge of an individual or a temporary system, but the promise of the Russian people themselves:

"We shall never rest until every Japanese on Siberian soil is dead or in the sea."

This means war at no distant day, perhaps, and I, for one, believe that the decision will be different. Russia has learned how to fight. More important, Russia is learning to think and to plan and to aspire as a whole people. Russia is very big.

In the thirty days of conferences with Mr. Lenin and the Economic Council I had ample time to saturate myself in the color and quaintness of the new regime. I came into touch with the people themselves. I had entertaining and saddening adventures.

SNOW LINGERS DURING SUMMER.

Deep Drifts in Sierra and Plumas Counties; Gibraltar Mine Blockaded.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEVADA CITY, Aug. 6.—Although summer has come to California, deep snow drifts still linger in a number of localities in Sierra and Plumas counties, above here. At the Gibraltar mine, near the summit of the Sierra in Sierra county, drifts more than twenty feet in height prevent motor trucks from reaching the mine. Roads leading to the town of La Porte are not entirely free of snow. The late melting is attributed to the exceptionally heavy fall of the 1920-21 season.

DECLARES WAR NOW IMPOSSIBLE.

fleet to get within 500 miles of our coast, reasoned the officer, it is equally impossible for our fleet to get within 500 miles of the enemy's coast. Battleships, then, must either stay at home to be bombed in the harbors or venture tremblingly out to sea to be exposed to the submarines which will be lying in wait at the harbor gates. For submarines now have a cruising radius of four months.

"Battleships may still be built at a cost of $50,000,000 to $60,000,000 each. But they do not mean anything any more," said the officer.

"When they have been protected by 'blisters' against underwater torpedoes and mines and the aerial bombs, that fall alongside, and heavy enough armor to withstand the twenty-inch shells that will be hurled at them from the new guns, and a topside protection against aircraft, they will be immovable. There will not be room in such a hulk for engines if the ship is kept within the external limits prescribed by the depth and width of the sea canals."

MAY HALT CONSTRUCTION.

He believes that the Congressmen who witnessed this last experiment will so reason. He does not think they will appropriate money for more battleships. He even thinks that the construction of the battleships now 10 per cent completed may be halted. It is at least likely that careful consideration will be given to the new problem before Congress will grant money to finish them.

"If the other fellow's battleships cannot reach us, and we cannot reach the other fellow with battleships, why build battleships?"

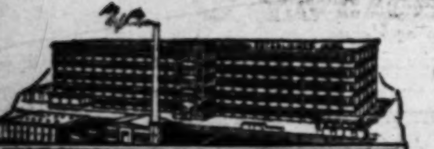
HALLET & DAVIS



One of America's First Piano Manufacturers WON One Hundred and Thirty-nine Gold-Medals and Competitive Awards Since

Grand Pianos

The piano shown above is the popular Hallet & Davis "Empress" Grand, five feet, one inch in length and may be had in polished or Adam Brown Mahogany.

The reason for the popularity of the Hallet & Davis Empress Grand is found in its wonderfully resonant tone quality—a tone so full, so round, so sympathetic that it is almost impossible to believe that it could come from any instrument so small. But that is typical of Hallet & Davis quality—a satisfying quality which we firmly believe comes with no other grand piano of the same dainty dimensions.

For over three quarters of a century it has inspired world-famous artists—Liszt, Rubenstein, Garden, Constantino, Bohn, Strauss, and others—to sing its praises from one side of the world to the other; naturally, then the selection of a Hallet & Davis Grand reflects credit upon its owner. Yet with all this wealth of assurance in quality the Hallet & Davis Grand costs less than it did twenty-five or fifty years ago.

We are sure you will be delighted with the Empress Grand. Accept this as a cordial invitation to call any time and hear this remarkable piano. Our moderate payment plan points the way to immediate possession.

HARVARD LAST WORD IN LUXURY.

Inaugurates New Travel Era on the Pacific.

Passenger Boat Makes Trip Wonderful Experience.

thing is absolutely first-class, something that can be said of no vessel of the Atlantic fleet, for they all preserve class distinctions. The Harvard is typically a western creation, for it has abolished all minor classes. Those who have sailed on the Atlantic liners will recall the three decks, the upper one barred to the second-class passengers, and the middle deck closed to the steerage, where men, women and children are herded like animals in the stockyards. It is a weak compromise between royalty and democracy. On the Harvard there is only one class. Every deck, every saloon is open to every passenger. There are four decks in all; but each of them is as free as the streets and the parks to those once aboard. Only under the American flag would such a service be possible.

As I observed the Harvard's long graceful lines and her immaculate whiteness as she rode at anchor at Los Angeles Harbor and later, on her upper deck as we steamed through the harbor craft, past the breakwater and out to sea, a vision came to me of a great white swan gliding among lesser water fowl on a summer lake.

FREIGHT PAYS BILL.

To compare her to the Harvard of the days before the war is like comparing the automobile models of 1908 to this year's limousine.

In the hold of the vessel are spacious compartments capable of carrying 750 tons of freight; and like the railroads, it is the freight that makes the service possible. The passenger service is something of a luxury to the company, but it is the boat's chief attraction.

There were finely furnished cafes in Los Angeles and San Francisco before the Volstead Act was passed, but none of them excelled in artistic effect the dancing saloon on the middle deck of the Harvard. Artists of national renown decorated the paneled walls and gave to the ceiling its delicate pastel shades. The capacious dancing floor is of inlaid hardwood, smooth as polished marble. Twenty masterpieces, painted on the panels carry the legend of terpsichorean art from the daughters of ancient Troy to those of modern Los Angeles.

DANCE WAY BETWEEN PORTS.

Dancing one's way from Los Angeles to San Francisco is no longer an allegory. It will take place every time the Harvard sails north.

Equally attractive in its artistic effect is the dining-room on the main deck and the drawing-room above. Everywhere one sees the delicate pastel tints, poems of harmony, reminding one of the subdued effects of old tapestries. Even the smoking-room on the upper deck is a work of art. As I passed through the vessel I marveled that such expensive furnishings, bringing to mind an emperor's yacht, should find a place in a modern liner.

For those who desire de luxe sleeping apartments and are willing to pay the price there are twenty-two suites each containing a reception room, a boudoir with twin beds and a shower bath. The tinting of these suites is exquisite, no two being alike. Some are bridal suites, others bachelor apartments. The movie suite is a veritable vamp's delight.

Why, one again asks, is a modern passenger steamer furnished so? I confess I have only partly solved the riddle. I am not at liberty to write what was repeated to me last night, "under the rose." But I can tell you that the intolerable boasting of a couple of millionaire tourists from New York in a Los Angeles club two years ago about the superior facilities for ocean travel on the Atlantic had something to do with it.

Private yachts have been fitted up with equal or superior elegance; but it is a new departure for such interior furnishings to be placed in a vessel open to the public. Tiffany blends and polychrome effects are not usually found in public conveyances.

LANCASTER (Pa.) Aug. 6. Refusing at the door of his church yesterday to preach over the body of Hammon K. Gibble, a Manheim (Pa.) boy, who died overseas in the Chateau Thierry fight, because the coffin was draped in an American flag, the Rev. John Snavely, pastor of the Hernley Mennonite Church, is the center of attacks. The family had the body removed to the United Brethren Church, where services were held. The American Legion of Lascaster is expected to take action.

Fred Baker, president of the Los Angeles Steamship Company, and Ralph J. Chandler, vice-president and general manager, were among the passengers. Mr. Baker is prouder of the Harvard and the Yale than perhaps of any other properties in which he is interested.

"Whether they prove a paying investment or not, they will make some people on the other coast sit up and take notice," was his reply to a question about the business side of the venture.

Ocean travel has not been popular as a vacation pastime in Southern California in the past by reason of the rather mediocre facilities. All that is now changed. One can ride from Los Angeles to San Francisco in less than twenty hours under conditions that have restored to travel the romance that passed when the steam engine cleared the old stage coaches from the highways. As we passed through the San Pedro breakwater Friday afternoon and headed north a four-master that had rounded the Horn under its own sails came driving down the wind. Foreign faces looked upward from its low decks to where we rode high in the air.

SEA AIR BRINGS APPETITE.

To our right a submarine was just emerging to the surface after a test trip. One of the brown Eagle boats that Henry Ford built in bewildering numbers for submarine chasers during the war bobbed lazily by. By the time we had sailed two hours we were passing Point Hueneme and the gong was sounding for dinner. At the entrance to the dining-room stood Al Levy, proud of his new position as chef of the Harvard as a recruit of his first service stripes.

And how we enjoyed a dinner, with appetites sharpened by the tang of the salt-sea air, and with the knowledge that there was no extra charge, however much we might eat, that the price of passage covered it all.

There is nothing so depressing to the appetite as the foreboding of the check one will have to look in the face when one is through.

I was amused by the sharp interest with which Al watched each of the guests as they entered and departed. I confess that I suspected he was suspicious that some of us might try to come back for a second meal.

MOONLIGHT AND THE SEA.

Moonlight and the sea! In the ivory saloon on the main deck with its pastel ceiling and paneled walls, President Baker is leading the dance with the captain's wife for partner. A string orchestra runs the gamut of modern dances. There is the click of dainty heels, the flash of roguish eyes, but the swish of the skirts of our grandmothers' time is missing.

There is more freedom in the modern evening gown, and more motion; more frankness and less Puritanism.

Moonlight and the sea. Maidens will do well to travel on the Harvard with their hearts kept under lock and key. And wise husbands will not sent pretty wives on too many of these excursions alone. For the great white swan never goes sailing without a Lohengrin on board. Up in the smoking room three Los Angeles councilmen, Criswell, Langdon and Allen are talking to Judge Crail and Editor Dickson about municipal bonds and power plans. They do not look happy. I fear they have made the mistake of bringing their business along, so I return to the ballroom where Ralph Chandler is showing that he is as much at home on a dancing floor as in a shipyard.

HOURS PASS QUICKLY.

How quickly the hours pass. The Yale steams south not far from our course and sends up a rocket to salute us. We reply in kind. Midnight has sounded and the orchestra closed its instruments and the lights are turned low.

Outside my window I hear the murmur of mixed voices but I turn resolutely with my face to the wall. Romance is for youth.

Rocked by the undulating motion of the waves I sleep in deep oblivion until I hear the music of the breakfast gong. I look in vain for the summer sea of yesterday. A cold gray ocean lies sullen under a northern fog. A strong head wind keeps a few from the breakfast room but not many. During the first half of the trip there was not a single case of sea nausea on board. The northern seas are a bit rougher than those of our Southern California coast.

SEA SMOOTH AS LAKE.

After an hour's run the head wind had been passed. The Harvard rode as smooth as on a lake and the ones who missed the early breakfast call were there for the last.

By the time breakfast was ended the outer rim of the Golden Gate was in sight.

Capt. Rogers assures me that this was not an exceptional trip of the Harvard; that it was similar to the trip that is made by either the Harvard or the Yale every day of the week from Los Angeles except Saturday and Sunday, and every day of the week from San Francisco except Sunday and Monday. Each of the boats contains staterooms sufficient to carry 500 passengers. These vessels are now propelled by three massive engines with a driving force of 12,000 horsepower. They can maintain an average speed of 22 knots an hour.

House Blown Away by Storm.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MUSKOGEE (Okla.) Aug. 6.—One house was blown away and windows in others broken by a heavy wind which struck Haskell, Okla., in Muskogee county, a town of about 3000 population, tonight, according to telephone reports.

CAMPBELL REFUSES TO CALL SESSION.

ARIZONA GOVERNOR TO ALSO FIGHT ANY CUTS IN SCHOOL FUNDS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Aug. 6.—Gov. Campbell today refused to call a special session of the Legislature asked by the Nogales tax conference in the hope of reducing the large appropriations made by the regular session in March. In a lengthy letter, addressed to Chairman John R. Norton of the conference, the Governor said that a special session would fail in the object desired and would merely mean added expense to the taxpayer. He stated he would oppose any reduction of school funds, feeling that Arizona should maintain her high standard in education.

Nearly all the appropriations of $805,000 for highway construction have been contracted or are pledged, so that national aid may now be secured. Letters from all the State departments assured the Governor that the administrative appropriations cannot be cut very deeply. The Governor advised Chairman Norton that he is having prepared a complete fiscal statement of the affairs of the State. This will be given wide publicity. At an early date he plans to call into conference all the executive heads of the State government in the hope of inaugurating a savings reserve that will become a cash credit for the State by the end of the fiscal year.

Chairman Norton has accepted the message with thanks. He expressed the opinion that the Governon has adopted the right and wise stand and that the taxpayers will appreciate it.

Adding "we taxpayers want it understood that no politics entered into this and reductions amounting to about $1,500,000, were put up to the Governor purely in the interest of the taxpayer. I feel that his course will accomplish much good.'

BOY'S BASKET HIDES JUGS OF MOONSHINE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LOUISVILLE (Ky.) Aug. 6.—A 13-year-old boy was carrying a heavy covered basket at Brook and Walnut streets the other afternoon, as Patrolman Lovell hove in view. The officer noticed a furtiveness in the boy's actions, and turned inquiringly toward him. The lad started to run, but after a chase of four blocks was overtaken while he was attempting to climb over a fence. His basket contained two one-gallon vinegar jugs, full of moonshine liquor.

The boy, who gave his name as Frank Lamonia, said that a negro gave him a dollar to deliver the jugs.

The boy told the police that he was cautioned not to look at anybody and to run if a policeman looked at him. The boy was given his freedom, while the moonshine was turned over to the Federal authorities.

Later in the afternoon, Lovell arrested Robert Turner, negro, whom the police charge with being a bootlegger and the man to whom the boy was conveying the liquor. A three-ounce bottle of moonshine, thought to be a sample with which Turner visited the "trade," was found in his possession.

He is held at the County Jail on charges of vagrancy and violation of the State prohibition law.

GOOD SHIP MAUD ON WAY TO SEATTLE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Aug. 6.—Capt. Roald Amundsen's exploration ship Maud left Dutch Harbor, Alaska, under her own sail August 3 and will arrive in Seattle some time early in September to be overhauled and repaired, Capt. Amundsen announced today.

He said the Maud would leave Seattle late next May to resume the Arctic discovery voyage which was interrupted by last year's mishap.

One week ago today we announced that we were going to dispose of our entire stock of these fine pianos at prices that were actually less than cost. The sale has been a huge success. The music-lovers of Los Angeles were quick to respond to this great money-saving opportunity. In fact, the demand for them has been so great that only 2 or 3 Grands and only a very few Upright models are left. We've relinquished the Sohmer agency. These few remaining instruments will be sold at less than they cost us, to effect an immediate clearance. After these few instruments are gone you'll have to pay the regular Sohmer prices again. If you act quickly you can realize a saving of hundreds of dollars! Terms will be arranged even at these prices.

JOYKILLERS ARE BUSY IN JAPAN.

Blue Laws Are Having Their Powerful Exponents.

Tokio Chamber of Commerce for Closed Sunday.

Buddhist Popularization Also Being Planned.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Blue laws are having their powerful exponents in Japan, as well as in the United States, according to information received by the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions at the board's headquarters, 156 Fifth avenue, New York City. Advices received by the board are that the Tokio Chamber of Commerce has formally put itself on record by the adoption of a resolution favoring the closing of all shops on Sunday. Heretofore, Sunday has been, as a rule, wide open.

Following this action a commission began the study not only of the Sunday problem, but also of plans for improving the hours of labor through the week. The project calls for a weekly rest day, shorter hours and more considerate treatment of employees. This commission designs to provide a weekly rest day for all employees except in hotels, eating houses and public baths, and also that working hours shall be restricted to nine and one-half per day, with eight hours only, for young persons employed.

Another important piece of news reported from Japan to the Presbyterian board is the tendency of the priests of every denomination of Buddhism to popularize the Buddhist belief by participation in every sort of social service, which up to this time has been neglected by them. As a result a chair of sociology has been established at the Jodo Sect College at Sugamo, at Setegaya and at Osaka, where every scheme and measure of social service is to be investigated. A Social Service Bureau has also been established where relief work, specially missionary work and other forms, will be undertaken. The new temple of Zojoji, now under construction, will be the headquarters on its completion in 1924, and a special organization for social service will be formed by the priests of the Jodo sect, where funerals will be conducted for the poor families free of charge.

Prayers for the peace of the spirits of the fowls killed for the tables of Tokio residents will be offered by 300 poultry dealers of Tokio at the Hachiman shrine in Tomikawa-sho, Fukagawaku, twice a year hereafter. Heretofore this ceremony has taken place annually on September 20.

RADIO-ACTIVE ORE FOUND.

Large Deposit is Discovered Near Yuma; May Yield a Large Amount.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

YUMA (Ariz.) Aug. 6.—Discovery of a large deposit of radio-active ore by prospectors placer mining for gold in a region near here, has led to the belief in local mining circles that Southwestern Arizona may possibly contribute a generous amount of the precious metal to the world. The substance, which is said to have many of the properties of radium, is crystal in form and a dull gray in color. Prospectors here say that the unknown ore has been encountered several times in this district, but little attention has been given it by miners.

House Committee Plans to Get Down to Work.

Tax Revision is Program for This Week.

Will Determine Extent of Levy Cuts.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Majority members of the House Ways and Means Committee expect to get down to the brass tacks of tax revision next week.

Chairman Fordney said unless an unexpected snag was encountered the new bills will be ready in ten days.

The work before the Republican committeemen is to determine the extent of the cuts possible and just where they are to be made. The general belief seems to be that the committee bill will propose repeal of the excess profits tax, but the effective date remains to be determined.

SUBSTITUTE PLANNED

As a substitute for the excess profits tax it is planned to increase the corporation income tax from 10 per cent, to 15 per cent and also to repeal the $2000 exemption allowed corporations. Chairman Fordney said today, however, that it might be necessary to make some specific provision in the bill to relieve the burden it has been claimed this would impose on the small corporations.

He also disclosed a proposal to write into the bill a provision taxing the income of the so-called personal service corporations, such as architectural firms not incorporated, the same as the income of other corporations. The Supreme Court has held that the present law is not applicable to such concerns.

NO RELIEF.

Mr. Fordney also said it was not proposed to relieve public service corporations from a part of the 15 per cent income tax provisions of the bill.

It was estimated today by some that immediate repeal of the whole transportation tax, the soda-water tax and the higher surtaxes together with the $55,000,000, which the treasury experts figure will be lost this fiscal year through repeal of the excess profits taxes as of last January 1, would approximate the $500,000,000 the House Republican leaders insist can be made in the tax levy.

With such a reduction the taxes to be paid this fiscal year would approximate $3,070,000,000 on the basis of treasury estimates presented to the committee and would include $225,000,000 estimated back taxes. In addition to this income the treasury figures custom receipts under the proposed new tariff law at $370,000,000 and income from miscellaneous sources at about $350,000,000, making a total of $3,790,000,000, as against an outgo estimated in the treasury statement at $4,554,000,000.

Supporters of the tax cut declare, however, that the apparent deficit of $746,000,000 would be greatly decreased through additional collections in back taxes, estimated at probably $100,000,000, a larger income from miscellaneous sources and decreases in expenditures including those on account of the public debt and the various Federal departments.

LEASED WIRES CAN CARRY GRAIN PRICES.

PROHIBITIVE CLAUSE IN CAPPER-TINCHER BILL STRICKEN BY COMMITTEE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Amendments to the Capper-Tincher bill to regulate future dealings in grain agreed upon today by the Senate Agricultural Committee include a decision to strike out a committee proposal to prohibit privately owned or leased telegraph and telephone lines from connecting with cities in which grain exchanges are not located. It was held that while aimed at "bucket shops" the provision would deprive producers of means for obtaining market reports to aid in disposing of their grains.

The committee proposal to give the Federal Trade Commission access by order of the Secretary of Agriculture to reports made by grain exchanges also goes out, but authority for the Secretary to call for such reports and make them available to the Attorney-General will be insisted on.

L. F. Gates of the Chicago Board of Trade opposed the elimination of leased-wire houses and said that proposed Federal Trade Commission examination of books would give the commission authority to explore the business of copartnerships and firms not now subject to its jurisdiction. He also contended that provisions of the bill permitting co-operative marketing associations which become members of grain exchanges to rebate commissions would be a powerful lever to compel all dealers to join such association, threatening monopolistic control by the producers.

FOUR NEW SHIPS IN WEST COAST TRADE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Aug. 6.—Four vessels have been assigned to service between Pacific Coast ports, the United Kingdom and Northern Continental European points by Furness, Withy & Co., it was announced today by Frank Waterhouse & Co., North Pacific agents of the British concern. It was said that other ships would be added to the American-Pacific trade later. Those now booked include the Mongolian Prince, Eastern Prince, Siberian Prince and El Cordobes. They are freighters and average 9000 deadweight tons.

MUST PAY HONOR TO DEAD SOLDIERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Numerous complaints of failure of Army Commanders to provide fitting convoys for bodies of American soldiers returned from Europe for interment in the United States stirred the War Department today to order all corps area commanders to furnish escorts at distributing points and firing squads at the funerals.

TO PAY GUARD FOR DRILLS.

Secretary of War Weeks Issues Order Whereby Claims Held in Abeyance Will Now be Paid.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Secretary of War has issued regulations under which National Guardsmen can be paid for drills under supervision of Regular Army officers. Guardsmen all over the country have been awaiting these regulations and many claims held in abeyance will now be paid. The regulations as approved follow:

"In order that officers and enlisted men may receive pay for armory drills or other commensurate service, the following provisions of law and regulations must be complied with:

"Captains and lieutenants belonging to organizations of the National Guard shall receive compensation at the rate of one-thirtieth of the monthly base pay of their grades as prescribed for the Regular Army for each regular drill or period of instruction, not exceeding five in any one callendar month, providing the following conditions are met for each drill:

"At least 50 per cent of the actual commissioned strength of the organization must attend and participate for not less than one and one-half hours, exclusive of rests and interruptions.

"At least 60 per cent of the actual enlisted strength must attend and participate for not less than one and one-half hours, exclusive of rests and interruptions.

"The character of the instruction shall be such as may be authorized by the Secretary of War.

Captains commanding organizations shall receive $240 a year in addition to the drill pay set forth above.

"Captains and lieutenants not belonging to organizations shall rereceive a compensation per month at the rate of four-thirtieths of the monthly base pay of their grades as prescribed for the Regular Army, when they have satisfactorily performed the duties prescribed in these regulations.

"Officers of this class are on a monthly pay basis and will be entitled to their maximum pay provided they have attended not less than four drills, assemblies, or have satisfactorily performed their duties prescribed in these regulations for any month. If the number attended during a calendar month is below four, they shall receive for each drill attended, or equivalent duty performed, one-fourth of their monthly rate.

"All officers above the grade of captain, whether belonging to organizations or not, when they have satisfactorily performed the duties prescribed in these regulations, shall receive compensation at the rate of $500 per annum.

"For field officers of the line to secure full pay of $500 per annum they must attend not less than forty-eight assemblies for drill and instruction or perform duty which is certified to by the Regular Army instructor as equivalent thereto while serving an entire calendar year.

"If the number attended during an entire calendar year is below forty-eight, they shall receive $10.41⅔ for each drill attended or equivalent duty performed.

"Officers above the grade of captain not residing at the stations of their commands, who follow courses of instruction prescribed by instructors or perform other military duties which are considered equivalent in value to the forty-eight assemblies required for line officers will be treated in a similar manner as field officers of the line. Certificates of Regular Army instructors will be required in all cases.

"Pay drills or equivalent duty in any calendar month are limited to a maximum of five."

NEWS AT THE STATE CAPITAL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 4. — Gov. Stephens's governmental reorganization scheme as passed by the last Legislature has gone into effect and to date the only apparent result has been confusion and a surplusage of titles in the reorganized departments.

It is claimed by the administration forces that the reorganization already has effected a saving of more than $250,000, but just where and how the money was saved cannot be explained. Claims also are made that by placing many commissions, boards and agencies under the departments created, economy and efficiency will result and duplication of effort will be eliminated.

Contrary to expectations, not a single State official, with the exception of Dr. F. W. Hatch, formerly Superintendent of State Hospitals, lost his job due to the change, and in the case of the one exception, Ralph Fisher was appointed Director of Institutions at the same salary paid Dr. Hatch. It was simply a case of substituting Fisher for Dr. Hatch and changing the title of the office held by the latter for more than twenty years.

Clerks in many of the offices affected are in the dark as to methods to pursue since the change. There is considerable confusion relative to making out claims and warrants due to lengthy titles conferred upon many officials. For instance, State Engineer W. F. McClure is now known as chief of the division of irrigation and engineering of the State Department of Public Works.

Many conflicts and inconsistencies in the law are cropping out and as a result the Attorney-General and the Legislative Counsel Bureau are kept busy trying to straighten out the tangles.

Apportionment of $125,806.98 in Federal and State funds to the public schools of California to enable them to carry on vocational education has been made by State Commissioner of Vocational Education Snyder.

Alameda county, with a share in the apportionment totaling $32,245.45, leads all other counties in the amount of work done under the Vocational Education Act. Los Angeles county is second with an allotment of $29,293.86. San Francisco's share was only $8000.

The apportionment to the schools of Southern California follows:

Fresno county, $6854; Imperial, $1607; Kern, $936; Orange, $962; San Bernardino, $6140; San Diego, $2110; San Luis Obispo, $954; Santa Barbara, $2072.

Adjt.-Gen. Boree announces that more than one-half of California's quota of National Guardsmen as assigned by the War Department has been raised. Gen. Borree has just returned from an inspection trip that carried him to all parts of California.

Recruiting was slow at the beginning, says Borree, but at the rate the guard companies now are annexing members he predicts the full strength will be reached in at least two months.

Numbers three feet square will be used by the State Motor Vehicle Department in licensing airplanes under the new law just effective, according to Superintendent of the Department Chenu. The numbers will be painted on the bottom wing of the plane and on the fusilage. It has not been determined what color to make the numbers.

Secretary of State Jordan has come to the conclusion there are more scenario writers in California than he thought lived in the entire United States.

Jordan has been forced to this conclusion through the new scenario copyright law. Every mail brings at least half a dozen scenarios for registration and it keeps one man busy all day in answering questions concerning the new law and in filing the scenarios submitted.

The action of the United States Air Service in discontinuing the airplane fire control in California due to lack of funds seriously cripples the forest fire protection system in the State, according to Deputy State Forester Pratt.

Pratt says the airplanes had proved invaluable in detecting forest fires in the State and their loss, he declares, will constitute a menace to the forests.

Japanese of California have volunteered to co-operate with the State Department of Education in enforcing the new law to regulate foreign language schools in the State.

According to Sam Cohn, who has been assigned to enforce the act, T. Takimoto, general secretary of the Japanese Association of America, says the Japanese welcome supervision of their schools.

MEXICO PROGRESSING TOWARD STABILITY.

NEW CONSUL AT NACO SAYS COUNTRY'S CONDITION IMPROVING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NACO (Ariz.) Aug. 6.—Although the business and industrial depression in the United is being reflected throughout Mexico that country is nevertheless making more pronounced progress toward economic and industrial stability than for many years, according to Roberto E. Quiros, new Consul for the Mexican government here, who assumed his post this week.

Quiros relieved Angel Casarin, Jr., who was transferred to the office of the Consulate-General at New Orleans.

"So far as conditions as a whole are concerned, the situation in Mexico is rapidly improving," said Quiros today. "Mexico is peaceful. We are making great progress along every line in spite of the great handicaps our officials are working under."

KORFANTY IS NOT WANTED IN ENGLAND.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

PARIS, Aug. 6.—Adelbert Korfanty, leader of the Polish revolt in Silesia, will be unable to go to England as he had planned to plead the Polish cause before members of the British Cabinet, said the newspaper Eclair today. A passport was granted him by France, but the British Embassy refused to vise it.

The newspaper asserted that Korfanty is regarded as an undesirable by the British government.

FORD'S NITRATE PLANT BID THE HIGHEST.

ONE OR TWO OFFERS RECEIVED, ONE MAN WANTS $50,000,000 FOR TAKING PROJECT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. — Although every industrial establishment and financial company in the United States, which it is believed might be interested in the purchase o fthe Muscle Shoals (Ala.) nitrate plant and dams has been informed that bids for the project would be welcomed by the War Department, it was announced today that no bids have been reecived, which the government considers comparable to that submitted by Henry Ford.

One or two offers have been received, but were said to be unacceptable. One came from a man who said if the government would give him $50,000,000 he would take over the operation of the nitrate plants and guarantee to "make good profits."

WOULD REVIVE DYING RACE.

Experiments Are Soon to be Enacted in Hawaii.

To Rehabilitate Natives Via the Land Route.

Plan the Simple, Healthful Pursuits of Fathers.

BY GEORGE F. NELLIST.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HONOLULU, Aug. 6.—Can a dying race come back?

The experiment is to be tried in Hawaii. Enactment by Congress of the Hawaiian rehabilitation bill, or the Hawaiian Homes Act, to give the measure its real title, marked the inauguration of an attempt to rehabilitate the Hawaiians, through their restoration to the lands and the simple, healthful pursuits of their fathers.

APPALLING DEATH RATE.

The Hawaiians, in the olden days agriculturists and fishermen, have practically been driven out of those industries and into the tenements of Honolulu by changing economic conditions. They have been supplanted on the small farms and in the fishing fleets by the more industrious, hard-working Japanese. And this change has only operated to increase each year the appalling death rate of the pure-blood Hawaiians.

It is provided by the Hawaiian Homes Act that revenue derived from the leasing of highly cultivated public lands, operated in the main by sugar and pineapple plantations, shall be diverted into a fund which shall finance the rehabilitation scheme.

PROVIDES LANDS.

It is proposed to place Hawaiians of one-half or more Polynesian blood on secondary public lands, suitable for diversified farming and stock raising, but not now under cultivation, and large tracts have been set aside on the islands of Molokai and Hawaii for this purpose. From the revolving fund which will be provided by rentals from the highly cultivated public lands, each Hawaiian family returning to the soil will be loaned sums not to exceed $3000 for the purchase of implements and the erection of buildings. Expert assistance will be provided the colonists by the Hawaiian homes commission, created by the act.

It is estimated that the new leases to the highly cultivated public lands will bring in about $600,000 a year, of which a certain portion will go to finance the rehabilitation work and the rest will be available for general Territorial purposes.

FATHERS OF SCHEME.

It is stipulated in the act that for five years the experiment shall be limited to the lands which have been set aside on Molokai and Hawaii and if, at the end of that time, it is clear that it has been successful, Congress will be asked for further legislation authorizing extensions of the work until all public lands shall be so utilized.

Prince Jonah K. Kalanianaole, Delegate to Congress from Hawaii, and Senator John Wise of the Territorial Legislature are the fathers of the rehabilitation scheme and are confident that it will prove successful, that it will save the Hawaiian race as the Maoris have been saved in New Zealand. Others, particularly the Caucasian Americans of Hawaii, are doubtful, but everyone agrees that in this experiment the fate of the Hawaiian race is at stake.

WASHINGTON NEWS IN BRIEF.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Republican Senators are becoming impatient over the White House silence regarding peace negotiations with Germany. They are absolutely in the dark and know nothing except that negotiations of some kind are in progress.

Desertion in America of German seamen who ship from Germany at the rate of 1 per cent a month emphasizes the violation of the immigration laws which is going on continuously under cover of the Seaman's Act and not a move is being made to stop the flood of inadmissible aliens to the country. More than 13,543 deserting seamen entered the country illegally in 1920 and the number so far this year, it is estimated, will be much larger.

Prohibition leaders are now convinced that there is a well-organized filibuster operating in the Senate against the passage of a bill to prohibit the use of beer as a medicine. Opponents of the bill by holding it up are hopeful that the treasury regulations to permit consumption of beer by prescription, long held up, may be forced out of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Treasury officials say that the predictions of House leaders for a cut of $500,000,000 in the estimated government expenditures can be realized if Congress will actually take action and not talk so much about it. Members are reminded that there are authorizations to various departments outstanding which must be taken into consideration because the money must come out of the treasury.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has ruled that the railroads cannot figure in their maximum maintenance-of-operation accounts "the inefficiency of labor."

The Department of Justice is preparing to enforce an old law preventing former government officials as lawyers pressing claims against the government until two years after the expiration of their Federal service. It would affect such men as former President Wilson, former Secretaries of State Lansing and Colby and many others who are now practicing law in Washington.

Milton H. Berry's Success On

PARALYSIS

Miraculous Correction and Improvement Made of Three Cases Here in Los Angeles

The cases referred to are but a few of many persons who Mr. Berry is successfully instructing to regain the use of their paralyzed parts. These three cases are prominent persons who are living here in Los Angeles. You may confer or communicate with each one or all of them. The names will be supplied to you.

Lady — Age, past sixty-five: Stricken with paralysis, four years, left side affected. Arm entirely useless. Leg partially affected, necessitating the constant use of a cane. After two months' instructions she walks without the cane and uses the leg naturally and the use of the arm is gradually but surely recovering as the motion of the elbow and wrist is now very pronounced.

Man—Age, seventy: Stricken eight years. Both legs partially affected; used a cane. Could not raise either leg from the ground but shuffled his feet. After three months' instruction he takes natural steps without the use of the cane. While these steps are at present limited, each day proves that he is becoming stronger in the use of his limbs.

Lady—Past sixty: Stricken three years ago; left side, arm and leg almost useless. Was unable to walk, had to be helped by others. After two months' instruction by Mr. Berry she can walk alone without any aid.

If you doubt the foregoing statements you should call and make arrangements to meet these persons, as well as others whom Mr. Berry is successfully teaching. They are all only too glad to inform those who, like themselves, have gone on for years believing that nothing can be done for them.

NEW SQUIRMING IN BOND SALE.

Stories of Officials Show Ridiculous Contrasts.

Seek to Explain Huge Loss of Citizens' Money.

Agreement Ties Up Work at Los Angeles Harbor.

Further contradictory statements regarding the maneuvering that preceded the hurried and secret sale of $13,500,000 worth of municipal power bonds for $11,965,000 last Tuesday, were smoked out yesterday by the efforts of the participants in the disastrous deal to explain their parts in the huge loss suffered by the taxpayers.

It is especially significant, however, that no explanations have been forthcoming as to why the officials threw to the winds the expressed will of a two-thirds majority of the voters and from $500,000 to $2,000,000 of their money besides.

CONTRADICTORY FACTS.

By their various and varying statements the officials have placed the deal in the following ridiculous light:

(1.) It was both secret and at the same time known by everybody interested in the matter. Some of the officials shout "power trust" bugaboo and state the transaction had to be conducted secretly. Others with equal blandness say there could have been nothing secret about it, everybody knew it.

(2.) No invitations, either formal or informal, for bids on the bonds were made, says W. B. Mathews, attorney for the Public Service Commission, and President Howard Robertson. Yet Irving Hellman, agent for the buying syndicate, says in his formal statement published yesterday: "When I was approached and asked to undertake the sale of these bonds," etc.

NO COMPETITION.

(3.) The price obtained was the best possible, practically all of the interested officials declare, yet they admit no effort was made to have what might by a great stretch of imagination be called competitive bidding.

(4.) Mr. Hellman states that a series of negotiations were made after he had deposited a good faith check of $135,000 on the deal. Denials two days before the deal was closed that any negotiations were on were made by Mr. Mathews and Dr. John S. Haynes, member of the commission, as well as other city officials.

(5.) It has been consistently declared that the opponents of the sale are agents of the Southern California Edison Company. It now develops that some of the principals in the Hellman syndicate are interests which have invested most heavily in the Edison company's own securities. The contradiction is obvious.

Aside from these amazing contradictory situations, additional evidence piled up yesterday of the manner in which the city lost not only from $500,000 to $2,000,000 outright, sacrificed a power plant, agreed to pay 6.36 per cent on the money obtained from the bonds instead of the 5 per cent authorized but also gave a staggering blow to harbor developments.

When the Board of Harbor Commissioners met yesterday, at the City Hall the matter of the $1,200,000 asked for about two months ago from the sale of bonds authorized two years ago by the voters was not formally discussed.

MONEY NEEDED.

President Gordon of the commission stated, however, that the matter is of vital concern to the commission and to the good of the harbor.

"The money is so badly needed," said Mr. Gordon, "that I could not undertake to tell you of the existing necessity. We asked for it about two months ago and by failure of the Council to sell the bonds we have had to cut our forces to a mere skeleton and stop all work. We are hopeful that some agreement may be made whereby the harbor bond sale can be made. As I understand the proposition of the bond men is not in the hands of the City Council I hope that may prove a way out of the present difficulties."

The difficulties which the Harbor Commission faces in its efforts to push the preparatory work so that the government's project for dredging may proceed were brought about at the same time the City Council accepted the recommendation of the Public Service Commission and voted to approve the Hellman syndicate bid on the power bonds.

CITY TIED UP.

By the Hellman agreement the city tied itself hand and foot indefinitely to withhold from the market all other municipal bonds until sixty days after the delivery of the bonds to Mr. Hellman. The delivery and the time limit clause will tie matters up for at least three and one-half months, it has been stated on the floor of the Council chamber and probably much longer.

Mr. Hellman, who has been considering for the last few days a proposal that the city be permitted to sell the harbor bonds providing the latter will not be offered on the public market until his agreement expires, has thus far failed to give a definite answer. It was stated at his office yesterday he was out of the city and could not be reached.

AMERICAN FLAGS FOR ENGLISH CLUBS.

UNITED STATES ROTARIES INAUGURATE CUSTOM THAT WINS POPULARITY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

YORK (Eng.) July 23.—Presentations of silken American flags to British Rotary clubs, as a token of Anglo-Saxon friendship, are of growing frequency throughout England and the custom is spreading into Scotland and Wales, according to newspaper accounts.

One of the most recent gifts of this kind, "an earnest of the friendship and fellowship America bears to Great Britain," was presented to the York Rotary Club by Luther Stark of Orange, Tex., vice-president of the International Association of Rotary Clubs. The Lord Mayor of York, Alderman E. Walker, in accepting the Stars and Stripes on behalf of the York club, expressed "the appreciation and pleasure" of the recipients and said it was such a tie as would help to bind still closer the English-speaking peoples of the world.

Another American flag was recently unfurled at Rotherham, at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club, by International Vice-President William Coppoch of Council Bluffs, Iowa. The Bishop of Sheffield, who is an honorary Rotary member, said he was certain the movement would have a beneficial effect on a large number of men and women. He said he approved the effort to secure the whole-hearted alliance and friendship of all branches of the Anglo-Saxon race. "A real lasting friendship with America," he declared, "is desired in this country."

MRS. RITA LYDIG TO WED CLERGYMAN.

ENGAGEMENT TO RECTOR OF CHURCH OF THE ASCENSION ANNOUNCED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Rita Lydig of New York and Katonah, N. Y., announced her engagement to Rev. Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension.

Dr. Grant is a bachelor, 61 years old, and his betrothed has been married twice before. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Lydig has long been prominent in society, and has sponsored many philanthropies.

In 1895, when only 16 years old, she was married to W. E. D. Stokes, from whom she was subsequently divorced. She was married to Philip Lydig in 1902.

Mrs. Lydig was separated for several years from her second husband, Maj. Lydig, before divorce proceedings were instituted in France. In 1918 she obtained a final decree from him in Paris.

Mrs. Lydig was once described as "America's most picturesque woman." She was formerly Miss Rita Hernandez y de Alba de Acosta, and is the daughter of the late Ricardo de Acosta, New York banker.

During the late years of the Episcopacy of Bishop Greer, Dr. Grant caused consternation in Episcopal circles by preaching a sermon in which he advocated divorce under certain circumstances.

LEAPS IN SEA, SAVES WIFE AND BABY BOY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POINT LOOKOUT (L. I.) Aug. 6. Alfred F. Macoun, who lives in Astoria, recently in a daring rescue saved his wife, Florence, and their 5-months-old baby boy from death by drowning. Macoun and his wife and child had gone out to fish opposite the Sea Breeze Hotel. The fish were running poorly, but there was an abundance of crabs. So Macoun began to haul these in.

His wife was sitting in the stern of the skiff holding the baby. Suddenly she beheld a large, hostile-looking crab approaching her along the bottom of the boat. She was struck dumb with fright and, recoiling, rolled into the water over the stern board carrying the infant in her arms. Her husband was so occupied hauling in the crabs that he did not notice the disappearance of his wife until her distant calls made him look up. Clutching the baby high above her head, she was being carried rapidly out through the inlet in the grip of a swift ebb tide.

Macoun jumped in. He quickly reached his wife, but when he turned back to shore he had to fight the fast-running current. Slowly he fought his way back, tugging his choking wife behind him. The baby rode clear of the water. He was just about to give up the struggle when his feet touched bottom. Without pausing he carried his wife and baby shoreward in his arms, falling exhausted on the beach. Members of the crowd which had gathered to witness the rescue quickly restored him, and it was said that none of the three suffered any ill effects from the accident.

MINERS OPPOSE WAGE CUT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO JUMPS RAIL TRACKS.

To Build Five-Mile Parkway into Lake.

New Project Will Add Strip of Land to City.

Cost is Estimated at Around $40,000,000.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Blocked from the lake along more than half its south side, Chicago has started work to jump the intervening railroad tracks by building a five-mile parkway out in the lake.

This is to run from Twelfth street to Fifty-fifth street, connecting downtown lake-front improvement with Jackson Park, and adding the missing link of a forty-mile drive running along or within a stone's throw of Lake Michigan.

WILL BE A PARK.

A start is being made this summer on the initial fill-in on the present short line and in a necessary breakwater. It is hoped to complete the first part of the shore fill before the year runs out. This will eventually add a strip of land about 600 feet wide and five miles long beyond the railroad tracks. The made land will be converted into a park.

The much larger task of construction of a long, narrow park in the waters of the lake may be started next spring. It will be built about 1800 feet from the present shore line. Its east side will give Chicagoans the uninterrupted view of the lake on the south that they have long wished for. Its side toward the city will inclose a long lagoon, furnishing an admirable course for regattas. It will be 600 feet wide.

At intervals along the outer shore line bathing beaches will be built, with the purest water obtainable, ever free from any shore wash.

TO COST FORTY MILLION.

The cost of the entire project is estimated at around $40,000,000. Work is being started under an initial $8,000,000 bond issue already voted.

The undertaking is part of the Chicago plan, drawn up in 1908 and promoted since then by the Chicago Plan Commission, which is supported by municipal appropriation.

The opportunity Lake Michigan has given Chicago to grow in beauty is appreciated more this year than ever before. At the time of the World's Fair here in 1893, the lake came right up to the railroad tracks running across the downtown face of the city. Since then the waters have been pushed back by filling in until a great public park has been created downtown, named Grant Park, after one of Illinois' most noted sons.

A miniature bluff of made land gives the foundation and setting for the $4,000,000 Field Museum building, opened this spring on one corner of this park. The grounds around the building, where not long ago the waves rolled, are thirty-one feet, and the floor of the museum nearly fifty feet above the lake.

LOS ANGELES WOMAN MUST RETURN CHILD.

COURT IN ALABAMA ORDERS MOTHER TO TAKE GIRL TO GRANDPARENTS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BIRMINGHAM (Ala.) Aug. 6. — Mrs. Monnie Moore will be required to bring Mary Blackburn, 15 years of age, back to Alabama from Los Angeles and turn her over to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Blackburn of Fayette, on September 15, according to an order issued today by Judge Dana Greene, presiding judge of the Circuit Court. The order provides for the child to remain with them until September 26, when the petition of Mrs. Moore to be given the custody of the girl will be heard again.

In addition, the grandparents will pay the traveling expenses of the child from her California home.

The action was taken by the court following a petition of attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn, that the child be returned to the jurisdiction of the local court. It is contended by them that since the Supreme Court of Alabama reversed and remanded the case, Mrs. Moore is under $5000 bond to appear in court and should be required to return Mary to the jurisdiction of this court. According to the petition of the grandparents, the mother held the girl in her custody for five years before the court gave the custody to the mother about sixteen months ago, and they are most anxious to have her with them during vacation time.

The custody of the girl was given to Mrs. Moore more than a year ago following a lengthy hearing before former Judge Horace Wilkinson and attracted much interest throughout the State on account of the hard-fought legal battle. As the case now stands, Mrs. Moore again will have to prove to the court that she is the proper and fit person to rear her young daughter, while it is understood that the grandparents of the child will attempt to prove the contrary.

IMMIGRANT RACING MAY BE STOPPED.

SHIP LINE OFFICERS AND GOVERNMENT LIKELY TO GET UP AGREEMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Midnight racing of immigrant-laden steamers into American harbors to land monthly quotas in the first minutes of the first day of new months may be done away with Monday when ship lines' officers and immigration officials get together to formulate a new agreement.

Commissioner G. R. Husband of the Immigration Bureau, in announcing the conference today, said he was willing to "wipe the slate clean," admit under bond the 400 or so August quota excess now in harbors and begin all over if the companies would reach a binding agreement among themselves not to exceed quotas hereafter.

Due to such a race July 31, the Greek, Turkish and other small quotas for August were exceeded in the first two minutes of August 1. One ship lost out because of a lighter crossing her bow. She was a British steamer, bringing a small part of the month's quota of Greeks and had refused, Commissioner Husband said, to take others. A Greek ship with the whole month's quota of Greeks left after the British vessel, but won by two minutes in docking. The conference is planned to devise ways and means of meeting this situation.

Companies that bring the majority of immigrants are adhering strictly to agreements among themselves, the commissioner said, that they would not bring more aliens of any nationality than could be admitted under each month's quota. The difficulty is with smaller lines and comparatively small numbers of immigrants, he said.

Since June 30, probably not more than 400 aliens have arrived in excess of quotas, but these have taken practically all the time of the bureau officials to handle, it was said. Considerable pressure is brought by members of Congress and others to permit them to be admitted, once they reach port, the commissioner said, and none have been taken back by the ship companies that brought them, as yet.

ARIZONA STRIP TO BE FARMED.

Hundred Families Take Up Land for Homes.

Negotiation Said to be Backed by Local Capital.

District Has Plenty of Water, Fertile Soil.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX, Aug. 6.—A move toward the development of "Arizona strip," north of the Grand Canyon, is under way. About 100 families, mainly from Utah, are reported to have journeyed lately into the strip, mainly for the purpose of taking up lands around Pipe Springs, which lies about twenty miles southwest of Kanab, Utah, and about a dozen miles south of the northern line of Arizona. The migration is understood to be backed by a company in which Los Angeles capital is largely interested, though Director Mather of the national park service is said to be one of the main backers. The district is one too well drained into the Grand Canyon to have much flowing surface water or lakes, yet there are many springs, and well water is to be developed at reasonable depth in many of the well-grassed valleys. Fine timber is on the mountains and copper and gold mines have been worked in the locality. The section was visited last fall by Gov. Campbell, who though traveling in a period of drought, found much land capable of development.

PIONEER SETTLEMENT.

Pipe Springs has distinction as one of the first settlements of the white man in Arizona, possibly antedated only by Fort Defiance. Dr. James M. Whitmore here established his home and a cattle ranch in 1863, even before the creation of the Territory of Arizona, and about a year before the foundation of the first town, Prescott. Dr. Whitmore the following year was with Anson Call and Jacob Hamlin in the establishment of Callville. Jan. 8, 1866, he and a herder, Robert McIntire, were killed, four miles north of the springs, by a band of Paide Piutes and Navajos, found driving off horses and cattle. The Indians were pursued from Rockville and St. George, Utah, by parties of Mormon ranchers, headed by James Andrus and D. D. McArthur. The former penned the Indians in a canyon, a short distance west of Kanab Wash and brought them back to Pipe Springs, where the other party had been guided by an Indian to the spot where the murdered men lay, covered by snow. After the return the Indians stampeded and nine of them were killed. The Shivwits Indians of the same district a few years later killed three men of the Powell expedition, men who had climbed the northern Grand Canyon wall rather than to continue on through the lower river rapids.

OWNED BY YOUNG.

After the death of Whitmore, the Pipe Springs ranch was bought by President Brigham Young of the Mormon Church, who, in 1870, organized the Winsor Castle Stock Growing Association. The enterprise was in charge of Anson P. Winsor. About that time was built a large double, two-storied rock fort, that could be closed at all points against possible Indian attacks and that had a spring of water in its court yard.

Pipe Springs has further distinction in having been the first telegraph office ever established within Arizona. This was in connection with an extension from Rockville to Kanab of the Deseret telegraph line in 1871. The military telegraph line into Southern Arizona was built several years later, eastward from San Diego.

The place is said to have been named by the famous Mormon scout, Jacob Hamlin. In a halt there made on one of his many expeditions, William Hamblin, on a wager, shot the bottom out of Dudley Leavitt's pipe without breaking the bowl, this at twenty-five yards distance.

Goan Some.

William Goan's motor boat tore from its moorings during the high water some time Sunday night and when it became entangled in Pete Owings's fish net, Owings declares that a fish in the net slashed its tail against the boat's propeller, which started the motor and the craft darted up the river. It was found later near the McGrew mine near Lexington. — [Higginsville (Mo.) Jeffersonian.

RECORD POTATO CROP EXPECTED.

Thousands of Acres in Bloom Near Edmonton; Greater Increase This Year.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EDMONTON (Alta.) July 25.—Prospects for a record potato crop in this district are exceptionally good at the present time and it is expected that the yield will be as heavy as any yet harvested. The acreage is 20 per cent greater than any previous year. Within twenty miles of Edmonton there are thousands of acres of potatoes which are in bloom.

ST. JOHN'S CATHEDRAL TO HAVE NEW TOMB.

SARCOPHAGUS IN WHICH BISHOP HORATIO POTTER WILL LIE IS BEING SET UP.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Pieces of sculptured marble which are to form a sarcophagus for Bishop Horatio Potter arrived at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, yesterday and the work of building the sarcophagus was begun. In a few days a recumbent statue of Bishop Potter will arrive and be placed on the tomb.

Later the body of the Bishop will be brought from the cemetery at Poughkeepsie and be placed in the tomb. Bishop Potter was interred thirty-four years ago.

The sarcophagus will be placed directly behind the high altar and is to remain there for all time. This is the spot where the coffins of Bishop David H. Greer and Bishop Charles S. Burch were placed for a short time before the funerals. Bishop Greer and Bishop Burch lie in the crypt.

The monument to Bishop Horatio Potter will not be unlike that to his nephew, Bishop Henry Codman Potter, who succeeded him as Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of New York. The sarcophagus to Henry C. Potter is in the chapel, which is a memorial to him. His body was cremated when it was taken from the crypt, where it had lain temporarily. The ashes are in an urn which stands under the recumbent figure of the Bishop.

The Horatio Potter Memorial, which will cost thousands of dollars, has been paid for by men and women whom he confirmed. The chairman of the committee, from the first, has been Bishop William T. Manning. The secretary is Robert G. Hone, who is secretary of the trustees of the Cathedral. The architect was S. Edward Nash, who is architect for Trinity Corporation and a vestryman of Trinity.

The recumbent figure of Horatio Potter is six feet long. The whole is of white marble. About the sarcophagus are six saints carved in marble.

It was Horatio Potter who got the charter for the cathedral corporation in 1873. Bishop Henry Codman Potter bought the ground.

Horatio Potter was Bishop of this diocese from Nov. 10, 1852, until his death, Jan. 2, 1887. The bronze lectern in the cathedral is a memorial to Horatio Potter. It was the gift of Mrs. James Herman Aldrich.

NAME REDWOOD GROVE IN BOLLING'S HONOR.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

EUREKA, Aug. 6.—Bolling Grove, a great redwood stand, situated at the junction of the South Fork of the Eel River and Elk Creek, about forty-five miles from here, was dedicated today to Col. Raynal C. Bolling, first American soldier of high rank to fall in the World War. The grove was deeded to the Save the Redwoods League by Dr. John Phillips of Boston, Mass. Madison Grant, an executive of the league, and Irwin T. Quinn, a vice-commander of the American Legion in California, were the principal speakers.

GETTING READY FOR SON'S FUNERAL, DIES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Louis Berry died suddenly today at Daly City, near here, as she was preparing to attend the funeral of her son, Louis E. Berry, World War hero, whose body was returned from the battlefields of France, where he was killed.

It is planned to inter the bodies of the soldier and his mother together.

ALL-YEAR FUND AID FROM EAST.

New Yorker Sends Ten Dollars and Pledge for More.

Broker Calls Program Best Advertising Stunt.

Says He Plans to Make Home in Southland.

Even New York City is now listed among the communities from which financial support has come for the All-Year Club of Southern California. Ten dollars in cash, subscribed by a New Yorker for the fund, which is to advertise all the Southland for three years, and his pledge to continue the contribution for other years, was added to the all-year fund yesterday.

[illegible] Rich, an investment securities broker at 43 Wall street, New York, who knows and loves the Southland because of many visits here, is the donor of this subscription, and furthermore Mr. Rich states that he is anxious to increase the amount of his pledge and will do so if Southern California will subscribe the $300,000 per year for three years which the All-Year Club has set as its goal.

In a letter in which he forwarded the subscription, Mr. Rich asserted that the all-year proposition was the best advertising program Southern California has originated in some time." Mr. Rich gave it as his opinion, too, that all the southern counties ought to subscribe at least $500,000 the first year, $1,000,000 the second year, and $1,500,000 the third year toward the all-year movement.

The contribution of the New York broker came in a letter which said:

"I have been interested in what has been printed about the all-year proposition, and think it the best advertising stunt you have originated in some time. Originated may not be proper, as San Diego, by your own admission, beat you to it.

"If not too late, I would like to put my name down for a $30 subscription to the all-year fund; $10 herewith, and a like amount each year of the three-year campaign. Of course, I reserve the right to increase my subscription, and will do so in the proportion that you, out there, raise your collections beyond the $300,000 mark each year. It should be at least $500,000 the first year, $1,000,000 the second year, and $1,500,000 the third year—from all the southern counties.

WANTS TO LIVE HERE.

"It is a great disappointment to me that I am not now among you and devoting my time to helping, as I'd love the work for I am longing for the country that I hope to live in."

The pledge from an individual who has no direct interest in Southern California, except his regard for it, is probably the most unusual and in many respects, the most notable contribution the All-Year Club has received.

"Although it is not a large amount," said Drive Director Harry [illegible], "it shows remarkably the appeal of the All-Year Club. It is the kind of thing that will insure the success of the all-year fund of $300,000 per year. There are several thousand people in Southern California who might well 'match' Mr. Rich's contribution. They may send checks to the All-Year Club at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce."

AMERICAN CAMP HOUSES ALIENS.

Former English Flying Field Used by Steamship Companies for Emigrants.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 6.—Atlantic Park, an estate near here which was formerly used by the American Army for flying purposes, has been acquired by the North Atlantic conference, the chief members of which are the Cunard, the White Star and the Canadian-Pacific Railroad companies, as a permanent camp for emigrants sailing by their steamers to America.

Two of the aerodromes in the camp have already been converted to accommodate 2800 people. With other buildings, it is estimated that nearly 6000 continental emigrants will be lodged there during their short stay before sailing.

GIVES HUGE QUOTA TO SUMMER SESSION.

CITY FURNISHES OVER THIRD OF TOTAL ENROLLED THIS YEAR.

Six hundred and fifty-six of the 1843 persons enrolled in the University of California summer session were from Los Angeles, according to statistics just issued by the recorder for the session, which closed July 30. California furnished 1366 students; there were 473 from other States of the Union, and four students were from Canada, England, Mexico and the Philippine Islands. Of the number from outside States, 113 were from Arizona, fifty from Texas and a smaller number were from New Mexico, Missouri, Kansas, Iowa, Colorado and other States.

Teachers headed the list of occupations represented with a total of 1270; there were 449 students from various colleges; and 124 persons of miscellaneous occupation. The miscellaneous occupations represented were: twenty-three nurses, seventeen housewives, six business men, four stenographers, three social service workers, three mechanics, three librarians, three dressmakers, three clerks, two accountants, one writer, one woodmaker, one mine manager, one milliner, one lumberman, two journalists, one lecturer, one forge worker, one foreign trade executive, one etcher, one clergyman, one Christian Science practitioner, and one advertiser.

There were four times as many women as men, and 90 per cent of the students were over 21 years of age. University and college degrees were held by 399 of the number; normal school diplomas by 597, and high school diplomas alone by 684. Only 163 had neither high school, normal, university nor college diplomas.

Will Succeed Cardinal Gibbons.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Official announcement of the appointment of Bishop M. J. Curley of St. Augustine, Fla., as archbishop of Baltimore, succeeding the late Cardinal Gibbons, was received today by Catholic officials here.

RAPS TEACHERS' SCHOOL SCHEME.

Lawyer Calls Plan Visionary and Against Statutes.

Makes Points in Debate at Men's City Club.

Proposal to Take Part in Board's Work Told.

Branding the proposal of the school-teachers to assume the powers of initiative, counsel and review of the school administration as undemocratic, impracticable and in violation of the laws of the State, Maj. A. J. Copp, Jr., local attorney, yesterday delivered an argument against the plan before the Men's City Club meeting.

The occasion of his attack was a debate between himself and Willis T. Newton, president of the Los Angeles High School Teachers' Association. No decision or vote on the outcome of the verbal encounter was rendered.

TEACHERS' PLANS.

Maj. Copp's argument followed that of Mr. Newton. The latter outlined the platform on which the present Board of Education was elected, according to his views, and summarized the part the teachers would take upon themselves as follows:

"The platform includes the principle that the trained judgment of the teachers should be used in shaping the school policies. That this may be done in a regular, official way, it is necessary that representatives of the teachers should have a definite place in the superintendent's staff conferences. They would act merely in an advisory capacity, having neither legislative nor executive powers, but they would have the right to make suggestions of changes on their own initiative and to discuss proposed changes before they are put into effect."

MAJOR REPLIES.

In reply to this line of argument, Maj. Copp said:

"As Mr. Newton has explained the proposition it would be very fine. The teachers would act merely in an advisory capacity and there would be no objection to it. I would favor such a plan, but I do not so interpret the proposal formally submitted by the teachers' committee."

He then showed that the business of the school board ranks high in the list of businesses conducted in the State, outranking many enormous private corporations in the amount of money expended.

"The proposal by the teachers is a demand for delegation of power," he stated. "If such a demand were granted it would divest the Board of Education of all its present powers. Under the present system we have a school superintendent, a business manager, an auditor and a secretary, each heading a separate and distinct department. Under the proposal of the teachers the last three departments would be subordinated to the superintendent as the central power is delegated to the superintendent. There has been great co-operation among these departments and a change would work harm. There is little opportunity for improvement in the present system of handling the school's business.

BACKS COMMITTEES.

"Now this proposal recommends the abolition of the Board of Education committees. If the board, as a whole, were compelled to attend to every little detail the real business of the board would be impaired and there would be no time for anything but detail.

"The crux of the situation is that under this proposal the power of initiative and review must be lodged in the teachers' committee. The teachers would have power to initiate legislation and then would have the power to annul legislation passed by the board.

"Delegation of power of this sort by the Board of Education to the teachers' committee would be a distinct violation of State laws.

"The taxpayers are entitled to impartial administration of their affairs. That impartial administration would be impossible if delegated to the teachers. Such a delegation of power would be undemocratic.

"To whom would the teachers be responsible under such a scheme?

CRITICISES PLAN.

"The proposition is wholly impracticable. The teachers have no time to devote to administrative duties. Their plan is inconsistent. It is incomplete because no workable plan is suggested.

"It is a visionary scheme. If it were carried out we would wake up some morning and find our entire school affairs in the hands of the teachers."

To this argument Mr. Newton asserted his opponent had misinterpreted the desires of the teachers. Mr. Newton said that they did not mean the word "review" to be interpreted as in law phraseology and that the technical legal interpretation was never in the minds of the committee drawing up the plan. The "right of initiative" was meant, he said, to include only the idea of making suggestions, merely in an advisory capacity.

COAST TO COAST.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

BUTTE (Mont.) Aug. 6.—Mrs. Sylvester Prenatt who came to Butte, from Oakland, to see the slayers of her husband executed August 23, will be denied permission to witness the execution Sheriff Dugan said yesterday unless the condemned men consent.

ROSEBURG (Or.) Aug. 6.—A report was telephoned here from a forest ranger station in the Crater Lake district that a party of mountain climbers had been held up near Fort Klamath by a man believed to be Dr. R. M. Brumfield, wanted here on a charge of the murder of Dennis Russell.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Ellis R. Kinkeade, an attorney, was shot to death near his Brooklyn home yesterday by a woman who, police said, registered at a Manhattan hotel as "Mrs. Kinkeade."

The attorney's wife, Mrs. Kinkeade, later said the woman was Olive M. Stone, a trained nurse of Cincinnati, O., with whom her husband formerly had been friendly. The woman was arrested.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Being a defendant in a suit for $15,687 damages, United States Marshall J. B. Sololian yesterday was placed in the unusual situation of having to serve a supoenae on himself. The action, brought by the Masuda Trading Company, Ltd., of Japan, grows out of the alleged wrongful delivery of 1000 cases of peanut oil by the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 5.—Benjamin Koen stepped out of a third-story window here yesterday while asleep and it took the San Francisco fire department half an hour to extricate him from between two walls where he was tightly wedged by the force of his plunge.

At the Harbor Emergency Hospital, it was said Koen's injuries might prove fatal.

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 6.—The international meeting of the Catholic Order of Foresters terminated yesterday without settling the question of a 100 per cent increase in assessments, the delegates agreeing to let the matter go until next year. T. H. Cannon of Chicago was re-elected High Chief Ranger.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—One thousand musicians employed in vaudeville and motion-picture houses yesterday were ordered to strike after the close of tonight's performances by the executive board of the Musical Mutual Protective Union. The musicians declared the strike was in anticipation of a "lockout" slated for next Tuesday night when managers announced they would terminate existing wage agreements.

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Aug. 6.—The Industrial Welfare Commission yesterday agreed to reduce the weekly minimum wage for women in Washington State, hitherto $18 in all lines of employment, to $14.50 for women employed in public housekeeping.

At a recent hearing representatives of labor unions and others had favored such modification. It was said that chambermaids and waitresses could not find employment at the present scale as orientals were willing to work for less.

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.—Hirosa Saito new Japanese consul here, speaking at a Chamber of Commerce meeting yesterday on his arrival from London, where he was attached to the embassy, said he did not doubt the benefits to be derived from the disarmament conference, but added, that "in the conservative mind of the Japan administrators there were doubts as to whether the Harding administration was firmly persuaded of the successful outcome of the meeting or whether it was just taking a chance."

These doubts, in his opinion, had been resolved.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—A. J. Pillsbury, member of the State Industrial Accident Commission, has been appointed by that body to confer with Dr. E. R. Snyder, State Commissioner of Industrial and Vocational Education, for the formulation of a program for rehabilitation of persons disabled in industry or otherwise, it was announced yesterday.

Plan to Spend Large Sum on Memorial Park.

The proposed expenditure of $1,000,000 in improvements at the Forest Lawn Memorial Park in Glendale was announced yesterday by Hubert L. Eaton, manager of the park association.

According to Mr. Eaton, $500,000 of this amount will be expended within the next ninety days, while the balance will be spent in decorative improvements on the memorial park within the next three years.

T. Patterson Ross, who is an authority on memorial architecture, is in Los Angeles and has been engaged to supervise the construction of the various new buildings. Mr. Ross was the original designer of the park and the same plans from which the buildings already erected were patterned will be carried out in the new edifices.

The various proposed improvements as announced by Mr. Eaton follow: Unit to mausoleum, $225,000; Masonic memorial, $75,000; Knights of Pythias memorial, $50,000; office building, $35,000; horticultural building and equipment, $25,000; expenditures on Sentinel Hill for Easter sunrise services, $15,000; duck pond and entrance alterations, $5000; additional beautifications, statues, widening of driveways, installation of dove house, etc., $75,000.

REGARDED AS SISTER

Suing Wife Says Husband Told Her He Would Seek Other Women.

According to Mrs. Mabel Holland, who yesterday filed suit for divorce against Herbert Holland of Pasadena charging cruelty, he told her in 1917 that he did not love her. He said he knew their marriage was a mistake, that he would regard her only as his sister and that he proposed to go with other women.

Mrs. Holland says from the date of that conversation her husband went riding with other women. This caused gossip among their friends, she said. In addition he stayed out late at nights several times a week, she asserts.

GETS PRISON TERM FOR FORGING CHECK.

The apparent penchant of Rand E. Becker for raising money on fictitious checks was checked yesterday when Judge Avery sentenced him to serve from one to ten years in San Quentin. This latest charge was forging a check for $35 on a San Pedro bank. Rand is said to be the son of the manager of Lloyd's offices in San Francisco. His career has been meteoric, with confinement in jail, parole and rearrest. He is a young man. According to his statement he is going to prison, will make good and upon his return stick to the straight and narrow path. He was prosecuted by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Eigholz.

ASK REQUISITION TO RETURN SUSPECT HERE.

Gov. Stephens was asked for requisition papers by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Powell yesterday to bring back to this city Frank Doyle, charged with forgery. It is the expectation to serve the papers on Doyle as he is released next Friday, from the Oklahoma State prison, where he served time, it is said, on another charge. Doyle is charged with having forged the name of Carl H. Pafenbach of the Capital Film Company to a check for $750, cashing the check at a Hollywood bank. He was arrested in this city, held to answer and put up $1500 cash bail. He jumped his bail and later was arrested in Oklahoma.

NEWPORT TENNIS FINAL CAPTURED BY WASHBURN.

Then Victor and Vanquished Hook Up and Put Skids Under Our California Youngsters.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEWPORT (R. I.) Aug. 6.—Watson M. Washburn, New York, for the first time won the singles championship of the annual Rhode Island invitation tennis tournament today, taking a hard-played match from R. Norris Williams II of Boston, 4-6, 6-3, 1-6, 6-3, 6-2.

PERFECT TENNIS.

While the match was not distinguished by the spectacular features that the California brand of tennis used to bring forth, the great gallery that surrounded the historic stretch of turf today witnessed some of the most perfect stroking and consummate court generalship that has ever been seen at Newport. Williams was invincible in the first and third sets. In the latter session, particularly, his shots had the wizard touch of old, and Washburn was completely overwhelmed under the hail of dazzling shots that ripped holes in his defense. But the West Side Club man was never disturbed, apparently, by this exhibition of super-tennis by the former champion. He bided his time, never playing poor tennis, and made his strongest bid in the last two sets.

During this stage of the match, Washburn's play was so close to flawless that it was difficult to realize that Williams was close to his top form. Time after time, the former national title-holder was caught out of the position as Washburn raked the court with wonderfully accurate and swift drives across deep court to Williams's backhand.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

Williams and Washburn won the men's doubles cups by defeating Robert and Howard Kinsey of California by a score 6-0, 6-4, 6-4.

The one-sided defeat of the Pacific Coast champions was due mainly to the brilliant net play of Washburn whose accurate cross-court smashes could not be touched. The eastern pair took the offensive from the very start. Older tournament experience outgeneraled the California brothers who had been favored to win today. The Kinseys lost six straight games in the first set, marked only by thrilling volleys at the net.

SETTLED DOWN.

In the second set, the Kinseys settled down and displayed good tennis—the best they had. The rallies and volleying at the net brought forth superb recoveries and beautiful placements and the westerners proved time and again their great ability as ground coverers. But swift forearm drives pushed them back to the base line, where they were caught flatfooted by Washburn, who leaped into the air and smashed the ball cross court for earned points.

A change of tactics in the third set allowed the Kinseys to hold the eastern pair in check and win their own service. Long lobs that drove Williams and Washburn back gave the opening that allowed the Californians to put the ball away for the earned point.

FINE BATTLE.

With games at 5-4 and Williams serving the Kinseys fought a fine battle to pull the set out of the fire. With the score at 40-30 and the easterners on the offensive they played way back of their base line and lobbed the ball at Williams, who played for placement with great accuracy only to have the Kinseys by wonderful efforts return the ball. The match produced the best tennis exhibited in the doubles match and although the result, especially by the one-sided score, was an upset, it demonstrated that the Kinseys will be a dangerous factor in the national doubles.

AMOS RUSIE COMES BACK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. — Amos Rusie, star pitcher for the New York Giants twenty-five years ago, has come back.

Not as a ball player, but as assistant superintendent of the Polo Grounds, Rusie put in his appearance yesterday and saw his first league game in twenty years. The post was created for him by Manager McGraw of the Giants, and Rusie came from Oregon to fill it.

"Yes, things have changed considerably since then," Rusie admitted. "In the old days the Polo Grounds stands were wooden affairs, not nearly so large as the steel ones now. The L trains were drawn by steam engines then, and there wasn't any subway. Instead of taxicabs the sports used hansom cabs. But—it's the same old game."

FEEBLE PUGS ARE BARRED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. —Beauty parlors ought to get a heavy play now that the State Athletic Commission has placed an age limit on which fighters will be permitted to show their wares in New York State. Some of these "kid" mitt wielders, who have been in there since Hector was quite a toddler, will have to do some severe sprinting to prove to the "commish" that they have not reached the final count. Thirty-eight years is the limit ordained by the boxing bosses. Many of those silver-thatched youngsters are hustling now, studying every scientific work on pugilism.

The spectacle of a spavined boxer rushing into a fight club with a challenge in one hand and his birth certificate in the other ought to furnish an interesting sidelight on the old game. While the decree of the boxing board will work hardships with some of the scrappers, it is likely to prove a blessing in disguise, for some of our champions. When Johnny Kilbane, Benny Leonard and Jack Britton reach the thirty-eighth count with their titles still intact, they dismiss their annoyers by telling them to go out and train up to their age.

It is suspected that the measure is aimed at Jess Willard and Jack Johnson, but some of the other ancients are squawking lest they be compelled to step forward and give up their right.

CHARLIE WHITE TO MIX WITH DUNDEE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6. — Charlie White, the Chicago boy, with the healthy left sock, will trade wallops with the bounding Johnny Dundee next Wednesday night for twelve rounds at the Westchester-avenue arena. White came to New York with the purpose in mind of coaxing Benny Leonard into giving him another crack at it. Charley and Benny had a furious tassel at Benton Harbor some time back, and the westerner has always insisted that he beat the champion on that occasion.

MLLE. LENGLEN WILL SHIMMY TO AMERICA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HAVRE, Aug. 6. — The fox trot and the shimmy are "excellent aids to training for lawn tennis," Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen blithely declared today just before sailing on the steamer Paris for New York after she had been informed there would be no opportunity to practice tennis on board the liner. She intended, she said, to do her training in the ballroom, smilingly adding, however: "Don't take this too literally."

BUZZ ARLETT IS GENEROUS.

Blows the Works in Ninth and Angels Win.

Mates do Well, but Oakland Chucker is Careless.

Niehoff Peels Off Four Hits During the Pastime.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—Buzz Arlett has no one but himself to blame for Oakland losing today. His mates made a game effort for him and had cut down a long lead until they were but one run behind in the ninth. Then Buzz blew the works and, although the Oaks rallied again in their half of the last round, they could not quite catch up. They made two runs, but they needed four to tie, because Buzz had carelessly allowed the Angels to score three tallies in the first of the ninth. The score was 7-5 in favor of Los Angeles.

FOR A PAIR.

The Angels got to Buzz for two runs in the first round, helped by a bad peg by Art Koehler, and they got another in the fourth when Denie Wille backed against the right-field fence and allowed a long fly from the bat of Niehoff to pass right between his hands. The ball bounded away from Wille and he did not chase it. Before Guisto could run the ball down Niehoff had legged it to third base. He scored on Lindimore's long fly to Wille. That was a cheap run.

White gave the Oaks their first run with a home run into the left-field bleachers in the fifth. Solid hits by Griggs and Niehoff put the fourth run over for the Angels. Niehoff had a big day at the bat, getting four real bingles in as many times up.

The Oaks made their bid in the sixth when, with one out, Miller, Knight and Guisto bunched swats for two runs. Koehler and White could not keep it up, however, so the attack fizzled with the Oaks one run shy of a tie.

GOT HIS FOURTH.

In the ninth Crawford flew out, but Niehoff peeled off his fourth hit; Stanage got another. Tom Hughes bunted, and in his anxiety to head Niehoff off at third Buzz neglected to get hold of the ball, so all hands were safe and the bases were full. Then Arlett hit Statz, forcing in a run. McAuley plunked a little hit just over third and another run counted. Dixie Carroll drove a wicked grounder to right, on which Jack Knight made a wonderful play. He nearly caught the ball with his left hand, but he could not quite hold on. He recovered in time to force Hughes at the plate, however. Then Arlett walked Griggs, forcing Statz over the pan with the third run.

Lindimore made a nice stop of White's third hit in the last of the ninth, and then threw badly to first. Arlett followed with a two-base hit. Pinelli popped out, but Denie Wille delivered a hit putting the two runs over. The score:

Mrs. Mallory is Ready for Mlle. Lenglen.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

GLEN COVE (N. Y.) Aug. 6.—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, women's national tennis champion, today won the metropolitan title and showed she is in good form for her effort to repel the invasion of Miss Suzanne Lenglen of France, in the national tournament. In the final of the metropolitan events she defeated Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup of Wilmington, Del., national runner-up, 6-1, 7-5. The women's doubles title went to Miss Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., and Mrs. May Sutton Bundy of Los Angeles, who defeated Miss Helen Gilleaudeau, Connecticut singles champion, and Miss Martha Bayard of New York, 8-6, 6-1.

VAN GHENT GLANCES OVER THE PROSPECTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) Aug. 6.—Stanford University's football team this fall will be piloted by a new coach, Gene Van Ghent, and a new graduate manager, W. B. Fletcher, the former coach, Walter Powell having been made director of athletics, and the graduate manager, Edward Martin, having resigned to enter business.

Van Ghent, former Wisconsin and Army player, arrived here recently to acquaint himself with the Cardinal athletes and officials. He will not take charge, officially, until September 1. Practice will start September 15, under a Pacific Coast conference ruling.

DIVIDE DOUBLE-HEADER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 6.—Philadelphia and St. Louis divided a double-header today, the westerners taking the first, 5 to 4, and the home team the second, 12 to 9. The Athletics were ahead when the ninth inning in each game opened. In the first contest the St. Louis batting rally netted four runs, enough to win, but the Athletics were too far ahead in the ninth inning of the second game for the visitors to repeat. Scores:

Rough Water Stops Speed Boat Classic.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ON BOARD SUBCHASER NO. 419 (Chicago) Aug. 6. [By Wireless Telephone to the Associated Press.] The speed-boat races off the municipal pier in connection with Chicago's Pageant of Progress were called off at 3:35 p.m. today because of rough water.

The United States gunboat Essex defeated her sister gunboats Antic and Wilmette in a race off the municipal pier today.

Meteor III, owned by W. B. Wilde, Peoria, Ill., sank in twenty-four feet of water during the second race.

The crew was rescued. The boat was the third to sink in the three days of racing.

RUTH BANGS OUT HIS THIRTY-NINTH HOMER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Babe Ruth rapped out his thirty-ninth home run of the season in the sixth inning of the Yankees' contest with Detroit here today, leaving him one home run behind his August 6 tally last year. There were two men on.

KINGMAN RETURNS.

Harry Kingman, formerly famous in athletics at Pomona College, and later with the New York Americans under Frank Chance, has returned from a year's sojourn in New York. He will leave in a shirt time for China, where he will be engaged in Y.M.C.A. work for the next six years.

YACHTS SAIL FOR REGATTA.

Local Craft Leave Berths for Santa Barbara.

Newport Ships Also Depart for the North.

Four Days of Racing Billed in Channel Waters.

Amid the shrieking of sirens, the bay of hoarse foghorns and the waving of gaily colored flags the mosquito fleet of the Los Angeles Harbor Yacht Club, which will compete in the huge regatta at Santa Barbara next week pulled out from the local port at noon yesterday.

Three hours earlier the boats of the Newport Harbor Yacht Club left their berths at Balboa and some of the fastest of these were noted on the horizon as the Angel City boats swung their sails to the wind.

A FLOCK.

Nearly a score of craft of one kind and another—yachts, sloops, schooners, ketches and motor cruisers—were in the Los Angeles delegation. Eighteen boats, headed by Admiral Soiland's Viking IV, flagship of the Southern California Yachting Association fleet, poked their noses out of Balboa Bay and into the waters of the Pacific.

The San Diego boats left earlier in the week and are already in Channel City waters, and the sloop Mahpe, ketch Shawnee, schooners Leeward and Katendah of San Francisco are racing south.

All craft are expected to be at Santa Barbara some time today, though the Newport gentry will probably make the grade much speedier than those from the local harbor. Newport yachts are using power as well as sail, while the Los Angeles yachts are restricted to the use of canvas.

LOSE IDENTITY.

While the races and cruises from clubs' home ports to and from Santa Barbara are under the supervision of the individual club, each ship loses her identity upon coming to anchor, and will be under the jurisdiction and command of the Southern California Yachting Association.

The association is newly organized and the coming regatta will mark its first endeavor of the kind. A. Lester Best, chairman of the regatta committee, is no newcomer to southern yachting circles, having been in charge of regattas as far back as 1910-12.

Tomorrow will be a day of rest for the ships, the assembled fleet to be in dressed ship order. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday have been designated as race days. Saturday the boats will partake of a cruise to the Santa Cruz Islands, and sail for home at their own convenience.

DRIZZLE HALTS GRAND CIRCUIT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOLEDO, Aug. 6.—Rain that came today just as the third heat of the grand circuit racing program was being finished forced the judges' to call off the card.

The Ace, driven by Mitchell, had won two firsts in the 2:15 trot before the rain and was awarded the event. Cox's Hilda Fletcher got second money.

Princess Nagen who had a walk-away in the first heat of the 2:17 trot made the only other event run. Edna Forbes finished second.

TTSBURG, Aug. 6.—J. C. Anderson of Australia defeated F. G. Lowe of the British Isles, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, in the first match today of Davis cup tennis round.

is entitled the Australians to the Denmark team at Cleveland next week.

LAST EVENT.

In the last event Maxwell Woosnam of the British Isles defeated Davies of Australia, 6-3, 0-6, 6-1, 4-4.

The result of the series was 3 to 2 of Australia.

Lowe was guilty of several double in the first two sets, and was to withstand the terrific service of Anderson. Lowe won only of the first set, Anderson 11 points to Lowe's 13.

was stronger in the second especially in the sixth and seventh, the latter going to deuce Anderson scored 44 points Lowe's 31.

DESPERATE STAND.

In the third set Lowe made a desperate stand, and Anderson appeared careless. Lowe won the third, fourth and fifth games by placing his shots almost perfectly. His footwork improved. This was shown in the eighth game, which went to deuce, he taking the extra points necessary to win. Lowe had 30 points to Anderson's 20 in this set.

However, Lowe was unable to continue the pace, and Anderson had it all his own way in the fourth set. Lowe gave him a battle only in the sixth game, a deuce game won by Anderson. In the last two games of the set, Anderson scored 8 points to 2 for Lowe. The final point scores for this set were, Anderson 28, Lowe 16.

TIGERS MAIM SEALS TWICE.

Old Happy Hogan Spirit Gets Into Lads' Veins.

Grab First of Double-Header in Tenth Inning.

Win Second Game Swinging on the Chin Strap.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Vernon Tigers brought home all the tripe in yesterday's double-header, and treated the league leaders in a way to give the impression that this circuit is being conducted up-side-down.

Bill Essick's buccos defeated these early claimants to the pennant, 4 to 3, in ten rounds as a starter. In the afterpiece they reduced San Francisco to the rank of thirty cents, winning 10 to 2, in a game that resembled an auction sale of junk. Thus, all that glitters is not gold, or even glow worms.

HEAD RINGS.

When Prof. Graham dragged his ball team back to the Lankershim last night he made a noise like an itinerant peddler of tin ware. Also there was a ringing in his head.

How did the morning game come out in Oakland?" he asked a group of scribes. The Prof. was dazed. He thought it was Sunday—couldn't understand how he could lose so many games by Saturday night.

San Francisco hammered Frank Shellenback's sore thumb for two runs in the sixth and another in the eighth in the eye-opener. The trouble always started by somebody banging a line drive against Frank's convalescent digit, and then while he was sucking his thumb, somebody would up and whang out a hit or two.

DELL STEPS IN.

In the last half of the eighth, he retired to let Truck Hannah bat, and a rally extending through the ninth and tenth enabled Wheezer Dell to step into the games won class. By a similar arrangement, Sam Lewis stepped into the games lost class. Thus nature evens up all things.

Johnny Couch was jarred off his castors when Spud Murphy opened the ninth with a triple, as a belated tribute to "potato week." Spud grew into the tying run after French had fanned, Rollie Zeider putting him across with a scientific squeeze.

Affairs were stuck on a three-all basis when the teams entered the home half of the tenth. J. Carlisle Smith started the sortie with a sharp single, and Chadbourne walked. High missed the ball in an attempted sacrifice, and Smith was caught on the line. High then singled Chadbourne to second. Lewis appeared to be corroding when the game ended unexpectedly. Locker drove to Caveney, who took second, forcing High, and then heaved to first for an attempted double.

LOSES BALL.

The toss spattered the dust at O'Connell's feet, and rolled about two yards to the right of first base. Chadbourne, circling third, headed for the plate. By this time, O'Connell had the ball and it looked like easy nailing of Chad at the plate. But the ball slipped from his hand, and the ball didn't carry over ten feet, barely missing the button on Bill Essick's victory bonnet. After this double victory, Bill will sew a plume on his bonnet, and give the Seals a larger target to throw at.

The twilight struggle was won off Roy Crumpler in the first inning, partly through the instrumentality of a home run by Ray French. This clean-up netted five runs, or more than enough to win. Prior to crumpling up, Crumpler passed Chadbourne and Locker with one gone. Singles by Schneider and High counted two, and after Hannah had flied, French soared a beaut over the left-field fence, sending High and Schneider in ahead of himself.

SHORE ON MOUND.

Ernie Shore took hold in the second, and the residue of ten runs were scored off him with the aid of a boot. Wee Willie Mitchell proved too refractory for the Seals except in the second, although Prof. Graham resorted to the cyanide process with an occasional whiff of poison gas.

Trouble with the country is that all the wealth is concentrated on the San Francisco club, and it doesn't circulate even on the bases. Here is the bank statement:

TENDLER CAMP IS OPTIMISTIC.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Lew Tendler, the southpaw lightweight from Pennsylvania, and Benny Leonard are getting into shape for their eight-round struggle at the Philadelphia National League park next Friday night. Leonard is the choice in the betting, as he always is, but the Quaker Kid, who throws them from the wrong side, has a host of admirers who are stringing along with him to beat the lightweight boss.

The Tendler gang figure that some one is going to take Leonard sooner or later and believe this will be the spot where Benny will get his.

GIRL SWIMMER BREAKS RECORD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A world's record for the women's 200-yard swimming race in a seventy-five-foot tank was claimed for Miss Ethelda Bleibtrey of New York, who covered the distance at Brighton Beach in 2m. 36⅕s. The record of 2m. 38s. was made by Miss Charlotte Boyle.

Miss Bleibtrey won her heat in 2m. 37⅘s. and finished third in the event, a handicap affair, in 2m. 36⅕s.

Miss Helen Meany of New York won the women's national fancy-diving championship with 124.35 points.

FREED WHITE SOX GET A TURNDOWN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SHEBOYGAN (Wis.) Aug. 6.—Seven former members of the Chicago American League baseball team, acquitted of charges that they took part in a gamblers' conspiracy to throw the 1919 world series, were refused permission to play against the "Chairmakers" of the Lake Shore League, it was announced today. It was declared E. L. Siekmeyer of Chicago, sought an exhibition game here for the former White Sox.

"As far as the principles of law are concerned," the announcement by a director of the club said, "the indicted players are innocent, but they are still under the shadow of shame as far as the principles of organized baseball are concerned and until that stigma has been removed we will not permit our team to play with them."

BRITISHERS DEFEAT CHAMP JIM BARNES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Jim Barnes, national open golf champion, and George McLean were defeated in 36 holes today, 1 up, by George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, English golf stars, in an exhibition game at the New Grassy Sprain Golf Club.

HOLDS UP MEN, GETS SIGNATURE, VANISHES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 6.—Officers of Ontario and vicinity were tonight seeking to find the driver of a brand new Essex roadster in order to solve the mystery surrounding what is declared to have been the most peculiar hold-up ever staged in this section. According to reports to the police, R. T. Loring of Riverside and R. Pulcifer of 749 Pacific Electric Building, Los Angeles, while driving to that city this afternoon in the former's car, were overtaken by the new roadster on West A street, near the Monte Vista schoolhouse, were stopped and the driver was forced to sign a document which the driver of the roadster thrust into his hands while covering him with an automatic pistol. Once having secured the signature the stranger allowed his victims to proceed west, while he turned his car about and started back toward Ontario's business center.

When Loring and Pulcifer reached Pomona they reported the peculiar hold-up to the officers there, who at once got in communication with the Ontario police. The men in the Riverside car reported that the bandit's machine carried no license numbers. The police are at a loss to solve the mystery of the occurrence.

MAN DIES OF THIRST WHEN NEARING WATER

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PALM SPRINGS, Aug. 6.—The body of a man, believed to have been Oscar Valentine, was found in the desert recently a few miles from Palm Springs. Coroner C. S. Dickson attributed the death to thirst. The body was found by Ramon Arenas, a rancher, less than a mile from his home, where water was plentiful.

Nothing was known of the dead man, who was a stranger here.

PIONEER ORANGE MAN DIES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 6.—Joseph C. Kitching, one of the few remaining pioneer orange growers of Redlands, is dead at his home on the Heights at the age of 88 years after an illness of several months. Mr. Kitching would have been 89 years old in October and up to a year ago had enjoyed almost perfect health. He was born in Massachusetts in 1832 and lived in the village in which he was born until 18 years old. Then he went to Vermont and was engaged in business there when the Civil War broke out. He was a member of the First Vermont Cavalry and served through the entire war.

TY MOVES UP ON HEILMANN.

Georgia Peach Showing Great With the Stick.

Roger Hornsby Still Leads in National League.

Kelly of Giants is the King of Circuit Hitters.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Ty Cobb, manager of the Detroit Tigers, today is creeping up on Harry Heilmann, the hard-hitting Detroit outfielder, in the race for batting honors of the American League, with only twenty-five points separating them. Cobb gained nine points during the week for an average the .398, while Heilmann suffered a loss of seven points, his average dropping to .423. Tris Speaker of Cleveland remains in third place with .379. The averages include games of Wednesday.

The New York Yankees lead the league for circuit drives with a total of 79, 38 of which were cracked out by Babe Ruth. The tail-end Athletics are second with 59. Ruth, who smashed out a brace of circuit drives during the past week, has registered 106 runs for his club. The big slugger also increased his lead in total base hitting to 274, made on 130 hits, which, besides his home runs, include 24 doubles and 8 triples.

OUT IN FRONT.

The Washington club is out in front in stolen bases with 79, 19 of which were pilfered by Harris, who is showing the way to the base stealers of the league.

Other leading batters of the league who have participated in 55 or more games are: Tobin, St. Louis, .368; Williams, St. Louis, .368; Ruth, New York, .364; Severeid, St. Louis, .358; E. Collins, Chicago, .354; Veach, Detroit, .350; Sisler, St. Louis, .348; Stephenson, Cleveland, .338.

In the National League, Roger Hornsby of St. Louis is hitting .415 for the batting leadership. Twombly of Chicago is the runner-up with .370, while Nicholson of Boston is third with .364.

KELLY LEADS.

The Philadelphia club is out in front for home run honors with 62. George Kelly of the Giants is the leading four-base hitter of this circuit, with 18 to his credit.

Frank Frisch of New York added three bases to his string of stolen bases and leads with 31.

Other leading batters: Young, New York, .362; McHenry, St. Louis, .356; Cuthshaw, Pittsburg, .351; Cruise, Boston, .349; Meusel, New York, .341; Fournier, St. Louis, .341; Mann, St. Louis, .341; C. Williams, Philadelphia, .340; Maranville, Pittsburg, .338.

GOLF CHATTER.

From Feather River Inn, a resort in the northern part of the State, comes word of interesting golf matches between teams of sixteen players a side. A team from the Reno Golf and Country Club met the Feather Inn enthusiasts yesterday, and other matches are carded for the near future.

A professional tourney is billed for August 20, and indications are that several of the leading clubs in the State will be represented, as attractive cash prizes have been hung up for the winner.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ford Collins of Los Angeles are the guests at the northern resort, and other Angelenos enjoying the mountain links are C. D. Young, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Young and son, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hunter.

One of the most interesting cards to come to light is that of a four-ball match played on the Annandale links Thursday in which one team actually lost two points on a hole after scoring a 2 and a 3.

R. M. Modisette and F. D. Wilkerson were the luckless mortals, their antagonists being Robert Fullerton and Harry F. Hopper. Fullerton scored a 2 on the hole and Hopper, shooting last, achieved the life ambition of all golfers and registered a hole in one.

The hole was Annandale's fourth, par 3 and 134 yards from the tee. It is no easy par hole, as a rule the player being forced to combat a wind as well as generous trapping.

With three balls near the flag and one in the hole it is no wonder that grand old veteran of the game, A. D. S. Johnston, says it is the best played hole he ever heard of.

A. B. Macbeth won the Saturday sweepstakes at Widwick yesterday, finishing with a score of 3 up. Earl Cowan was second, even with par.

CALLED BY DEATH.

Jacob Ford, Clerk of Supervisors, Passes Away in Hospital.

Jacob Ford, clerk of the County Board of Supervisors, died last night at the County Hospital, where he had been ill for several weeks. Mr. Ford had been clerk of the Board of Supervisors for more than ten years. He was born sixty-one years ago in Ireland. He came here from Chicago.

Mr. Ford leaves a widow, three children, David, now in Canada; John of Fresno, and Mrs. Stanton Dixon of Los Angeles, and a brother, W. J. Ford of Chicago, who is expected to reach here in time for the funeral. The home is at 1260 West Third street.

OFFICER'S WIFE DIES.

Funeral to Be Held Tomorrow for Mrs. John Murrieta.

Mrs. John Murrieta, wife of the Chief Deputy Sheriff of Los Angeles county, died Friday morning at her home, 827 South Kenmore avenue. She was 64 years old. Mr. and Mrs. Murrieta came here in 1887 from San Diego county.

The funeral will be conducted tomorrow at 8:30 a.m. at the chapel of Cunningham & O'Connor, with services at 9 a.m. in St. Basil's Church. Mrs. Murieta leaves her husband, a daughter, Mrs. S. O. Houghton of Van Nuys, and two sons, Dr. A. J. and Henry Murrieta of Los Angeles.

RITES FOR SOLDIER.

Funeral Conducted For Claude W. Dresser, Victim of Wounds.

Funeral services for Private Claude W. Dresser, who died of wounds in France on November 3, 1918, were conducted yesterday by American Legion Post No. 8 in the chapel of McIntosh & Mater. A squad from the Balloon School at Arcadia fired a volley over the grave in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

Private Dresser was a member of Company F, Sixty-fourth Infantry. Clyde L. Dresser, 9881 Manitou avenue, is a brother. His mother, Mrs. Ada Dresser, died a year ago. He was 24 years old.

AUTO CAN'T JUMP.

Failure to Hurdle Wall Lands Two in Hospital; One Jailed.

Thomas McElyelee, 22 years of age, of 1219 North Hoover street, demonstrated last night to his own satisfaction at least that the grand old sport of steeplechasing cannot be successfully indulged in in an automobile. He learned this truth in a painful manner after he had attempted, police say, to make his automobile hurdle a six-foot stone wall at the end of Park View avenue.

As a result of the attempt, McElwelee and William Martinke, 201 South Grand street, landed in the Receiving Hospital, where various cuts and bruises were dressed by hospital surgeons. Police later locked up McElwelee in the City Jail on a charge of being intoxicated. His automobile was wrecked.

THRONG AT ORIENTAL SPECTACLE.

Hundred Beauties Appear in Party Given by Theater Association.

"Hindustan was never like this" might have been the comment of the Indian philosopher and saint Buddha, had he attended Sid Grauman's Oriental bazaar and Frank Egan's "Temptations of Buddha" at the Cinderella Roof last night.

One hundred of the prettiest and shapeliest girls the Los Angeles Theater Association could muster—which is saying a great deal—paraded their charms last night to several thousand guests of the theater managers at their second annual midsummer night theater party and dance.

Francis E. Woodward, executive representative of the association, Sid Grauman, Frank Egan and other members of the committee in charge worked several months to make the affair one of the biggest of its kind ever produced here.

The feature of the evening was a Hindu Nautche dance by Miss Olivia Van Alcorn, queen of the Oriental Durbar, and acclaimed by a committee of Los Angeles artists as the woman with the perfect form. An Oriental fantasy quartet was presented by the McAdam dancers, featuring Roberta Wells, Neva Brown, Vahroy Tagoroff and Janeske Robenoff. Harry Girard and Agnes Caine Brown, assisted by a chorus of dancers, presented the "Temptations of Buddha."

Discordant.

"What do you mean Mrs. Podgers has a discordant personality?"

"She has a catty disposition together with a dogged determination."—[Boston Transcript.

Forces Prevented Detaining Ataman.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 6.—Gen. whose officers recently him Supreme Ruler of made his mysterious "get- from Vladivostok by hiding bottom of a motor car, which escorted by two automobiles Japanese soldiers and according to a statement is- by the press bureau of the government.

statement continued: "The of the armed Japanese prevented the Kappel forces detaining Ataman Semenoff. has been received re- that Semenoff had arrived at and is staying at the head- of one of his detachments.

HAS GREAT AMBITION.

It is reported from authorita- that Semenoff here in- to proclaim himself supreme of the Maritime Provinces, to a government of his own, all government stores and to control the rail- traffic to Grodekovo. The mari- government is indignant with for his flight, and had to summon him to a court for leaving Vladivostok and going to Grodekovo, in of the fact that he was strictly by the government.

Fukuda, a member of the Jap- military mission, said that the command advised the Ataman not to violate the government's orders. The Japanese command did not render any assistance to Semenoff in his flight, and was informed about the Ataman's departure, only when he had left the city.

"In view of the persistent rumors being circulated in Vladivostok, to the effect that the Japanese command assisted the Ataman in his flight, with the help of some Japanese officers, the Japanese command is making investigations about the matter. If the rumors prove to be true, the guilty officers will be tried by a court and punished."

HISTORIC VALLEY TO BE FLOODED.

Seek Storage of Ample Water Supply for Flagstaff; to Build Dam on Fort Site.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

FLAGSTAFF (Ariz.) Aug. 6. In the effort to secure storage of an ample water supply for Flagstaff, it is possible a dam will be built that will flood Fort Valley, northwest of the city, a locality of rare historic interest. It is just below LeRoux Springs, discovered and named by Lieut. Whipple in 1856, and was the site of Fort Moroni, established about 1881 by John W. Young, a Mormon contractor on the grade of the Atlantic and Pacific Railway.

Wanted Bone Rimmed Glasses on Last Trip.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AURORA (Ill.) Aug. 6.—The body of a man apparently about 60 years old was found in the Burton Hotel here yesterday. He had committed suicide, it appeared, by taking cyanide of potassium. In a farewell note addressed to the Coroner he asked that he be permitted to wear his bone-rim glasses to the grave. From popers which the police found they believe the man a traveling salesman from Portland, Or., named John Sharp or John Condon.

JAPS TRY NEW PLAN IN KOREA.

Subjugation Gives Way to Toleration.

Governor Using Gentleness and Persuasion.

Tokio Expects Country to Supply Rice and Iron.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SEOUL (Korea) Aug. 6.—Japan is determined in the event of a possible war and a blockade of her coasts by a hostile navy that Korea shall supply Japan with her chief food staple, which is rice, and with much of her iron. On every hand rice plantations are increasing at the instigation of Japan, while the iron mines are being worked to their fullest extent and at all the principal ones additional furnaces are being constructed.

Finding the Korean not a person to yield to subjugation Japan now has turned to toleration, to natural assimilation and trying to win the Korean heart by developing his material state through teaching him to work, even though the work is specially devised for the benefit of Japan. Learning from bitter experience that efforts to subdue the Korean through military force was a virtual impossibility, a complete change of front has been made. The harsh methods of Gens. Terauchi and Hasaegawa have been succeeded by the mild policies of Admiral Baron M. Saito, who in the eighteen months he has been Governor-General has accomplished much.

STOPPING EXCESSES.

True, there have been excesses, but these have been due to the minor officials, whom Admiral Saito is removing as rapidly as possible and replacing with men who are endeavoring to lead the Korean through kindlier treatment. As a result the Korean, though at heart he desires independence as much as ever and resents the enforced yoke of Japan, is far less a disturbing element than he was two years ago.

How well Japan will succeed in overcoming the natural desire of the Korean for freedom is a matter of opinion, but it is apparent to even the most casual observer that Admiral Saito is making progress, and if he can have his way without interference from the military powers which dominate Japan he probably can keep Koreans outwardly contented while they work for the enchantment of the comfort and security of the Japanese at home.

NOT MILITARIST.

Despite his long career in the Japanese navy, in which he won great success, attaining the rank of admiral and receiving the title of baron, Saito is not a militarist. There is a marked difference between a militarist and a military man in Japan, and Baron Saito emphasizes this difference. He is democratic, a lover of peace and a detestant of war; a man who realizes Japan's failure as a successful colonizer and who was chosen for his present post long after he had retired to private life, the choice being made because of his humanity and his gentleness, coupled with breadth of vision.

Admiral Saito will be recalled by old-timers as naval attache of the Japanese legation in Washington in the Presidential terms of Arthur and Cleveland. He later rose to distinction in the Japanese navy and had no small part in planning the campaign which made the war with Russia so decisive. He had hoped upon his retirement to remain in private life, but consented to accept his present position when Japan made a more sincere effort to conform her colonial policies with those of the enlightened nations.

MARKED MODESTY.

Baron Saito consented readily to an interview. He answered freely and frankly every question put to him, and the interview was marked by a modest tone in which the Governor-General of Korea sought to cover rather than excuse the mistakes of his predecessors and to credit them with reforms and principles which really originated with Admiral Saito himself.

"What steps have been taken and what progress has been made in improving the welfare of the Koreans?" asked the correspondent.

"My predecessors have done very well in this direction," replied Admiral Saito, but their work is not appreciated by the Koreans. I have betn Governor-General only eighteen months and Korea war annexed eleven years ago. In the matter of improving industries I am but following the principles of my predecessors and in trying to enlarge and develop them. I am now about to convene a general committee to be composed of business men, educators, and other influential persons outside of official circles. When this convention is assembled I will ask their opinions on this problem and try to find out what is the best course to pursue."

"Are efforts at assimilation being made, and what success attends them?"

AMALGAMATION COMING.

"The amalgamation of the two people must come naturally. We must do nothing artificially. I do not desire to interfere with Korean customs and wish them to seek their happiness in their own way and without pressure from the Japanese. Therefore, I do not care whether there is successful assimilation or not. What Japan really seeks is the happiness and contentment of the Korean people. We wish the Koreans to be good citizens; that is all.

"Certain people say that to succeed in attaining this everything must be taught in Korean, but this is not possible. If we are to do anything in the way of progress we must do it in the Japanese way. We shall have to teach the Koreans to follow modern progress and civilization. The quickest way is to plant the Japanese language here, as there are not the proper text-books prepared in the Korean language, while the Japanese books are ready and the Koreans can learn from them. The younger Koreans can understand these books, as Japanese is taught in the lower schools.

WON'T FORCE ASSIMILATION.

"But we do not insist that the Japanese be the only language taught in the higher schools. We permit English, French and German. In the primary grades we teach both Korean and Japanese. The readers the children use in the first and second grades are written in both languages. From the third year on they will have no difficulty in pursuing courses exclusively from Japanese books. But in all the six years of the lower schools we shall teach Korean also. We have no intention whatever of abolishing that language. So you can see from this that we are not trying to force assimilation upon the Korean people."

"Will the independence agitation subside with the realization that Japan really seeks the development and not the exploitation of the Korean people and their natural wealth and resources?"

"I do not think there are any serious independence agitators in Korea now. They are mostly abroad —in Shanghai, in Tientsin, in Hawaii and in the United States. Those agitators who remain outside Korea send in outlaws for the collection of money for the independence movement, and these outlaws by the display of firearms and by the use of threats extort money from the people.

BANDITS DECREASING.

"There are also many regular bandits pretending they are representatives of the independence movement, but when caught we find that they are simply criminals. There are many such, but the police force is now pretty well established and the number of these bandits is decreasing. I think that as the kaoliang (maize) reaches its height in July and August the Korean outlaws will take advantage of this cover on our northern border along the Manchurian frontier, and attempt further extortion, but I do not believe it will amount to much, as we shall take steps to avert it.

"In interior Korea I do not anticipate that we shall meet with any further trouble with agitators, for I do not believe there are any remaining, or at least very few. There are really no discontented Koreans, and except for those agitators sent in from the outside there is no dangerous movement in Korea now."

"Are the agitators inspired by foreign interests or are they locally directed?"

"It has been reported previously that there has been foreign agitation but I do not think that exists any longer. The foreigners living in Korea understand me and my ideas, and I do not believe there is any foreign influence behind any independence agitation that may remain in Korea. But from Manchuria and from Shanghai and Tientsin I always receive bad reports of foreign agitation. As this is outside my jurisdiction, I am helpless. But I have hopes that they, also, will in time understand me and my efforts."

CHILBERG EXONERATED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TACOMA (Wash.) Aug. 6.—J. D. Chilberg, former president of the Scandinavian banks here and in Seattle, today was freed of all charges in connection with the failure of the local bank. Five indictments against Chilberg, returned by the county grand jury last spring, were dismissed by Judge M. L. Clifford.

DISCOVERS CAUSE OF FALLING HAIR

Chicago Specialist Says Greatest Percentage of Baldness Due to Alopecia Pityrodes

Prof. John H. Austin, over 40 years a bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist, who now has offices at Hamburger's, says this scalp disorder is often mistaken for common "dandruff."

Alopecia pityrodes starts with a scaling of the scalp, sometimes slight, commonly called "dandruff," sometimes abundant — producing thick, grayish-white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair. This stage lasts from two to seven years, as a rule. At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes more deeply seated, and as the microbacilli multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald.

Prof. Austin has found that only the most powerful microscope can determine the exact trouble with which the hair and scalp are afflicted, and has proved that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs, is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp — both men and women invited. Private Office. Second Floor Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4.—[Advertisement.

Restores Original Color to Gray Hair

Co-Lo restores the natural color, life and luster to gray and faded hair in a manner nature approves—a scientific process perfected by Prof. John H. Austin of Chicago, over 40 years a hair and scalp specialist.

Secrets of Co-Lo Success

Co-Lo is a wonderful liquid. Clear, odorless, greaseless. Without lead or sulphur. Without sediment. Will not wash or rub off. Will not injure hair or scalp. Pleasing and simple to apply. Cannot be detected like ordinary hair tints and dyes. Will not cause the hair to split or break off.

Co-Lo Hair Restorer for every natural shade of hair—A5, for black and dark shades of brown; A7, for jet black hair; A8, for medium brown shades; A9, for light brown drab and auburn shades.

PICNICS MECCA OF THOUSANDS.

Former Bay State Residents Celebrate in Grove.

County Employees Gather at Eagle Rock Park.

Nebraska and Wyoming Folk Meet at Beach.

Thousands of residents and visitors in Southern California gathered yesterday at picnics held in Los Angeles, Eagle Rock and Long Beach.

The tercentenary of the landing of the Pilgrims was celebrated simultaneously in Plymouth, Mass., and at Sycamore Grove, where 500 local Massachusetts folks gathered yesterday to recognize that important date in American history. R. L. Hubbard was the speaker, taking the place of Rev. R. P. Shuler, who was prevented by illness from delivering the principal address. Mr. Hubbard's speech dwelt on the dominant influence on the nation's history of the Puritan stock from the time of the landing of the Mayflower, 300 years ago, to the present.

Paul W. Zimmermann, president of the Massachusetts society, arranged an interesting program for the day. Among the numbers included were dancing exhibitions by the children of the Arroyo Seco playground, instrumental and vocal selections by the Misses Thelma and Viola Swartz, and whistling by R. L. Rudeen, known as the "bird man." A basket luncheon was served in the evening.

COUNTY PICNIC.

More than 700 county employees, including Dist.-Atty. Woolwine and several members of the Board of Supervisors, made merry yesterday afternoon at their annual picnic in Eagle Rock Park. An attractive sports program marked the day and the leading event—the 50-yard sprint for members of the Board of Supervisors—brought forth keen interest. It was won by Supervisor Woodley in a close finish.

Other interesting events on the day's athletic program were a fifty-yard race for department heads and a tug-o'-war between the women employes of the Courthouse and those of the Hall of Records. A ball game also was played between these two women teams.

When the athletic events were over, refreshments were served, and the entertainment was concluded by dancing in the evening. The committee on events for the annual picnic was headed by George S. Strait. Other committee chairmen were Edward Kent, prizes; W. B. Hitchcock, publicity, and W. T. Caterholt, arrangements.

ILLINOISANS MEET.

Former residents of Downer's Grove, Ill., gathered in Lincoln Park yesterday afternoon for their annual picnic. A basket luncheon was served to the seventy-five present and officers for the coming year were elected. A short business meeting was presided over by A. C. Riddler, president of the Downer's Grove Society of Southern California.

Former and visiting residents of Wyoming and Nebraska held basket picnics at Bixby Park yesterday. The Wyoming event was in the nature of an informal midsummer gathering attended by about 300 persons. The big Wyoming reunion is held in the winter.

About 8000 Nebraskans gathered around the picnic tables at noon.

COUNTY MAY BUY NEW BUILDINGS OF STEEL.

Buildings constructed of steel, suitable for warehouses and bungalows up to five rooms, may be bought by the county for warehouse purposes and housing men engaged in road work. These buildings will shortly be manufactured by the Pruden-Burr Steel Building Company. The company has obtained an option on a tract at Vernon and will put up a plant. The steel buildings can be constructed and sold for less than wooden buildings, it is said. Mr. Burr was formerly one of the engineers for the Guggenheim interests in Alaska. The matter came before the Supervisors yesterday as a possible solution of the housing problem.

ITALIAN FILM TO BE SHOWN AT AMBASSADOR

With many celebrities planning to be present, arrangements have been concluded for the preview of the Italian production, "Rigoletto," at the Ambassador Theater Wednesday afternoon, for the benefit of the Assistance League. A musical program has been arranged by Henri Van Praag, Ambassador orchestra conductor, the score from the original opera having been synchronized to the action of the film. The picture loaned for the occasion by the Romayne Superfilm Company, was made entirely in Italy. It is said to be particularly lavish in the showing of costumes and sets.

BODY OF EX-SOLDIER ARRIVES FROM FRANCE

The body of Private Walter J. Smith, killed on July 23, 1918, in a railway wreck on his way to the front in France, arrived here yesterday. Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 2 p.m. at the chapel of Sharp & O'Connell.

Before the war Private Smith was a deputy county assessor. He was the son of Mrs. M. E. Smith, 3575 South Western avenue. At the time of his death he was serving in the Medical corps, attached to the 362nd Infantry, Ninety-first Division, and was 26 years old.

AUTOIST ARRESTED.

Held After Accident on Charge of Driving While Intoxicated.

Charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated, H. B. Sutton, 38 years of age, of 108 South Stoneman avenue, Alhambra, was arrested late yesterday afternoon at Long Beach Boulevard and Ninth street by Police Detectives Hicky, Wood and Gillis. According to the arresting officers, Sutton drove his automobile into the rear of another machine driven by N. E. Hewitt, an automobile dealer. No one was injured. The autoist was declared intoxicated by police surgeons and locked up.

Julian Eltinge of Stage Fame Seriously Ill.

Julian Eltinge, cinema star, famous for his impersonations of women, is seriously ill at the Clara Barton Hospital. Following a severe attack of appendicitis Friday at his Baxter-street home, his appendix burst about an hour before he was removed to the hospital for an operation. The operation was performed Friday evening by Dr. R. B. Griffith, assisted by Dr. C. A. Smalley. Due to the rupture, the film star's condition became alarming Friday night, and Dr. Charles Phillips was called in consultation. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Griffith announced that a slight improvement had been noticed during the day.

It will be impossible to tell much about his condition for several days, or until it is seen whether complications, such as peritonitis, set in, Dr. Griffith stated. If such complications do not set in, Mr. Eltinge will have excellent chances of recovery, he declared.

According to Dr. Griffith, Mr. Eltinge has been subject to a number of attacks of appendicitis, one occurring about a month ago.

MRS. FOLTZ DOES NOT WANT FEDERAL POST.

Clara Shortridge Foltz, Los Angeles attorney, has telegraphed to Atty.-Gen. Daugherty that although several friends have commended her to him for appointment as Assistant Attorney General it would be impossible for her to abandon her private practice here. She recommended the appointment of Mrs. Mabel W. Willebrandt of the Los Angeles bar.

EXPENSIVE FURS ARE LOOT.

Operating with two small trucks, daring burglars early yesterday morning looted the storerooms of the Los Angeles Wholesale Board of Trade at 1010 East Seventh street and escaped with furs valued at more than $7000. The robbery was not discovered until late yesterday afternoon when an investigation was undertaken by Police Detectives England, Curtiss and Davidson.

According to the officers the burglars drove their trucks up to the front door of the establishment and after breaking the locks carried away the furs. The theft was witnessed by a number of pedestrians who thought, on account of the boldness of the bandits, that they were simply moving a quantity of stock.

The furs, the police say, were owned by S. H. Peters of 723 Higgins Building. Mr. Peters stated that none of the stolen furs was labeled and that they cannot be identified. He declared that the loss will exceed $7000. Nothing else in the establishment was taken.

TRAINING LIMIT SET.

Congressional Act Fixes Date to End Vocational Applications.

Under provisions of the Congressional act making deficiency appropriations for the Federal Board for Vocational Education for the fiscal year ending last June 30, no application for vocational training under the Vocational Rehabilitation Act will be considered unless it is submitted before Dec. 16, 1922.

In District No. 12 application forms may be secured at the Glenwood Building, 216 Market street, San Francisco; 360 Wilcox Building, 212 South Spring street, Los Angeles; El Centro National Bank Building, El Centro; 204 Edgerly Building, Fresno; 428 Ochsner Building, Sacramento; Chamber of Commerce Building, San Bernardino; 512 Spreckels Building, San Diego; 311 Twohy Building, San Jose; 21 Santa Rosa National Bank Building, Santa Rosa; Red Cross Headquarters, Santa Barbara; 516 Heard Building, Phoenix, Ariz.; 25 Red Cloud Building, Zuni Court, Tucson, Ariz., and 25 Washoe County National Bank Building, Reno, Nev.

A letter addressed to any of the above addresses will bring to the applicant the necessary form.

TELLS TURK HORRORS.

Missionary Pleads For American Aid to Near-East Orphans.

A message full of the horror and terrors of Turkish rule was brought yesterday to the Men's City Club meeting by Dr. H. P. Packard, the American medical missionary, who won world-wide fame when he saved the lives of 3000 Christians at Goegtapa, Persia, during the war. At that time he waved an American flag over his head and consolidated the Christian forces and led them from danger of a contemplated massacre.

"The greatest asset in the Near East is the childlife that has been orphaned by war experience," he asserted. "About 250,000 orphans are there and they will be condemned to death if America does not give them sustenance and other aid instead of despair. America should lend a helping hand to these children."

Dr. Packard was presented to the club by Curtis D. Wilbur, associated justice of the State Supreme Court. In telling of the many atrocities of the Turks and their unsanitary manner of living, Dr. Packard declared that all the accounts furnished the American people of the terrible conditions have not revealed them nearly as bad as they actually are.

Nine Hundred Kiddies Guests of Elks Here.

No grownups were allowed at the Elks' Club yesterday. Only children. Nine hundred excited, happy youngsters, from 3 to 12 years old, took full possession of the club. Yesterday was the annual Kids' Day for the Elks, and with the exception of the committee, headed by "Tommy" Abbott, no big Elks were on hand. Each child was given a bag of pennies and they were all spent on the vaudeville, Punch and Judy show, fish pond, pink lemonade and other things kiddies consider important. Assisting Mr. Abbott on the committee were Charles Morgan, house manager; James Foyer, Lou Labory, Mrs. George Adair, Mrs. F. E. White, Mrs. B. J. Williamson and Mrs. George Ercanbrach.

FOR WAR VETERAN.

Funeral of Overseas Victim to Be Conducted Tomorrow.

Funeral services for Clifford E. Bell, who died of pneumonia on Oct. 24, 1918, in France, will be conducted at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at the home of his widow, Mrs. Edvin Ola Bell, at Montebello. Interment will be at Odd Fellows' Cemetery.

Clifford Bell was a member of the medical detachment of the Thirtieth Infantry, Third Division, at the time of his death. He left six brothers, Chester and Fred of Montebello; George, who is in the Regular Army now; Wallace, in Oakland; William, in Redwood City, and Robert, in San Mateo, as well as the widow and three sisters, two of whom are in San Francisco.

Victory Post, American Legion, will have charge of the services. The body arrived from France last night and was taken to the undertaking rooms of Draper & Engemann.

Child Killed as She Walks in Auto's Path.

Stepping from behind a standing street car late yesterday afternoon, Dorothy Marriott, 8-year-old daughter of Mrs. Mary Marriott of 973 Santa Cruz street in the harbor district, was struck by an automobile at Bandini and Santa Cruz street and within a few minutes died of her injuries. The automobile was driven by W. S. Sylvester, a dentist from El Centro, who was not held as it was declared that the accident was unavoidable.

LARGE OIL TANKER LAUNCHED AT HARBOR

LAST OF THREE SHIPS BUILT BY LOCAL COMPANY FOR LONDON FIRM.

The Semiramis, the last of three oil tankers to be built at the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company yards at Los Angeles Harbor for the Anglo-Saxon Petroleum Company of London, was launched yesterday. Mrs. David Heggie, wife of the Pacific Coast representative of the petroleum company, sponsored the vessel.

The ships are of 8400 tons deadweight. They will be put into the oil export trade from San Francisco to the East Indies. The Semiramis's sister ships are the Scopas and the Silvanus. The Scopas is on her first trip between San Francisco and Shanghai, and the Silvanus is expected to make her trial trip early this week.

THE finest Corned Beef and Cabbage in the world is served daily at Gus Mann's Pot and Spigot Grill, 611 South Spring.

What a Car! What a Price!

$900 Reduction on "C-48" Touring

Other Models Reduced Proportionately

The makers of Westcott, the Car with a Longer Life, propose to take the lead in value-giving! The new prices are astonishing in themselves—the value in the car makes the new prices almost beyond belief! For example, a great big, roomy, luxurious seven passenger car of 125-inch wheel-base—equipped with Continental, Timken, Delco, Fedders, Warner, Borg & Beck, Gemmer, Willard—with every possible comfort and convenience—all this for $2090.00! A wonderful five passenger touring similarly complete, for $1890.00! Other models correspondingly reduced. Do you know of any other such values? Do they not demand your immediate inspection, comparison and personal judgment?

To further understand the startling nature of this price reduction, consider again the "C-48" 7-passenger touring which one year ago was $3190. At present it is $2990. The new cut will bring it down to $2090—a saving of $900, and a total reduction of $1100 in one year! The "C-38" 5-passenger touring was $2690, is now $2290, and on September 2 will be $1890—a saving of $400—and a total reduction of $800 in one year! Other savings are proportionate, running up in size to a cut of $1100 on the "C-48" Sedan, which makes a total one-year decrease of $1300 on this wonderful car!

These Are Bottom Prices!

No man can study the car at these figures without deciding that each and every model throughout the list is to be greatly underpriced. He cannot fail to conclude that these are rock bottom prices—that he can in fact buy with full assurance that he will get as low a price as he would secure by waiting. These quotations will be possible only because of a most fortuitous combination of circumstances, that are far from likely ever to occur again. If you know automobiles, the quickest way to show yourself that Westcott is the great buy of the day is to check over every other car at anywhere near the Westcott in specifications, size, power, equipment and finish—and just compare the prices!

A Better Car Too!

Far from being a depreciated car, brought out cheaply to make a showing, the Westcott today is a better automobile than the famous Westcotts which have been so much advertised by their appreciative owners.

Steel, leather and other materials are of higher quality, and labor is able and willing to produce better results, than has been the case for a long time past!

Not a nickel's worth of quality, nor a single item of equipment, has been taken off the Westcott. It still includes thermostatic control of motor temperature, radimeter, electric cigar lighter, clock, spot-light socket, windshield cleaner, gasoline gauge on dash, cowl ventilator, tonneau light, etc. It is the same distinctive, long-lived, dependable car that it has been for a dozen years—only more so!

Standard Units

Westcott owners know that Westcott always has built and always will build quality cars. Everybody knows that no human power could induce Timken to make poor axles, Continental to cheat on their motors, Delco to reduce the quality of their electrical systems, and the other makers of tried, proven, standard parts to agree upon a program of deceiving the public. It couldn't be done! It is utterly inconceivable that a car containing these units can be anything but dependable and satisfactory—the best of its kind.

And in this connection there are two points of extreme importance to remember! They are: (1) that Westcott does not use just one or two of these standard units for talking purposes, but all of them, big and little, in every part of the car; and (2) that, to honest units, Westcott adds twelve years of experience in combining these parts into a completely satisfactory car that lasts long and performs wonderfully during all the years of its long life.

May We Demonstrate?

Any man would be proud to have the handsomely distinctive Westcott seen standing at his door. It is an uncommon car. It bespeaks the taste and discrimination of its owner. If you are not thoroughly familiar with the Westcott—or if you are!—we should like to give you an early demonstration. A phone call or a personal visit will be appreciated whether your interest is active or casual. We shall be glad to give you any information. A call today will put you under no obligation and may lead to your driving the most satisfactory car you ever had, at a price that will not be bettered for many a season to come.

MONROVIA WILL HONOR PASTOR.

Impressive Funeral Tomorrow for War Veteran.

Body to Lie in State During Lull in Business.

C. H. Marsh Greatly Loved for His Work.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Aug. 6.—All Monrovia will unite in honoring the [illegible] of Rev. Clark H. Marsh, [illegible] minister who gave his life [illegible] the great war, when tomorrow [illegible], with impressive services, [illegible] remains will be conveyed to Live [illegible] Cemetery. Masons of Fullerton, [illegible] members of the order [illegible] will have charge, and the Santa [illegible] Commandery of the Knights [illegible] and Monrovia members of [illegible] Fellows' lodge, will march [illegible] in the services.

[illegible] Marsh, for ten years pastor of [illegible] Christian Church, died [illegible] Havre, France, March 4, 1919, [illegible] waiting at the French port for [illegible]. He had served as one [illegible] Y.M.C.A. directors, and was [illegible] when stricken with [illegible].

STORES TO CLOSE.

[illegible] body was brought to this [illegible] on a funeral ship that [illegible] Hoboken last week, with [illegible] on board. The remains [illegible] Marsh, accompanied by an [illegible], reached this city today, [illegible] will lie in state at the Ren[illegible] until Monday after[illegible] at 2 o'clock, when the funeral [illegible] will start for the cemetery. Stores will be closed during [illegible] funeral.

During his ten years' ministry [illegible] Marsh won the love not [illegible] of his own parishoners, but of [illegible]. He organized the [illegible] Association, one of [illegible] successful of its kind in [illegible] California, and later, during [illegible] at Fullerton, established [illegible] work under the title [illegible] Nurse.

Friends and coworkers, among [illegible] of the biggest men in educational and religious life of Southern California, will be present at the [illegible].

Surviving relatives are the widow, [illegible] Marsh, and three children, [illegible] Best, Dorothy Jane, and [illegible] Catherine; two brothers, [illegible] of Porterville and Wil[illegible] of Santa Cruz, and a sister, Mrs. [illegible] of Monmouth, Ill.

HILLTOP SOLD.

The Catholic Foreign Missionary body has purchased the famous [illegible] of Henry Kirchenschlager, at the head of Alta Vista avenue, at a figure said to be $35,000, and proposes to build one of the most splendidly equipped sanatoriums in this country. The institution will be modeled after a famous health resort of the church in Italy.

The property, which the present owner has held for fifteen years, has been considered as one of the finest sites in this part of the State for a sanatorium or big tourist hotel. It lies on a high plateau, with a wonderfully wooded canyon at the rear. There are about forty acres in the whole piece.

KILL BIG SNAKE.

Constable J. L. Quiggle shot off the head of a five-foot diamond-back rattlesnake as the reptile was trying to get in a position to strike Mrs. Fay Hammond, according to the story brought back by the party just returned from Mojave Canyon. Mr. and Mrs. Quiggle and children, J. H. Terry, his father and sister, Mrs. Hammond, were fishing in the canyon and in walking up the bank Mrs. Hammond nearly stepped upon the snake, which showed fight and started after her.

Thomas Wardall, of 412 East Orange, will be eighty tomorrow, and will celebrate the day by entertaining his children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. But two members of the big family, one in Washington D. C., and another in Fresno, will be absent from the festivities.

TRIO HELD AS BLACKMAILERS.

Two Cousins and a Woman Kept in Pasadena Jail.

Intended Victim Said to Have Been a Dairyman.

Freight Arriving More Slowly Than Last Year.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Aug. 6.—Pasadena police are holding at the local jail two men and a woman suspected of being the ringleaders of an attempted blackmailing plot in which H. C. Besse, a Lamanda Park dairyman, was the intended victim.

It is said that Besse's life and cattle were threatened unless he paid $2000 blackmail to his threateners for immunity. The information he placed in the hands of the police caused them to make a search for two men of the same name, Joe Peppas. The men are cousins.

They were arrested today by Officer Ed Crook, together with a woman who claims to be the wife of one of the men. No formal charge has been lodged against the trio yet but they are being held on orders from Chief of Police C. H. Kelley for investigation.

FLORAL PLANS.

The Pasadena Horticultural Society, composed of some of the most expert gardeners in the world, today indorsed the 1924 jubilee celebration and agreed to instruct all the citizens of Pasadena in the growing of blue and gold flowers, to carry out the jubilee color scheme.

The celebration will be held throughout the year 1924, marking the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the city. The two flower shows of that society that year will be great floral expositions and will be a part of the jubilee pageantry.

LESS FREIGHT.

While freight receipts of household effects, belonging to new residents arriving from the East, are not so large as last year, local railroad men report there is a substantial movement of this class of freight into Pasadena. Last year was abnormally large in this respect. The present year is showing larger receipts than ordinary years.

That Oregon is making elaborate improvements in its State highways this season is stated by Frederick Nielson, son of Dr. S. A. Nielson, 510 South Marengo avenue, who has just arrived after a motor trip over the Columbia highway and the Oregon highway south from Portland. Many construction crews are at work on both roads, he says. With a party of friends from the University of Wisconsin, he motored west from Madison, Wis., by way of Yellowstone Park.

Man Who Shot Policeman is Sought Here.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 6.—Clews leading to Los Angeles are being followed by Long Beach police late this afternoon in the hopes of taking into custody the young bandit who shot and seriously wounded Patrolman James Delaney early today. Delaney and Patrolman W. J. Ray accosted two strangers between 18 and 22 years of age in front of the J. R. Lockwood fur store at 619 Pine avenue, which the officers believed the pair were about to rob. The officers were in an automobile.

Ray had left the machine and was walking around the rear to reach the sidewalk in front of the store when one of the bandits opened fire on Delaney, who had opened the car door and commanded the youths to enter. The bandit emptied his gun at Delaney, but only one of the bullets took effect, entering the right breast and piercing the lung.

Unless complications set in the wound is not expected to prove fatal, attending physicians announced this afternoon. Patrolman Ray and Delaney both returned the fire of the bandits, but with no effect so far as can be learned. Delaney is 25 years old and resides at 2960 Olive avenue. He has been a member of the local department for more than two years. He was off duty and on the way home at the time of the shooting. An excellent description of the two bandits was secured and a substantial clew leading the police to Los Angeles was uncovered late this afternoon.

MUCH BUILDING IN POMONA.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Aug. 6.—Indicating that the month of August is going to be one of the biggest building months of the year in this city and that there is an active building campaign on to meet the house shortage here fourteen building permits, eight of them for new houses, were issued during the first five days of August by Building Inspector L. W. Cowles. The total value of the buildings begun in the first week of this month is $28,775 or more than half as much as the total value of building for the months of January, February, April or June of this year. This record is unprecedented in the history of Pomona and there is every indication that the August building record will be one of the largest of the year.

ACCUSED HUSBAND HAS ASSISTANCE OF WIFE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 6.—With his wife and mother-in-law standing faithfully by him, Ezra Davis Mosher, wealthy and prominent rancher, whose arrest last week caused a stir in society circles here, is planning a fight to a finish to exonerate himself of the charge of a statutory offense against 15-year-old Lela Bernice Glenn, daughter of W. B. Glenn, his ranch superintendent, it was announced today by his attorneys, J. R. Pollock, A. D. Mitchell and Walter Ames of Ontario and Byron Waters of San Bernardino.

Mr. Mosher was released on $2500 bail following his arraignment before Judge George R. Holbrook. The date of his preliminary examination has not yet been set. The rancher at first declined to give bail, saying that he would go to jail, but later had a change of heart.

W. C. CONNER, FAMOUS CAPITALIST, DIES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Aug. 5.—At noon yesterday the body of Col. Walker C. Conner, five times Mayor of Dallas, Tex., who died Friday at Hotel Virginia, will be sent back to Dallas for burial. Complete plans for funeral services in the Texas city have not been made, but relatives announced this afternoon that the body will lie in state in Dallas on Monday. The body is at the Mottell undertaking parlors. For the past thirty years Col. Conner had been prominent in the political, social and business life of East Texas. He was 72 years old. Death came while he was sleeping. His widow, his daughter, Mrs. J. T. Thornton of Dallas, and his son-in-law, were at his side. His elder son, Walker C. Conner, Jr., New York representative of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railroad, started from New York on Tuesday, when his father's illness became serious, but he has not reached Long Beach. Efforts are being made to have him notified, so that he may detour and reach Dallas for the funeral. The second son, Edward C. Conner, is expected here today. There are four grandchildren.

Col. Conner was born in Tennessee. His parents were poor, but the boy obtained some schooling, and early in life, showed executive ability. Following the war between the States, in which he served with distinction, he went to Dallas, where his rise in the business world was rapid. For thirty years he was a director of the Cotton Belt Railroad, and an active director in the Dallas Terminal Company.

TO REPEAT AIR ATTACKS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SAN DIEGO, Aug. 6.—Two more simulated aerial attacks on mine sweepers and "enemy" aircraft will take place off this port this month, according to announcement made today by Commander John H. Towers, acting commander of the Pacific air force. From twenty-five to thirty seaplanes and land planes will take part. Navy officers say that valuable experience was gained from a recent maneuver of the kind held here.

BROKEN ARM HALTS TRIP.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Aug. 5.—Plans of J. J. Braxdale, 400 East California street, for a visit to his old home in Kansas City, Mo., were abruptly halted today when he sustained a fracture of the right forearm, while attempting to crank his motor car. Mr. Braxdale had planned to leave this evening for the Middle West, expecting to be gone for several weeks, but the trip was necessarily postponed.

WORK OF BOY SCOUTS AIDED BY ROTARIANS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 6.—T. W. Miller, from the Boy Scouts headquarters in Los Angeles, spoke to over 100 scouts, and the members of the Redlands Rotary Club at a big barbecue given by the Rotarians at the Herbert Hubbard ranch in San Timoteo Canyon this evening for the scouts of Redlands.

Mr. Miller said that the work of the scouts is not generally understood and he complimented the Rotary Club on taking charge of it in Redlands. The aim is to build cleaner, better, more manly boys and to keep active boys contented with work that will appeal to them. The creed of the scout is as exacting as that of the Rotarian, according to Mr. Miller. Plans are under way for enlarging the Boy Scout work in Redlands. More patrols are to be formed, according to the plans.

SAYS PHILIPPINES IMPROVING.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RIVERSIDE, Aug. 5.—Agricultural conditions in the Philippine Islands are improving rapidly, according to Mack Cretcher, Assistant Director of Agriculture, with headquarters at Manila. Mr. Cretcher is here for a visit with a cousin, Mrs. J. A. Sims, of 811 Orange street. His home is in Sedgwick, Kan., where he was publisher of a newspaper for twenty-five years. The agricultural production of the islands, he says, has increased 600 per cent in the past six years, and the finances of the farmers have been greatly improved through a system of rural credits established throughout the islands by the farmers themselves.

HUGE AREA IS BURNED OVER, FIRE UNCHECKED

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 6.—Owing to the dense smoke, it is impossible to determine the extent of the two great fires which are raging thirty to forty miles north of this city in the Santa Barbara National Forest. The Cuyama district fire, which is being spurred by a strong desert wind, has burned at least 3000 acres, and the small force fighting it has become exhausted. It is hoped to get thirty additional men tonight from Maricopa to the fire line, which is three miles long, according to the local forest supervisor.

The Sisquoc Canyon fire, ten miles southeast of the first fire, and nearer this city, will burn unchecked for two or three days because of the impossibility of a fighting force reaching it sooner. Clouds of smoke from this fire have dimmed the sun in this city. It is estimated that up to [illegible] night more than 1000 acres had been burned over in Sisquoc Canyon. Capt. J. D. Stephenson and Capt. A. S. Heffold of March Field flew over the fire late yesterday afternoon, but could see nothing of its extent because of the smoke. They left this morning on another flight.

Will Lower Gas Rates.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 6.—Effective about August 24 the price of gas will be lowered to consumers in Santa Barbara 6 or 7 cents per [illegible] cubic feet. The change in [illegible] is due to a drop of 25 cents a [illegible] in the cost of fuel oil used [illegible] local plant of the Southern C[illegible] Gas Company.

According to the ruling of the State Railroad Commission at the recent hearing on rates, the company is empowered to charge an additional 2.5 cents per 1000 cubic feet for each 10-cent increase in the price of a barrel of oil, and must make a corresponding reduction for a decrease.

Security and Satisfaction are His, Wherever the Cadillac Owner May Tour

Before starting a tour across the continent, it is desirable to know something of the company which built your car, as well as the car itself.

In the very broadest sense of the word, the Cadillac is a sound and strongly established American institution.

There is probably not another plant in the world as advantageously equipped as the wonderful new works which the Cadillac Motor Car Company has just occupied.

The Cadillac has always been a model in manufacturing fitness and fineness, to which manufacturers of high grade cars the world over have gladly paid tribute.

The new Cadillac plant insures a degree of scientific exactitude, efficiency, and economy, beyond the fondest dreams of anything attained in the past.

Its far-flung system of sales and service puts friends within easy reach for the Cadillac tourist, wherever his fancy may carry him.

Back of every Cadillac sold is a solid history of eighteen years of unique experience, hammered and welded into a positive knowledge of how to build a car of the highest grade.

Back of every Cadillac is business responsibility—a splendid past, a solidly successful present, a sure, substantial and brilliant future.

The knowledge of these things brings a sense of certainty and satisfaction to the Cadillac owner second only to the certainty he feels that his car will do all he expects it to do, and more than he could hope any other would do.

HUGE ELECTRIC PLANT IS READY.

Will Develop Not Less Than 400,000 Horsepower.

San Francisco to Receive Large Voltage.

First Development on Pit River a Starter.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The first hydroelectric plant has been completed of the Pit River system in Shasta county, California, which ultimately is expected to develop not less than 400,000 horsepower for the Pacific Gas and Electric Company.

This first plant is of 16,750 horsepower installed capacity. With another plant of similar capacity nearing completion, it located on Hat Creek, a tributary of the Pit River. The two plants are expected to be operating before the end of the dry season this year.

OPERATION IN A YEAR.

The first development on the Pit River is expected to begin operation in about one year, adding 93,000-horsepower capacity to the two Hat Creek plants. It is known as Pit River plant No. 1.

The plants of the series which will be located on the Pit River, extending downstream from Hat Creek to a place known as Big Bend, will not be finished for several years. When this is accomplished the full 400,000 horsepower of the system will be available.

In constructing Pit River plant No. 1 it was necessary to bore a 10,400-foot tunnel to divert the waters of Fall River to a point above the Pit River, where there is a drop of 430 feet. Electric generators to be used are the largest of the kind in the United States. They are vertical-shaft generating units with water turbine and generator combined. Engineers state each has enough power to drive two dreadnaughts at a maximum speed perpetually.

LARGE VOLTAGE.

The proposed high-tension transmission line to carry the electricity generated by the Pit River system will bring to San Francisco Bay 220,000 volts, the largest voltage ever carried. The distance is 300 miles.

The power company's railroad, which now runs from Sisson, Cal., through McCloud to Bartle, is being extended to the Pit River. It soon will carry passengers and freight. It is proposed to continue this railroad down the course of the Pit River power developments to Big Bend.

The Pit River system was inaugurated in 1917, when the Pacific Gas and Electric Company purchased water rights on the Pit from the Mt. Shasta Power Company. Construction work had been begun at Big Bend on the river, where a drop of between 900 and 1000 feet in seven miles was obtainable, or an average stream flow of 2500 feet per second in a dry years.

Further water flow was desired, however, to provide for a possible power shortage such as took place last year. Therefore, Fall River, contributing 1500, and Hat Creek 600 cubic feet per second to the Pit River above Big Bend, were acquired. Preliminary work was started a year ago on a series of power developments which ultimately will extend from Hat Creek to Big Bend.

PORT NOTES.

The steam schooner Necanicum, operated by the California and Oregon Lumber Company, set up a new record for ships of her class yesterday when she sailed for San Francisco after discharging 1,000,000 feet of lumber in twenty working hours.

The fourmasted schooner Watson A. West will sail for Gray's Harbor or Willapa Harbor tomorrow, after discharging a cargo of lumber here. Capt. Sorenson, master of the sailer, stated that the vessel will probably load for Australia, the return of the steam schooners eliminating the sailing vessels from the coastwise trade.

The big five-masted barkentine Anne Comyn came into port Friday night from Everett after a fast passage of thirteen days. The barkentine has 1,000,000 feet of lumber for the San Pedro Lumber Company.

The motorship Kennecott, of the Williams Line, and the steamer West Isleta, of the North Atlantic and Western Line, did not stop at the local harbor yesterday en route to the East coast. Both vessels were booked to capacity from San Francisco, and freight for the East coast will be sent out on the next vessel of the two lines.

The Matson Navigation Company's 535-type liner Buckeye State is due here in about ten days on her maiden voyage on the run between Baltimore, Los Angeles Harbor and Honolulu. The liner sailed from Havana for this port on August 3, with a large list of passengers on board. The Buckeye State is a sister ship of the Hawkeye State, but will present a somewhat different appearance from the latter, the Buckeye State's stack having been heightened fifteen feet.

SPURGIN IN PORTO RICO?

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—The search for Warren C. Spurgin, missing president of the defunct Michigan-Avenue Trust Company, who is being sought in connection with a $1,000,000 shortage in the bank's accounts, was directed from Mexico to Porto Rico today following receipt of a message from the police of San Juan, Porto Rico, asking for a description of him.

Meanwhile a Federal warrant for Spurgin, charging violation of the prohibition statutes, was issued, based on the discovery of liquor valued at more than $10,000 in Spurgin's private vault in the bank.

Telegrams were dispatched to Federal authorities at El Paso asking that steps be taken immediately for the apprehension of the missing banker. He has been reported near Chihuahua City, Mex.

LOST OPPORTUNITY BY THEIR GREEDINESS.

DANISH MARKET CLOSED NOW TO COAL MERCHANTS HERE DUE TO WAR SALES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

COPENHAGEN, July 21.—"The United States lost a great opportunity to sell her surplus coal," a leading Danish importer told the Associated Press correspondent here today, "because in 1919 and 1920, when American sellers had the European market at their mercy, they made the mistake of sending to Europe coal of very poor quality and charged exorbitant prices for it."

As a result of this policy, he said, during the recent British coal strike, when practically no coal was obtainable from Great Britain, hardly any Scandinavian orders for coal were placed in America despite the fact that stocks on hand were nearly exhausted. Importers preferred to run the risk of running short to taking their chances of ordering fuel from America and receiving coal of an inferior quality. "If American coal is to regain the reputation it has lost in European markets there must be an effective official guarantee of its quality based on analysis," says the Bureau of Mines.

The Danish commercial adviser in New York recently reported that "it is difficult to blame any individual American exporter for the general conditions prevailing in the American coal export trade, conditions for which America will pay by the loss of a market of great importance to the nation's coal industry."

Bulgaria Has an Eye for Monopolies.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SOFIA, July 17.—The government has just presented to Parliament a bill establishing a monopoly for all newspaper advertisements. Henceforth every advertisement, announcement or puff will have to be published first in the Official Gazette, at a very high price.

Then only its reproduction in other papers will be allowed after paying another tax for the reproduction.

The big political papers and those for information supported chiefly by advertisements are in the hands of the intellectuals or the middle classes, who are not on good terms with the peasant government. By this method the government would be able to injure the organs of its political adversaries.

FOREST RANGERS TO BE AUTO MECHANICS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

YOSEMITE, Aug. 2.—Forest rangers of the Yosemite national park are being given courses in automobile work so they can help repair machines they find stranded along the park roads.

Orders recently issued by Park Superintendent Lewis provide that every first class patrolling ranger shall put in at least three weeks in the government garage here.

The new motor school is part of our effort to make everybody's stay in Yosemite free from accident, and a pleasant memory." Chief Ranger Townsley explained recently. "Simple motor trouble is apt to happen in any automobile and the average driver knows nothing about repair work. Instead of sending fifteen or twenty miles for a rescue car, the nearest patrolling ranger will be able to start the motor running again or at least diagnose the trouble so that the rescue car will go out prepared to remedy the defect in short order."

SEEKS FUND TO GIVE CHILDREN VACATION.

The King's Daughters' Day Nursery yesterday issued an appeal for funds to send forty children of working women to the Manhattan Beach cottage for three weeks. Three dollars will give a child this vacation. Donations should be sent to Mrs. George P. Lewis, the treasurer, 1352 West Thirtieth street.

HOST TO BUCK PRIVATES.

Presiding Judge Shenk, who is on his vacation, entertained at the Union League Club at lunch Friday "buck" privates who fought with him as members of the Fourth Ohio Volunteer Infantry at the battle of Guayama, Porto Rico. The privates wired Lieut.-Col. George P. Zwerner of this regiment their greetings from Los Angeles. The regiment was holding a reunion yesterday at Delaware, O.

HARRIS & FRANK PICNIC.

The Harris & Frank Boosters' Club, an organization comprising all employees of the Harris & Frank clothing store, will hold a picnic at Manhattan Beach today. Cars to convey the club members and their families will leave the store at 8 a.m. A program comprising sports of varied kinds is being prepared. A picnic lunch will be served in the dancing pavilion.

Wrong Door.

A young man and his wife were staying at an hotel in the country. On the evening of their arrival his wife went up to bed and left him smoking his pipe.

Presently he, too, went up, but it was dark, and he could not find the room. After a good deal of wandering he thought he had at last found it.

He tapped on the door and said, "Honey! Honey!"

A voice from inside the room answered, "Go away, you idiot! This is a bathroom, not a beehive!"

ARREST IN KENNEDY CASE.

-in-Law of Bishop Taken in Custody in Nevada Following Murder of Young Broker Here.

[illegible] man asked that this room be [illegible] for him for thirty minutes. At [illegible] appointed time he arrived at [illegible] hotel and asked to be shown the [illegible]

The manager took him to the [illegible] floor and showed him room [illegible] This room, it appeared to the [illegible] was a little too far to the north [illegible] the purpose for which he wanted [illegible] All the time he was talking to [illegible] hotel manager he kept peering [illegible] the windows toward the [illegible] of Mr. Kennedy's offices [illegible] the opposite side of the street.

BONUS FOR ROOM.

He wanted the room to the south [illegible] the one shown to him. He said [illegible] gladly pay the woman who [illegible] it a bonus of $1 a day if [illegible] would agree to exchange rooms [illegible] him. The room occupied by [illegible] woman was almost directly opposite the Kennedy offices. After [illegible] bickering he agreed to accept [illegible] originally shown to him. [illegible] day thereafter he kept constant [illegible] on the offices across the [illegible] He had paid a week's rent in [illegible] though he explained to the [illegible] that he probably would [illegible] forty-eight hours.

[illegible] is one more thing I would [illegible] got fixed up," he told the [illegible] "I must have some company in my room." He then explained that a woman, a cousin of [illegible] would call on him frequently. [illegible] calls would be made by [illegible] the afternoons, but that [illegible] leave his door open. This, [illegible] told, would be satisfactory to [illegible] management.

[illegible] woman who visited his room [illegible] Mrs. Obenchain. Of this [illegible] hotel manager was certain after he had seen and talked to Mrs. [illegible] The "cousin" was described as about 24 years old, a tall [illegible] with dark complexion and [illegible] long straight, black hair. She [illegible] always well-dressed and appeared to be a very intelligent [illegible]

WEEKS OF VIGIL.

The "death watch" from the hotel [illegible] continued for nearly two [illegible] When hotel employees entered room 31, the man was always [illegible] in a chair near the window [illegible] the offices on the opposite [illegible] of the street. Every move Mr. [illegible] made was visible to him.

Days and nights passed. One [illegible] about 11 o'clock, the night [illegible] was startled by the slamming [illegible] a door and the clattering of feet [illegible] the stairway. The man of [illegible] was wild-eyed. He came [illegible] down the stairs and darted [illegible] the street attired in a heavy raincoat, though the night was warm [illegible] He returned in an hour, [illegible] fatigued and disappointed.

[illegible] afternoons the "cousin" [illegible] the man during his [illegible]

[illegible] afternoon the man received a telephone call from a woman. He was not in his room, and [illegible] expressed disappointment. [illegible] told the clerk to tell the [illegible] "cousin" had called. [illegible] he returned. He was [illegible] the message. He immediately [illegible] without saying a word. [illegible] later in the afternoon [illegible] to his room. At exactly [illegible] he again departed. He [illegible] a long package, [illegible] feet in length and [illegible] wrapped in newspapers. [illegible] the officers say, was the fatal [illegible]

THE DEATH TRIP?

The night clerk met him, with the [illegible] under his arm, on Third [illegible] between Spring and Broadway. He was walking east toward [illegible] presumably to the [illegible] the rented automobile [illegible] parked. It was midnight when [illegible] returned.

Saturday morning the hotel manager walked by room 31. The door [illegible] The occupant was sitting [illegible] the bed. For the first time since [illegible] at the hotel he did not [illegible] his eyes on the windows of Mr. [illegible] office. He was reading a [illegible] of newspapers. He looked up [illegible] when he heard footsteps [illegible] the hallway and then went on [illegible] his reading. A few minutes [illegible] 11 a.m., he was at the desk [illegible] lobby. He carried an unusual [illegible] suit case, in which, the officers believe, he had been carrying [illegible]

"Well, I guess I'll check out," he [illegible] and with a few words of parting [illegible] the hotel, though his rent [illegible] paid for several days in [illegible] The landlord, his suspicions aroused by the man's strange [illegible] hastened to room 31 and [illegible] fragments of a telegram in a [illegible] basket. The telegram had [illegible] to Arthur Burch from his [illegible] in Evanston. Remembering [illegible] suspicious actions during [illegible] residence, the landlord [illegible] the Sheriff's office.

WOMAN GRILLED.

[illegible] he first called A. L. Manning, head of the department of [illegible] investigation. Mrs. Obenchain was being quizzed in the office [illegible] Dist.-Atty. Keyes. Also in [illegible] were Deputy Sheriffs [illegible] Nolan and Undersheriff [illegible] Mrs. Obenchain was re[illegible] her story and had not yet con[illegible] her version of the details of [illegible] when she was suddenly [illegible] from the office and taken to [illegible] The manager then told [illegible] she was not the woman [illegible] posing as the "cousin."

[illegible] Burch's name was first [illegible] to Mrs. Obenchain she [illegible] extreme nervousness. She [illegible] to answer any questions con[illegible] him and demanded to see a [illegible] She also showed extreme [illegible] when informed of the long [illegible] of death" that he had been [illegible] in the hotel window.

OLD-TIME FRIENDS.

Mrs. Obenchain admitted [illegible] Burch, saying that she [illegible] former husband knew him [illegible] and that he was an old [illegible] friend of hers. While she [illegible] questioned concerning [illegible] a plain white envelope, with [illegible] of Mrs. Obenchain printed [illegible] delivered at the Alexandria. In the envelope were [illegible] and five plain sheets of [illegible] paper. The envelope was [illegible] in care of M. C. Wilson. [illegible] "C." the officers say, betray [illegible] as the same person who [illegible] an automobile for a week [illegible] White & Leader, 823 South [illegible] street. The person renting [illegible] gave the name of M. C. [illegible] Alexandria Hotel. For [illegible] $18 was paid for a week's [illegible] Burch is believed to have [illegible] person who rented the car, [illegible] made several inquiries at [illegible] as to where he could secure [illegible] car without a driver.

[illegible] money contained in the envelope, Mrs. Obenchain stated, was [illegible] her to Burch several days [illegible] and they were in the habit [illegible] money to each other.

MAIL MYSTERY.

[illegible] E. Louise Wilson, a manicurist [illegible] the Security Building, who [illegible] in Mrs. Obenchain's hotel room on the night of the shooting, could offer no good reason why Mrs. Obenchain had had all mail addressed to her.

The manicurist said she had known Mrs. Obenchain for several years; that she had become acquainted with her through the woman's visits to her beauty parlor for manicuring.

"She was greatly infatuated with Mr. Kennedy," she said, "and had told me she was to marry him. They were frequently together and danced together a great deal in the Alexandria grill. As Mrs. Obenchain did not like to remain alone in her room at night, she often asked me to remain all night with her. On Friday afternoon she invited me to stay with her, saying she had an engagement, but that she would return to her room about 7 o'clock in the evening. She did not return, but I thought nothing of her absence and went to bed and fell asleep.

"Mrs. Obenchain always received her mail through me. Why she did this I do not know, unless she was afraid some of it might get lost if it was sent to the hotel, knowing that she could depend upon me to forward it to her wherever she was."

LOVE WELL KNOWN.

The slaying of Mr. Kennedy revealed many unusual features of his own and Mrs. Obenchain's former life. They had known each other for many years, though the parents of the slain youth did not approve of their son associating with her. Ralph Obenchain, her divorced husband, stated in Chicago that he had permitted his wife to obtain a divorce to marry Mr. Kennedy. He said he knew his young wife devotedly loved Mr. Kennedy and to insure her own happiness he did not contest her suit for divorce.

Mrs. Emma B. Smart, mother of the woman and who resides at 5323 Pasadena avenue, did not know her daughter had been in Los Angeles for six weeks until pressed for information by newspaper reporters. Nor had Mrs. Obenchain communicated with her half sister, Miss Glenys Smart, since her arrival in this city. Mrs. Smart it was learned, had been divorced from her husband who has since died and who, it is understood, was given custody of the child. Feeling that she had been more attached to the father than to her mother, Mrs. Obenchain often came to Los Angeles without the mother learning of the daughter's presence here.

WEALTHY FAMILY.

Miss Smart said last night that she had never seen Burch but once. "That was last summer, about a year ago, one night in Evanston, when he took my sister and me to the theater," she explained.

"I can not possibly see what motive could impel him to come to California to kill Belton. He has a wife and child and married the daughter of a bishop and comes of a family who are very wealthy. His grandmother left $1,000,000 when she died. It is a terrible thing to think of: If I only knew who the mysterious woman is who visited Mr. Burch at his room at the hotel, I think I could then understand it all."

It was shortly after 10 o'clock when Miss Smart was seen and finally her mother came downstairs and entered the sitting-room. The terrible strain which she is undergoing was apparent as she discussed the detention of her daughter.

"I know that she is absolutely innocent of any connection with the crime," she said. "Who should know better than a mother? My daughter's life has been so full of sympathy and I know her nature to be too kindly to ever allow herself to become connected with the murder of a man.

"I do know that Mr. Burch was having some trouble with his wife, but just what it was I am not certain," said Miss Smart.

VISITING RELATIVE.

Rev. W. A. Burch, identified as the father of the man in custody, stated at Evanston last night that young Burch had been on a vacation trip to Los Angeles, visiting a Mrs. Erredge, his mother's aunt. Mr. Burch could not give the aunt's address.

The younger Burch was sued for divorce last October. Burch's attorney stated last night that he had not heard of a decree being granted in the case. Burch's father said his son and his daughter-in-law are "separated."

News of the tragedy startled Evanston friends of the Obenchains. Ralph W. Obenchain, her divorced husband, was evidently distressed. He spoke with much feeling of his former wife and their separation. Hope was expressed that Evanston visitors in Los Angeles might lend her some assistance.

The elder Mr. Burch said: "My son has been in the vicinity of Los Angeles and is on his way home. We are well acquainted with the Obenchains and I hope we may be of some help to them in their misfortune."

Mr. Kennedy was 26 years old. He and his father were business partners, having offices in the Homer Laughlin Building.

The younger Kennedy four years ago was attacked by two men at West Sixth and Coronado streets, according to records in the Receiving Hospital. At that time Kennedy said he knew of no reason why the men attacked him unless they were hold-up men.

The inquest over the body, Coroner Nance announced yesterday, will be held as soon as the preliminary investigation is completed.

FATHER'S CHUM.

John D. Kennedy, father of the slain youth, had been the son's pal for many years. The mountain bungalow was given to the son by the father about six years ago as a birthday present.

"He was delighted with the place," [illegible] the father, "and always took pride in taking his friends to the canyon to see it. These trips were not week-end parties, as has been reported. As far as I know, he always drove up the canyon grade past the house to the end of the road. Then he would turn the car around [illegible] coast to the house. After resting for a few minutes on the road in front of the house, he would again head out of the canyon.

"For two years he has not visited the house to enter it, as far as I know. When I last saw him Friday afternoon he told me he had an appointment with a dentist. I asked him if he was going out with Mrs. Obenchain and he told me he was not. He had also told me he would be home by 6 o'clock, but when I arrived home later in the evening the boy had not returned. I knew that that he had undoubtedly filled some engagement on which he had not planned earlier in the day.

"I cannot understand why he should have made the trip to Beverly Glen Friday night. He did not have the keys to the place. Evidently he had no intention of going there at all.

"As I understand it, this woman said she had hidden a lucky penny under a rock and wanted to go there to look for it. Upon their reaching the canyon house, it was too dark to find the penny, so she sent him back to the car to get some matches. It was then he was shot. I have no idea who shot him.

'He was a good boy, of excellent character and had no enemies that I knew of. I was his constant chum—we always chummed together—and I knew every phase of his life, yet I do not know of his having any trouble with anyone but this woman.

'She wanted him to marry her—just pestered him to death. He had told me he did not want to marry her. During the last few days he worried continually, and was getting to look ill. I tried to comfort him and told him to stay home and rest."

Mr. Kennedy said he will spare no expense to find the persons who killed his son.

"All that made life worth living has been taken from us now," he said. "I am not wealthy, but I have a little money, and every cent of it, our home and my business will be used to clear up the mystery of the death of my boy."

CHURCH TELLS THIS YARN.

May and May Not be So, but It Came from Methodist Episcopal Press Agent.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A story of chicken eggs hatched after they had been salvaged from the interior of a python, slain by missionaries in Africa, was told today by the publicity department of the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal church.

PURPORTED RUNNER OF DOPE TAKEN.

Indicted Suspect Caught in San Diego After Hunt Lasting Two Years.

Max I. Smith, said to be a well-known dope runner, who operated in this city and vicinity two years ago, and against whom an indictment is pending in the Federal court here on a charge of conspiring with Hom Hong, Howard J. Proffitt and William E. Hill, former members of the police flying squad of this city, and William F. Edmondson, a former private detective of Los Angeles, was captured yesterday afternoon at San Diego by an operative of the Department of Justice, and will be immediately brought to this city for a hearing. Smith was known in the circles of the underworld as "Cockeye" Smith, and officers have been looking for him for more than two years.

On Feb. 8, 1919, according to the evidence in the Proffitt and Hill cases, Hom Hong conspired with Proffitt, Smith, Hill and Edmondson, to violate the Harrison narcotic law. The Chinese was induced to go to the Bank of Italy and draw out $4000, which he, with the others involved, took to the place of the Chinese, in Pasadena, it developed. The money was used to purchase the dope by the Chinese, but later on, the evidence showed, Edmondson, Smith, Proffitt and Hill robbed Hom Hong of the money, and also got away with the opium that the oriental thought he was buying.

Proffitt, Hill and Edmondson were arrested, and on June 17, 1919, Proffitt was sentenced to the Federal penitentiary on McNeil Island for four years and Hill for five years. A movement was recently inaugurated to have them released.

Edmondson confessed the whole transaction, and was a witness for the government. He got six months in the County Jail, a sentence that he served.

Smith disappeared after the affair. His capture was reported several times, but the rumors were always unfounded. It is understood that he has been operating in Mexico of late and ventured to San Diego, where he was captured.

RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA URGED.

vince the people of his country, is needed as a basis for the return of confidence in Russia's future, which would enable America to give her the financial support necessary for opening up a voluminous trade between the two countries.

Since his return from Riga to Berlin Senator France has been busy keeping appointments with various business men and politicians whom he met before he left Berlin to enter Russia, and has been discussing the world trade situation with them.

"It is purely an academic question whether America does or does not tolerate certain political ideas now in the ascendant in Russia," the Senator said, "and the settlement of this question can easily be delayed. But recognition is a vital economic question involving not only Russia's revival, but America's prosperity, and that the settlement of this question demands speed is patent to everyone who is informed of the actual situation.

"Russia has abandoned her extreme Communism, and is working soberly and sanely toward sound conservative practices. She needs only a little help in working out her own salvation.

"It is unthinkable that America should have to wait many months before acting intelligently in such a crisis, but I am happy to say, I believe many men in Washington are beginning to agree with me that we ought to help Russia during this critical transition period."

Chiropodists Meet in Bay City.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 6.—The Pedic Society of California held a convention here today as a preliminary to the National Association of Chiropodists' convention. Los Angeles was chosen as the next meeting place and A. D. Cranstoun of Los Angeles was chosen president.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Aug. 6.—Miss Mary Yost, assistant professor of English at Vassar College, has been appointed dean of women at Stanford, succeeding Miss Harriet Bradford, who is going to the University of Chicago to take up graduate work, the University authorities announced today.

PLAN GORGEOUS CABRILLO DAY.

Celebration Body Gives Out Tentative Program.

Army and Navy Scheduled to Have Active Part.

Water Carnival and Colorful Pageant Features.

One hundred thousand visitors are expected at Los Angeles Harbor on October 14 and 15 at the second annual Cabrillo Day celebration. The affair, it is predicted, will be one of the most stupendous ever witnessed in Southern California, and will be actively participated in by vessels of the Pacific Fleet and the garrison at Fort MacArthur.

The San Pedro Chamber of Commerce will have supervision over the spectacle, which is being planned by the Cabrillo Celebration Association, which was incorporated last week as a nonprofit-sharing and nonassessable organization. An Army and Navy review and a pageant in the Gaffey Canyon will be the outstanding features of the two-day celebration.

THE PROGRAM.

The tentative program, as drawn up by the directors of the association, is as follows:

Thursday evening, October 13—Dress rehearsal of pageant, which the general public will be invited to witness.

Friday afternoon, October 14—Grand pageant, entrance to Gaffey Canyon, followed by street carnival, which will last until early the following morning.

Saturday morning, October 15—Grand review of Army and Navy, the parade passing through the business district. Luncheon for distinguished guests.

At 2 p.m. a grand water carnival will be staged in the Watchhorn Basin in the Outer Harbor. Prizes will be awarded for various aquatic events, which will be participated in by members of the Army and Navy.

WATER PAGEANT.

At 7:30 p.m. an illuminated water pageant will be held. The night water spectacle will bring the two-day celebration to a close.

Arrangements are being made for the handling of at least 20,000 automobiles expected during each day of the celebration. Space will be roped off on Miner Fill, at the Outer Harbor, for thousands of automobiles near the scene of the aquatic sports, and other parking sites are being secured.

The pageant in the Gaffey Canyon will be staged under the direction of Prof. Thomas H. Elson, principal of the San Pedro High School, and Miss Allie Hallett Taylor, dramatic instructor at the school. Mr. Elson, who is at Falls City, Neb., wired his acceptance as head of the pageant committee. High school students will play the principal roles.

Col. H. J. Hatch, commanding officer of the coast defenses at Fort MacArthur, and Capt. Amon Bronson, commanding officer of the Submarine Base, have pledged their hearty co-operation for all the events planned.

TO COMMEMORATE LANDING.

The annual celebration is to be held to commemorate the landing at Los Angeles Harbor in October, 1542, of Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo. The landing of the Spanish explorer at the "Bahia de los Fumos y Fuegos," or Bay of Smokes and Fires, as Cabrillo called it, will be graphically depicted as a part of the water pageant.

The contest for the selection of the queen to preside over the affair will be started very shortly. The queen will be selected by popular vote. Ballots will be printed in the Los Angeles Harbor newspapers, giving every young woman in the harbor district an opportunity to become queen.

Members of the Cabrillo Day Celebration Committee are J. M. Cannon (chairman,) A. H. Brown, J. B. Carroll, C. H. Cleveland, E. D. Seward, C. B. Hollingsworth, I. M. Stevens and Amos Kreisel.

Seek Musicians to Replace Men Out on Strike.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Managers of vaudeville and motion-picture houses tonight began recruiting new musicians to replace men who had announced their intention of striking after the evening performances. The walkout was ordered Friday night by the Musicians' Mutual Protective Union, in the face of a proposed 20 per cent wage reduction.

DALLAS (Tex.) Aug. 6.—A walkout of all motion-picture operators, stage hands, musicians and organists in local theaters on August 13, is threatened, following refusal today of several unions involved to accept proposals by theater managers of reductions of 10 per cent in wages.

Closed Mines to Reopen on Open Shop Basis.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Aug. 6.—Commercial coal mines of the State closed by strike since March 15, will be reopened immediately on an open-shop basis, operators indicated tonight, while representatives of the United Mine Workers announced they would refuse to arbitrate with operators on the basis of reduced wages at present.

The operators will resume their meeting tomorrow, but it was said tonight the operators were agreed that they would not deviate from the Allport Arbitration Commission's report, which recommended wage cuts averaging 20 per cent, from 3 to 4 per cent below the proposed reductions that caused the strike.

DEMOBILIZATION BY BULGARIA ORDERED.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SOFIA, Aug. 6.—The Inter-Allied military committee has demanded a complete demobilization of the Bulgarian army within two months and the formation of an army of volunteers, according to a semiofficial statement issued here today.

After the issuance of this demand the Bulgarian News Agency published a semiofficial note protesting against this action and declaring that the present army does not exceed the number provided by the peace treaty.

ONE BOATLOAD SAVED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NORTHHEAD (Wash.) Aug. 6.—The steamer Anyox wirelessed that she had picked up one boatload of passengers from the Alaska.

CARRIED 131 PASSENGERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EUREKA, Aug. 6.—The steamer Alaska of the San Francisco and Portland Steamship Company, with 131 passengers and a crew of eighty, went ashore tonight in a dense fog at Blunt's Reef, forty miles south of here. The sea was calm.

Shortly after she struck, radio messages from the ship, picked up by shore stations near here, said all passengers had been taken off in the ship's boats. Previously radio messages had said the vessel was listing heavily and this, with the cessation of all radio advices from the Alaska, was taken here to mean that she had slipped off the rocks and probably sunk.

The reef is more than four miles from shore and no further news was expected for some time, until the boats could be rowed ashore and the shipwrecked persons could reach Mendocino Light or other telephone points for communication with the outside world, or until some of the vessels summoned by wireless to the aid of the Alaska's company should reach the scene.

The coast is rocky and landing places for small boats are few and difficult of access.

The nearest vessels were the Anyox and the Wahkeena, each five miles from the scene of the wreck when informed of the Alaska's plight. Because of the roughness of the coast and density of the fog, it was expected she would be forced to proceed slowly.

Allied Officials Gathering for Supreme Council.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Prime Minister Lloyd George, Lord Curzon, Sir Robert Horne and a big staff of secretaries will leave London tomorrow morning for Paris where they will attend the conference of the Supreme Council which opens on Monday. Ambassador Harvey, who will represent President Harding at the conference, left today, and Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Ambassador at London, was also in the party. It is reported here that a serious hitch has arisen over the partition of Upper Silesia. The British and French experts are said to have disagreed over the frontiers and the whole matter will be referred to the Council where there will be a showdown between the French and British viewpoints.

The French, it is understood, are still insisting that a greater part of the territory go to Poland, while the British are protesting at the creation of a new Alsace-Lorraine.

Adla Pasha, the Egyptian Minister who has been negotiating with Lord Curzon, is also going to Paris, but he announces that he is simply taking advantage of Lord Curzon's absence from London to spend a few days with his family.

SHIP CAPTAIN PROVES WISE BUSINESS MAN.

Capt. C. Masten, skipper of the Bertie N. Hanlon, one of the steam schooners in the coast lumber trade owned by D. J. Hanlon of the Hanlon Dry Dock and Shipbuilding Company in Oakland, would be a successful business man if he were not master of a Coast steamer. As it is, he succeeds in being both!

It would seem that the Bertie N. Hanlon would be docked at the dock of her owner in Oakland, but Capt. Matsen figured that with lumber rates at a higher figure he could not afford to spend two days going north when he could put his ship on the dock of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, have her hull cleaned and painted and be off again in one day.

The captain made his first visit to the local shipyard yesterday. He investigated it quite thoroughly and said:

"Your yard is an eye-opener to a shipping man. I am surprised at the extent of the equipment you have here; and more than all I want to compliment you on the clean and shipshape appearance of the yard."

Youth Shoots Father Taken as Burglar.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Defending his garage against a burglar who had broken in almost nightly for the last month, Robert Schon, 22 years old, early this morning shot and captured his own father.

The older man swung at him savagely with an iron bar and sank to the ground, a bullet through his thigh. The elder Schon had broken the doors with the bar and was removing the cushions from an automobile when the owner called upon him to surrender. Instead, the intruder threw a hammer at young Schon and started to run past him, when the latter fired.

"I was only taking the things that belonged to me," said the old man to the police. "My money paid for most of the things in that garage. I figure it belong to me as much as it does to him."

The elder Schon was divorced last April, his wife charging cruelty. The five children went with her to a new home, just a block from the family residence.

Germany Denies Bergdoll Will be Surrendered.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BERLIN, July 6.—German officials here deny the Washington report that negotiations have been concluded for the handing over of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, the American slacker, to the United States authorities, saying that the German government has had no official discussion on the subject. Wilhelmstrasse cannot say definitely whether or not such negotiations took place at Coblenz between the American authorities and Baden government officials. It is admitted that when Gen. Marsh was here he may have expressed an unofficial view that it would please America to have Bergdoll given up to American justice when peace is officially signed.

MINE STRIKERS TIRED OF NOT WORKING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LANSFORD (Pa.) Aug. 6.—The strike of approximately 8000 mine workers of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company in the Panther Creek Valley, which began Monday, ended today with the understanding that the grievances which caused the suspension shall be taken up by the anthracite conciliation board.

The strike was due to a dispute over rates to be paid for certain kinds of work, it was said.

NORTHCLIFFE SAILS FOR NEW ZEALAND.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Aug. 6.—Lord Northcliffe and his party sailed early today on the liner Makura for New Zealand on the third lap of the journey which will take the noted English publisher around the world.

Lord Northcliffe will stop at Honolulu en route to Australian and Far Eastern ports.

SUGGESTION FOR SAVING EXCELLENT.

Treasury Says Plan of Congressman Will Work if Put Into Effect.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Treasury officials have informed the House Ways and Means Committee that suggestions of Chairman Fordney, Republican Leader Mondell, and Chairman Madden of the Appropriations Committee for avoiding new taxes, are excellent if the contemplated savings in expenditures are actually put into effect instead of merely being talked about. The treasury officials do not attempt to take issue with the estimates of the House leaders as to possible reductions in expenditures by $500,000,000 below the treasury figure.

As an example of the manner in which reductions could be made it is pointed out that while the Army appropriation bill carries a total of something more than $300,000,000, the official estimates of the War Department as to actual expenditure run considerably more than $400,000,000. The difference is accounted for in the fact that there is an unexpended balance from the previous year which the War Department is authorized to spend. This unexpended balance does not show in the annual appropriation bill, but nevertheless must come out of the treasury.

Another place in which a saving can be made is in connection with the Shipping Board. The board has estimated that it will need at least $200,000,000 additional, and the question remains whether Congress actually will keep this appropriation down to $100,000,000 or less.

Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee reiterated again today that the estimated expenditures can be kept down to $500,000,000. If this can be done the problems of the Ways and Means Committee are greatly simplified.

Bandits Shoot Down Woman and Her Escort.

Two men, believed to have been robbers, late last night shot Christian Grib, a chauffeur, and Avina Nielsen, a maid, as they were walking on Fifth street near Virgil street. Mr. Grib may die.

Mr. Grib had been calling on the maid at the home of Charles F. Blakelee, 429 South Virgil street, where she is employed. She was accompanying him to the corner when the two men appeared. The young woman asked Mr. Grib to escort her back to the house, but before they had retraced many steps the men came up. Miss Nielsen says Mr. Grib said something—she does not remember what—and then one of the men fired. She grappled with him and she was shot in the side.

Mr. Blakelee and D. R. Thompson of 2424 West Twenty-third street, a friend, ran into the street and carried Mr. Grib into the house. He was shot through the stomach, and at the Receiving Hospital it was said his condition was serious.

Miss Nielsen is not seriously wounded. She said the men ran west on Fifth street.

LOTS AT ANAHEIM LANDING.

FOR OVER SIXTY YEARS ANAHEIM LANDING has been one of the most famous watering resorts in Southern California. The oldtimers selected it on account of its quiet bay, full of shell fish, a true arm of the sea. For the first time in all that period, lots can now be purchased right on the bay. Paved streets, water, gas and electricity are being installed. Less than seventy-five lots are for sale. R. D. Richards, agent at the Landing. Post-office address, Seal Beach, Cal.

WHERE ORIENTALS HOLD SWAY.

Japanese and Chinese Control Large Area Around Fort and Between City and Ocean, Figures Show; Theirs is a Hinterland Where Gates Bar Out All Whites.

Los Angeles, Cal., city, county seat of Los Angeles county; population, 1920, 576,673; on the Los Angeles River, about twenty miles from its mouth, and on the Santa Fe, Southern Pacific and Salt Lake branch of the Union Pacific railroads; port of entry; bounded on the north by a line legally set forth and on the south, east and west by Japanese and Chinese gardens.

Fort MacArthur, a national defense coast station, bounded on the east by San Pedro and on the south, west and north by Japanese villages.

So, this is not unnatural geography. The foregoing are statements of facts, arbitrary in part, significant in large measure of Los Angeles and its tributary country as the land of contrasts, with a barrier of aliens between us and the port.

A million persons live within the metropolitan area of Los Angeles. Of these, 15,503 are Japanese and Chinese, according to the latest available figures, holding under lease 50,000 acres of land.

If Fort MacArthur provided one of the lessons of the schoolboy's geography, the foregoing second paragraph would be a logical definition of its boundaries. But the fort, being one of the vital centers of American Pacific Coast defense system, like all other strategic points of a nation's defense, is not to be read about in a geography.

To the unknowing ones this mighty bulwark that protects a good portion of the Southern California coast might appear as a war implement of an alien country. It is almost entirely surrounded by aliens. Those aliens are Japanese and Chinese, several hundred of them who have grouped themselves together in small communities, or villages, which fleck the coast line and sloping hills of the Palos Verdes region for many miles around.

The fort occupies a commanding position from atop the brown hills on the southern fringe of the Palos Verdes tract, of ocean, harbor and hill country. Ostensibly it was placed there to protect the entrance to the regions surrounding Los Angeles from any unwelcome armed force, but within the very shadows of the big guns imbedded in the summits of the hills thrive scores of foreigners, representatives of alien nations which do not even permit visitors to venture within sight of the boundaries of their domains. The nearest neighbors to Fort MacArthur are Japanese, subjects of a foreign power, who, though residing in this country, are not permitted to become American citizens. South of the fortifications and only a few hundred yards away exists the largest of the Japanese villages, covering approximately a hundred acres. In the squat, unpainted shacks that serve as their living quarters live several score Japanese men and their families. But during the daytime only the children are to be seen in the narrow streets. The women and the men are toiling in the fields that extend from the village to the barbed wire enclosure that marks the edge of the military reservation.

REFUSE TO TALK.

Army officials are cognizant of the close proximity of Japanese to Fort MacArthur. They are aware of their numbers and strength in case of war, but they refuse to discuss the situation. They feel assured that the problem is not an alarming one in times of peace.

But each day small groups of Japanese farmers may be seen toiling in the fields flanking the barracks and outer buildings of the fort. Their little world exists there and in no other place. Their homes are there, so close that when the big guns are fired the little houses are almost torn asunder by the concussion of the explosions.

Their labors keep them there from the first light of dawn until twilight. And what little recreation they do enjoy, it is to be had but a stone's throw from Fort MacArthur—at Radium Springs.

Radium Springs is a beach concession, operated by Japanese, and the nearest beach to the fort. It is typically Japanese, with all notices and placards printed in their native tongue. The many buildings comprising the resort nestle at the foot of the high bluff at White Point. When visited recently by representatives of The Times many Japanese were enjoying its bathing facilities. A score of Japanese were lolling in the shade of the long veranda and others were peering through windows at the white invaders. Two orientals were strolling along the beach. Each carried cameras and occassionally one would pause to take a shot at some picturesque portion of the high bluff beneath the fort. Three native children were constructing a fort of sand and another had fashioned rigging of a sailboat from bamboo poles. Though this resort is oftimes frequented by occidental bathers, none but Japanese were seen by The Times representatives.

Radium Springs is at the head of the "forbidden road," a road twenty miles in length and which passes through one of the most beautiful sections of California, yet is a region whose scenic beauty is seldom enjoyed by white people. This road hugs the brow of the high cliffs skirting the Pacific from San Pedro to Redondo Beach, but is frequently kept closed by the Japanese ranchers whose little farms are located in the hills.

At the entrance to the "forbidden road" a big chain had been extended between two trees, but it sagged low enough to permit an automobile to pass over it. Though the entrance was passable, motorists are frightened from traversing it by big signs posted on the trees, warning, "No trespassing." These warnings extend the full length of the road and are to be found at intervals of about every quarter mile.

Every half mile along the coast road has at least one Japanese settlement. These settlements consist of from four to a dozen ugly unpainted shacks and sheds, inhabited entirely by Japanese. Here, amidst squalor, the orientals live—not as Americans, but under the same conditions that prevail in the rural sections of Japan, wearing their native garb, using the primitive agricultural implements of their native country, speaking only their native tongue and looking upon white men who pass through their ranches as interlopers with no business there.

The entire twenty-mile strip of land extending along the coast from Point Fermin to Redondo Beach, conveys the thought that the visitor has not only trespassed upon private property, but has been caught in a foreign country without a passport. During the entire length of the territory not one single white man was seen, either on the road or in the field. Not a single automobile or any other sort of a conveyance from the outside world was passed.

On every mail box along the road was a Japanese name, the name of the rancher who governed the little settlement for which the mail box served—such names as S. Hatashita, K. Ishibashi, Asahi, Harada, Muruguchi. The names and the "trespassing" warnings were the only words one not versed in the Japanese tongue could understand. All other signs and placards are in Japanese.

The fields were sprinkled with the Japanese, many who paused in their labors to gaze with astonishment at the passing automobile. The new settlements seemed deserted of inhabitants, save for the small native children who played beneath the shade trees. Undoubtedly these children do not know one syllable of the English tongue for not a single school was to be found along the twenty-mile route.

At the north end of the road, approaching Redondo Beach, was found a huge gate, which apparently was not kept closed, though a "no trespassing" sign was nailed to it. For some distance near the northern termination of the "forbidden road" no Japanese villages were found. These foreign settlements were clustered mostly near and around Fort MacArthur.

If the Japanese ranchers are asked why they have chosen this isolated coastal section for their homes, they reply that the expense of ranching is cheaper on the ledge overlooking the ocean, for the heavy fogs make it unnecessary to irrigate.

Thus is one of the nation's most formidable fortifications surrounded by a people who remain loyal to an alien power. From their dooryards all activities at the fort may be easily observed by them.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE WAR ON SEA.

Important Experiments Made by Pacific Fleet in Southern California Waters Approach in Value Results Won by Ostfriesland Sinking.

Highly important experiments in battle attack by torpedo seaplanes, which may, naval officers say, revolutionize sea warfare, have just been made at San Diego by the Pacific Fleet Air Force. Results have been obtained which are said to rival in their own field the remarkable lessons learned from the bombing by airplanes off the Atlantic Coast of the former German dreadnaught Ostfriesland.

Every week for the past month there have been sham battles in the clouds and on the sea as supposed enemy forces attacked San Diego and the far-famed island of Coronado. Theoretically, warships have been sunk by torpedoes shot from seaplanes, while airplanes have been sent plunging down from the clouds by fire directed from the ocean.

It is stated that problems in battle attack by planes were worked out which will be of supreme importance in determining future operations of the air fleet of the United States Navy. In the strategic maneuvers many types of planes have been used—both land machines and seaplanes, including big Martin bombing land planes of the type used in destroying the Ostfriesland, fighting machines, scouts, torpedo seaplanes and the great patrol seaplanes that are used for bombing.

IN BATTLE ATTACK.

These maneuvers have been conducted under the direction of Commander John H. Towers, acting head of the air force at North Island, and their main object was to develop operations with torpedo seaplanes in battle attack. In this they are reported to have been eminently successful; in fact, the information gained is declared to have surprised even naval officers.

One of the attacks carried out was with thirty-four naval aircraft, four of the R-6-L's, the torpedo planes, a number of scout planes that do reconnaissance work and twenty-four planes that protected the torpedo planes. The mine sweeper Gannett and submarine chaser No. 278 were attacked by the torpedo planes. Heavy cloud banks furnished a screen for the enemy planes, but the defending air units also used the clouds to advantage. A realistic battle above the smoke ensued and then torpedoes swiftly shot through the water and struck the Gannett and the chaser, sinking both. De Havilands, Voughts, Thomas Morse scouts, F-5-L seaplanes and R-6-L torpedo planes were used.

The development of battleship attack by seaplane torpedoes is one of the big things of future Navy plans. Altitude and variation due to air currents are eliminated by the bombing with torpedoes, according to naval authorities, as the torpedo is shot from the plane when close to the water and its distance can be adjusted exactly. The torpedoes have a range of 1200 yards and carry about 300 pounds of T.N.T. each. Air bombing such as sank the Ostfriesland has to contend with air conditions. For this reason the torpedo attackers will be more sure of their targets.

MORE EFFECTIVE.

Commander Towers who, in the absence of Capt. Henry C. Mustin, is in charge of the Pacific Fleet air forces and is the oldest officer in point of service in the air department of the Navy, says that with the development of attack by torpedoes from seaplanes a more effective method of combating battleships will be available than is feasible with air bombing.

"It is known that the bombs that actually sank the Ostfriesland were those that struck the water and went under the unprotected part of the ship. The bombs that hit from the top did not pierce her armor," said Commander Towers.

Naval officers at North Island are greatly interested in the bombing operations on the east coast. There have been no big bombing experiments at North Island, as the west coast is not provided with the bombs for experimental work. Commander Frank R. McCrary, commander of naval air station, said he was surprised to learn that the aircraft could sink the Ostfriesland, and it means there must be adequate protection for the battleships to meet this new aerial warfare on the sea.

At the naval air station at North Island, which is practically a great repair shop and navy yard for the fleet air forces, the need of airplane carriers, appropriations for which Congress turned down, is realized by naval officers. Because of lack of these carriers the air forces of the Pacific Fleet are based at North Island instead of at sea on ships for protection beyond the coast.

PROTECT PLANES.

A torpedo plane has a pilot and a man to operate the torpedo. It can develop a speed of 110 miles an hour. With the torpedo planes in an attack must fly fighting planes. De Havilands or other land machines, scout machines and big F-5-L patrol ships that carry as many as twenty-one men and have a speed of but seventy-five miles an hour. For the torpedo planes must have protection while attacking a ship. This is not a danger that outweighs others, however, according to naval authorities, as the torpedo planes would attack in numbers and so keep the enemy busy.

Of as much interest to the layman as the experiments in naval air warfare carried on at North Island is the history of the young naval commander who is in charge of the work. Commander John Towers, senior aide to Capt. Mustin, who is on the east coast to watch the experiments in bombing there, was a graduate of the 1906 class of Annapolis. He has had a remarkable career as a naval aviator and is the oldest officer in the Naval Air Service, as he was the first to learn to navigate one of the Curtiss flying boats. When the Naval Air Service was formed in 1911 he began his flying. In 1914 he was assistant naval attache in London and after the United States entered the war he aided in the development of the seaplane as a weapon against German submarines.

RESPONSIBLE POSITION.

In 1916 he was sent to Washington as assistant to Capt. N. E. Irwin, director of naval aviation, and remained there during much of the war. A tall, slow-speaking, blue-eyed Southerner, he holds one of the responsible positions in the development of naval air work. He has developed plans for the strategic and tactical maneuvers that are being carried on off North Island.

The views of Maj. Jefferson Davis, prominent attorney of San Diego, and formerly liaison officer on the staff of Maj.-Gen. W. L. Kenly, director of military aeronautics during the war, with regard to the development of the air forces, are of interest to the country. A separate air force, as a third branch entirely distinct from the Army and Navy, is advocated by Maj. Davis, who believes that the sinking of the Ger-

CHANGES IN SEA WARFARE LOOM.

Important Tests Made by the Pacific Air Force.

Maneuvers Solve Problems of Naval Defense.

Try Out System of Using Planes to Attack Ships.

man battleship by airplane forces means that the air forces must take precedence in warfare in the future. Maj. Davis says:

"If we are to benefit from the experience which Allied nations have gained through five years of warfare, then the attention of governmental agencies must focus upon the solution of problems involving the immediate development of military and naval aeronautics. To American genius is due the credit for the conception, construction and initial development of the airplane. Yet the United States is lagging behind other nations in the utilization of the airplane as a medium of defense.

FAR-SIGHTED GENIUS.

"Were it not for the aggressive and militant spirit of a far-sighted genius in the person of Brig.-Gen. William Mitchell, now assistant chief of the Air Service, and formerly chief of the American air forces on the western front during the war, I question very much whether Congress at this time would realize fully the scope of the present maneuvers both on the Atlantic and Pacific Coast. To Gen. Mitchell is due the credit for this great work of educating the American public to the dangers which we must face if we lag behind now in the development of what, to thinking people, must necessarily be the most important link in national defense, whether on the sea or on the land—the battleplane of the future.

"Whether the airplane has superseded the dreadnaught and succeeded to the latter's place in the first line of defense is a question open to discussion by military and naval experts. Whether that question is resolved immediately in favor of the airplane and airship in their present stages of development, or whether the opinion of naval experts is accepted that the airplane, as at present functioning in connection with the fleet, is indispensable for guidance of the latter in attack, or for observation purposes in connection with its defense, must ultimately be worked out in accordance with the development of aeronautics.

OBSERVES MANEUVERS.

"It was my privilege recently, as the guest of Capt. H. C. Mustin, commander of the Pacific Fleet air forces, to observe from the air, in company with Commander Towers, the maneuvers on this coast. The stride which the Navy has been making has been so rapid since the termination of hostilities that one does not readily realize offhand the achievements of peace, which have so rapidly followed upon the developments of wartime activities. From the use of the airplane on the battlefront purely as an observational factor, to its development, into a battle plane functioning not alone for observational purposes, but as a medium of defense and attack in the air, we have proceeded in the development of a science which not only may supplant all other forms of military and naval activity, but which at the present time has already developed as a separate entity, regarded so by military experts and viewed with favor by the Navy, the only question being whether the airplane is to be auxiliary to the fleet, or whether it shall supplant the latter.

"Whether we regard aeronautics as an infant commercial industry, involving a new medium of commerce and communication, or whether we treat it in the terms of a new dimension, supplementing or supplanting one of the older methods of warfare, we must recognize the fact that we are urgently in need of national and uniform air laws. One of the most recent instances called to the attention of our government is the fact that the Canadian Air Board has refused to allow American military or civilian air pilots to fly across the border. The reason is very apparent. Under the terms of the International Air Convention, adopted by representatives of sixteen powers, but to which the United States has not as yet become signatory, pilots entering another country must be registered and licensed, and air worthiness of their machines must have been certified to in their own country.

"Under uniform control of air navigation, a standard of responsibility may be had, protecting one country against unqualified flyers of another country. We have no standard in the United States either for pilots or for machines. With the exception of some abortive attempts on the part of municipalities to regulate flying over their cities, we have no regulatory or prohibitory legislation regulating the use of aircraft, or providing against the use of same by inexperienced pilots.

BASIC FOUNDATION.

"Canada is a signatory to the International Air Convention, and has, therefore, under its terms, served notice upon this country that aircraft crew certificates must be validated nationally, and certificates of air worthiness and competency are required. If the International Air Navigation Convention is ratified by the United States and we become signatory to the convention, we will immediately have a basic foundation for laws governing aerial activity in this country.

"In my opinion a separate unified air service, embracing army aeronautics, naval aviation, aerial mail service and other aeronautical activities, whether governmental or commercial in character, is the only solution to our problem, and in facing the question squarely I think we should benefit by the experience of Great Britain, which has so successfully developed the Royal Air Force under a unified control."

ACTRESS DEFIANT.

Refuses to Answer Questions in Wife's Love Suit.

Jackie Saunders, cinema actress, known in private life as Mrs. E. D. Horkheimer, was summoned to the offices of Attorneys Griffith Jones and John Craig yesterday to take her deposition in the $50,000 suit of Mrs. Juanita Cohen for the purported larceny of the love of J. Warde Cohen. On the advice of her counsel Mrs. Horkheimer refused to answer the questions propounded. Attorney Jones says he will ask that she be cited into court requiring her to show cause why she should not answer the questions. Mrs. Horkheimer says there is no foundation for the charge that she stole the love of Mr. Cohen.

TEST OVER BOY'S BODY IS ORDERED.

Coroner to Investigate Death of Child Reported as Lockjaw Victim.

A post mortem examination of the body of Hollis Connor of 427 Gifford street, Bell Station, to determine the cause of death was ordered by Coroner Nance after a conference with Dist.-Atty. Woolwine yesterday. Hollis, 10 years of age, died yesterday. It was reported to the District Attorney that he died of tetanus, without the attendance of a medical practitioner. The funeral was held up pending the post mortem examination by Autopsy Surgeon Wagner.

Dr. William Barnhart stated yesterday that he had been requested by the family to examine the boy some time ago. After an examination and desiring to have his diagnosis confirmed by a specialist, he asked Dr. Walter Brem to see the boy. Dr. Brem reported to him later, he says, that the family of the boy refused to allow him to enter the house or see the boy. It was stated to him that a practitioner was in attendance.

A relative of the boy declared to the Coroner that tetanus was not the cause of death. It was admitted that several days before his death, the boy was being treated by "faith healing." The Coroner was told that a month ago the boy fell on cement and injured his side and back. He was picked up unconscious. Apparently he seemed to recover. A week ago he complained of pains in his back. Dr. Barnhart was called and later a practitioner was secured.

WOULD SETTLE ESTATE.

A petition was filed yesterday for special letters of administration in the estate of Theodorick A. Williams, attorney, who was fatally burned in his garage when his automobile backfired. The letters are asked for by his widow, Mary S. Williams of 736 South Wilton Place, who states the estate is valued at $1500. The heirs are the widow, son and daughter.

Wife Denies Heavy Smoking and Drinking.

Mrs. Erma D. Banbury, against whom unusual charges were made by her husband, Stanley E. Banbury, an Alameda county business man, in an annulment suit filed recently, has denied the charges, it became known yesterday when the case was set for trial on next November 2 in Department 13.

Mr. Banbury asserts Mrs. Banbury, before their marriage, appeared modest and dressed in good taste. After the marriage he says she dressed immodestly and indecently, drank, smoked a maximum of twenty-five cigarettes a day, drank as many as eighteen cups of coffee a day, and flirted.

She admitted she smoked moderately but said she gave up the habit when her husband objected. She said she dressed in the same manner after as before marriage and did not drink intoxicants or coffee to excess. He was peevish and jealous, she declared. Once he threw all her clothing out of a closet, she said. He also became suspicious and was jealous, it seems.

HERE TO PLAN FLOWER SHOW.

Fred Renfro Will Take Lead in Autumn Festival.

Sunken Gardens to be Gift to City and County.

Dahlia Bulb Named in Honor of Mercier Arrives.

One of California's greatest fall events will be the California Flower Show and Horticultural Exhibition, to be staged at Exposition Park October 20 to 26.

Though the big exposition is almost three months away, plans which have been in formation for several months are now maturing, with the arrival of Fred M. Renfro, who will direct the preparation of expositions.

Mr. Renfro is well known throughout the country, especially through his work as the builder of the National Orange Show at San Bernardino. He was one of those responsible for its building the first show and, for the last seven years, he has been the general manager and directing head of the orange festival. The fame of the orange exposition has become world-wide. The executive committee of the State Nurserymen's Association selected Mr. Renfro as the designer of the forthcoming exposition because of the wonderful artistic opportunities offered.

AIDING EXPOSITION.

Roy F. Wilcox, chairman of the show, also president of the California Association of Nurserymen; Fred H. Howard, chairman of the Finance Committee, the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce and many other persons and organizations are aiding in making the Los Angeles show not only the peer of many other persons and organizations are aiding in making the Los Angeles show, not only the peer of any similiar show held in this State, but in the nation.

To this end the spectacle of the sunken gardens at Exposition Park will prove a revelation. Five thousand bulbs valued at as high as $50 each have been planted in a seven-acre plot. Through scientific nurturing they will bloom in wondrous profusion and at their best during the period of October 20 to 26. Many different nurserymen are co-operating in this planting, each devoting energies to specified sections of the sunken garden. The most skillful work on the part of nurserymen will be done, the intention being to make this sunken garden a permanent attraction of the park, as a gift to the city and county.

MAGNIFICENT BULB.

One of these bulbs is the Cardinal Mercier, named in honor of the eminent Belgian divine, and imported from Belgium. It is a dahlia of magnificent proportions and coloring.

The Pasadena Horticultural Society will transfer its annual show to Exposition Park and will take an active part in making the exhibition noteworthy. There will be in addition to the sunken gardens, an immense cut-flower display under canvas, and a third department, also under canvas, housing the fruits, plants and nursery appurtenances. Nurserymen all over the State are enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of the show and are offering pledges of co-operation.

HORSE SHOW IS PLANNED.

Arrangements for the horse show to be held in connection with the San Fernando Valley fair (official Los Angeles County Fair) September 13 to 18, were announced yesterday by Hamilton Bassett. There will be ten events with $100 in prizes for each of the six evenings. Mr. Bassett, in charge of the show, formerly was western representative of the American California Horse Association.

The appearance of the horse and of the rider or driver will count 25 per cent in making the awards. Cecil George will enter his polo ponies and many entries already have been made from private stables in Santa Barbara and other towns. There will be events for ponies, stock horses, saddle and harness horses of several gaits and hitches, hunters, and polo mounts.

KICKED OUT OF BED, SAYS WIFE.

Divorce and Alimony Are Asked by Woman in Court Action.

Mrs. Rose Murphy, who yesterday sued George Francis Murphy for divorce, asserts that when she did not get up quick enough in response to her husband's request to get the alarm clock, he kicked her out of bed. She asks a decree and $100 a month alimony.

CHAMBER INVITED TO GILA CELEBRATION.

Special invitation received yesterday at the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce from the San Carlos Association at Florence, Ariz., for members to attend the third annual celebration at Casa Grande on next Friday was accepted by Secretary Frank Wiggins of the chamber. Casa Grande and other cities of the Southwest are bending every effort to, develop their territory through the building of the San Carlos storage dam in the Gila River. The celebration will be featured by sports and a barbecue.

MOST BEAUTIFUL PLANTS ANCIENT.

Diatoms Came into Existence Millions of Years Ago.

Perfection is Invisible to Naked Human Eye.

Deposits in California Over Thousand Feet Deep.

BY W. E. ALLEN,
California Biological Feature Service.

The most beautiful plants may be found anywhere, although they are not found everywhere. No, they are not flowers. They are not even visible to the unaided eye except in certain conditions. The are not on exhibition to the populace, but only to those who care enough for the beauties of nature to make an especial effort to discover her secrets. They are called diatoms and, in addition to being the most beautiful of plants they are said by Dr. Albert Mann of the Carnegie Institution and of the Smithsonian Institution, who is visiting the Pacific Coast, to be next to the most important plants in the world. In a recent talk at the Scripps Institution of the University of California, Dr. Mann made a number of interesting statements.

So far as their part in the life of the world is concerned they came into existence rather late in geologic time, a mere matter of something like 5,000,000 years ago. They appeared very suddenly and in great profusion and they seem to have been more complicated in organization than their descendants of the present day. Some idea of the vast quantities produced may be obtained from consideration of such deposits as those of the Lompoc beds in California, which include about twelve square miles and are 1400 feet deep, composed almost entirely of the microscopic shells or skeletons of these tiny plants.

VISIBLE TO NAKED EYE.

Some very large diatoms can be seen with the unaided eye, but they cannot be distinguished in that way from tiny specks of dust about them. Sometimes they grow in such vast numbers on the edge of pool or basin that they give an appearance of a dirty brown slime, which seems to belie their reputation for beauty. But when properly cleaned and mounted under a microscope, they are seen to possess a glassy shell-like covering, which is ornamented with most intricate and complicated and delightfully fascinating markings and sculpturings. It is to these characters that the enthusiastic diatomist refers when he speaks of the most beautiful plants.

On account of their glassy nature diatom shells are practically indestructible. They can be boiled for hours in the most powerful acids without injury. This indestructibility not only accounts for the preservation of such vast numbers for millions of years but it also explains their usefulness to mankind in certain ways. Some metal polishes are composed entirely of diatom shells and under the name of "infusorial earth" they are used for many purposes. One enterprising tooth-powder manufacturer even uses them largely in his powder, which seems a little bit risky for people who brush their teeth vigorously since the hard diatom shells rapidly wear away anything so soft as enamel or bone. "Infusorial earth" easily absorbs a great deal of nitroglycerine hence it is used for the manufacture of dynamite. It is used extensively for various kinds of filters, and there are many other commercial uses for it.

GRASS OF THE SEA.

Dr. Mann calls diatoms the "grass of the sea" and he laid particular emphasis upon the fact that animals cannot live in water devoid of diatoms because either they or the other animals upon which they prey must depend upon diatoms for food. Hence they are indirectly of the very greatest importance in any industry which depends upon use of things which live and grow in the waters, fresh or marine.

They are useful to science because of the indications as to origin and direction of water and air currents and of many other conditions. They give some valuable insight into geologic history. This is well shown in the case of a lake in Nevada the history of which was specially puzzling to geologists because of the scant records in the ground or rocks. Borings were made and samples sent to Dr. Mann, who found that in the lowest layer of the lake bed there were diatom shells of many kinds in excellent condition but that a little higher up many were found which were misshapen and freakish and deformed. Just above these the conditions was seen to be getting worse and the number of species smaller until finally only one was left.

STRANGE CONDITION.

Next above this was a layer of well-conditioned diatom shells of many different species above which were again found successive layers of deformed specimens of fewer species, until again only one species was left. This strange condition was found to have occurred twice, and it was also found that the present lake is drying up and becoming salty, and that the diatoms in it are deformed and few in species. Evidently then, the lake has more than once repeated a process of filling up with fresh water from heavy rainfall and then gradually drying up and growing salty through centuries, or at least, decades of gradually decreasing rainfall, and this saltiness has so injured the diatoms that the weakest were first deformed and killed off, followed sooner or later by others, up to the last hardiest kind, which was always the same.

Some years ago the United States Bureau of Fisheries sent to Dr. Mann a sample of diatoms, which they said was obtained from mud in the bottom of the Pacific Ocean some distance off the Oregon coast.

SAMPLE TRACED.

Upon examination he discovered the specimens to be such as had only been found in "infusorial earth," from a boring about 450 feet deep, at a certain point in New Jersey. So he reported that the locality was wrong, with the result that in tracing up the records, it was found that the sample had been obtained a short distance off the New Jersey coast. Further investigation showed that the layer from which the borings came, ran out to the surface of the ground, on the banks of a creek some miles away and that the sample had included some of this material, which had been washed out to sea. Evidently Sherlock Holmes has nothing on Dr. Mann when it comes to getting at the facts.

THE HIGHBROWS.

Morals, philosophy and ethics are to be taught in the public schools of Chicago. Maybe they can soak in far enough to reach the city administration. We will say that it is some program.

REDUCING THE ARMY.

Now Senator Borah insists that the United States Army be reduced to 100,000 men. That is a small number for a large country. The Idaho Senator has seen the time when he could lick that many himself.

ON VACCINATION.

The vaccination problem seems to be very simple. School children may be required to undergo vaccination, but no pupil can be excluded for refusal to comply. That makes it easy all around. The pupils will go back to the old game of doing as they please.

SETTING THE EXAMPLE.

The Board of Education in San Francisco expects the school-teachers to dress modestly and shun the lip stick and the rouge. The wasp waist and abbreviated skirt are not to be encouraged. The teachers are expected to set worthy examples to their pupils and will not be allowed to shimmy during school hours. The problems of rearing and educating the young must be approached with circumspection.

THERE'S A RAISIN.

The raisin raisers are raising the price of raisins and say there's a reason. Not of the present stock—prices are standing still on old raisins—but a slight advance in the new crop is promised and has already been determined upon at Fresno, which is the center of things so far as raisins are concerned. Seventy-five per cent of the American raisins are marketed from Fresno and if Fresno must have more money for her raisins, why, that is all there is to it. The home brewers and others will have to pay the Fresno price.

REGISTERING ALIENS.

Let's see, where do I register today? This may soon be the question which every alien will put to himself the first thing after getting up in the morning. In the exercise of its sovereign rights the State of California, represented by its Legislature, decreed that all noncitizens should be listed. The job has just been completed. It reminded the foreign-born of irritable habits of their old countries which some of them hoped to escape in the land dedicated to liberty. Now word comes from Washington that Secretary of Labor Davis is urging registration of aliens by the Federal authorities. Next thing the unnaturalized will learn that the cities have decided that they, too, would like to keep tab on those persons who have not yet taken the oath of allegiance to Uncle Sam. Since the war many people seem to have an idea that an alien either has horns and a tail or is preparing to sprout them. The truth is that most of those who have come here from over the seas are just plain, every-day folks, hard to distinguish from the common or garden "100 per cent American." They go about their business unostentatiously, pay their taxes, get taken in by land sharks and oil-stock sellers, enjoy apple pie a la mode and perhaps indulge occasionally in a little home brew—just like Americans. It really is not necessary to lock up the silver when they are around. The jails are not entirely filled with aliens; some of the native-born are there.

LAST OF THE RACE.

An Ohio tobacconist recently closed out his business. He said that the Twentieth Amendment would be one outlawing the smoker and he thought he would get out from under in time. As a part of his equipment he had one of the last of that race of wooden Indians that were once so freely used to advertise the location of the tobacco shop. In pioneer days the noble red man stood out in front of the cigar store defying the elements and offering the passers-by their choice between a bunch of wooden cigars and a basswood tomahawk. Red Jacket, Tecumseh, Tammany, Rain-in-the Face—all the brave chieftains of Indian history thus stood for generations at the door of the tobacco shop mutely offering the wares within. Sometimes it was a lady Indian—a dusky squaw—who thus offered hospitality and refreshment. Pocahontas has thus been found at the entrance of many a cigar store. Her beckoning finger, with its promise of a hemlock cigar, has been the lure of many a smoker. But in recent years the wooden Indian has gradually disappeared from the streets. The tobacconist either advertised in the daily papers or else relied upon a display of his wares in the window. Old Sitting Bull was loaded on a wheelbarrow and taken down to the dump where useless Indians find their rest. But this Ohio cigar dealer still had his Indian in stock and when he decided to quit business he gave Powhatan a funeral. Some of the boys suggested that the Indian be sprayed with gasoline and cremated; but the cigar man dug a grave and laid the noble red man away with suitable ceremonies. It is a restless world and not even a wooden Indian can be suffered to smoke the pipe of peace without interruption. When tobacco is officially banished from the world Pocahontas will be only a fragrant memory.

LOS ANGELES AND THE COLORADO RIVER.

The controversy that has arisen over control of proposed Colorado River power enterprises is unfortunate and dangerous. Such controversies, as previously pointed out by The Times, tend to block the fruition of any Colorado River control project and to postpone the tremendous benefits that will accrue to the whole Southwest from the harnessed river. Wrangling between communities and between various interests makes it difficult, and very likely impossible, to undertake the work. Teamwork on the part of the people of the Southwest, on the other hand, will enable the people of this generation to participate in the huge benefits of one of the greatest natural assets that any people ever had.

A second danger in the controversy brought about by the Public Service Commission of Los Angeles is that this city is made to appear to be seeking a monopoly of power at the expense of other communities. That this is a serious danger is evidenced by the storm of protest from other cities and towns of Southern California and from Arizona and Nevada. Although the schism is based on a misconception of the true situation, it is nevertheless widening and deepening, altogether contrary to the strong bonds of common interest that have existed and that should continue to exist between Los Angeles and its neighbors. Los Angeles and its neighboring communities have too much in common, their interests are too closely identified to be opposed to each other on any matter of general public welfare. Yet the ill-advised activities of the local Public Service Board have arrayed the cities and towns of Southern California in bitter opposition to a policy they have been led to believe represents Los Angeles. As a matter of fact the plan of the Public Service Board is chiefly supported by a few public ownership faddists, is unauthorized by the City Council and is set forth without the auhtority or consent of the people at large.

Typical of the sentiment in Southern California outside Los Angeles is the following extract from an article that appeared in the Coalinga Record of July 18:

> At a meeting of the editors of Riverside county, representatives of many county chambers of commerce, the directors of the Riverside Chamber of Commerce and prominent interests of San Bernardino, it was decided last night to organize a general committee that will prepare for a fight against the attempted power monopoly of the city of Los Angeles, not only in the interior counties of the State, but also in every part of the State possibly interested. Resolutions were prepared and passed condemning the present attitude of Los Angeles.

Similar articles are appearing in papers all over Southern California and protests are being made in Nevada and Arizona because of the efforts of the Los Angeles board to secure the power development rights at Boulder Canyon. Los Angeles business men say there is a danger that a boycott against Los Angeles products may be established in many communities and that, in any event, business relations are likely to be disturbed if a bitter controversy is permitted to go on.

Beyond question the city of Los Angeles, with its need of greatly increased sources of electrical power to meet the demand of its remarkable industrial growth, should have a substantial share of the power that will be developed on the Colorado River. It appears, however, that because of legal obstacles the city will be unable to take steps to acquire an ownership or interest in power development outside of the State. It is also impractical and inadvisable for the city of Los Angeles to undertake a power project outside of the State.

The legal obstacles and the violent opposition from other interested communities would block the efforts of the Public Service Commission indefinitely, even if the plan should receive the support of the people of the city, which is extremely unlikely. The plan would also have the effect of preventing the consummation of the project at all.

In the light of past experiences, furthermore, it would be unwise to place control of such a project in the hands of this municipality whose administrative officers are constantly changing and whose selection is determined by ballot. The recent sale of bonds by the Los Angeles City Council, a costly and unbusinesslike transaction that no corporation would be guilty of, is an example of the dangers of municipal control of business enterprises.

With the establishment of the United States Power Commission and the enactment of laws governing the development and distribution of power the way has been opened for developing hydroelectric energy by private capital controlled by the law for the people. Under the present power law neither the Southern California Edison Company, which proposes to build dams at Glen Canyon and other sites on the Colorado River, nor any other company can secure a monopoly.

The Federal Power Board and the laws creating it were designed to be helpful and constructive in promoting power development. The new law appears to be admirably adapted to meet the conditions that exist, namely, heavily increasing power needs and splendid opportunities for power development. The law is well calculated to undo the bad effects of the pernicious, unbusinesslike propaganda of Gifford Pinchot which for a time virtually paralyzed important power enterprises throughout the country. It offers a better opening than had heretofore existed for the harnessing of the Colorado River as a power enterprise with the tremendous incidental advantages of removing flood menace and irrigating millions of acres of land.

The people of Los Angeles are not hoggishly inclined. They realize that on this as on all other questions there must be teamwork, not only in Southern California, but in the whole of the Southwest. Cheap hydroelectric power is essential to the development of our agricultural and manufacturing industries. The one thing to be avoided is monopoly. There should be no monopoly either by the city or by any private corporation. The power must extend over the whole territory and must be developed on that basis. It is as advantageous to Los Angeles that Riverside and Redlands should have cheap hydroelectric power and an abundant supply as it is for our own city to get it.

Los Angeles wants the share of power appertaining to it, whether it be from the Colorado River or from the Sierras, but it does not want more than its just due and there is no disposition on the part of the city to rob any community, however humble. The situation is aptly likened by Engineer William Mulholland to that of a vast alfalfa field and a herd of mules to be fed. Los Angeles wants to turn its mule in along with the others, but not to keep the others out, for, properly developed and administered, there will be enough for all.

Nothing could be more unfortunate than the manner in which the Public Service Commission has gone to work. Reclamation, irrigation and power development along the Colorado River form the greatest project ever undertaken in the Southwest. It affects every California, Arizona and Nevada interest. Each has certain rights and interests. Co-operation is absolutely essential. If any State or community seeks to get more than its share, dissensions will arise. With community arrayed against community the whole project will be blocked for a generation.

HARDING'S PEACE PSYCHOLOGY.

Beneath the surface of noisy animosities and querulous discontents, still so manifest in post-war readjustments, a silent revolution in world thought is taking place. It is being effected by the pressure of a single nation and largely by the influence of one man.

The results of that revolution will not be so immediately apparent as have been the late violent eruptions in many parts of Europe. The Lord did not speak to his prophets in the storm or the tempest, but in "the still small voice."

So the still small voice of peace, after nearly three years of deadlock and delusion, is at last being heard as strange, sweet music by the startled inhabitants of this globe.

We have said there was only one nation in a sufficiently commanding and untrammeled position to start these true peace seeds growing in the soul of civilization. That nation, through the grace of God, is the one to which we owe proud allegiance; and the man whose quiet, earnest influence and kindly, practical common sense are bringing this revolution to pass is the man we, the people, elected last November to the highest of earthly honors.

President Harding's efforts have already borne good fruit in the now assured disarmament conference, a first step toward the final abolishment of war; a step for which all the peoples of the earth, whatever the policies of their governments, have prayed and hoped and listened since the last gun was hushed on that immortal Armistice Day. But until an American President took the cudgels they listened in vain.

Important as is this practical outcome of President Harding's peace endeavors, it is but the first phase in the subconscious revolution from which a new world civilization will some day be created.

More important, even, than the disarmament conference is the psychological effect produced by the President's words and acts on the minds and hearts of the common people, among whom he himself is grateful to be numbered.

Men are beginning to think in terms of reasonableness and to speak in the language of amity and friendship. A great peace wave has started from Washington and is sweeping across the world. In this peace wave the petty ebullitions of narrow nationalism and the tea-cup tempests of incipient anarchy are being absorbed and dissipated.

Whether this nation or that nation has the biggest navy, whether we could whip you or you could whip us, whether our guns can shoot further than your guns or our poison gas wipe out more lives than your poison gas are questions that men and women find every day less exciting and more unprofitable.

The average American would rather tell of the number of nations we can help than of the number of nations we can whip. For America before any other nation can preach the need of peace because America before any other nation need have no fear of war.

So the psychological effects of President Harding's peace stand are incubating similar trains of thought in nations still fearful of their neighbors and susceptible to the malicious mouthings of interested troublemakers.

That the President owes the power for peace he is exerting to his exalted position is obvious. Woodrow Wilson, however, held the same high office and was able to accomplish little. Evidently the personal charm of Harding, the man, has contributed largely to the success of his peace efforts.

ART IN BUILDING.

When the early city builders looked over the fair fields just south of the place where modest business blocks and attractive homes merged easily into Elysian acres and decided that here should be a space set aside as a breathing place where our own people, as well as the strangers within our gates, might stroll, away from the busy streets with their hurrying crowds and clattering hoof-beats, criticism was made that the site was too far out; that a city park should be in the city and not in the country. The objection was overruled, and Central Park came into being. Soon the "roaring town" crept closer and closer until it had encompassed the breathing place, and tall buildings began rearing their stately facades against the skyline.

Then came the war and the renaming of Central Park for a great military leader. A brief hiatus, and then a tide of buildings which has completely changed the aspect of affairs around the four sides of Pershing Square.

In all this building one group stands out from the rest, and whatever fine architectural achievements may hereafter be recorded, the Pacific Mutual structures will be a monument to their owners, builders and architects and a source of pride to every resident. These buildings will stand unchallenged as a work of architectural beauty, in which there has been no economy of space, effort or money to make of them an outstanding feature in the very center of the city's teeming life.

In point of architecture, equipment and execution there is probably no finer group of buildings in the West. In the very completeness of detail, in the lavishness of finish there is shown on the part of the owners a confidence in the future of Los Angeles which should inspire other business men and other prospective builders to build not only for the present, but for the future as well; to give to the community not only buildings of purely utilitarian nature, but of enduring beauty.

Architectural styles are subject in a degree to the same moods and whims that govern fashions in dress, fashions in books and music, but structures such as these, built on dignified lines, are immune to the changes of style, and the Pacific Mutual buildings, two decades hence, will not be relegated to the rear as old-fashioned, obsolete structures. They may, in time, be superseded by even larger buildings, in which equipment now unknown may be placed, but they will lose no whit of their nobility.

Magic changes are being wrought in the vicinity of Pershing Square, which is rapidly taking on the character of the nucleus of the greater Los Angeles to be. The completion of the Pacific Mutual group at the southern and western end of the square, the erection of the great Biltmore Hotel on the western side, the construction of the magnificent theater and office building at the corner of Sixth and Hill streets and the probable erection of the new library in the neighborhood of the square will set a new pace for Los Angeles in its great forward movement. It is not difficult to visualize the growth of a finer and more beautiful city radiating from this unofficial civic center.

And herein lies the opportunity of the architect. Not merely the opportunity to keep the drafting board filled with work, to prepare plans and specifications and to collect fees, but to produce designs of lasting beauty at no sacrifice to the utilitarian purposes for which, of course, buildings of this nature are erected.

The architect's name, like that of the author or painter, should be irrevocably associated with his work. The architect is an artist who creates with brick, steel and mortar and the thousand and one materials supplied by nature which man has adapted to his uses. Through the combination of these materials the architect gains his effects, and how lasting these effects will be depends upon the degree of skill and artistry employed.

The architect of Southern California is afforded a singular opportunity to exercise all the genius which he possesses in bringing about new and harmonious effects; he is hampered in his work only in so far as he is governed by certain unalterable precepts of his profession and by the requirements of safety and utility.

But here he can use materials which would be impracticable in the more rigorous climates of the Eastern States. He can employ the fine, delicately tinted terra cottas, and even marble, in exterior finish, safe in the knowledge that they will endure in the original charm, since they are not subjected to the harsh climatic extremes which would destroy their beauty in a comparatively short time. He has a wider scope in the use of materials and consequently a broader opportunity to produce work of lasting distinction.

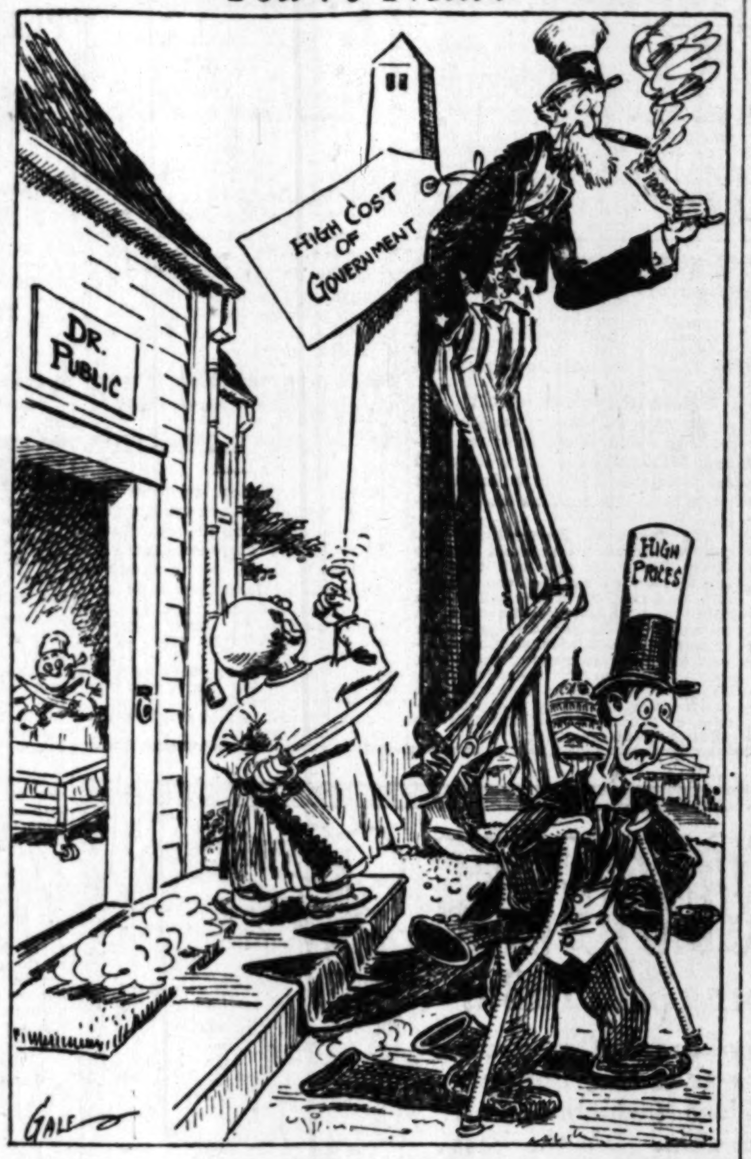
To a great extent the same conditions prevail here that made the countries bordering on the Mediterranean the cradle of a highly developed civilization, for centuries the center of the arts. Some of the world's finest structures, from which architects of today draw much of their inspiration, are located on the Mediterranean shores. Time has dealt gently with these monuments of civilization of the past; with the passage of years the even climate of the Latin and Near-Eastern countries has preserved and ennobled rather than destroyed them.

The same opportunity to build for the future lies before the architect of Southern California, and with the wealth of material at hand and with the very apparent growing desire upon the part of commercial organizations, as well as private individuals, to create the beautiful and the distinctive, the field of the architect is practically unlimited.

A LESSON IN CANDOR.

Miss Edith Rockwood of Chicago is going abroad "to study world conditions." That has become the American's conventional excuse for going to Europe. We prefer the old-fashioned greenhorn who said naively: "I'm going to Europe to see the London bridge and Eiffel tower and to see how it feels to sail across the Atlantic."—[Montgomery Advertiser.

"You're Next!"



RIPPLING RHYMES.

EXPIRED HATRED.

Our hatred of the Germans, a few brief months ago, inspired our songs and sermons, filled every tale of woe; but now we all are jumping to keep our rolls from slumping; we are so busy humping the hatred has to go. We used to hate the Kaiser, the author of all crime; but now, if we're not wiser, at least we have less time; we have to wield our axes while yet the summer waxes, to pay our income taxes, when comes the winter rime. I'm glad that angry passion forsakes the human breast, that we, in kindly fashion, can let old specters rest, that we grow tired of hating and keeping teeth a-grating; the rows of beans are waiting for hoes and hoeing's best. When Kaiserbill first started his well-known sawing stunt I viewed him granite-hearted and hoped his saw was blunt; I hoped the wood was knotted, with rusty nails bespotted, and that the job dod-rotted would wilt his martial front. But now I see him sawing—which is the worst of jobs—and seem to hear him drawing his breath in gasping sobs; I pause in my home brewing to wish him easy hewing; for what's the use pursuing with hate that poor old nobs? I used to hate the Germans from 8 o'clock till 10, and after Sabbath sermons I'd hate them o'er again; but old-time hates are breaking and gentler thoughts are waking while I am busy raking to earn some iron men.

WALT MASON.

BUSIEST OF MEN.

These are strenuous times for the President. His callers are numerous, and as a rule their business is urgent. He sees them all and hears them all and considers what they lay before him.

Then he meets the members of his hands. It was inevitable that the warring factions should seek his advice. They have probably done so none too soon. Differences of opinion on Capitol Hill are sharp just now and there is work in plenty for a referee.

Then he meets the members of his Cabinet for consultation; and the affairs in their hands are adways important.

His daily card, therefore, is crowded. Questions of all kinds, foreign and domestic, are submitted to him, and decisions are expected promptly.

Fortunately for Mr. Harding, his party, and the country, he is a strong man physically as well as otherwise, and is of a temperament that accommodates itself to the situation that exists. He has patience. He is not easily confused or rattled. He listens well. When he speaks it is to the point.

The pressure is steady. One day is like another in its appeals and anxieties. A President has no understudy. He must puzzle out problems for himself and tackle them as they come; and when, as at present, they tread upon each other's heels, so fast they follow, he is the busiest man in the country.—[Washington Star.

Fishing Requisite.

Patience was the object of the lesson, and to illustrate her point the teacher drew on the blackboard a picture of a small boy sitting on the bank of a stream, fishing.

"You see this lad, children," she said, beaming on her pupils. "He is fishing. Well, even the pleasure of fishing requires patience. He must be prepared to sit and wait. He must have patience."

For a little while longer she dilated on the beauties of being patient.

Then came the time for her to test her work.

"Now, then, can any of you boys tell me what we need most when we go fishing?" she invited.

Like one voice came a chorus from the class:

"Worms!"—[Edinburgh Scotsman.

THE LANCER.

"Alas, how easily things go wrong—a sigh too much or a kiss too long. . . ."

It must be something like that in our treatment of visiting celebrities. We overdo the hospitality. The only ones who concede love-light for love-light are the visiting international statesmen—and we can't help suspecting their disinterestedness.

There was Blasco Ibanez, whom we lionized so ardently—went straight to Paris and oozed acrid criticism of us. There is W. L. George, literary specialist in female troubles, whom we petted so lavishly—just written a book about us that damns with faint praise. Arnold Bennett tried to be more gallant, but couldn't resist a few candid remarks. And now comes Prof. Einstein, who tells Berlin that our men are lap dogs, our women selfish and extravagant and our scientists comic. And this after we had given the fellow the time of his life, fed, flattered and feted him to the fifth dimension.

They all do it. With Gen. Joffre and the Prince of Wales as glittering exceptions—their heads could stand the flattering hospitality better. But those others—we spoil them. Like the devoted lover who eulogizes his lady's graces so much that she thinks she is too good for him.

It might be well if we moderated our transports, curbed our enthusiastic exuberance over these visiting gentry. We owe it to the world not to ruin their sweet dispositions and expose the brass.

But it must be admitted we stand criticism pretty well. We can't be accused of hypersensitive paranoia. But we shouldn't gush—we positively mustn't gush.

I like this vogue for intimate dinner-table diplomacy which Lloyd George and President Harding are reviving. See what they can achieve over the cigars and coffee.

Why not revive it for the journalists, too? Time was when we wrote our epoch-making articles in our pet cafe, when next morning's leader was born to the accompaniment of "Table d'hote, with wine, 50 cents." It was much more glamourful. The great dramatic critic, who makes or mars theatrical reputations, used to rush to his pet cafe at midnight after a "first night," gazed upon with reverence by his respectful co-nourishment seekers, run his fingers through his flowing locks, excogitating epigrams, suck his pencil and sip his pet poison on the side. But now he rushes back to the office and attacks his typewriter, aided and abetted by notes from press agents—and the result isn't half so impressive.

This god of practical efficiency is all very well in its way—this strict segregation of work and play—but it is obvious the brain works infinitely better with a little guidance from the stomach. The diplomats are finding that problems solve themselves between courses. Relentless theories give way to workable compromises; the stern, critical attitude melts into amiable tolerance. Oh, there is much to recommend it.

What is this the Fordney tariff is putting over on a suffering nation? Think of it, they have raised the tax on imported mittens and French grindstones. Yea, and a 30 per cent duty has been put on Ramie braid. What misery and desolation awaits us. Who, for instance, can continue to enjoy life in California under the burden of the higher cost of mittens and Ramie braids?

But while placing these vital necessities upon a prohibitive level, they reduced the tax on "jewelry novelties" from 60 per cent to 55 per cent. We cry for mittens and they give us cheaper scarf pins, essay to mollify us with rhinestone heart pendants, near-diamond rings and gold-filled cuff buttons. That is their opinion of us. I may be a lone soul crying in the wilderness of public apathy—but give me my mittens, my grindstones and my Ramie braid and let who will have their garnet scarf pins.

I blush for Obregon, even in his charity. In announcing a special tax to be levied to provide Mexico with merchant vessels, he declared that everyone earning $5 or over would be expected to contribute, but that "laborers and journalists earning $2 a day or less would be exempt."

Why advertise the blighting fact that journalists, those sage altruists who guide the minds of nations, lack the financial eclat that should be theirs. This is a dark, cruel secret we have buried in our hearts, hidden from a materialistic public which grades its appreciation strictly on price. What have we done to Obregon that he should thus expose our shame?

So both the dancing and the clothes are to undergo reform. On the same day we note that Paris has decreed long skirts and ultra-modest clothing, and that in New York the National Dancing Association has banned the shimmy and other spoonful dancing.

Of course, we all stand gratified and immeasurably relieved. Of course. And yet—and yet. Oh, Paris and New York, won't you please do it gradually! Little by little, lower and lower—you know. This is so sudden. We are out of training. And we are getting used to the legs. And really they weren't half as bad as we thought they were. Somehow you make us feel as if we are getting older, this demand that we behave better at the zenith of our skittishness. Settling down, settling down! It will seem like the last mournful stag party before the wedding. But you are right, oh, of course, you are right.

THE LANCER.

Be Good; Make Good.

A New York reformer complained at a vegetarian banquet about the materialistic quality of the age.

"When I was a boy," he said "and a young fellow would be starting out to seek his fortune his mother would say to him with tears in her eyes:

"'Be good, be good.'

"But the mother of today in the same circumstances slaps the young fellow on the back, blows a cloud of cigarette smoke in his face and says:

"'Whatever you do, make good.'"

EXPECT RECORD AT UNIVERSITY.

Five Hundred and Sixty on Register First Week.

Enrollment of Nine Thousand Hoped for This Year.

Academy Courses Being Given Special Attention.

Five hundred and sixty students have registered for the fall term of the University of Southern California. This is the total for the first week of registration and with five more weeks remaining before the semester opens, the prospect for a record mark is bright. The early weeks of August are always slow, according to Registrar Montgomery, who has been obliged to keep his office force "everlastingly at it" during the last six days.

Comptroller Warren Bovard predicts a bumper year. In a letter received from the president yesterday he learned that the head of the institution has determined to take a complete rest and will leave affairs in the hands of three men—Lester B. Rogers, head of the school of education; Registrar Montgomery, and Comptroller Bovard. Thus far the plan has worked ideally, as each has his own particular line of work and is busy caring for it. Only when a conference is necessary do the three meet to discuss the affairs of the university, where a registration of 9000 is confidently expected.

FUNCTION SEPARATELY.

Each branch of the university is functioning separately. The college of law is to remain in the present location for at least two more years. The new equipment and library and the additional faculty force makes the outlook for the law students more roseate than it has been in any previous year. Another record mark in attendance is expected by C.E. Millikan, assistant to the dean of the law school.

For the benefit of those desiring to register, Comptroller Bovard announces that all departments at the administration building can be reached by calling West 7960, as an exchange board has been installed.

Grouped under the one head the different colleges, however, handle their own affairs when it comes to registration and from the college of dentistry, the college of music, the college of oratory come the same optimistic reports as from the college of commerce and the college of liberal arts. This is to be the banner year, according to the departmental heads, who will be kept busily on the job up to the time when courses are formally opened on September 12.

ACADEMY COURSES.

Special attention is being paid this year to the academy courses for students who wish to prepare for college or university work. A large enrollment is promised. The academy students last year formed a large unit of the university.

Dean Ezra A. Healy of the McClay School of Theology, with his daughter, Winifred, is in San Francisco for a short stay. The faculty of the McClay school has been augmented by a number of well-known educators.

A ten-day summer school course for Sunday-school workers has been opened and will be continued until the 12th inst., with Dean John G. Hill in charge. The work is under the supervision of the board of Sunday-schools of the Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Arlo Ayers Brown, is educational director; H. C. Wilson, business manager, and J. L. Corley, S.T.B., is registrar. It is the plan to equip workers with a knowledge of the Bible and with a definite plan for organization work in the church schools. There is already a large number in attendance and the work being done is of such a character that it appeals to those who wish to enlarge and broaden the work of the Bible school along efficiency lines.

AUTO CLUB SIGNS TO SHOW WAY TO FIGHTS.

ROUTE TO LEGION STADIUM MARKED FOR BENEFIT OF MOTOR CAR OWNERS.

The Southland's fight lovers who plan to drive to Hollywood for the fistic exposition to be held in the stadium which the American Legion has erected at 1634 El Centro avenue, need not worry about how to get there because Adjt. Roy Marshall of Hollywood Post has received word from the Automobile Club of Southern California that it will place signs on all boulevards and streets leading to the 8000-seat stadium, where eight events are to be staged Friday night, the 12th inst.

The advance out-of-town seat sale to motorists and others indicates that the largest fight crowd ever assembled in Southern California since a championship go has been seen, will be on hand when the first bell taps, it is said. Tickets have been sold to fight fans as far distant as Santa Barbara, San Diego and San Bernardino.

Several stage lines will run cars directly to the arena and special busses will carry many to the ring festival. There will be ample free parking space adjacent to the gates, with police protection, post officials say.

The fights start promptly at 8:30 p.m., after a concert by the post's own forty-piece band of ex-service men, members of this branch, who, with other members, are doing this work to raise funds for helping their "buddies" in need.

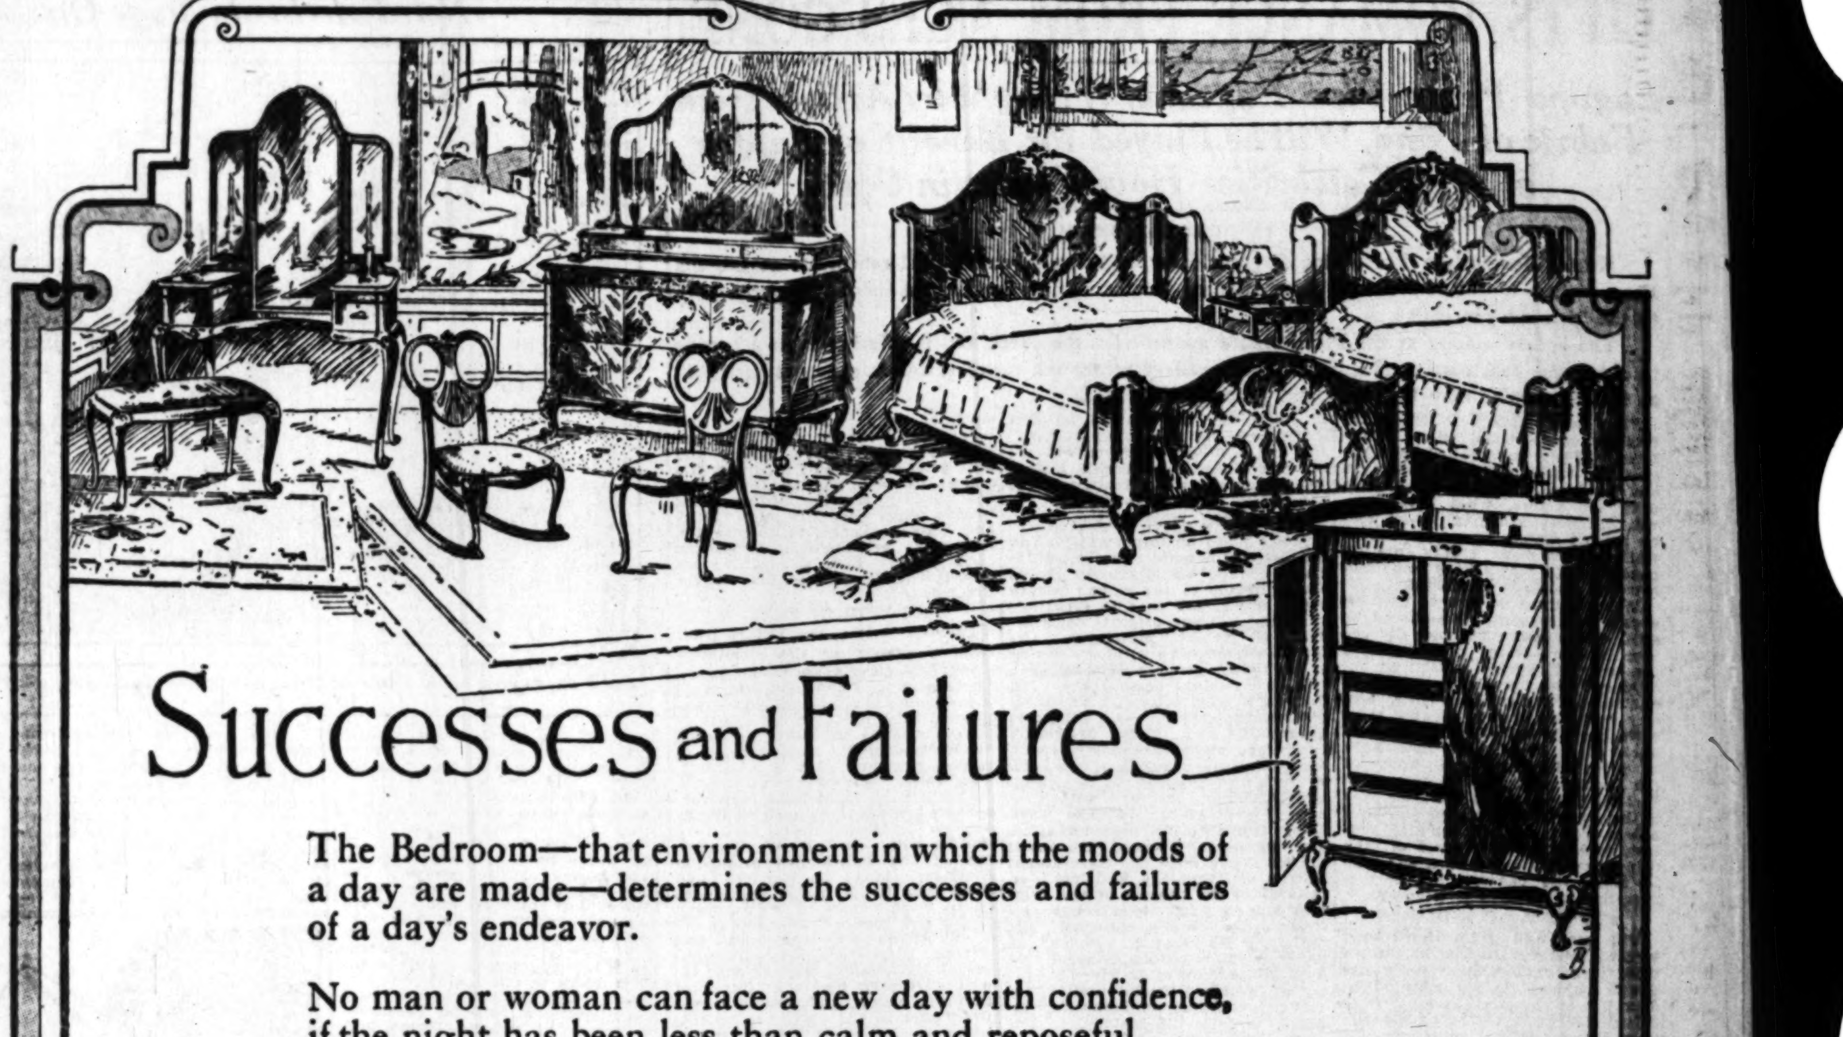
James J. Jeffries will be seen in the ring once more on Friday night, but it will not be with the gloves on. Jim is only going to referee one of the bouts at the fistic carnival of the Legion.

RAID SHOE STORE.

Officers Report Finding Booze in El Monte Shop.

A shoe store, conducted by Tony Braccola at El Monte, turned out to be a small saloon when a descent was made upon the place by the liquor law enforcement agents, it seems. In the place were found five gallons of moonshine and two gallons of wine, say the officers.

Rival merchants at El Monte were worried by the big run of customers Tony had almost every day, but the reasons for the rush are now apparently explained. Braccola is being held.



Successes and Failures

Plan to Have Giant Airship Stop at City.

The ZR-2, one of the greatest aircrafts in the world, probably will visit Los Angeles on its proposed transcontinental flight, it was disclosed yesterday when Mayor Cryer received a telegram from Charles J. Glidden, president of the World's Board of Aeronautical Commissioners, stating that the hugh dirigible will cruise across the United States and will visit the north and south regions of the Pacific Coast, returning to the Atlantic coast via the Gulf route.

A suggestion that Mayor Cryer telegraph to the Navy officials making formal request that the aircraft stop at Los Angeles was contained in the message. The ZR-2 is now en route from England to the United States following its purchase from England, it is understood.

The following message was telegraphed by Mayor Cryer to Secretary of the Navy Denby:

"I understand the Navy Department contemplates sending the ZR-2 on a cross-country trip after its arrival on the Eastern Coast. In behalf of Los Angeles and the great Southwest I make the very urgent request that this city be included in the itinerary."

So Familiar.

On a trans-atlantic voyage between Liverpool and New York, a despondent passenger stood gloomily staring over the rail. Suddenly he straightened up, glared at a certain spot on the ocean and shook his fist at the bridge.

"Somebody's cheating," he growled. "We passed this very same place yesterday."—[American Legion Weekly.

Laguna Peace Pipe Pageant, Wrought by Artists from Fabric of Time, Will be Played for Benefit of Palace of Art; Celebrities Have Places in Cast.

BY BURTON L. SMITH.

Kitshi Manido, the Peace-Pipe Pageant Play, is being given its final rehearsals at Laguna Beach, where it will be produced in an outdoor theater during the August moon, from the 15th to the 20th inst., inclusive.

The artists' colony at the beach stands sponsor for the event and is offering it as a benefit to aid in the construction of a fireproof art gallery where the many priceless canvases produced at this art center may be safely and properly displayed.

"The Beach That is Different" offers an outdoor play that is different. They have called into action the whole community to stage and produce, with a cast of more than 100 actors, what they hope will become an annual event and be ranked among the most worthwhile of the many highly artistic pageant plays which have come into being in Southern California.

When Laguna desired to produce a pageant the script was offered by a San Diego county rancher; the village cobbler wrote and arranged the score of classical music; an actress and director who has charmed audiences on two continents, and who has been cast in leading roles with the Ben Greet players, volunteered to come from New York to direct the play; a member of the British peerage who displays a Victoria Cross won in the Boer War is the stage manager, and scores of others, residents and summer visitors, caught by the bigness of the thing, have put aside work and play to make the pageant not only a success, but an artistic triumph.

STUDENT OF INDIANS.

The book and lyrics have been written by Isaac Jenkinson Frazee, who, for more than thirty years, has devoted himself to the study of Indian life in the Southwest. During this period he has lived on a ranch near Escondido and spent most of his time writing for the higher grade American and foreign magazines. He is the auther of a series of booklets on Indian life and customs which are accepted as authority. The story of Kitshi Manido is the culmination of his efforts. In it, in song and chant, prose and poetry, he tells a story of spiritual life, using Indian characters as a vehicle to carry his thoughts to the audience.

Miss Virginia Calhoun, directing the production and assuming a principal role, has won a series of American and European successes, and is among the best known American stage women. Her big work has been done in Shakespearean productions. She is the author and was the director of the Ramona Play, produced first in Los Angeles in 1902; she was starred by Ben Greet and had the honor of being the first California girl to win big recognition on New York's Broadway, when she was a feature of the comedy success "Bordersides."

MUSIC HAS PART.

Music plays an important part in the pageant drama. The weird Indian chants, semibarbaric tribal songs, hymns of praise and savage songs of war are used to great advantage. All are original compositions of Robert Messinger, the town's cobbler, who will have charge of the twenty-piece orchestra, which will be a feature of the play. Mr. Messinger, who, before giving up his professional career, was a soloist in Damrosch's New York Symphony Orchestra, and with Sousa's Band, and composed a series of melodies so decidedly original as to attract wide attention, and will, no doubt, become famous for pioneer work along this hitherto neglected line. The composer obtained the motif for his music from the Government Bureau of Ethnology, and has been faithful to the themes of the original war dances, love songs and tribal lyrics of the red man. The authentic information provided in the government reports, coupled with a gripping interest in Mr. Frazee's script, furnished the information for many meritorious numbers which include "A Very Old Melody," "The Love Call," "The Thunderbird," "The Sky Will Resound," and "The Warrior's Song."

GOBLIN MUSIC.

"Look," said Mr. Messinger Friday evening as he pointed to a great pile of shoes brought to his shop for soles and patches, "I have no time to mend their shoes. They must get along without while I finish my Indian music. Don't you like this one?" he asked, as he hurried to an old piano in the rear room of his cobbler shop and picked out the air of a weird song he calls his "Goblin Music."

Every angle of the production brings out new interest. F. P. MacPherson, stage manager and boss of mechanical effects—who built the stage and dressing-rooms, who added innumerable original features used in "off-stage" handling of groups and choruses, and who arranged and helped build the seats for 2000 visitors—prefers to be a builder and contractor at Laguna Beach to a title and an estate in Scotland. He likes the friendly greeting of his artist friends when they call him "Mac" and has no desire to assume the role of an artistocrat to which his birth entitles him, and where his closets friends address him as Sir Frederick.

AUTHOR IN PLAY.

Brayton Norton, the Village postmaster, author of the successful novel "Sleeping Acres," who has a gripping serial, "The Devil's Spawn," now running in Sunset magazine, has stopped work on the proof sheets of a new book of his, being published by Bobbs-Merrill, long enough to take a principal part in the play. The editor of Laguna's weekly newspaper, M. S. McLean, was formerly a teacher of English at Northwestern University and is cast in a leading role, while F. W. Cuprien, one of the best-known artists in America, leads the warriors and beats time to an Indian war dance on a most wonderful Indian drum of his own make and design.

And so on down the cast and chorus. Miss Betty Frazee, daughter of the author, who charms all who have seen her, with her most exquisite acting, and who is a central figure in the play, has written verse of real merit. Her sonnet "Beauty" was published in the November, 1920, number of Forum.

As interesting as is the personnel connected with the pageant, it far from being the real center of interest. "The play's the thing!" Absolute originality is the production's keynote and the manner in which the story is handled marks the author as an artist and a poet. The lines are filled with exquisite metaphor, while the lyrics give vent to Mr. Frazee's poetic nature and abound with lines of much grace and charm.

AGE-OLD STORY.

The pageant proper is the age-old story of human existence, divided into three epochs or acts—Youth, Manhood and Old Age. A visional prelude precedes the play and carries the audience back before time began. Here is the author's conception of the creation of the forces of good and evil, which all through life fill the hearts of men. The story is told in the direct style of the untutored Indian. Characters of that race bring forth the author's thoughts in allegorical form.

In the first act, where choruses of child fairies abound, Majella, priestess of Kitshi Manido, through the hiding of a crystal arrow, brings together pretty Wahonia and Little Ab. Love is born. The fairies sing "We Know a Secret" and the act comes to an end as Ab and Wahwonia plight their troth in the duet "Beneath These Oaks of Pamoo." Poppy fairies pose in the closing tableau.

The second act shows Ab grown to manhood and in the camp of his tribe. The chief is on a hunting expedition and Wahwonia, anxious for the safety of her husband, chants "The Dove's Plaint of Loneliness." The war party returns bringing Ab wounded by a poisoned spear. Wahwonia sucks the poison from the wound, saving her husband's life, but losing her eyesight. Kitshi Manido, as a reward for her unselfish service, gives her spiritual sight and she sees a vision of Kitshi Manido's favor for all who follow paths of love and service. She pleads with Ab to lead his people into Kitshi Manido's favor. The warrior tramples his war bonnet under foot and lifting aloft the peace pipe, prays to Kitshi Manido for strength and favor. A tableau is the act's finis.

PEACE PIPE GLORIFIED.

In the third act, Ab and Wahwonia, grown very old, grow reminiscent over the manifold blessings of Kitshi Manido and the ways of peace. Enter a delegation of Ab's craftsmen bearing gifts of love and cheer. Ab blesses them. Then follows one of the most important tableaux of the play, "Glorification of the Peace Pipe." Ab offers prayers of gratitude. Night comes on. Enter Majella bearing a message of love and cheer from Kitshi Manido. The Evening Star Chorus sings a hymn of peace triumphant and with Majella lead old Ab and Wahwonia down, through the "Way of Shadows" into eternal peace. Echoes of the "Peace Hymn" die away in the distance as the final curtain falls.

The play is to be given in one of California's most beautiful natural theaters. The stage settings are in a natural grove of stately eucalyptus, which have been carefully arranged into artistic groups. The sides and rear fall away over sharp hills so that entrances and exits are most successfully made. The curtain is so well painted that the spectator does not realize that a drapery is hanging among the trees until it drops to allow a view of the actors. Lighting effects are most magnificent and realistic. Hundreds of white and colored lamps provide the effects and are under perfect control of a central switchboard. All of the lighting and controls have been installed by John Norton, well known in the local film colony as a technical director for the Fox and Universal studios.

LOANS AGED DRUM.

Dr. George Wharton James of Pasadena, student of Indian life and lore, has taken a great interest in the play and has loaned some valuable Indian drums to be used in the orchestra. One of the instruments, more than 100 years old, was used on many triumphant marches of the California tribesmen. In one of the acts an old mission beam is carried on to the stage by the warriors. The beam is the same one which, in 1798, was brought from Palomar Mountain to the mission of San Luis Rey, a distance of twenty-seven miles. The Indians carried the great timber all the way without ever allowing it to touch the ground.

The costuming has been under the personal direction of Mrs. Frazee, wife of the author of the play, who Mr. Frazee insists has been both the "inspiration and perspiration." Indian wigs are made of shredded yucca and are colored with natural dyes mined on the Frazee ranch. They, like everything in connection with the play, lend atmosphere and are true reproductions of ancient dress and headgear.

Perfect is the word that best describes Laguna's pageant. The play reflects credit upon author, musician and actors.

Hotel Keeper Gets New Trial of Booze Case.

U. S. Dist Judge Bledsoe yesterday handed down a decision, granting V. Acquistapace, a hotel keeper of Guadalupe, who had been convicted of a violation of the Volstead Act, a new trial, but not on the principal ground urged in behalf of the defendant.

The high spot in the appeal was to the effect that when the Volstead Act was passed by Congress the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, prohibiting the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor, had not yet become effective, and therefore Congress had no right or authority to enact the Volstead law. The court held that the objection was not well taken, and that decisions of the United States Supreme Court have determined that point.

But the court granted a new trial on the ground of error in the charge of the presiding judge in the trial of the case, in charging that "it could not be possible under the law for the basement of a hotel to be the place in which liquor could be lawfull held."

It was asserted that the basement where the liquor was found was part of the residence of Acquistapace, and that he had been told by officers of the internal revenue service that he could safely store it there. The court held that it was for the jury to decide whether the basement was a part of the residence where the defendant could lawfully store liquor, or whether it was a part of the hotel, where the storage of the booze is prohibited.

O'Brien Seeks Building for Handling Mail.

The action of the Postoffice Department at Washington, in refusing to approve the lease of what is known as the Bishop lot at Eighth and Alameda streets, for the erection of a postoffice building, where all mail was to be received and dispatched, has left Postmaster O'Brien in a quandary as to how to proceed further. He is requested to find another place suitable for the purpose, but its whereabouts is stumping not only the postmaster but the postoffice inspectors, who agreed on the Bishop lot after a complete survey of the city had been made.

Under the agreement with the owners of the property, containing about three acres and allowing for more than 200,000 feet of floor space, the owners were to erect a two-story structure covering almost the entire lot, under a lease running twenty years, for which the government was to pay $98,000 a year rental. The contract further provided that the government had only to supply furniture for the building, light, water and other incidental expenses being borne by the owners.

It was intended to move the entire mail receiving and dispatching department from the Federal Building to the new structure. It is convenient to the railways, and a spur track already runs into the acreage. Under the proposed arrangement the present quarters in the Federal Building would have been utilized only as the financial headquarters of the local postoffice establishment. vide for the holiday mail. Last year

Assistant Postmaster Foster is at his wit's ends to know how to pro- the government rented the county garage on New High street, as headquarters for the thousands of tons of Christmas mail but the building is now occupied by the county, and it cannot be secured. The government paid $500 a month for two months for the use of the building.

cals Honored at Presidio Training Camp.

Hundred and Fifty from This City Attend.

Gen. Wright Lauds Work of the Students.

hundred and fifty of the students of the Citizens' Military Camp, which closed yesterday at the Presidio at San Francisco, were from Los Angeles, according to Maj. A. R. Emery, personnel adjutant of the training camp. These 150 men, comprising less than 25 per cent of the personnel of the camp, held more than 75 per cent of the important positions in the camp, added Maj. Emery.

of the Los Angeles students and the positions they held are as follows:

Miller, student-colonel, 17 years old; Edward Lynch, student-adjutant, 19 years old; Gordon P. student-commander of the Battalion; Lloyd Chatterton, commander of the Second, and Harold Roberts of High School, drum major of the student band.

entire personnel was reviewed on the main parade grounds Presidio by Maj.-Gen. William Wright, commanding general of the Ninth Corps Area of the States Army. The students under the leadership of Los young men, officers and instructors of the camp viewing the from the side lines.

With Maj.-Gen. Wright were Col. Chief of Staff of the Corps Area; Col. E. W. Clark, commanding officer of the training camp; Student-Colonel Miller and Student-Adjutant Lynch.

PRAISES WORK.

Enthusiastic approval of the work being done at the camp was voiced by Gen. Wright following the inspection and review. He said:

"The review was splendid. I consider the showing made by these young men is remarkable, in view of the fact that the military experience of most of them is limited to that during their two weeks' stay at the training camp.

"The work being done by the Citizens' Military Training Camp is of prime importance to the nation. The men being trained this year will be fitted to join the National Guard or organized reserves. We will then have so many more stalwart young men to rely upon in case of an emergency."

Co. D and E of the Second Battalion were composed almost entirely of Los Angeles young men. The Battalion returned on July from the rifle ranges at Fort across the bay, where it spent a week in range practice.

GIVEN TRAINING.

practice, shelter-tent pitching, practice, and target were only a few of the military which the students mastered. The sanitary conditions of the camp were ideal, according to Col. Clark. A rigid weekly inspection was made of the barracks and kitchens.

In spite of the intensive training course plenty of time was allowed the students for recreation. A special entertainment was arranged every evening at the Presidio Y.M.C.A. for the members of the camp.

HORSE :: IS :: ALMOST :: HUMAN.

Nip Always on Job Hauling Freight.

Nip Ready for Work.

BY GEORGIA ROSE.

NIP'S working day begins at 7 a.m. and ends at 8 p.m., with an hour or so for lunch and recreation. I do not know his weekly wage, but whatever it is, it should be more.

"I hear you have a horse down here that's almost human," I ventured to one of the men at the Salt Lake freight depot. "You're darn right we have," he answered. Followed by introduction to Nip.

It is almost impossible to photograph him, because of his unchangeable idea that the kodak must have something edible in it, which he intends to have. Every one gives him candy or sugar and consequently he expects it.

The hoop-like contraption he wears is made to snap on to the trucks. He knows how to back and hitch himself. A load of trunks is taken to a certain place to be unloaded, a truck of melons or something else perishable is hauled to quite a different car. It is unnecessary for anyone to tell this wise horse where to go—he knows the kind of a load he has. He hustles down the platform, backs up to the proper car, where one of the boys will unclasp the harness. Then back he goes into the freight depot, backs up and runs out another one. No loafing on the job here.

MEETS TRAIN.

The engineer on one of the trains always has candy in his pocket for Nip, and when this train pulls in it behooves some one to see that Nip is not attached to a truck. When that train pulls in he canters down the platform in violation of all traffic rules. He knows the exact spot at which that engine stops, and he's going to be there.

The Salt Lake depot is on the Los Angeles River. It occurred to some one that the bed of the stream, where there is grass and water, might prove an attractive spot for Nip to spend his noon hour. At no little trouble a path was leveled so that he might easily make the descent. He unmistakably enjoyed it—as long as some one was down there for company. But when his friends went back up the path, he followed closely behind. He's a gregarious sort of a fellow, this peaceful solitude does not appeal to him. He is like a big, overgrown, playful dog.

OBEYS SIGNAL.

When he is pulling a truck down the platform and some man calls out and waves his arm to the right, Nip pulls over in that direction as far as he can, or vice versa. When the hands of the clock are nearing 8, Nip begins to get restless. He knows what time it is, and he does not take at all kindly to the idea of working after hours.

A fond parent enumerating the accomplishments, or enthusing over the charming ways of his infant prodigy has nothing on these men. They love that black horse, he has been with them eight years and he is lovable. As I stood talking to him and rubbing his nose, he seemed to understand what I said.

WILL SPEED GUN PROGRAM.

Mechanical Engineers' Society to Help the Nation in Better-Ordnance Program.

To speed the government's post-war program for ordnance development, the ordnance division of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers is planning to work with the War Department at close range. The division, through its executive committee, has voted to place the resources of the division at the disposal of the Ordnance Department in the solution of engineering and production problems.

A joint meeting, it was announced yesterday, will be held on October 7 between the American Society of Mechanical Engineers the Society of Aeronautical Engineers and the Army Ordnance Association at the Aberdeen Proving Grounds. The ordnance and the aeronautic division of the society will take part in the meeting. Orville H. Wright and others well known in air navigation are members of the society's aeronautic division.

Questions vitally affecting the future of American ordanace will be discussed at the October meeting which will attract leading army officers and engineers from all over the country.

Maj. C. F. Jenks, Ordnance Department, U.S.A., in a survey made for the society of progress in ordnance since the armistice, asserts that the American Army gun of the future will be of greater range and mobility. He tells of research work now under way at the Watertown arsenal and of the lessons learned by American Army heads from the war. An enormous field must be covered in the development of this country's ordnance plans, he declared. The present tendency, he says, is toward more powerful guns for sea-coast defense. The elimination of the horse, the perfection of the gas engine and the development of the automobile are important factors in American artillery progress, Maj. Jenks declared.

DIVISION FORMED.

The American Society of Mechanical Engineers, as a further step in its general policy of co-operating with government agencies in engineering tasks, authorized the formation of an ordnance division so that the nation's engineers might be brought into intimate contact with the Army. The division, formed with the co-operation of Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, U.S.A., is a permanent unit of the society's elaborate system of professional divisions having to do with a wide range of economic and technical problems.

Under the chairmanship of Waldo H. Marshall of the T. A. Gillespie company, the executive committee of the division is carrying out plans which originated with engineers and ordnance men in 1918 as a result of the active participation in the government's ordnance program during the war.

"All wars have stimulated the development of the implements of warfare and especially during the past war have the minds of engineers been fertile," asserted Maj. Jenks, who is a member of the society. "Of the problems arising from the war none is more important or more interesting than the development of artillery materials.

SEEK BETTER GUNS.

"After the armistice the sentiment of our artillerymen was unanimously in favor of pieces of greater range, greater elevation, and greater mobility. This sentiment found expression in the reports of the various service boards and especially in that of the Westervelt board appointed by the War Department, Dec. 11, 1918. The report of this board was approved by the Chief of Staff on May 23, 1919, and its recommendations have become the fundamental specifications for mobile artillery material.

"The efforts of the ordnance engineer since the war have been devoted mostly to the development of design under the Westervelt board program, under which the same calibers of pieces as used during the war will be developed. But they will have greater range, greater flexibility of mount and greater mobility.

"The longer range will be attained partly through ammunition development, but also by increase in the length and muzzle velocity of the gun. As mobility requires lightness, the weight of the gun must be reduced as much as possible. To secure this, three lines of development are being followed: First, by using material of higher physical qualities; second, by wire-wrapping the tube, and third, by the 'autofrettage' process.

"The present tendency is toward more powerful guns for sea-coast defense. Some gain in power may be obtained by increasing the length and muzzle velocity, but the logical step is an increase in caliber. If economy is to be exercised in the construction of fortifications, they should be armed with guns which are at least two decades ahead of naval armament in development."

GREAT GUESSING CONTEST.

The Times has the following from W. J. Stadelman of Bakersfield. He calls it "The City Questionnaire—Not Edison's." You won't get any jobs by answering these queries correctly—in fact, you would be likely to get something else if you asked them in San Francisco—but if you know the answers you have the clew not only to a good job, but to a desirable place of abode for the rest of your life. No contestant is allowed more than three guesses on any one question:

What city is the fastest growing in the United States?

What city is the best advertised, next to the city of Paris?

What city is the largest on the Pacific Coast?

What city is in the richest county horticulturally and agriculturally in the world?

What city is in the one white spot industrially?

What city can you live in the best for the least?

What city offers the greatest diversion of amusement and ?

What city advanced from twenty-sixth to ninth place as a manufacturing city since 1916?

What city is the fifth in the manufacture of women's wearing ?

What city is the center of the greatest fish-canning industry in the United States?

What city is the largest manufacturer of special-built furniture?

What city is the largest manufacturer of special-built automobiles?

What city is the largest producer of motion pictures?

What city is in the county that has 1 per cent of the total of the United States?

What city has the largest savings account per capita in the ?

What city is the best bonded? Revenue producing?

What city has ample water and hydroelectric power plants and for more?

What city offers the best business opportunity on account of interests?

What city has the best all-year-around climate?

What city can you lie about and still tell the truth?

HUGE WARSHIP SOON ON DUTY.

U.S.S. California Will Get Commission Wednesday.

Ceremony at Mare Island to be Open to Public.

Vessel to Go in Dry Dock Before Active Service.

The U.S.S. California which has been under construction at the Mare Island Navy Yard, will be placed in commission at 12:45 p.m. next Wednesday.

The commission will take place at the Mare Island yard. No special invitations to the ceremony will be issued, but the public is invited to visit Mare Island from noon until 4:30 p.m. on Wednesday.

No special passes will be required to get in the navy yard and visitors will be transported by the civilian ferry from the Georgia-street dock in Vallejo to the navy-yard landing. This ferry will leave at fifteen minute intervals from noon until 4:30 p.m.

Pedestrians will be allowed to cross the causeway at the northern end of the island during the same time and a limited number of machines will be allowed to cross the causeway and parking space will be provided in the navy yard.

No special passes will be required for these machines but permits will be issued by the sentries at the causeway.

ONE RESTRICTION.

The navy yard as a whole cannot be thrown open to visitors on this date and all persons are requested to refrain from wandering about the yard except in the immediate vicinity of the U.S.S. California.

On account of the limited deck space on board the ship, only personal guests of the commandant of the navy yard and the captain of the California will be permitted on board during the commissioning ceremonies, but as the ship is alongside the dock, ample space in the immediate vicinity will be available for visitors.

Commissioning ceremonies will be brief, consisting of the reading by the commandant of the yard, Capt. E. L. Beach, U.S.N., of the orders from the Navy Department authorizing the commissioning of the vessel. This will be followed by hoisting the national ensign and the commission pennant and the reading by Capt. H. J. Ziegemeier, U.S.N., of his orders to command the U.S.S. California. Following the reading of the captain's orders, the watch will be set and the regular ship's routine started.

AFTERNOON PROGRAM.

The time between 1 and 2 p.m. will be utilized by the ship's company in stowing away their personal effects, and during this time the navy yard cafeteria which is close by, will be thrown open to visitors.

From 2 to 4 p.m. the California will receive visitors but, on account of the work of getting the crew settled aboard, it will be necessary to clear the ship of visitors at 4 p. m.

On the 20th inst. the California will leave Mare Island for two weeks in the Hunter's Point dry dock, San Francisco. After going out of the dry dock, the ship will lie for about one week in San Francisco Harbor, when visitors will again be received.

ONE WOMAN IN LIST.

Thirty-four More Are Approved for Vocational Training.

The name of one woman, Mrs. Sara Van Dyke, appears in a list of thirty-four local citizens who were disabled in the World War and who have been approved by the Federal Board for Vocational Education for training under the Rehabilitation Act. Kenyon J. Scudder, local supervisor, asks that those named call at the local office of the board, 360 Wilcox Building, Second and Spring streets, to make arrangements for entering upon their training, during which time they will receive $100 or more per month from the government to pay their living expenses. The list follows:

William Lloyd Bagwell, Harry Daniel Bales, Leonard Martin Barrett, Tina William Beck, Frank M. Binns, Otis E. Blair, Claire B. Brockett, Henry Bryan, Alan Arthur Clements, Ray I. Cross, Charles Wilson Crutcher, Anthony Joseph Daniels, Charles Pierce Decrevel, George T. Despart, Walter H. Grant, Frank Harrison Hardacre, Arthur B. Herrell, James Hornsby, Paul J. Robinson, George Genge Stabnau, John Oscar Sundquist, Paul R. Thanasse, Frank J. Turri, Mrs. Sara Van Dyke and Dale Eldon Wood.

CIVIL SERVICE QUIZ.

Examinations Open to Men and Women to be Held Soon.

The U. S. Civil Service Commission announces the following examinations, open to both men and women, to be held at an early date: Junior engineer, grade 1 (civil electrical, mechanical and structural,) $1560 to $1800 per annum; scientific assistant, $1320 to $1620; production engineer, $9.76 per day; die and tool maker, $6.25; marine engineer (motor,) $140 a month; director, Southern Forest Experiment Station, $3840 per annum; farmer (Indian service,) $600 to $900; reconstruction aide, $720 to $960 and quarters; special instructor in occupational theraphy, $1200 to $3500; instrument makers, $1400 to $2500.

Application blanks and further information can be obtained from the local secretary, 618 Federal Building.

COURTS TO CLOSE.

Federal District Judges Plan No Regular Session This Week.

There will be no regular court this week in either department at the Federal Building. U. S. District Judge Trippet will be in his chambers tomorrow and Tuesday to attend to pressing matters if they should be presented. U. S. District Judge Bledsoe will be working all week on submitted cases.

It is not the intention of either judge to hold court during the entire month of August.

JAPAN TO TEST NAVY'S POWERS.

Imperial Government, by Largest Maneuvers in Its History, to Determine Ability to Guard Pacific Coast and Sea of Japan Against Invaders.

BY HECTOR C. BYWATER,
Author of "Sea Power in the Pacific."

LONDON, July 20.—During the past twelve months a number of Japanese politicians, headed by Mr. Ozaki—who was recently expelled from the Nationalist Kensei-Kai party on account of his antinavy propaganda—have been waging a vigorous campaign for the reduction of expenditure on naval armaments. This movement is receiving so much popular support that the imperial government has found it expedient to enjoin strict economy on all departments of the navy.

In May last Admiral Baron Kato, the Minister of Marine, summoned all the senior officers of the fleets and naval stations to Tokio for a conference on this question. As a result of this meeting it has been decided to scrap many old ships, to reduce the number of ships in full commission and to take such other measures as will curtail expenditure without reducing the fleet's readiness for war. This new policy has not been adopted a moment too soon, for even the docile Japanese masses are beginning to revolt against naval and military budgets which between them absorb no less than 45 per cent of the entire revenue.

On the other hand the government has refused point blank to modify the "eight-eight" shipbuilding program, which is really responsible for the abnormal inflation of the navy estimates nor is it willing to abandon the scheme of intensive sea training which has been in force since 1918.

THIS YEAR'S MANEUVERS.

This scheme is proving very costly, because it involves the maintenance in full commission of practically all serviceable ships, the consumption of huge quantities of fuel, stores, etc., and the holding of grand maneuvers at least once a year. Hard on the heels of Admiral Kato's economy conference comes the news that this year's autumn maneuvers are being planned on an unusually large scale, and will surpass in scope those of October, 1919, which were the most extensive peace exercises that the Japanese navy had ever carried out.

Before proceeding to describe the forthcoming maneuvers, a few remarks on Japanese naval organization will not be out of place. At the present time no other navy in the world is keeping such a large proportion of its vessels in active commission. It is true that the ships of the United States Navy nominally on this footing make an imposing list, but it is common knowledge that many of them have reduced complements and would not be available for some weeks, if not months, in case of emergency.

The Japanese system is very different. Thanks to an abundant supply of officers and men, and a very large body of reserves, no difficulty is experienced in finding a complete crew for every ship that retains a fraction of fighting value. On May 1, 1921, there were approximately 3900 line officers, including engineers, who do not, strictly speaking, enjoy "line" status in the Japanese navy. This figure is only about 1200 less than that of the United States Navy, which has nearly three times as many ships to man. The disparity is greater in the case of enlisted men, of whom Japan now has 75,000 and is budgeting for 80,000 two years hence. In short, she has enough trained officers and men to furnish a full-size war crew to every battle-worthy ship she possesses, with a margin over to provide complements for every new vessel as it leaves the building yard. As for reservists, she has 413,000 officers and men in the first line reserve, all of whom have to put in a minimum of 100 days of training in the navy during the seven years they remain in that category.

FOR SEA TRAINING.

Observers have often been puzzled by the fact that Japan keeps on her navy list a number of old ships which have practically no fighting value left and in any other country would be deemed ripe for the junk heap. The explanation is simple. These obsolete craft are needed as training schools for the men who are later to take over the superdreadnaughts, high-speed cruisers, destroyers and submarines which will reinforce the fleet in due course. If they were scrapped thousands of officers and men would have to do their training ashore and the Japanese hold that the sailor should learn his job afloat.

This year's maneuvers are to begin early in September and continue to the end of that month. The principal one will be the Japan Sea, but certain of the operations will extend to the open waters of the Pacific. Ever since Rodjestvensky's armada was annihilated at Tsushima in 1905 the Sea of Japan has been a Nipponese preserve in fact, no less than in name. Japanese supremacy in that area is unchallenged and unchallengeable, for each of the narrow straits giving access from the Pacific is under her control and so heavily fortified that none may pass without her warrant. A glance at the map reveals the important bearing which this strategic control of the Sea of Japan exercises on Japanese policy on the mainland. With her flank thus secured Japan need fear no serious opposition to her aims in China or Siberia. The development of submarines, aircraft, torpedoes and mines has strengthened her hold on the Sea of Japan by rendering the approaches virtually impregnable to attack.

The leading role in the maneuvers has been assigned to the first and second fleets, based, respectively, on Yogosuka and Kure, but the third fleet, with its headquarters at Sacebo, will also take part in the program. Excluding minor craft and auxiliaries, upward of forty large ships will participate, besides several destroyer and submarine flotillas and airplane squadrons. Twelve of these ships will be dreadnoughts and battle cruisers, the remainder comprising older armored ships and scout cruisers.

BIGGEST SHIP.

The first fleet is headed by the Nagato, which, with her displacement of 33,800 tons and main battery of eight 16-inch guns, is for the time being the largest battleship in the world. She is more than 1000 tons heavier than the United States steamship Colorado, similarly armed, and was put into commission last January as flagship of Admiral Tochinai, commanding the first fleet. A sister ship, the Mutsu, now completing at Yokosuka, is expected to begin her trials shortly, but it is improbable that she will be ready in time for the maneuvers. Other battleships in the first fleet are the Ise, Hiuga, Yamashiro and Fuso, which corresponds in size and power to the United States steamships New Mexico class, and the older dreadnaught Settsu, armed with 12-inch guns. This latter ship will be transferred to the third fleet when the Mutsu joints up. The six batteships are organized in two divisions, each under a flag officer.

Attached to the first fleet is a squadron of fast light cruisers: Kuma, Tama, Oh-i and Kitakami, all of 5500 tons, a speed of thirty-three knots and a heavy armament of rapid-fire guns. These are among the fastest cruisers afloat, and at least four others are under construction. In addition, Japan has begun or authorized thirteen scout cruisers of a larger and more powerful type, some of which are expected to mount eight-inch guns. The first fleet is accompanied by two destroyer flotillas with a total of twenty boats, none more than five years old, and one flotilla of submarines, numbering eight large boats. There is also the aircraft carrier Wakamiya, a converted transport, which is serving as a seaplane mother ship pending the completion of the Hosho, a large, fast vessel specially designed for this work.

FASTER FLEET.

The second fleet, based at Kure, is organized on similar lines, but is a faster and more mobile force. Its leading ships are the four sister battle cruisers, Kongo, Hi-Yei, Haruna and Kirishima, built in 1913-1915. Although not of the latest type these are still very formidable ships, displacing 27,500 tons and capable of steaming at twenty-seven and a half knots. Their main battery is eight fourteen-inch guns. The Japanese regard these vessels as the most important units of the fleet because they are the only battle cruisers in the Pacific, and in that respect will remain unique till the U.S.S. Constellation and her sisters come into service two or three years hence. Working with the second fleet battle cruisers are the fast scouts Tatsuta and Tenryu, of thirty-two knots speed, and Hirado and Yahagi of twenty-seven knots. The second fleet has its proper complement of destroyers, viz., sixteen first and second-class boats and a submarine flotilla, but no aircraft carrier. Several of the larger ships, however, carry small single seater scouting planes on platforms over the turrets.

Admiral Shimamura

The Third Fleet, which is to take part in the closing stage of the maneuvers, is numerically the largest formation. Among its armored ships are the "semidreadnaughts" Aki and Satsuma; the Katori and Kashima, which were detailed to convey the Crown Prince to Europe; the big armored cruisers Kurama, Ibuki and Ikoma, and three older battleships. The only modern scouts in this fleet are the Chikuma and Tone and its torpedo craft and submarines are older than those attached to the First and Second fleets. In case of war the Third Fleet would be held in reserve as a coast-defense force, though some of its best ships probably would be promoted to the first line.

MANEUVER PROGRAM.

On the eve of the maneuvers the First and Second fleets will rendezvous at Saiki Bay, in the Bungo Strait, between the islands of Kyushu and Shikoku. Here Admiral Tochinai will assume command of the whole force and take it to sea for a week of strenuous drill. The program for this opening week includes high-speed steam trials, tactical exercises, gunnery practice and destroyer and submarine attacks.

The second phase will begin on or about September 12, when the force will be split into two fleets—one, the strongest representing the Japanese Battle Fleet, and the other an "enemy force" bent on breaking its way into the Sea of Japan through the Chosen and Tsushima Straits, between Japan and Korea. During this stage of the maneuvers an officer of the Naval Staff will be present on board each flagship, while Admiral Shimamura, Chief of the Naval Staff, may also embark on Admiral Tochinai's flagship to watch the proceedings.

It goes without saying that details of the problems of strategy and tactics to be worked out on this occasion are shrouded in secrecy, but the fleet movements already announced help to indicate the main idea, which is to determine whether the Japanese navy is competent to perform the dual function of guarding the eastern (Pacific) coast from attack and simultaneously holding the approaches to the Sea of Japan against enemy invaders. Chosen and Tsushima Straits are to be heavily patrolled, for attempts will be made by submarines of the "enemy" fleet to slip through the cordon and work havoc among shipping in the Sea of Japan. Midway in the straits stand the islands of Tsushima and Iki, both of which are fortified; but on either side is a channel from thirty to forty miles wide, which it would be difficult to render submarine proof, especially as the depth of water is considerable.

AVIATION PROGRAM.

Practically the whole of the aviation resources of the Japanese navy are to be mobilized for the coming maneuvers. The flying corps at Yokosuka, Kure and Sasebo are expected to send a total of eighty machines, many of which will be employed in patrolling the Tsushima Strait and in anti-submarine duties.

Last year the navy machines carried out a series of attacks on the coast towns; as much, perhaps, to impress public opinion as for any other purpose. Be this as it may, the sight of big squadrons of bombing machines swooping down on the great seaports, and dropping scores of india rubber "bombs" on the most densely populated quarters, was not without effect. It produced a loud outcry in the press for the immediate expansion of the flying service and there is every reason to believe that the government is shortly to introduce a big program of aviation both for the navy and the army.

Nor was this the only direction in which former naval maneuvers have subserved the purposes of propaganda. Prior to 1919 the Imperial Diet had resisted the government's proposals for modernizing the fortifications along the coast. In that year, however, the maneuvers were held in the vicinity of Sagami Bay, south of Tokio, and the official report stated that the coast defenses had proved to be too weak to resist the approach of the "enemy" fleet.

"In these circumstances," it added, "the safety of the capital itself, to say nothing of that of other large cities on the seaboard, cannot be guaranteed unless the outlying forts are reconstructed and rearmed with modern artillery."

The hint was not wasted. Money was speedily voted for improving the coast defenses and the work has gone on so rapidly that the inhabitants of Kobe and Osaka now complain of the noise and concussion produced by the firing of the new forts.

The approaches to Tokio Bay, including the islands to the south of that point, have also been armed with high-powered ordnance. By degrees the whole of the Japanese coast defense will be reorganized on the latest principles. The work will cost a huge sum, but apparently a few millions more or less make very little difference in view of the formidable total which Japanese expenditure on armaments has already reached.

BEACH CITY ROMANCE LAND.

Palisades Town Delightful All-Year Mecca for Pleasure Seekers.

"Romance enters into the history of California from the very beginning," says the writer of the Century History of Santa Monica.

Romance not only has entered into the beginnings of the history of this bay district, but cannot die amid the surroundings of Santa Monica, "where the mountains meet the sea."

Santa Monica was founded in 1886. It received its charter as a city in 1907. While looking backward to the time when the ships of Cabrillo first cut the waters that lap the shores of the bay district, almost three centuries ago, it would seem that the progress of this region has been very slow. But quite to the contrary. These were but excursions of an explorative nature, and settlement and building up only took place within the last half century.

It will be noted that development and growth have been very rapid.

The population three years after the charter was granted the city of Santa Monica, and only a decade ago, was only 7000. In 1920 the census showed a residential population of 15,265, and the present population is more than 19,000, indicating a growth of over 100 per cent. Building permits from January 1 to the present date are approximately $1,500,000. There has been a growth of nearly 700 persons a month for the last six months.

MERGER AFFECTED.

A short time ago Ocean Park and Santa Monica became one municipality. The contrast between the interests of these two sections of this greater Santa Monica makes this an ideally arranged beach city.

The restricted residence districts of the Santa Monica area afford for permanent residents, ideal home sites. Here the Pacific rolls at the very front door and as a background, standing like eternal sentinels, are the mountains.

This portion of the city is called conservative. It is not, if by that term one means slow or nonprogressive. It is the residential section of a great and rapidly growing greater city and is but a few blocks from the amusement center known as Ocean Park.

Here the longest pier of the United States stretches out into the sea, and is covered and surrounded by every desirable concession that may contribute to the pleasure of visitors. At this, the Pickering pleasure pier, the sands are covered with happy bathers every day of the season, and this sand stretches northward for miles, to the municipal pier, bath-houses, along the wonderful palisades and up to the mouth of Topanga Canyon. Bathers, fishermen, both for sport and for profit, those who wish to drive on the coast drive, lollers upon the sand who seek rest and recuperation may be counted by the multiplied thousands every day, while Sundays and holidays bring a congestion that outnumbers Atlantic City or any other beach in this country.

HUMAN APPEAL WINS.

The contribution of Santa Monica-Ocean Park to the growth of Southern California has the human appeal that is calculated to take a man out of the humdrum and make him fit for the tasks of everyday life. It is for this that thousands come from the congested and overheated regions of the East. One may look up at the mountains, or he may drive up into them; he may look over the sea to the Catalinas, or, in a short cruise, he may sail out to them. He may wade out into surf, or content himself to lie upon the sand and watch bathing girls make a rainbow of color, as they pass in their vari-colored costumes. Always he is comfortable, for the mean temperature of the summer is barely temperate, the air of the winter is only cool. The year-round Santa Monica-Ocean Park is delightful. From the most vigorous sort of fun, such as the rides on the piers, through the whole gamut of entertainment, high-class shows, dancing, the best of music, and everything you may wish is afforded the visitor to this beach.

The register of the Chamber of Commerce shows that every year there come to this beach persons from every country in the world.

Conner's Bond is Slashed by Judge Bledsoe.

U. S. District Judge Bledsoe made an order yesterday reducing from $15,000 to $5000 the bond of W. J. Conner, found guilty of aiding in the misapplication of the funds of the National Bank and Trust Company of Pasadena.

The court took this action because of the uncertainty as to whether Conner's conviction will stand finally on the appeal to be taken if Judge Bledsoe refuses the request for a vacation of the pending judgment. The court thought Conner ought to be given a chance under the circumstances, to get out of the County Jail, where he has been confined since his arrest last winter. It is said that Conner will be able to furnish the bond tomorrow.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the moving picture, "Roman Candles," the exploitation of which caused Conner and Edward J. Pyle, former vice-president of the bank, trouble, that culminated in the arrest of both, and the acquittal of Mr. Pyle.

There is no indication as to when Judge Bledsoe will pass on the motion to vacate the judgment. There seem to be no cases "standing on all fours" (as the attorneys put it) covering the specific instance and deciding whether a defendant found guilty of aiding a co-defendant with committing an illegal act, of which the co-defendant is acquitted, can be held for punishment. It is a hair-splitting question, and will be given proper consideration by the court.

CAMPER IS FINED.

OH BOY! IT'S A GREAT LIFE.

Tom Gallery and Zasu Pitts Register Joy.

Like Screen Micawbers, This Optimistic Couple.

And Mrs. Gallery is Cuisine Artist, Too.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

"Oh, Tom! I've got something awfully nice for dinner!"

Tom Gallery was playing host in perfectly dignified fashion, despite his round, ruddy face and generally boyish make-up, while Zasu Pitts dorothy-gished out of the kitchen and threw two floury arms around his neck.

It's the truth. Zasu Pitts, picture star, had really cooked the dinner herself. And she didn't pretend she did it because it was her cook's night out, either. She did it because she didn't happen to have an engagement at the time, and because she loves cooking for Tom.

It was really a wonderful dinner, sweetened quite inexpressibly by love's young dream and spiced by the pep of the wedded pair's youth and the fun they get out of life.

Tom waved his arms about to indicate the home they're so fond of.

"All paid for but the phonograph!" he grinned.

"And," he blushed a bit sheepishly, "we had to pay cash for the bedroom set!"

Zasu sews nicely, too. She's hemmed whole sets of napkins and tablecloths with her own fair hands.

"I like 'em to say," she acknowledged shyly and a bit wistfully, too, "'that's Tom's wife.' Honestly, that's all that matters But we're going on working, aren't we, Tom, until we get a lot of money? Then I'm going to quit and just keep house."

It's all very romantic, the way they met, these young screen Micawbers. Tom Gallery, just out of the Army, had never been on either stage or screen.

One day he happened over at Brentwood Studios, where Zasu Pitts was making a picture under direction of Henry Kolker. Zasu looked over at Tom, and Tom looked at Zasu. Somebody introduced them.

Kolker liked Tom so well, not to mention the way Zasu liked him, that he was given a bit to play. In the next picture he was made leading man. The name of that picture was "Bright Skies."

"I'll say it was 'Bright Skies!'" Tom laughed, in telling about it.

He admits he fell in love with Zasu right away. Maybe the heavenly way they danced together had something to do with it. But his suit met with parental objections.

So they took things into their own hands and ran away to Santa Ana one bright morning and were married. Then they came straight home to set up housekeeping in a love of a place, nestled in one of those young canyons in the Hollywood hills, where you're right out in the fresh country, though only two blocks from the bright lights.

A pair of young Micawbers they were, "waiting for something to turn up." They didn't have to wait long either, that is, only a few months.

Suddenly—and this not long ago—something very good indeed turned up. They have their own company now and have just finished their first picture, called "Peter-Jane," in which Zasu Pitts plays the tomboy heroine, and Tom Gallery the handsome hero. It was directed by John McDermott, who, you remember, co-directed with Marshal Neilan in "Dinty."

And now Zasu and Tom are preparing to start work on their next picture, working at the Vidor studios.

It had looked for a while as if Miss Pitts were going to be the big star of the family. But Tom decided he wouldn't be merely Mr. Zasu Pitts, so he stepped forth to the Neilan studios, and captured a leading part in "Dinty."

And by the way, Tom's father never saw the picture all the way through. He always walks out when Tom dies!

Zasu had her own company when the two were married, but something went wrong. Then she received an offer in another company up north, but she refused. The young pair had decided to cast their fortunes together.

Zasu would on no account "desert Mr. Micawber." She stayed at home quietly, cooking and mending for her young husband, while Tom went forth and procured engagements, playing the juvenile leads in the Vitagraph feature, "The Son of Wallingford," and others.

"The first picture I made, away from Zasu, was with Metro," ex-

PRERELEASE HERE FOR BALZAC'S FILM.

"The Conquering Power," Rex Ingram's production, is to have a national prerelease showing at the Mission Theater starting Wednesday. It follows the director's present offering, "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse."

"The Conquering Power" is founded on Balzac's "Eugenie Grandet." The film cast is headed by the same people who appeared in "The Four Horsemen." Alice Terry essays the role of the little country girl whose heart is bowed down by wealth, and Rudolph Valentino is her youthful lover. Dr. Carlos De Mandil and C. Sharpe Minor will add fitting musical numbers.

CANNERY GOES IN EXPLOSION.

Spectacular Finish for New England Plant.

Cleric and Companion Have Narrow Escape.

Thrills Are Many in Film Version of "Rosary."

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

"Run, run for your life."

Two men dashed across an open space amid the blinding glare of electric arcs. A moment later there was a dull detonation—a flare and a flame—a burst of smoke and then a crash of timbers. The roof of the long, low structure from which the men had emerged, shook and fell asunder, while sparks and vapor in a great whirlwind, filled the air, and cries of excitement joined in disturbing the stillness of the night.

With that the director's whistle blew, the camera stopped grinding and in a minute only a little wreath of fire on some rafters, told of the catastrophe which had just been wrought for the climax of "The Rosary." Of course, the building was a shambles, but the fireworks were all properly cued to exit at the right moment.

"It's good they made it fast," some one remarked, as we watched the two men who had so narrowly escaped the catastrophe, where they conversed with Director Jerome Storm. They, too, evidently were quite satisfied with the fact that they had successfully come through the adventure. One of them, I noted, was Lewis Stone, in the sedate garb of the cleric, the other, Robert Gordon, who I learned came West especially for this picture.

The explosion which had just occurred was supposed to be in a fish cannery on the New England coast, and promised to supply a good, melodramatic thrill for all who might see it on the screen, because the hero of the picture, namely Mr. Gordon, had been held on the telephone by the wily villain, played by Wallace Beery, in the hope that he might be present at his own funeral. But, of course, like most villainish schemes, this didn't work out, for Stone, as the village priest, had come to warn him, at the last moment.

While the explosion was supposed to have taken place in a cannery, the occasion was quite as fishless as a vegetarian dinner. You had to use your imagination to see the cans flying around in the air, too. But both would have been superfluous for the general effect.

The blowing up of the cannery had been immediately preceded by the destruction of an elevator tower in similar fashion. About 300 pounds of powder were exploded in the building, and then the structure was pulled apart by wires. The wire-pulling was quite as effective as any that might take place at a Tammany Hall convention.

MORE ACTION NOW.

From all this will be observed that the new version of the "Rosary" has its spectacular side. It isn't the old story from the Edward E. Rose play at all, as produced some years ago by Selig. In fact, it remains the same only in the most general outlines. Situations and characters have been introduced all along the line to increase the action.

Just a few days ago they wrecked an automobile to get rid of the villain. It crashed through a bridge and into a muddy duckpond, disturbing the slumber of several indignant Mallards. The stunt man who went with the machine actually permitted himself to be pinioned underneath, thus registering an additional gust of excitement.

Don't accumulate the impression, however, that "The Rosary" is going to be a condensed serial. The objective of the scenario writer, Bernard McConville, and the director, Storm—who are popularly known on the lot as "Storm" and "Strife"—is something quite different. While they have injected a lot of action into the plot, they are both seeking to make its chief appeal human interest.

The purpose is really to evolve a drama based on the triumph of good

MOROSCO SUCCESS.

"The Tailor-Made Man" One of the Season's Hits.

Things are happening at the Morosco. Capacity audiences seem to be the rule for "The Tailor-Made Man," which enters its fourth week with today's matinee. This attraction is considered the best effort of Harry James Smith, author of some of the cleverest comedies of the modern stage. Oliver Morosco was so highly pleased with this play when he saw it in New York that he immediately secured the stock rights and gave it a local production at once.

Gayne Whitman gives a masterful performance of the man made by a tailor. As the unconquerable John Paul Bart, he scores heavily. His role is by far the biggest in the play and all action centers about him. He gives the part the best interpretation of his career and is making scores of new admirers.

Bertha Mann, in the part of Tanya, the tailor's daughter, while not having the scope of action of Gayne Whitman, lends great charm and color to her role.

Others in the piece are Harry Duffield, Joseph Eggenton, Clifton Hodder, Harry Garrity, Helene Sullivan, Dora Mae Howe, Vivienne La Rue, William Austin, Felix Valle, Frances Gaunt, Arthur Rutledge, Tom Calloway, June Page, Innis Sherer, King Burgman, Dorothy Eggenton, James Williams, Fred Rike, Charles Buck, Marjorie Sibbald, Constance Sibbald, Naomi Shank, Lawrence Watson, Walter Spence, Helen Dreyer and Barbara Blake.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO IN PICTURE AT DROMF.

Rudolph Valentino, the brilliant young actor and star of the famous film masterpiece, "The Four Horsemen," will be seen in his latest feature photoplay, "Stolen Moments," at the Hippodrome, starting today.

An unusually bright vaudeville show will be topped by the Five Virginia Belles in a distinct musical extravaganza. Mumford and Stanley, in a humorous concoction, "A Nickel is a Nickel" will supply laughter in bunches, and Morris and Towne will offer "A Fool for Twelve Minutes."

"The Rounder of Old Broadway," a spectacular character classic, with a clever cast headed by Neal Barret, the character artist, is also on the bill, as are Reeder and Armstrong in a piano diversion, with Mankin the Frog Man rounding out the show.

IRIBE BUSY ON TITLES.

Paul Iribe, the French art director for Cecil B. DeMille, is now at work on a series of title pictures for "Fool's Paradise," the latest Cecil B. DeMille production. Producer DeMille has been in daily consultation with the artist and it is expected that the finished titles will be approved and reproduced in color within a few days.

"TOO MANY HUSBANDS."

Musical Comedy with New Angle at Burbank This Week.

"Too Many Husbands" is the intriguing title of the new Hi Jinks Revues musical comedy at the Burbank, and, as the title indicates a good assortment of hilarity, audiences may well expect the company of talented comedians, headed by Al and Loie Bridge, to live up to the name of the new piece.

This latest production deals with the reverse of things amatory. Instead of the husband with a penchant for pretty girls and an eye ever watchful for the graceful ankle that passes, it is the flirty wife in this instance who becomes enmeshed in a series of rather embarrassing situations due to her never having introduced her husband to her parents, who, when they discover her chatting innocently with an old school friend believe him to be her husband and force the little wife to lie herself into a series of adventures.

The fun will fly rapidly, and the Burbank promises to deal out laughter in generous portions.

Musically the new piece promises a plenitude of graceful tunes, and optically the Hi Jinks beauty chorus will enliven the production with a generous number of specialties.

The costuming, fresh every week, is elaborate, and the staging under the direction of Edgar Barnett will show the usual careful attention to detail and effectiveness.

FICTIONIZES SCRIPT.

Scenarioist Tries New Stunt to Aid Players.

Finis Fox, the screen author, who adapted "Scrap Iron," the coming Kinema attraction, has originated a new style of screen writing which he calls "fictionized continuity." In collaboration with Minnie Z. Jaffa, he has just finished "Courageous Hearts," a romantic drama written in this striking original style.

"Fictionized continuity," says Fox, "explains itself. It means that the story is written in continuity and in fiction at the same time. This enables the studio editor, the star, the director and the production manager when reading the story to see and feel the dramatic situations as they unfold in continuous sequence from the first fade-in to the last fade-out.

"Fictionized continuity has all the advantages of a novel without its unnecessary details, its long descriptions, its padded episodes and its verbose dialogue of no photographic value. It has all the advantages of a scenario because it fictionizes only the action to be photographed and the dialogue is limited to the spoken titles to be used. Ultimately fictionized continuity will be the accepted form of screen literature."

The author used this style of screen writing in preparing "Scrap Iron" for Charles Ray.

Cheery Furniture for the Cozy Breakfast Room

DEDICATED TO BETTER HOMES

There is something companionable and chummy about the Breakfast Room as we who live in our California sunshine know it. Indeed the prevalence of these cozy, cheery rooms is one of the first things remarked by our Eastern visitors.

The motif of the Breakfast Room should be bright and cheerful—almost gay in furnishings and draperies yet, withal, in thorough good taste, with a thought given to the sedate mind that abhors fripperies.

In the careful selection of Breakfast Room furniture pieces to offer their patrons the California Furniture Company has kept in mind this spirit of the Breakfast Room and has followed out the "California" policy of choosing only such pieces as will lend distinction and exclusiveness to this very important place in the home.

As a result a wide selection of many beautiful but unusual types of Breakfast Room furniture conforming with a variety of tastes may be found at the "California." Here a varying assortment of colorings and decorations is offered, from the light and festive for those to whom breakfast is but the start of a wonderful adventure, to the more conventional and dignified types to soothe the more sedate whose first meal is only breakfast.

And these Breakfast Room selections range from the very finest and most exclusive sets to the very attractive enameled Breakfast Room table and four double-cane seated chairs to match, decorated in three colors, for as low as $51.00.

A cordial invitation is extended to inspect this unusual line of Breakfast Room furniture and a comparison of values is urged, as always.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Pinks.

They stray in old-time gardens,
Sweet sisters to the rose,
Where burly bees are wardens,
From dawn to daylight's close.

They lift their blushing faces
And spread their perfumed gowns—
Shy maids with by-gone graces
Unknown to noisy towns.

They waft a song, a message
From out the radiant past—
High noon that gave no presage
Where shadows would be cast.

They whisper joy and duty,
They breathe of love and pain,
And oh, how keen their beauty
In mists of autumn rain!
—[Antony Anderson.

A Promenade Among Pictures.

Let us take a "personally conducted" stroll among the masters, new and old, big and little, sixty-one of whose works have been loaned to the gallery at Exposition Park, where they patiently await our leisure and pleasure till the day of their departure for the various "art collections" to which they belong. That day is set for September 5, so we have plenty of time—but not too much time, for art is very long and time is very fleeting.

It's a good thing to loiter among pictures now and again, just as it is good to commune with nature very often. If art is really "nature seen through a temperament," as some one says (Ruskin, Whistler, or who?) a picture offers twofold study and delight, it tantalizes us with a double mystery.

If you've ever wielded a brush you know that it is not an easy thing to record your "feeling" about a figure or a scene in the dull medium of paint. You soon discovered that the feat falls little short of being impossible. You found that the facts could be put down with considerable accuracy, if you took time and trouble enough. The facts, yes—but facts are not feelings, they don't display a "temperament." They never did, and never will, make a picture.

This vexed question being settled to our satisfaction, we will now proceed on our little journey, turning to the right as we enter, and encountering, "off the bat," Ceremano's "Forest of Fontainebleau," not a great picture, and not, as I think, a very good one, for the colors are too black and brown for beauty. Ceremano has the distinction of being the last of the Barbizonians.

A little farther down the line we come to a water-color "Dutch Interior," by Nils J. Blommers, who died in 1888. It is tender in feeling, but some catastrophe seems to have happened to the pigments in the lower part of the picture, there is a sort of floating mist over everything, a disconcerting blue fog.

Not far from this little Blommers hangs an imposing portrait of a lady by Boldini—the brilliant Italian painter, who made such a stir in American art and society circles a quarter of a century ago. It is most brilliantly painted, technically very dexterous, and yet it is cold and dry—leaving us rather cold and dry, it must be admitted, in spite of our admiration. In his day the meteoric Boldini painted everybody who was anybody, and we are glad to be able to study this interesting example of his work.

The tiny Diaz, "In the Forest," we may consider as almost negligible, for it displays none of this master's jewel-like color. The three small and charming bits from the brush of Arthur B. Davies we will consider next week, when we shall reach the end wall of the gallery, where five other canvases by Davies are hung. This artist is one of our modern American masters, the subject of considerable discussion and disagreement, though the last word about him will be agreement, without any unpleasant "dis."

The Gerome, "Algerian Girls," is really very beautiful, full of quality, perfect in drawing. Academic, to be sure, but a lovely example of this great draughtsman and painter, and one well worth long and close study for its many good points. I am not one of those who rail at the academic, for I know how sincere and admirable an artist an academician may be, and generally is. If some of our ultra-modernists would only try, just once, to draw like Gerome—but why sigh for the moon? They won't, and they can't.

The Childe Hassam "Landscape" is characteristic in handling—fine strokes of the brush, almost like those of a pointellist—but not absolutely so in color, especially if we compare it with some of Hassam's later canvases, when it will seem rather dry and pale. Yet it is a fine picture, delightfully drawn. But the pallid beauty of Harpignies's water-color "Landscape" is absolutely in the accepted manner of this famous Frenchman, who lived to be almost a hundred years old. How tender is the drawing, how true the aerial planes!

Robert Henri's "The Dancer Resting," though merely a small and brilliant sketch, has the Henri touch the dashing Henri color. A more interesting sketch is Edouard Vysekal's "Children Playing," a fascinating scheme of color, the figures full of action. Another interesting little sketch—perhaps we may class it among studies — is Joseph Raphael's "Child's Head," very true in feeling, though not quite so true in drawing.

"Landscape," by A. D. Peppercorn, an English painter, is an excellent composition, the sky very beautiful the line of trees finely massed, though the trees are a blue-black, without penetrating light, which shows that the artist is not of our day and tradition. Granville Redmond's "The White Cloud," a study of a sail-boat on the breezy bay at San Pedro, is technically clever, and the out-door feeling is well indicated.

From Frank P. Sauerwen, a Los Angeles painter who died young, when his fine talent as a painter was just beginning to show itself, we have a beautiful example in the small canvas entitled "The Pool," a desert scene whose central figure in a vast expanse of sand and sky is a horse drinking. Mr. Sauerwen was compelled to live in the desert, and in his happier moments he sent us some wonderful things from there. "The Pool" is one of these.

W. J. Potter's "Ostend, Belgium," is modern in technique, full of life and vibration. George Stojana's "By the Sea" has exquisite color and decorative value, three figures that are remote and dreamlike in their repose. This canvas, in the artist's "earlier manner," is antipodally different from the amazing pictures Mr. Stojana exhibited in the same gallery a few weeks ago. Compared, the canvases seem to come from a different hand—as they certainly come from a different experience.

Extremely beautiful in color is Monticelli's "Fete Champetre," radiantly gowned ladies standing at ease in a wonderful green grove, presumably the forest of Fontainebleau. Note the quality of this color in clothes and trees, how lyrically harmonious it is, and how rich. Note, too, the delicate balance of the arrangement, in masses of form as well as in color. Another very lovely picture, one of the most attractive in the exhibition, is the water-color entitled "Sunday," by Willem Martens. Modern splashers in paint might learn a lesson in justness and restraint from the manner of Martens's painting, the deftness and refinement of it. And how impeccable is the drawing! This charming figure of a girl reading doesn't seem "strongly" painted, it is so beautifully unobtrusive in technique, but just walk across the gallery and look at it. See how it "carries."

Come we now to what may be considered the two most interesting canvases in this our first promenade among pictures. They are both by Jean Francois Millet, and neither is in his later manner, when he painted French peasants only, after he had left Paris forever. One is a nude study, "Dana Resting;" the other a classic subject, also nude, "Mercury Leading the Cow of Argus."

These titles sound strange, for most of us know only the great Millet of the French peasantry. Yet he was once a student in Paris like all the others, and he and his wife had to live, so he painted nudes till he was 25. He stopped, and his wife upheld him in this decision, when he heard one of his pictures, displayed in a window, referred to as being by "that fellow Millet, who paints nothing but nudes." So he tried classic themes, and with considerable success, until the momentous day when he woke to a realization of his great heritage and began to paint the men and women he knew so well, for his life had been like theirs and he had done their work.

We see Millet—even the Millet of the peasants—in these fine earlier studies, whose color, it seems to me, is more richly harmonious than the color in his later pictures. Millet was not exactly in sympathy with Diana resting or Mercury leading a cow—but he saw a peasant woman who had just stepped naked out of a brook in a dark and secluded wood, and he saw a country boy, beautiful of body, bringing a cow to pasture—and these he painted, because these are what he really felt. The heavier hand is seen in the "Diana," for the "Mercury" was probably painted ten years later, when Millet was 35 and had reached his technical power as a painter.

This ends our trip for today. To me it has been enjoyable, and I hope to you.

CARTOONS HIS STUNTS IN COMEDY.

Larry Semon Uses Talent for Sketching to Insure Vivid Action in His Films.

The illustrated scenario is the newest wrinkle in motion-picture production.

Larry Semon, who produces his own comedies for Vitagraph, is the originator of the idea, and he has been modestly utilizing it for many months without saying a word about it.

Semon writes his own comedies, jotting down the ideas that occur to him in an ordinary stenographer's notebook, and using the same as his bald continuity.

A member of Semon's company picked up the notebook that contains the action for the just completed film, "The Bellhop," and idly turned the pages. He found the written directions for the action on one page, while the opposite contained a sketch illustrating the action.

For instance, the written note would be:

"Larry hangs wildly to rope ladder under airplane when heavy reaches over and cuts the rope."

The page above contains a vivid sketch of the baggy-trousered comedian falling with the severed ladder, while the villain hoarsely hales from the speeding plane. The next sketch shows Larry landing on a plane below.

Incidentally this stunt is said to be one of the most daring ever attempted by any air-devil. It was filmed over the city of Los Angeles.

Throughout the script, it was illustrated in this way, sometimes with action, sometimes with facial character studies of heads of pretty girls, according to the mood of the director-comedian. His knack of cartooning, learned as a tiny boy from a theatrical bill poster and practiced on the New York dailies before he thought of motion pictures, is, of course, the stimulus that leads to this subconscious expression of ideas with penciled lines rather than penciled words.

"Song of Life," Heart Story, Hums Along.

With most of his big dramatic scenes already filmed and the balance of the interior sets built and dressed, John M. Stahl is going forward rapidly with his production, "The Song of Life," for Louis B. Mayer.

Owing to the highly emotional nature, the story and the faithful detail which the background demand, the feature has already gone beyond the average in both time and expense, it is said.

Mr. Stahl is the author of the theme developed for the screen by Bess Meredyth. The cast is headed by Gaston Glass of "Humoresque" fame, Grace Darmond, individual star of many pictures; Georgia Woodthorpe, character actress, and little Richard Headrick, diminutive juvenile in "Playthings of Destiny," starring Anita Stewart, "The Woman in His House" and "The Child Thou Gavest Me." Ernest Palmer, photographer of "The Miracle Man," is chief of the camera work.

Based on mother love, the story treats this popular theme from a new angle. It deals with the regeneration of a mother—a woman who early in married life deserts her husband and baby because she is tired of her humdrum existence. As the years go on she learns to appreciate the blessings of the home and family she cast off so lightly.

A cruel fate places the mother near her son, but prevents her from revealing her identity or showing her affection for him.

CARNIVAL COMEDY.

Music and Color at Broadway Pantages This Week.

A real treat is in store for the patrons of Broadway Pantages for the week starting Monday, when "Oklahoma Bob" Albright presents Henry Sherr and his company of musical comedy favorites in the brand new laughing success, written by Frank Samuels, entitled, "Abie at the Carnival."

The story has a real plot, which finds Abie Cohn (Henry Sherr) and his wife (Vera Vaughn) in Cairo, Egypt, where a carnival is in full sway. Abie manages to give his wife the slip, and, accompanied by his pal, Nifty Luke (Frank Samuels,) they attend the carnival and are discovered among the oriental dancers by friend wife. A riot follows.

Walter Reed will be back in the cast after a week's rest at the beach.

Musical numbers for the new offering will be under the personal direction of Joe Kemper, who promises a big surprise in the way of original numbers. Miss Ethel Gray, who has made such a hit with her specialties, is due for another one of her show-stopping numbers this week, while "Oklahoma Bob" Albright, the Pantages Four and Aleen Thompson have a new repertoire that will be sure to please.

Owen Moore will be seen on the screen in his latest success, "Divorce of Convenience."

RENWICK'S LOST TO PRINCETON.

"Renwick's," the sacred abode of many classmen at Princeton, is about to pass into history. When the students return to school next September they will find a new, up to date restaurant in place of the old ice-cream parlor, and another Princeton tradition of years will have become only a memory.

Seventy years ago John B. Renwick opened the store on Nassau street, opposite the campus, and it has been the rendezvous of undergraduates since its inception. At all hours of the day one could find a crowd of undergraduates around the soda fountain buying drinks and other delights from "George," the soda attendant.

The "Jigger," made famous by Owen Johnson in his Lawrenceville stories, ruled as favorite. This is a paper cup filled with ice cream, topped with chocolate syrup and "cheese." This cheese is known in the outside world as malted milk, but to the Princeton undergraduates it is always "cheese."—[The New York Times.

WHAT WORLD OF ART IS SAYING.

and Cricket." We read the haunting lines over and over, and admit that Keats and his cricket are probably right.

Yet the melancholy fact remains that many of us go through the days with unseeing eyes and unhearing ears, all unmindful of the fleeting pictures and poems that nature is ever painting and singing for us. And thus it is that we miss much of the joy of living.

"Though I am poor and cannot buy
The rare, time-mellowed things or art,
God keeps an open gallery
Of glories for the poor in heart."

—is Maurice Thompson's comforting thought. Nor do such as he have far to go to find these "glories." They are strewn at the very threshold, where rain and sun, starlight and dew, hold sweet conspiracy together to make them more exquisite from hour to hour.

We who are so supremely blest as to be living in Southern California, "a land where 'tis always afternoon," have keener cause to rejoice in the poetry of earth than many others. The glory of the sun is ours through an endless vista of days that are almost ideally perfect. For us "the wild white horses of the sea" beat ever with gleaming hoofs on shining sands. For us the everlasting hills lift up their heads in serene encouragement and benediction, luring us toward higher endeavor and adventure, toward fuller life and freer thought. For us are the purpling twilight peaks; oracles of the unknown and the eternal.

The sun, the sea, the hills, the mountains—all these are the epics of the poetry of earth. But countless are the little lyrics that nature pens from day to day. The mocking bird wakes the slumbering soul with them in the holy hush of midnight. The winds in the garden whisper them to a myriad of listening roses at dawn. The live-oaks sing them through the long afternoons—and the eucalypts strike languidly graceful and picturesque attitudes and recite them forever and a day! In California, if anywhere, "the poetry of earth is never-ceasing."

Many a man who superciliously declares that he doesn't care for poetry" is quite mistaken about himself. 'Tis the printed page that he looks at askance. The poet and he (more's the pity!) haven't learnt the same language, that is all. Dame Nature, who is the only universal linguist, manages to make herself much better understood.

The truth is, an nature knows it, that such a man sometimes likes poetry a good deal. He takes trolley trips and automobile rides to the seashore "for a whiff of the ocean breeze," yet his real object is—poetry. He wanders over illimitable desert wastes and the treasure he strains his eyes after and yearns for, though he knows it not, is—poetry. He stalks over miles of dusty roads, not for the love of pedestrianism alone, but for poetry as well. He lies in the grass and stares at the sky for nothing in the wide world but the poetry of it.

Every man, it would seem, is a potential poet, though perhaps we dare not always class him among the mute, inglorious Miltons.

"Scarab Ring" in Pictures at Clune's Theater.

A play that will probably make for itself an enviable place in the annals of the motion-picture fame of the year is "The Scarab Ring," which will be the offering for patrons of Clune's Broadway this week.

The picture is said, by those who have seen it, to be one of the really big productions of the day. It contains everything necessary to make it so—beautiful settings, elaborate costumes, clever acting by a strong cast of favorite screen players, and above all, it is a human, pulsating reality, a story that might well happen to anyone.

The film is based on Harriet Gaylord's novel, "The Desperate Heritage." This novel is popular with thousands of fiction lovers in all parts of the country, and lends itself admirably to screen adaptation.

The production has been made with great attention to setting and detail. A carved mahogany fireplace which formerly adorned the library of one of the finest and best known residences on Fifth avenue, New York, is shown in some of the scenes. The exteriors were filmed at beautiful country estates on Long Island and in Westchester county, and several scenes represent the interior of New York City's famous prison, the Tombs.

The story of "The Scarab Ring" is that of an older sister who promises her father at his death bed that she will keep his secret from her sister, even at the expense of her own life. The father, who was a bank president, made one false step, and, in order to cover his crime, paid a cashier to assume the guilt. The payments were to be maintained by the daughter. Everything moved smoothly until a man about town obtained possession of the letters written by the father and daughter to the cashier.

A valuable Egyptian scarab plays an important part in the pictured story, which is intensely dramatic and with plenty of love interest interwoven in the plot.

UNCLE SAM FISHES FOR HURRICANES.

Uncle Sam is going fishing for hurricanes with a seine, stretching across the Gulf of Mexico and extending away down into the Caribbean.

This became known when E. H. Bowie, supervising forecaster, and E. B. Calvert, head of the forecast division of the Weather Bureau, outlined plans for spreading an observation net along the entire southern coast of the country. Through this net, according to the experts, it will be impossible for even the most agile tropical storm to twist without its every movement being flashed to the Weather Bureau.

Masters of oil tankers in the Galveston-Tampico trade, as well as the captains of about 100 other vessels plying the Gulf of Mexico and the Caribbean, according to Messrs. Bowie and Calvert, now are being coached in the art of making accurate observations. These the mariners will immediately flash to the nearest Weather Bureau station. In addition, during the hurricane season, according to the plans, two emergency land observers will be stationed on the gulf, one between Galveston and Corpus Christi and the other at Morgan City, La.

This storm net once spread, according to the experts, it will be impossible for storms to sweep around the Caribbean and become lost in the expanse of water north of the Yucatan Channel.—[Galveston despatch in Houston Post.

FILM ART NEGATIVE ABROAD.

"The motion picture is the fifth wheel in European amusement life today. There is no place for it. There are no picture houses.

So declared William D. Taylor, noted producer under the banner of Paramount and the director-president of the Motion Picture Directors' Association, Los Angeles lodge, following his return from Europe.

"In London not one picture-house has been built since the war. Because of the scarcity of building material and of housing quarters, only dwellings and necessary commercial structures are permitted. Undoubtedly, though, restrictions against places of entertainment will soon be lifted.

"The presentation we are accustomed to in our first-run theaters does not exist abroad. In most cases two five-reel features form the program, and little or no attention is paid to prologues, vaudeville numbers or short subjects.

"Four or five different houses will simultaneously offer the same feature—and that an old one. The only picture less than eighteen months old that I saw while in London was "The Connecticut Yankee," and Fox rented a legitimate theater in order to show that. In Paris I noticed a year-old Bill Hart.

"There are more picture houses in France than England. They are smaller, but cater to more people.

"Motion picture exploitation simply does not exist. For example at Worthing, a channel resort near Brighton, there were thousands of persons with nothing to do but listen to the band on the esplanade or stroll up and down and look at the sea. Nearly a mile back in the town was the one picture show, almost deserted. A few townsfolk were wandering in when I passed. A mile away thousands of bored, amusement-hungry potential customers were not even informed of a theater's proximity.

"I would say the chief needs of Europe today are, decent houses, presentation, pictures of merit, and greater cultivation of a picture public.

"Europe is not tired of amusement. Legitimate theaters are going strong. If the screen is neglected abroad, the stage certainly is not. All the talent we lavish on motion pictures is over there devoted to the playhouse.

"Parisian stage productions surpass American stage productions as far as our films surpass theirs. Disregarding different standards of dramatic morals their art effects are beautiful and their performances move with clocklike precision.

"Both abroad and in this country the public has become hypercritical toward its screen entertainment.

"A few years ago a picture was either good or rotten. If it was good everyone found something to praise in it, and even the reviewers agrede on its merits. It is was rotten everyone admitted it, again even all the reviewers.

"Now a constant diet of motion pictures has developed a cinema sophisticated people. I sit in a theater and hear criticisms on every side. What some people do not care for, others flock to see. The reviewers are not wholly satisfied with any picture, nor apparently wholly dissatisfied with any."

GRIFFITH REVEALS SARTORIAL SECRETS.

David W. Griffith was seated in the darkened auditorium of the theater and on the screen before him was shown his production, "Way Down East," now playing at Philharmonic Auditorium.

It was a sort of dress rehearsal, with the men who manipulate the lights, the experts engaged in the creating of effects and all the members of the orchestra, benefiting by the occasional suggestion the producer made. The picture had not long been running, when there came into view the scenes of luxury that are in contrast with those of the main part of the story dealing with plain people of New England.

"You might think it strange," Mr. Griffith volunteered, "but it was in these scenes of frivolity that we had many of our difficulties. We wanted to show the contrast between the luxury-loving and the men and women who lead simple lives, and there came up the important matter of garb.

"It would not do, for instance, to have the women in the ballroom scenes attired in a conventional evening dress of the day. First of all, that would make the wearer appear just one of the crowd rather than an individual. Nor would inferior materials give the right effect of what sometimes is termed 'class.'

"So we had Lucille in consultation, and it was decided to have the women wear what are called 'period gowns,' such as those we designate Empire, Watteau, etc. Such gowns are really for any period, and they do not change with the years or seasons, save only in the adaptation of the original design to new conditions of life. The hoop skirt appears in support of nearly every dress, although modified in accordance with the mode. I am sure that the dresses that you see are typical, and yet not of any fashion that may be set down as of, say 1920, 1910, or any of the 1800's.

"The people in the latter part of the picture are in many instances in their customary garb—for a number of them were New Englanders who just wanted to be seen; those who play the leading roles wear the clothes that people in the country wear. The contrast with those who are gorgeously arrayed is striking, and yet is not overdrawn."

NO MISTAKE ABOUT KARGER'S "BAD MEN."

Getting convincing "bad men" for picture purposes is one of the ever-present difficulties in the path of a director, but it has been successfully accomplished by Maxwell Karger, directing Alice Lake in her new Metro picture "The Golden Gift."

The new Karger production is enlivened by a picturesque Mexican dance hall, in which Miss Lake executes a Spanish dance. To carry out the thought of the story it was necessary to obtain denizens of a typical border dance hall—otherwise, Mexican "bad men."

So Director Karger sent agents out to find just the types required. The agents accomplished their part of the task; they carried it out so successfully that the director ordered his new players about in his most diplomatic manner. For one man was reputed to have several notches on his gun, another was said to be a fugitive from justice, while others bore all the outward appearances of genuine "bad men."

During the days that the director was working in the midst of his imported "local color" he kept Miss Lake under his protecting eye, and did not wander out with his actors after dark.

MESSENGER BOYS TELL TALES ON VIOLA.

An even baker's dozen of telegraph messengers, who will be seen in Viola Dana's new Metro picture, "The Fourteenth Lover," had the rare good fortune to do before the camera exactly the same service as that performed for the star in real life.

When Harry Beaumont required thirteen messengers for his picture he immediately summoned the professional rather than the screen variety. But it was not until the boys, amid a deafening roar of motorcycles, arrived at the studio that Miss Dana found she was working among old friends.

"Hello, Miss Dana, I was over to your house last night," said one freckled-faced replica of Wesley Barry. "You know, I brought you those flowers."

Another boy recalled a recent visit with a telegram and still others reminded the star of past calls at the door of her hilltop home in Hollywood.

"And I was absolutely fascinated to see that every boy acted as convincingly as if he were going through part of his day's routine," said the little star. "If all of the leading men with whom I have been associated could have equaled the work of those messenger boys, I would be well satisfied."

MANY THRILLS IN "THE WOMAN GOD CHANGED"

How could justice impose a sentence on "The Woman God Changed?" What sentence could be given a common-law bride? Where is the human being that can sit in judgment and pass that sentence? Who is the man big enough, so instilled with light, with vision sufficiently keen to penetrate the depths of a woman's heart and find just cause for sentence? Is there a man who really believes himself impervious and has so clear a conscience that he can say: "You are found guilty," regardless of whatever crime she may be charged, of loving her common-law husband too well? Or his murder? . . . Can he, after she has made the greatest sacrifice of love to a man not worthy of the sacrifice, find it in his heart to punish her because the law says she has committed a crime?

Learn the answer at the Garrick Theater, where "The Woman God Changed" begins its run today.

Anna Janssen, a beautiful dancing girl, flees from the cafe where she shot her common-law husband after seeing him with a chorus girl. Her adventures during the time that she is a fugitive from justice, trailed by a relentless officer of the law to a tropic island, where he falls in love with her, the subsequent trial, then the thrilling denouement, fairly grip the specator.

Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln head an unusually fine cast of players.

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

[illegible] Wednesday.

Of all the benefits given weekly by the Assistance League during the spring and early summer, the one promising the most brilliance will be that next Wednesday, when a preview of "Rigoletta" will be given at the Ambassador Theater. People prominent in society in Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, Pasadena and San Diego are to entertain with theater parties followed by tea dansants in Cocoanut Grove. The preview is a courtesy extended the league by Romayne Film Company. There will be synchronised orchestration, a courtesy by Henry Van Praag.

Among those who are to give parties are Mrs. Hancock Banning, who is to have twenty guests; Mrs. George J. Denis, who will entertain six; Mrs. Charles H. Sharp and Mrs. Everett Seaver, who are to have a joint party; William A. Clark, Jr., Mrs. Carolyn Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Laughlin, Mrs. William D. Stephens, wife of the Governor; Mrs. Julian Bixby, Jr., Mrs. Harry Dana Lombard, Mrs. Kirk Johnson, Walter Perry Story, Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge Hall, Mrs. Willis Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Williams, Mrs. Franklin Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Gustavus Hunt, Mrs. W. Waller Taylor, Mrs. L. L. Krebbs, Mrs. Joseph Bohon, Mrs. Willoughby Rodman, Mrs. West Hughes, Mrs. Sloan-[illegible], Miss Winifred Maxson, Mrs. E. D. Shepherd, Mrs. Arthur Wright, Mr. and Mrs. McWaters, William Irwin of Cincinnati; Mrs. Irving Walker, Mrs. Carl Adams, Miss Virginia Woods, Mrs. Cosmo Morgan, Mrs. John Cudahy of Chicago; Mrs. Louis Barrere of St. Louis; Mrs. Charles Anthony, Mrs. Barbee Hook, Mrs. Roy Seeley, Mrs. Charles Jeffras, Mrs. Matthew S. Robertson, Mrs. Hugh Walker, Mrs. Chester Ring and Mrs. Samuel L. Storrow. Among the guests will be Mayor and Mrs. Cryer, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lee Woolwine, the latter in a party given by Mrs. Q. Boardman and Charles Wakefield Cadman.

Mr. and Mrs. George Becker and daughter, Miss Nona Becker, are to motor from Santa Barbara for the preview, and so is Mrs. Irving Wright, who is to give a party. Mrs. Antoinette Converse of Montecito will motor down with a party of ten guests. Others to attend will be Mrs. Charles Canfield, Sid Grauman and Mme. Grauman, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Thompson, Mrs. [illegible] Moore, Colcook Jones and Priscilla Dean.

Pasadena Girl Makes Debut.

Miss Elizabeth Pierce made her formal debut at a ball and dinner-dance given Thursday evening at the Santa Barbara Country Club by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cupples Pierce of Pasadena, who have a handsome summer home in Montecito. Miss Barbara Pierce was one of the younger buds noticed and came in for much attention. Miss Marguerite Brunswig and her house guest, Miss Rosario [illegible] of San Francisco, were at the party, and so was Charles G. Adams, well-known landscape architect of Los Angeles. Three hundred of the younger set from Montecito, Pasadena and Los Angeles were present.

In Santa Barbara.

Among the Los Angeles folk at the Samarkand in Santa Barbara are Mr. and Mrs. James G. Scarborough, Mrs. Charles Jeffras and Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Bullock.

Mrs. Martha Nelson McCann, who has been visiting in Santa Barbara for some time was entertained at dinner at the Samarkand Wednesday evening by Lady Edgerly, famous portrait painter, who is expecting to give an exhibition in Los Angeles before going abroad. Others at this resort are Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Pierce, Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Hagan, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. [illegible], who are in a motor party on their way to Eureka; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Brock and their three children; Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Keith and their daughter, Katherine Keith, and Mrs. Horace Middleton. Dr. and Mrs. Keith and Miss Keith have just returned from a visit to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Hubbard, Mme. Elinor Glyn, Leslie Stuart, Jr., and Robert Hyman were in a motor party that passed the week-end at the hotel when Mme. Glyn was an honor guest at a dinner party given by Mrs. Irving Wright.

Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Burnham of Pasadena, with Mrs. L. W. Beebe and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wells of Oak Park, Ill., are in a party there as are Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Tabor of Hollywood.

Guests of Gen. Pelaez.

Mrs. A. W. Walliser and little daughter, Mary Louise, from San Antonio, Tex., are guests at the home of Gen. and Mrs. Manuel Palaez of Wilshire Boulevard. Today they will leave to visit Mrs. Walliser's sister, Mrs. J. H. Webster of Oakland. Afterward they will go to Denver to visit Mrs. J. T. Kendall, who is also a sister of Mrs. Walliser and known in Los Angeles.

To Fly This Week.

The flying party which was to have been given last week by Mr. and Mrs. Trowbridge Hall of Los Angeles and New York, had to be postponed because of an accident to "The Goose," which had its wing broken. This week the party will fly to Coronado. Included will be Mr. and Mrs. William K. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jeffras and Mrs. Thompson Buchanan.

House Party.

An interesting house party was given last week-end by Mr. and Mrs. Barbee Hook at The Oaks, Glendora. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Roy Seeley, Mr. and Mrs. William Bayly, Dr. Stem Locranz and Bruce Macneil.

Shower for August Bride.

Miss Helen Case, who is to be an August bride, was the honoree at a shower given by Mrs. Herbert Riggs Cook (Anita Rayburn) Saturday afternoon. Fourteen girls and young matrons were present. Miss Case was maid of honor at Mrs. Cook's wedding some months ago. Mrs. Cook was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Fred Wallingford Rayburn, and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Hugh Gillis.

For Mr. and Mrs. Schallert.

Dr. and Mrs. Arnold Burkelman will entertain tonight for Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Francis Schallert, who returned last week from their honeymoon journey to Seattle. Friends of these young people will be received at the Burkelman home, 938 Beacon street, from 8 until 12 o'clock.

Marriage Announcement.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Prigg announce the marriage of their daughter, Mayme Prigg Burriss, to Samuel Asbury Walsh, on Saturday, June 25, in Los Angeles. The young people will be at home after September 1 at 5720 Sixth avenue.

Engagement Announced.

Mrs. V. H. Lownes of 918 Burlington avenue announces the engagement of her daughter, Viola Darlington Lownes, to Jack Cullen Rouse of Superior, Ariz., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Rouse of Los Angeles. The wedding will be performed in the early fall.

Sorority Entertained.

Miss Zerilda White of 1734 Buckingham Road entertained with a delightful tea Tuesday in honor of a number of visiting Zeta Tau Alphas. Guests included members of Xi chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha Fraternity of the University of Southern California, of which Miss White is a member. Mrs. A. M. White assisted her daughter in receiving.

Spanish Fete.

Mrs. J. Rodezno, who has taken Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson's home, "Las Olas," at Montecito, for the summer months, had eighty guests for a Spanish fete last Sunday. Supper was served out-of-doors under a rainbow of balloons and lanterns. The surf and dancing were rival diversions, and Spanish coffee was served during the dancing. Guests were present from San Francisco and Los Angeles. From this city were Mr. and Mrs. Lucien Brunswig, Miss Margaret Brunswig and Mr. and Mrs. Avery McCarthy.

Dinner Party.

A dinner party was given Friday evening by Mrs. Edward Laurence Doheny, Sr., at her home in Chester Place, where she entertained for eastern friends. Hollywood Wedding.

At the home of Mrs. M. E. Lockwood, 2128 Highland avenue, Hollywood, Tuesday afternoon, her daughter Olive was married to Henry Peck Desnoyers, Dr. E. P. Ryland performing the ceremony. Mrs. Carl Earl sang "Beloved, It Is Morn" and "Because." Mendelssohn's Wedding March was played by the bride's cousin, Miss Helen Kelso. The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy Paget and her brother-in-law, Eugene S. Gates, gave her way.

The bridal pair stood beneath a silver wedding hoop from which pink and white hearts were suspended. The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with lace draperies and silver. The bridesmaid wore pink Georgette embroidered in gold. The rooms were decorated with pink and white roses and carnations with a background of greenery. The wedding supper was served in the sunken garden.

The bride, a daughter of the late Dr. M. M. Lockwood, is a graduate of Hollywood High School. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Desnoyers of New York. The couple left for a motor trip to Yosemite, stopping en route at the Durant, Lebec. After a three weeks' honeymoon they will take up their residence in Hollywood, where the groom is in business.

Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Burke of 1402 Vista street, Hollywood, entertained fifty-five friends and relatives Thursday evening with a dinner party in celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary. Dr. M. G. Samuels acted as toastmaster and presented Mrs. Burke with a handsome diamond lavalliere, a token of affection from Mr. Burke. Among the speeches of felicitation were those by Warren L. Williams, who told of his long association with Mr. Burke in the business world and that of State Senator Charles W. Lyon. The tables and rooms were adorned with African marigolds, ferns and Shasta daisies. Dancing was enjoyed after dinner.

Married.

Mrs. Ruby Newcomb and E. Clar Overholtzer were married at the Congregational Church Thursday by Rev. J. M. Schaefle. After a honeymoon spent in the northern part of the State, Mr. and Mrs. Overholtzer will be at home at 1236 South Grand avenue.

Silk Lingerie—A Sale!

A Sale of August Time With Those August Time Styles in Dainty Lingerie That All Too Infrequently Find Their Way to Sale Prices

10.00 Radium Silk Night Gowns, 6.95

Radium—the new silk that is so soft and yet so firm in quality as to tempt all femininity—and certainly so at a price that is almost half what former sales have brought. The exquisitely tailored plain bodice gowns or the frilly, lacey models—there are many styles, all in flesh color, and all at this surprise price.

2.50 Silk Camisoles, 1.65

Lovelier models have never been conceived—for it seems that all the effectiveness of satin, georgette, dainty ribbon and laces has found expression here. Bodice styles in flesh color.

6.50 Vests and Step-Ins, 3.95

Matched sets of the daintiest crepe de chine undergarments in such luscious shades as flesh, orchid, Nile and sky blue. Better still, the laces that trim them are real filet and especially fine Val—such garments as you have never seen at 3.95.

4.95 Silk "Envelopes," 3.45

Surely a group to serve as a new delight for every maid and matron who is looking to economy as well as beauty. Crepe de chine of a superior quality, in bodice and built up styles, beautiful lace and ribbon trimmed. All in the flesh shade.

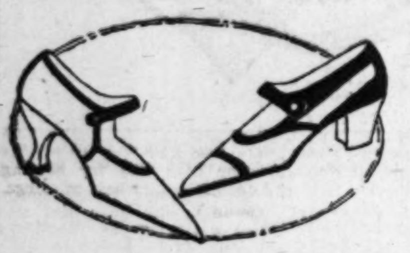
6.95 Georgette Gowns, 4.65

Surely you are to have at least one georgette night gown—and no better time could there possibly be to choose! Plainly tailored styles, or those lace trimmed—the colors bewilderingly lovely—with orchid, flesh, French gray, sky blue, Apricot and Nile among them.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Women's 9.00

Sports Shoes 6.75



An August Sale devoted exclusively to the sports footwear fashions—and the foremost of the summer season's modes. That fact assures one of the correctness of every model—and the price reduction makes all explanation of value superiority entirely unnecessary.

White Cloth Sports Pumps—the one strap style, trimmed with black kid, welt soles and white Cuban heels.

White Cloth Two-Strap Pumps—with brown or black calfskin wing tips, straps and heel trimmings, white ivory welt sole and military heel.

White Eve Cloth Semi-Sports Pumps—that may be worn for dress. With black strap and binding, light flexible sole and French heels.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

"Famous for Quality"

Candies at New Prices!

In keeping with the Hamburger policy of service, it is now found practicable and timely to place new prices on many of the most popular candies made by Hamburger's in their "Famous for Quality" factory!

The New Prices Are From 10% to 50% Lower

This action being made possible through the decreased cost of some materials—a condition Hamburger's welcomes as readily as do their patrons.

To list the new prices would take more space than is available in this advertisement, but those who are familiar with Hamburger candy will readily recognize the new prices in the department—and to those who have yet to learn of these luscious and absolutely pure candies, the time is certainly most economically right for you to try them.

Candies of every description—all made in Hamburger's own candy factory—the largest in any department store in the United States.

"Le Dernier Cri"—Black Silks!
With Sale Prices at Hamburger's

A Sale so timely that those familiar with the merchandise markets are going to wonder a bit as to how Hamburger's contrived to find it possible to offer such new and startling economies on the "silks of the moment" as the last word of Paris demands them. Black silks—by all fashion odds, the most fashionable of the hour!

40-In. Black Chiffon Taffeta
A handsome imported Swiss quality, sale priced 2.65

40-In. Black Canton Crepe
the soft, clinging weave so popular for fall, special 2.95

especially adapted to blouses and frocks, specially priced 1.85

40-In. Black Satin Charmeuse
as serviceable as it is beautiful in quality, special 2.95

36-In. Black Satin Charmeuse
another very superior quality, sale priced Monday 2.15

40-In. Black Crepe Meteor
a quality unsurpassed at this lowest August Sale price 1.95

36-inch Black Chiffon Taffeta of Serviceable, Beautiful Quality, Sale priced—1.95

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Satin Stripe Hose
1.65

They're new, and just as smart as they can be—especially with sports wear. And Monday shoppers will be delighted with the new price, for stockings of this quality have been selling for $2.00. Semi-fashioned and in black, white and brown.

(Main Floor)

Fibre Sweaters
10.95

The rich, heavy weaves prove at a glance that we have very materially reduced the price to this most interesting one, for they formerly sold at 15.00. Full range sizes, 34 to 44, and in the smartest of bright, gay colors.

(Second Floor)

Sequin Tunics
15.00

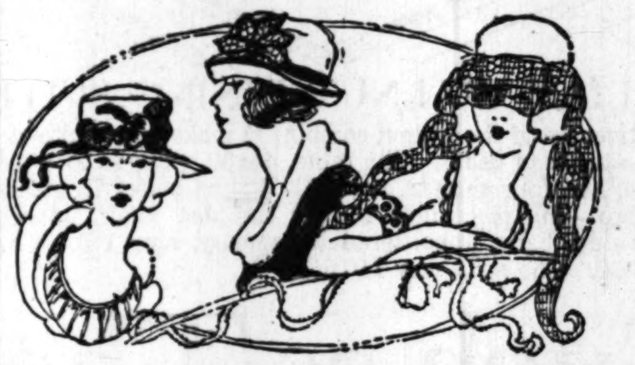
How could one possibly hope to possess a frock as handsome as these tunics afford for a price as low as 15.00? Hardly! And yet Hamburger's is offering the black and opalescent tunics at just this price for the August sale.

(Main Floor)

Scissors and Shears
69c

And they're such a treat to use, for they're so splendidly sharp—but they should be for both scissors and shears are of fine steel, and such as usually sell at 1.00 pair.

(Main Floor)



New Fall Millinery "Samples" 10.00

There's so much pleasure wearing something that is decidedly new right at the start of the season!

A delightful assortment—designed to win instant approval, presented at a feature price in keeping with Hamburger's policy of "the newest for the least!"

Novelty Ready-to-Wear and Sports Hats

Of shapes and styles quite unusual—soft, crushable affairs and others as charmingly becoming, though different. And you'll quite agree the price is more than unusual, but Hamburger's has the way of doing things out of the ordinary—hence this sale of Autumn modes at this surprisingly low price.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Petticoats Of Tub Silk, 4.35

And to make them a double value they're shadow proof, which, of course, is most necessary when worn with light summer frocks. Of white tub silk, with hemstitched or scalloped edge—formerly selling at 4.95 and 6.95.

(Second Floor)

Beaded Bags, 10.00

Was there ever such a sale before! But there are just one hundred that have arrived in time for the August Sale, and so in they go at this real sale price. One could ask for nothing lovelier in quaint designs and richest colorings.

(Main Floor)

Glove Silk Vests
2.35

Not the ordinary sort, by any means, for every one has a dainty embroidered design. And the quality—well, it's that rich heavy grade that one never hopes to find at anything like this sale price. And they're of that soft shade of pink.

(Second Floor)

Annual Sale of Bedding

Prices That Need No Word of Comment to Recommend Them to the Value-Wise—Values That Are Outstandingly Important Even to the Casual Observer of Market Tendencies—All Once More Conclusively Proving the Importance of Hamburger's as a Value Center.

All Wool Blankets—Sale Priced 5.95 Pair!

An economy as warmly welcome as the blankets are welcomely warm! All wool blankets at a lower price than all comparison has found! We were very careful as to that! And we have but 200 pairs of them—the size is 66x80—and the attractive plaids are those most in demand!

Extra Fine All Wool Blankets, 10.00 a Pair!

Time to think of blankets! And it is a double economy to choose the superior qualities that wear season after season—especially when one may buy them at Hamburger's August Sale prices. Soft and fluffy—in a variety of colors and plaids—tan, lavender, pink, blue, gray, rose and yellow among them. Size 66x80.

Same Quality Wool Blankets, 72x84 at 12.95

Fine Quality Wool Blankets, 72x84, at 15.00

White Wool Blankets, 8.75 Pair

The qualities that are 12.00 and 15.00 in stock—wool, with just enough cotton to assure satisfactory laundering. There is not enough to last one day at such a price as this—two sizes to select from—66x80 and 70x80—both with the neat pink and blue borders.

White Wool Blankets, 5.95 Pair

Only a limited quantity—which means that the early shoppers are the ones who will benefit the most. The 50% wool blankets that are 9.50 in regular stock. Pink and blue borders—in size 66x80.

Wool Filled Comfortables, 7.50

Genuine all wool filling—that is what makes them so soft and warm, as well as light in weight. They were bought for this sale, which accounts for the tremendously low price. Covered with fine grade satine, with plain borders—size 72x84.

Wool Nap Blankets, 3.75 Pair

Especially will this sale presentation appeal to the apartment-house and hotel owners—for here are the most practical, best wearing and easily laundered of blankets, size 66x80, at the lowest price level yet reached. All in dainty plaids.

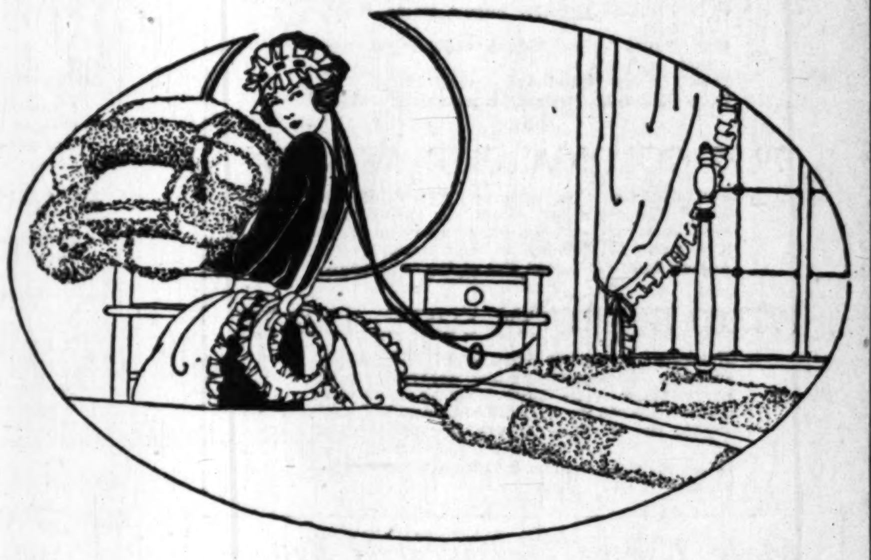
8.50 Cotton Comfortables, 5.95

Just 100—and they can't last long when so many times one hundred women will want just this kind of comfortables. A fine voile covering in floral effect, and the silk mixed mull make a varied selection, all in size 72x84.

Fine Grade Feather Pillows, 2.00

Pillows so soft and fluffy that one might think they were down—if Hamburger's did not tell you they were filled with duck and goose feathers. The covering is a fine grade linen ticking. This value alone is sufficient to bring you to the store early Monday.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)



Sale of 300 Satin Spreads!

With variety of design more extensive than one would expect even with this number in the event. Beautiful spreads of such obviously fine quality as to command instant attention.

A Sale That Is Pleasing Everyone—Ourselves Included!

Pleasing the buying public because the furniture is proving to be just exactly what pe ple have been waiting for—pleasing us because our patrons are pleased!

It Was Not Easy to Plan This Sale

—conditions had been so unsettled—there had been so much watchful waiting on th part of all to see just how the tide was going to turn! There was but one thing to do Hamburger's analyzed the situation—and that was to BUY and BUY and BUY whi the low ebb prices prevailed. Happily Hamburger's was in a position to do so and tu the demoralization of the market into channels that led to increased demand, increas production!

The Low Ebb Has Been Reached

As we advised our patrons last week—manufacturers have made no money for mont —and many of them are now re-pricing their products on the basis of cost of productio —we have already received notices of advances from some of them.

The new prices will be fair—but they will be higher—NOW is YOUR moment to pu chase to advantage and it is a distinct privilege on the part of Hamburger's to be ab to take this forward step in value-giving.

HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS' WORTH OF NEW FURNITU FOR THE ENTIRE HOME AWAITS YOUR SELECTION.

RIVERSIDE.

The number of wedding ceremonies performed the past week would indicate that the month of August is to establish a new record in that line. Among the brides was Miss Mary Herdeg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Herdeg of 872 Tenth street, who was united in marriage to Richard Garstang of Santa Ana, stationed at March Field during the war. The service was read at the home of the bride by Rev. E. Stevenson, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of Santa Ana. The bride's wedding gown was fashioned of white crepe de chine. Her veil of silk net, which fell to the hem of her skirt, was caught in her hair in a cap effect. She carried an arm bouquet of white bride's roses and fern. Miss Minerva Stow acted as maid of honor and the groom was attended by Lacy Mathis as best man. The bride is a graduate of the local High School and Junior College, and while a student at the University of California became a member of the Sigma Kappa Sorority. Mr. and Mrs. Garstang will make their home in Los Angeles.

The marriage of Miss Wenda McKee, daughter of the late Dr. James McKee of New York, well-known poloist and horseman, and Carl F. Brainard, was solemnized Wednesday afternoon at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brainard of 394 Palm avenue. The bride was attended by Miss Edna Brainard and Miss Margaret Morgan as bridesmaids, while the groom was attended by his brother, Theodore Brainard, as best man. An elaborate wedding dinner was served after the ceremony. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Brainard left for San Francisco, from which point they will sail for a honeymoon trip to the Hawaiian Islands. They will make their home at 7 Beacon Way, the home of the bride's mother.

Miss Naomi McIntosh became the bride of Albert E. Harbach Tuesday evening at a simple marriage service at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred McIntosh of 115 Roosevelt street. The service was read by Rev. J. B. Brown, pastor of the First Christian Church of Arlington. They will make their home at 681 Magnolia avenue.

PASO ROBLES.

Miss Georgia Brown, her father, W. S. Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Culver and Miss Louise Gilbert of Hollywood have returned from a two weeks' trip to Yosemite.

Dr. and Mrs. B. Borneman of The Hague, Holland, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Lane on Oak street. The Bornemans are touring California, and are so favorably impressed with the State that they intend to return to Paso Robles in the spring to live. They will go back to Holland this fall to settle business affairs before coming to California to live.

Mrs. W. J. Hyde and daughter Helen have returned to San Francisco, after spending a week at the W. A. Johnson home here.

Mrs. Paul Brown and son, La Wal, and her house guest, Miss Jones of Los Angeles, and Mr. M. S. Stevenson and daughter of San Miguel, have taken a cottage at Pismo Beach.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Taylor have returned from a three weeks' motor trip to Seattle.

GLENDALE.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Chase of Riverdale Drive, entertained Wednesday evening with an informal dinner party, in honor of Mrs. W. B. S. Trimble of Altadena. Covers were laid for ten.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schaeffer of 431 West Patterson avenue was the scene of a merry party Friday evening. A pink and yellow color scheme was carried out in the floral decorations, and the table appointments for the midnight supper were of the same colors. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Bakeman, Mr. Richardson and Mr. A. D. Kimberlin of Los Angeles, and Mr. H. Myron and Katherine Kimberlin of Glendale.

Mr. and Mrs. Donal Packer, 362 Riverdale Drive, have returned from Hermosa Beach, where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Packer. Lawrence Simpson of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Howard Walton of Menominee, Mich., are guests in the Packer home.

Wednesday evening, Miss Francis Payne of 105 North Central avenue, assisted by her mother, Mrs. M. L. Payne, entertained with a smart dinner party. Guests were Misses Lunetta and Betty Hughes of Los Angeles, and Clifford Hughes and Dudley Bullock of Bakersfield.

Miss Marjorie Imler of 336 West Park avenue, was hostess last week to a number of sister members of the Sigma Cappa sorority. Miss Imler will return to Berkeley next week, and the house party was a farewell as not all the guests will go north ths fall. Those who partook of the hospitality of Miss Imler, were Misses Helen and Leila Johnson of Rice, Wash.; Miss Louise Wilcox of Pasadena and Miss Elda Rowe of Pomona.

Mrs. Thomas Martin Furst, 505 North Jackson street, entertained with a family luncheon Tuesday. The guest of honor was her small son Thomas Furst, Jr. Other guests were Mmes. Mattison B. Jones, W. E. Evans, Lucius A. Phillips, M. E. Smith, F. W. Pigg and Misses Mayme Evans, Geraldin and Anna Ewell Phillips and Katherine Evans.

Bobby Storm and his little sister Emmy Lou, celebrated their birthday anniversaries with a party Tuesday afternoon. There were seven children and their mothers, who assisted in the celebration.

CORONA.

At 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon occurred the marriage of Miss Minnie Roberds and Mr. Glen P. Ross at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. G. W. Roberds of West Sixth street. Rev. Frank C. Reid, pastor of the First Congregation Church, officiated, using the ring ceremony.

Only the imemdiate relatives of the happy couple and a few intimate friends were guests at this happy event. Mr. and Mrs. August McClintock acted as attendants.

The room in which the wedding took place was beautifully decorated and in the corner where the bridal couple stood were great banks of lovely flowers.

The bride, who is one of Corona's delightful young ladies, was handsomely gowned in white, carrying a large bouquet of carnations and presented a perfect picture.

After a two weeks' outing spent in Los Angeles and at Big Bear Lake, Mr. and Mrs. Ross will make their home on West Sixth street, where Mr. Ross has prepared a home for the bride.

It is a common occurrence for two young ladies to celebrate their birthdays on the same day, but Miss Vera Boylan and Miss Bertha May Cave were not only born on the same day, but at the same hour of the day, and it was at their joint party that a number of their young friends were so delightfully entertained Thursday afternoon.

The city park was selected as the most enjoyable place to give such an elaborate social affair. Interesting games were played on the lawn, followed by a most interesting program.

The young ladies were the recipients of gifts of cut glass, jewelry, chinaware and handkerchiefs in honor of the occasion.

A picnic dinner was served and two handsome birthday cakes were also placed before the honor guests. Ice cream and cake were served to the following guests; Katherine

Matinee Bracelets

—the vogue of New York

It is our pleasure and privilege to introduce to Los Angeles the year's latest novelty—the matinee bracelet. An artistic conception that adds beauty and grace to the wrist—a heavy silk cord to which are attached two dainty pendants of onyx, topaz, amethyst or lapis lazuli with crystal rondelle. There are also pendants of Chinese jade.

New York's smart set has set its seal of approval upon this unique origination.

The matinee bracelet is but one of several unusual novelties in jewelry which are now being shown by this house.

The First Baptist Church was of a very pretty wedding afternoon, when Miss Feindorf became the bride Copeland. Mr. George sang "Because," and Mrs. S. A. Whistler played "Midsummer Night's Dream." The bridal party entered to the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march, and Rev. James Robertson of the Presbyterian Church performed the ceremony. Miss Mary Copeland acted as bridesmaid, and Mrs. James Copeland as best man. After a short honeymoon at San Diego, Mr. and Mrs. Copeland will reside at Hawthorne. Mrs Copeland is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pennell, and is well known among the younger set. Mr. Copeland is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Copeland, and is a graduate of the University of Southern California.

Miss Judie McKellar entertained at luncheon on last Thursday in honor of Mrs. C. W. Winston of Peru, who is a house guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cunningham. Covers were laid for the following guests: Mmes. J. C. Rives, S. S. Skidmore, J. C. Simmons, J. R. Cunningham and Miss May Foster of Los Angeles.

Several Downey people made up a party, which motored to Belmont pier on Monday evening. Those composing the party were: Mrs. J. H. McCullough and Mrs. Belle Mafs and Misses Adelaide Koppman, Irene Wright, Myrtle Wagg, Katherine McCullough and Mr. O. Backer.

Complimentary to Miss Anna May Pixley and her brother, John Pixley, of Newton, Kan., who are spending the summer at Long Beach with their parents, Mrs. Jack Gallowoa, delightfully entertained a party of young people at her home on Thursday evening. The evening was spent in dancing and games, at the close of which delicious refreshments were served. Those present were Misses Anna May Pixley, Van Ness Bain, Constance Abrams, Bertha Pratt, Edna Claire Van Matre, and Messrs. John Pixley, Arthur Munyon, Walter Mays, Norris Meyes, John Maier, Shirely Kincaid, Hogan Dillinger and Vernaz Van Matre.

GARDEN GROVE.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Smith entertained on Tuesday evening the members of the Beta Sigma Sunday-school class of the First Methodist Church, at their home, at a lawn party. A very delightful evening was enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Christenson entertained the members of the B. Y. P. U. at their home on Thursday evening. Fifty guests were present.

Mrs. W. M. Adland entertained on Sunday afternoon at her home in honor of her father, Mr. T. C. Edwards. About twenty relatives from Los Angeles, San Jose and Garden Grove were present. At the close of the afternoon a picnic dinner was served to the guests on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruel Reed, after several weeks' visit at the home of Mr. Reed's parents, left for their home, in Oakland.

ARCADIA.

Mrs. Felt, mother of Capt. H. K. Felt, former Ross Field officer, was a visitor last week en route from Honolulu, where she has been visiting her son, to her home in Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Hill are back from a vacation trip to the Yosemite. The former Arcadians, now residents of Los Angeles, had a delightful time at the park.

Friday evening the Officers' Club gave an informal dance at the Santa Anita Officers' and Enlisted Men's Club. The clubhouse was artistically decorated for the affair, and a delightful evening was enjoyed.

GRAND RUSH TO AVOID CENSORS.

Exhibitors Speed Films to Screen in New York.

"Sumurun," Among These, is Comic Opera Affair.

"Mother O' Mine" Furnishes Good Heart Interest.

BY HARRY CARR.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—There was a grand scramble of motion picture producers to be present at the meeting of the new board of motion picture censors this week.

The censors went into office at 9 o'clock Monday morning. The Sunday night previous every owner of a new picture who could buy, borrow or steal a theater to show it in, threw it on a screen, thus avoiding the legal necessity of submitting it to censorship.

Among the pictures thus hastily slid by the censors was the much heralded Pola Negri drama "Sumurun." The First National put it on in a little town outside of New York under the presumably temporary title "One Arabian Night."

I confess I don't know whether or not it is a good picture. It did not appeal to me. Some of the sets are elaborate, and to some extent the atmosphere of the Arabian Nights is maintained.

Pola Negri takes the part of Sumurun, of course—an Arab dancing girl, one of a company of traveling players. The hunchback who owns the show is in love with her, but the eye of the young prince of Bagdad falls upon her.

Their love affair is interrupted by a slave trader who buys her for the harem of the old sheik, the father of the prince. Although a willing victim the dancer carries on her love affair with the prince after becoming an inmate of the harem and is killed by the old shiek.

Although Pola Negri was fine in places it seemed to me that the harem was more like a comic opera than a real drama. I expected to see Ann Pennington or some other comic opera star come bounding in any minute.

Ernest Lubitsch, the director of "Passion" and "Deception" took the part of the hunchback, with only fair success. The actor who wrote, directed and starred in "The Golem" was the hit of the picture as the old sheik.

As is the case with so many of these big German pictures, "One Arabian Night" lacks heart interest. One always feel intense intellectual interest in Pola Negri, but one never cares what happens to her. Even in "Passion" there was nothing specially heart-rending in the execution of Du Barry.

If Lillian Gish or Mary Pickford had been in her role, you would have had to put life preservers on the audience to swim through the tears that would have been shed. The fundamental defect of the Lubitsch pictures is, that you always seem to be standing at one side looking on. There are several American directors who always make you feel that you are there on the screen living with the characters.

"MOTHER O' MINE."

An instance of this was the Thomas H. Ince pictures, "Mother O' Mine," shown at the Strand this week. There is rugged power in all Mr. Ince's pictures which the best of the foreign directors never reach. Of all our American directors I think there is no one who has more real power and sweep of narrative. Ince's pictures always build and grow until they reach an intensity that fairly sweeps you off your feet.

"Mother O' Mine" was rather a dismal and tear-soaked story made from "The Octopus" by Charles Belmont Davis. It was beautifully put on, however, with a corking cast.

It looks as though Mr. Ince has found a new star in Betty Ross Clark. She has beauty, without being too beautiful to be real, and sweetness and strength. Betty Blythe did a very vivid and fine bit of work.

Whenever I see Sessue Hayakawa on the screen I wonder how long his managers will continue to open clam shells with a fine razor.

No one can question the fact that this Japanese gentleman—this scion of the old Samurai—is one of the very finest actors in the world.

He has a fineness and a swift power that is to be found in the work of no other actor. But they do put him out in the most appalling stories. One at the Capitol is a yarn about highbinders who lurk in corners and stick knives into each other and fight for Chink ladies. It is by Lloyd Osborne, the stepson of Robert Louis Stevenson, who ought to know better.

With the exception of Gloria Payton and two or three minor characters all the actors were Japanese.

"Elinor Glyn's "The Great "Moment," with Gloria Swanson, is doing another week at the Rivoli. It is a good story even if it is rather Elinor Glynish and is doing good business.

Fatty Arbuckle is at the Rialto in "Crazy to Marry."

Hazel Dawn, the fillum star, is back on the stage again at the Republic Theater in a chaste and refined little farce called "Getting Gertie's Garter," one of the Al Woods bedroom pieces.

It is one of these plays in which the recreant husbands and wives are always hiding in the barns and the hay mows from each other and run around screaming at the tops of their voices and dive into the grandfather's clock. It is postively the roughest and rawest thing I ever heard but undeniably funny. You may blush, but you have to laugh.

William Fox seems to have a commendable ambition to fill all the vacant theaters in New York with big special pictures.

"Shame" at the Lyric is the story of a young San Franciscan who discovers that he has oriental blood in his veins and gets into all sorts of terrible straits.

"The Thunderbolt," another Fox picture which went on this week, is a grand conglomeration of every thrill that ever went into a melodrama. There is a suspicion that Fox intends to kid both the audience and the thrills, but is is entrancing from the imitation of the waterfalls in "Way Down East" to the horse race.

VAUDEVILLIAN BLIND.

A most pathetic little incident occurred in the Jefferson vaudeville theater on Fourteenth street this

Eva Tanguay's Second Week at Pantages.

Eva Tanguay will head the new vaudeville show for a second week, starting with Monday's matinee.

Miss Tanguay has so thoroughly enjoyed her week's engagement, and the crowded houses that have greeted her each afternoon and night have so completely reciprocated the feeling, that it was not difficult to secure her consent to a second week in Los Angeles.

But eastern vaudeville managers who hold contracts for her appearance at their theaters on specified dates were not so easily disposed of, and it required considerable persuasion, financial and otherwise, to release some of the dates.

Miss Tanguay's appearance here after two years' absence from the stage—most of which time she spent right here in Los Angeles—has been the greatest triumph of her triumphant career. Every professional, from politician to pugilist, knows that a "come-back" is the most uncertain thing in public life. Public sentiment changes. People forget. Tastes in entertainment are unstable. But Miss Tanguay reentered vaudeville last winter in New York, and was admitted by critics and acclaimed by the public to be greater than ever in her own cyclonic way.

Eva Tanguay is absolutely unique in vaudeville. She has been a headliner for ten consecutive years, and in most theaters where she appears her name is the only one used in the advertising. Her first appearance was as an extra act—without a contract. The manager of the theater is said to have shed real tears over his lack of foresight in allowing the greatest of vaudeville stars to slip through his hands in this way. A five-year contract with Eva Tanguay at the salary paid her for her first week would have made him a millionaire.

For her coming week's engagement at New Pantages, Miss Tanguay will present new songs and costumes.

A "Regular Pantages Show" is promised along with Miss Tanguay, including Irvin V. Willatt's latest film production, "Partners of the Tide," from Joseph C. Lincoln's novel of that name.

The De Havens at Alhambra in "Girl in Taxi."

In order to continue the first run local showing of the First National picturization of the famous stage comedy, "The Girl in the Taxi," officials of the West Coast Theaters, Inc., decided to place the amusing satire on morals in the Alhambra, where the critical motion-picture goer may thoroughly enjoy the hilarious situation of father, son and uncle, keeping a date with the same girl, who happens to be a young married woman on her honeymoon.

The fast and furious tempo, with which the comedy moves along has afforded those who have seen it during the first two days of its initial showing, a source of amusement rarely offered.

"The Girl in The Taxi," is the sort of picture that throws a man or woman into a complete state of forgetfulness, and leaves him or her smiling pleasantly on the homeward way.

In the cast are Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven, Grave Cunard, King Baggott, and many others of screen note.

As the young son of a sportive father, whom his family liked to regard as an angel, and whom his mother would call "my baby," Carter De Haven provides a series of situations, which will make a saint give in to the general hilarity.

The Alhambra is also showing the first run International News and other screen novelties.

"EXIT THE VAMP."

Ethel Clayton Finishes Film; Next Is From Brieux Play.

Ethel Clayton has just completed her picture "Exit the Vamp," Clara Beranger's original story, which was directed by Frank Urson and supervised by Thompson Buchanan.

Her next picture will be "The Cradle" which she will start in two weeks. This is adapted from a stage play by Eugene Brieux. The continuity is by Olga Printzlau and Buchanan will supervise.

"TOL'BLE DAVID" CAST.

A strong supporting cast has been selected for Richard Barthelmess in "Tol'ble David," by Joseph Hergesheimer, in which he is now being starred. The picture is to be released throught Associated First National. The cast includes: Miss Gladys Hulette, who made such a hit as the star of Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird" and has been featured on the stage and screen in young girl parts since she was 7 years old. Miss Hulette is playing the role of Esther, David's boyhood sweetheart.

Double Bill at Grauman's All Coming Week.

A twin-star program featured by Thomas Meighan in "The Conquest of Canaan," and Buster Keaton in "The Goat," opens at Grauman's Monday.

In the production derived from Booth Tarkington's novel Meighan grasps the chance of giving to the cinema public a fine sample of his dramatic talent in his interpretation of a shiftless young fellow, virtually driven from his small-town home, to which he returns later in his life and purges the community of its corrupt politics.

This sympathetic, but manly role commands the widest range of Meighan's ability.

The players in the supporting cast are Doris Kenyon, Diana Allen, Al Egleston, Alice Fleming, Charles Abbe, Malcolm Gradley, Paul Everton, Macy Harlam, Henry Hallam, Charles Hartley, Louis Hendricks, Jed Pronty, Cyril Ring, J. D. Walsh and Riley Hatch.

R. William Neill directed and Frank Wright Tuttle made the film adaption.

The small-town location scenes were filmed at Asheville, N. C., the famous southern summer resort. Booth Tarkington personally commended this production of his celebrated novel.

In "The Goat" Buster bounds and is butted about so swiftly that his comedies of the past seem almost as dry as a lesson on how to make the desert hot. Virginia Fox is the leading lady.

In addition Sid Grauman will stage an atmospheric prologue. Mischa Guterson has arranged an interpretative orchestral musical score to accompany these varied features. Henry Murtagh will play organ selections.

Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle's "Crazy to Marry," with Lila Lee and Bull Montana, who also appears in person at the evening performances, and "Twenty Minutes in an Old London Rendezvous," featuring twenty people, will be presented today for the last times.

ART NOTABLES IN "RUBAIYAT."

Musicians and Others Join in Persian Pageant.

Spectacular Scenes Draw Prominent Spectators.

Feature Marks Advance in Pictorial Lighting.

Promising one of the most brilliant and authentic productions the screen has ever seen, the filming of the spectacular episodes of Omar Khayam's "Rubaiyat," by Ferdinand Pinney Earle, is progressing smoothly at the Hollywood studios. Two years of research preceded the actual camera work which has now been going on for six weeks with at least three months' work still ahead.

A feature of the production is the use of various methods and styles of certain famous painters, so that the scenes will be a succession of lovely pictures. New lighting effects and a new continuity method are also being employed.

The "Rubaiyat" set is proving a Mecca, these days, for many of the well-known artists and musicians who are living in this city, and on Friday, the occasion of the filming of a huge scene in which hundreds of persons were used, showing the yearly religious procession of Persia mourning the death of two of Mohammed's sons, an impromptu gathering of many of the noted ones added greatly to the interest.

Among the spectators were Sir Frank Popham Young, late Commissioner in the Punjab of India, who has himself marched in these processions with the native worshippers; Baron and Baroness Von Bissing, Commander A. G. Foote of the Royal Navy, Charles Wakefield Cadman, and Louis Gottschalk, composers.

Taking part as Persians in a market-place scene that covered the entire stage space were Ariadna Roumanova, the talented composer; Melba Meising, the musician wife of Charles Meredith, the actor; Mrs. Louis Gottschalk and her daughter Gloria; Mrs. Caroline Cadman and Mrs. Mable Schooley, mother and sister of Cadman; Mrs. Alfred Kastner and her two daughters; Aimee Torrianni, singer and violinist, and the two sons of E. H. Kaufman, president and general manager of Interocean Film Accessories.

No less a person than Alfred Kastner, world famous harpist, now of the Philharmonic Orchestra, played the piano accompaniment for the great religious procession, which it was found necessary to film in three sections in spite of the extensive setting.

The entire Commerce Club of Polytechnic High School, together with the many members of the dramatic classes, a total of seventy-five, took part in costume and make-up, with Charles Edwin Locke, instructor of business law and commerce, and Miss Cora Abrams, instructor of dramatics, as interested spectators.

A tremendously dramatic story has been written by Mr. Earle founded on the fragmentary episodes of the Rubaiyat, while Charles Wakefield Cadman is writing a special musical score to accompany the picture. Edward S. Curtis, artist, is in charge of the still photography, and George Benoit, cameraman, is doing new lighting effects.

Frederick Warde is said to be producing a wonderful characterization of the leading role, while Edwin Stevens, Hedwiga Reicher, Snitz Edwards, Kathleen Key, Ramon Samlengos, Warren Rogers, Paul Weigel and Meeka Reicher all have leading parts.

HIGH SCHOOL WILL STAGE ONE-ACTERS.

A program of four one-act plays will mark the end of work in the dramatic class summer session of the Los Angeles High School, the program to be presented next Friday morning in the school auditorium under the direction of Annice Campbell Moore, dramatic instructor.

The plays under consideration, and which will probably be produced are "'Op-o'-Me Thumb," by Frederick Fenn and Richard Pryce; "Dust of the Road," by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman; "Overtones," and "The Pot Boiler," both by Alice Gerstenberg. They will be presented in the order named.

over evil. Evil is represented by the villain, the disowned nephew of a prominent villager, while good is represented by a combination of characters, including the priest, a swearing sea-captain and a Jewish capitalist. Against such an alliance as this even the devil himself would have a hard time winning out.

Considerable skill is evinced in the unspinning of the melodramatic plot and a lot of human detail is adroitly worked into the story. The love interest blends a variety of elements, while the big war between the interests of greed and those of sacrifice build up a forceful climax.

Beside Mr. Stone and Mr. Gordon, the cast will offord capital roles to Jane Novak, Mildred June, Eugene Besserer, Harold Goodwin, Dore Davidson and others. Miss Novak is the feminine principal, while Miss June has an ingenue role, this being her first venture in a dramatic production. She has heretofore been appearing in the Sennett comedies.

The present week the company is on location in the vicinity of Monterey—Seventeen Mile Drive, to be exact—where scenes along the New England Coast are being duplicated.

California to Have Powerful Picture Bill.

Pauline Frederick will be seen at the California beginning today, in the world premiere of "The Sting of the Lash," which is said to be the biggest and most remarkable of her career before the camera.

Not only has Miss Frederick a role in this production, which gives her full scope for the expression of her dramatic talent and versatility, but it is promised that she is seen in a characterization entirely different from anything she has previously done. From a society butterfly, accustomed to having her every whim satisfied, she is gradually transformed into a woman, who lives and suffers and learns life's great lessons after a battle against tremendous odds.

"The Sting of the Lash" is a story which deals primarily with human beings, not as some writer or poet has imagined them, but as they really are, with all their faults and virtues. The situations are logical and realistic, and like that life, teeming with romance, action and drama.

The scenes of the story were taken for the most part in the beautiful mountain country back of Mt. Whitney, and neither time or expense was spared in getting unusual lighting effects and wonderful photography.

Miss Frederick is supported by a capable cast of well-known players, headed by Clyde Fillmore, Lionel Belmore, Jack Richardson, Lawson, Butt, Edwin Stevens, Evelyn McCoy, Betty Hall and Percy Challenger.

The California Concert Orchestra will present one of Mr. Elinor's brilliant musical accompaniments to the feature, and will also offer selections from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" as the overture.

A special comedy feature will be the latest Mack Sennett special fun release, "Call a Cop," which is promised to be one of the merriest this famous producer has ever made.

HILARITY WEEK.

Miller's Has Will Rogers and Harold Lloyd on Bill.

Another double "fun program" has been arranged for Miller's, beginning today.

Will Rogers, world famous cowboy comedian, is the headliner in his most popular Goldwyn success, "Jubilo," in which he is presented in the role of a kindly and lovable wanderer from Vagabondia—a hobo—a bit of human driftwood gliding slowly and aimlessly down the stream of life; a figure both amusing and pathetic.

Work, water, and worry he abhors as things to be avoided as one would a pestilence; and the evading of them is to him a fine art at which he is past master.

Then into his life enters the miracle of love with his meeting a sweet, wholesome country girl. Life takes on a new meaning, and he faces his new-found world with hope in his heart and a grim determination to make good.

It is a human, homely, humorous story of the screen and Rogers makes Jubilo a breathing, living figure who could bring tears of sympathy and laughter out of a Rodin statue.

The companion feature is the Harold Lloyd comedy of riot and fun, "Rainbow Island." This is a brand new print of one of his first big successes, and is said to be one of the fastest and most out-of-the-ordinary feature comedies he ever made.

"PETER" POPULAR.

Robert Edeson Shares Honors With Marian Wightman.

How does it feel to be a nonentity—to suddenly realize that you are simply considered Mrs. So-and-so's husband? That is the situation that confronts Peter Irving in that delightful comedy, "Peter," which begins its third week at the Majestic Theater this afternoon.

Behind the comedy vein in which Marian Wightman has written her charming play lies a great human story of a brilliant man overshadowed in these sordid days by his wife's money. How he breaks through this intangible web that loses for him the respect of his fellowmen provides a charming story, and in the hands of that excellent actor, Robert Edeson, the character is made human and understandable.

The play has scored a brilliant success, and Thomas Wilkes, who is responsible for the presentation of the play and actor, is to be congratulated for the deserved reception accorded both.

SEEKING A REMEDY FOR WHITE PLAGUE.

[illegible], most dreaded of ancient [illegible], is no longer a plague. It [illegible] even feared, by the intelligent. Lepers in Honolulu are not [illegible] any more on the Island of [illegible], but are taken to hospitals [illegible] treatment, like any other patient. Chaulmoogra oil cures all [illegible] most advanced cases.

Dr. Ernest L. Walker, on the [staff] of the Hooper Institute in San [Francisco], is experimenting with [this] wonder-working oil in the [hope that] it may do for tuberculosis what it is doing for leprosy. [There] are scientific grounds, he says, [for believing] that it is a cure for [the disease]. Its acids are found [to be] germicidal, and fatal to both [illegible] bacilli.

[illegible] in fighting tuberculosis has been that the disease develops in the form of "tubercles" which have hard, waxy shells or coats and are impervious to any kind of medicine that has yet been tried. If chaulmoorga oil, or some preparation of it, will penetrate those tubercles and kill them without also killing the healthy cells in which they are imbedded, the cure so long sought will have been found, and another great plague added to the list of scientific conquests.

The doctors are experimenting now with rabbits, guinea pigs and other animals in which tuberculosis may be developed and treated as in human beings.

They are cautious of making rash claims in a field where so many hopes have been blighted, but they say they think there is a possibility of their being able to announce a positive cure within a year.—[Tacoma Ledger.

A charming bit of civilization in "The Miracles of the Jungle," at Symphony.

Jungle Film's Second Book at Symphony.

The second book of "The Miracles of the Jungle," called "The Leopard's Vengance," goes on at the New Symphony, starting today.

Few pictures have possessed the unusual appeal that this massive thirty-reel production seems to have, and if anything the second book is even more thrilling and entertaining than the first one.

The most treacherous of all jungle beasts is the leopard. For months, even years, he will obey commands and then comes a time when without warning he strikes out in mad fury.

Twenty-seven leopards, a large number of lions, tigers and elephants are used in the second book and the story starts with something that is entirely new to the screen. In Africa, when hunting lions, a lariat is often the only weapon used. In the second book of "The Miracles of the Jungle" a lion is lassoed from the wing of an airplane, drawn several hundred feet into the air, and then dropped into a lake.

A realistic desert sandstorm goes to make up one of the big scenes in the picture, and lions and camels, maddened by the stinging sand, rush madly out into the desert.

Ordinarily, the camel is a docile beast of burden, but those who know the humped individual recognize in him one of the meanest of all animals. A natural grouch, one never knows when he will stretch out his long neck and do enough damage to cause a casualty. One animal the camel fears and that is the lion, so when the desert storm sweeps up over the sand and the camels run before the lions it is a race in deadly earnest, for the ungainly animals are actuated by a fear that has come down to them through the centuries.

E. A. Martin, who wrote and directed the story, has never once deviated from nature's laws of the jungle, for Martin is a well-known naturalist and one of the highest of authorities on animals and their habits. He stages in "The Miracles of the Jungle" something that has never been staged with success before, and that is a thrilling battle between a man and a leopard. The combat between player and beast almost ended in a casualty, for leopards sometimes forget there is such a thing as a camera and fight in earnest.

Gus Edwards in Song Revue at the Orpheum.

August 8 will see the advent at the Orpheum of Gus Edwards, greatest discoverer of talent in the world. By profession Gus Edwards is a song writer and producer of song revues, but along with this he has Sherlock Holmes, Hawkshaw and William Burns backed off of the boards for detecting that elusive something which makes actors—talent.

Edwards has given, to the theatrical world such performers as Lila Lee, Georgie Price, Eddie Cantor, Herman Timberg, George Jessel, Lew Brice, Lillian Gonne and goodness knows how many others.

His present Orpheum act, which is by far his best, has a cast of thirty people. It is called "The Song Revue of 1921," and is the most pretentious effort of his career. The usual gathering of proteges come with him, among whom are Alice and Hazel Furness, Chester Fredericks, Sandy, a little immigrant Scotch lad, and a bunch of beautiful girlies, who the advance dope credits with being "all over 16 and under 20."

This is one of the few of his revues with which Mr. Edwards has appeared in person, and along with his new crop of proteges, he promises an earful of pleasing modern Edwards melodies, an eyeful of amazing costumes and a stage full of the most beautiful settings imaginable.

Featured on the bill is Tom Wise, who with his fine company headed by Miss Nila Mac, has made a niche for himself in local vaudeville annals, with his sketch, "Memories."

A treat for music lovers will be the work of Marion Weeks, the dainty American coloratura soprano, and Henri Barron, tenor, both of whom were previously with the Chicago Grand Opera Company. Mr. Barron achieved fame when he sang "The Girl of the Golden West" for the first time in English. Miss Weeks is said to have the highest soprano voice in the world.

Zuhn and Dreis, billed as "Dementus Americanos, Habitat North America," are biological specimens of the genus "nut." Frank (Texas) Walker and his dainty partner, Guadalope Warne, have a line of gab and smiles that endears them to the hearts of the audience right off the bat. Walker's cowboy talk is refreshing and amusing.

In the vernacular, Bill Bailey and Lynn Cowan, with their pretty partner, Estelle Davis, have been "knocking 'em cold" with their pep and syncopated melodies. Their second week will probably be a bigger hit than their first. Mang and Snyder, gymnasts whose work is far above the average, remain a second week.

IN EARLE WILLIAMS FILM.

Gertrude Astor has signed with Vitagraph to play an important role in the Earle Williams picture, "Lucky Carson." Director Wilfrid North has been engaged in making the exteriors about the country clubs.

RUSH TO AVOID CENSORS' IRE.

week. Ben Welch, the old monologuist who used to convulse the audiences at the Orpheum in Los Angeles with his Jewish stories, was brought on for his act, stone blind.

Mr. Welch suffered this agonizing misfortune some months ago. For a time he went on as usual with his act, few of the audience realizing his condition. They took him to the wings and steered him for the center of the stage which he accomplished by following the line of a rug for a given number of steps. He has now given this up and is led to a place on a bench by his vaudeville partner and gives his monologue with a brave gayety.

DE MILLE TO TALK TO P.A.'S.

Cecil B. De Mille, director-general of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, will speak before the "Wampas" when that organization meets Monday evening at the Hollywood Assembly Tea Rooms. Mr. De Mille will talk informally with the members on "Possible Dangers in the Present Film Situation." His remarks will touch a phase of motion-picture activities aside from those previously discussed by Jesse L. Lasky, Irving Thalberg, William De Mille, Sol Lesser and other noted executives who have addressed the organization. Barrett Kiesling will be chairman for the evening.

THE REJUVENATED KINEMA.

A few years ago the Kinema had a "grand opening" that dazzled all beholders, for it was acclaimed, and was, the handsomest motion-picture house in Los Angeles. It remained handsome, but other handsome houses soon rose all round Los Angeles. This is the law of competition, in beauty as well as in business.

Therefore, not so very long ago, the Kinema got busy that it might make itself again the "one and only." Painters and decorators, lamplighters, carpenters, paperers and plasterers, all top-notchers in the art of turning out beauty and utility in equal proportions, were requisitioned and set to work, with the result that the well-known theater was "dark" for five days and nights, but is now illumined with a splendor warranted to necessitate blinkers for the fans.

The new splendor and the new comfort in seats were made manifest yesterday with one of the most enticing bills ever offered, nothing less than Charles Ray in his latest screen production, "Scrap Iron," taken from a story by Charles E. Van Loan. The picture is one of Ray's best, the story is one of Van Loan's best. So we're all promised a very good time at the Kinema, both this week and all through the following fifty-one weeks of the fiscal year—unless the Kinema suddenly decides to darken itself again and spring even greater splendors upon us.

The complete metamorphosis of the first large screen theater ever built in Los Angeles into a meeting place of the arts allied to the screen, where the surroundings are a symphony of color, rich in design and luxurious in furnishings, was planned in advance for many months.

The stage and lighting equipment have been so perfected that presentation can be advanced to a high pinnacle of excellence.

The surrounding bill features a musical, novelty, "An Operatic Nightmare," which has six of the Southland's most famous soloists in its cast. Rene Williams has selected "Pomp and Circumstances" as his festive overture, while various other features of high-water quality round out the bill.

"LAVENDER AND OLD LACE" POPULAR FILM.

An instance of a photoplay coming quietly to the screen and then proceeding to register notable success is "Lavender and Old Lace" at Tally's. So large have been the crowds during the past week that a second week has been decided upon starting Monday, and from all indications "Lavender and Old Lace" may run several weeks, it is said. Marguerute Snow returns to the screen in this picture after a long absence. Seena Owen, Louis Bennison and James Corrigan are featured.

"Sweet Daddy," a hilarious comedy, news events and a musical program are added attractions.

WALLACE AT THE WURLITZER — GRAUMAN'S RIALTO ORCHESTRA

PREDICTS SLOW FILM RECOVERY.

Need is for Quality Output, Says Lasky Manager.

But Confidence in Future is Also Wanted.

Public Shops for Real Values Nowadays.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—"The motion-picture business is not going to rebound from its present depression like a rubber ball. It is going to respond, however, to the kind of pictures given the public this fall, and it is nothing but super-quality productions that will enable the box offices of the country to register profits in the face of general conditions which may continue for some time to be unsatisfactory."

In the furnishing of such pictures by producers during the next few months lies the surest hope of a strong revival in the industry, in the opinion of S. R. Kent, Famous Players-Lasky's general manager of distribution, who has just returned to New York from a business trip of nearly a month, which took him all the way to Los Angeles.

"There is nothing so necessary at the present time as confidence," said Mr. Kent. "The pessimists, the yellow-streakers, are going to be eliminated during the coming year, without any question. This business cannot carry as many quitters as I have seen in all branches of the business during the past few months.

"In spite of the present depression, this industry today stands head and shoulders—as far as condition is concerned—above any other national industry of any consequence that I know of, and there is no other industry so fortunately situated to reap the benefits that will accrue through a sane deflation and sane reorganization in the business world.

"I find that the public is more critical than it has ever been regarding the quality of its picture entertainment. It continues to shop line of merchandise for which it is shopping for value in every other lines of merchandise for which it is spending its money. It does not object, even today, to paying the fullest price for the picture that gives real entertainment.

"The public wants new faces, provided these faces carry more with them than mere beauty. It wants new stories, new situations, and this means the passing out of many of the old, hackneyed types of motion pictures that two years ago could draw enough patronage to make them profitable."

Can't Live Down Mean Roles in the Films.

It is almost impossible to live down a bad reputation, even though one's reputation as a villainess be on the screen only. Ruth Royce, "bad woman" of the films, has discovered this fact and despite many efforts to secure nice appealing parts that win the plaudits and sympathy of her audiences, she finds herself cast continually in roles of infamy and villainy.

Some three years ago, when she deserted the dramatic stage for the screen she was cast for the role of a "heavy" and she played the part with such skill that she has been compelled to play similar roles ever since.

Miss Royce performs her latest acts of villainy as the half-breed Indian girl in the "Man Trackers," a dramatic story of the Northwest Mounted Police, at the Superba.

Her dark type of beauty, her raven locks and her interpretive ability combine to make her effectual in the role, and if she does not win the sympathy of the audience, she certainly gains admiration for the skill with which she acts.

Miss Royce has added to her laurels as a villainess in such productions as "The Great Air Robbery," "Under Crimson Skies" and "The Vanishing Dagger."

plained Tom. "I didn't act very well, I suppose, and the director commenced cussing. I walked out without saying a word. Presently I thought better of it, and came back to try again. I guess the director thought better of it, too. He treated me all right after that."

Tom Gallery probably never would have been in the picture business at all if it hadn't been for the war.

It was as a cub reporter on a Chicago newspaper at 15 years of age that he began his professional career. But that job didn't last long.

Tom tells about his experiences blithely—

"It was during the war down in Mexico, and I had the job of telephoning the Mexican battles around to small towns near by. But I mixed the names—used to substitute when I couldn't spell the right ones, and had 'em fighting clear up in Wisconsin. So, rather than move the war up to Wisconsin, they fired me."

Afterward Tom went to work as cub reporter on another Chicago paper. He was sent out to interview some ghosts in a sawmill that were frightening the residents of a suburb, the local social for physical research being all het up.

"The society contained women aged from 20 to 90, and I interviewed them all, after I had listened to the ghosts. I guess I told the truth a little too much about those women, because I got into trouble again.

"But I'm going back to newspaper work again some time—when I can afford it!" laughed Tom.

Just then along came the war and Gallery enlisted like a good American. He saw exciting service as a member of the Army tank corps in the Argonne Forest and at other points.

"Yep, I used to sit on a strap in one of those hot tanks for hours at a time!" kidded Tom. "Nope, I never caught any Germans single-handed. But I'll tell you something funny that happened. One guy in our tank crawled out one day and sat on the turret with a spy-glass All of a sudden he heard the yell, 'Kamerad!' A bunch of Germans gave themselves up as prisoners. They thought the spy-glass was a gun!"

It was only fifteen months ago that Gallery began work in pictures. Now he's a well-known leading man.

They'll go pretty far, in their chosen line, those two clever, clean-cut young people, Zasu and Tom, the screen Micawbers. Then, by and by, when they retire from the profession, who knows?

P.S.—At present their only twins are or is a twin-six.

RUSSIAN MASTER TO PRESENT NEW BALLET.

George Smart, ballet master from Russia, is forming his company for the initial performance of an operatic ballet, and will soon begin rehearsals. The ballet will be presented early next fall.

Mr. Smart has a well-established reputation as director of original artistic dance creations. "The Garden of Love," one of his productions, was recently given at the Ambassador Hotel, with Edward Gezart and Katherine Duffy, two dancers who are also to take leading parts in the new ballet.

The entire new production will be designed and staged by Mr. Smart, and on the same occasion an Egyptian ballet and a Bohemian ballet, both of which have never been produced in this country, will be presented.

Classes for training in the production are open to both advanced students and beginners. The Smart Studio is located at 3108 West Seventh street.

BUSTER PROVES GOOD SLANG DICTIONARY.

What is the meaning of "blah?"

Buster Keaton, who releases his comedies through Associated First National Pictures, Inc., took an afternoon off recently to explain.

"Blah," says Buster, "comes from the French. When one is blase one feels blah. Vindelicet and par exemple.

"When the home-brew hootch has been unusually heavy and air bubbles filter up through the cerebral interstices, then one feels blah."

Mr. Keaton also gives the correct pronunciation.

"So many people," says the eminent comedian, "mispronounce this new addition to the words created by the war, that I am tempted to set them straight. Blah is pronounced with a rising and falling motion of the lips, the cheeks meanwhile slightly distended or puffed out.

"The 'a' in blah is long as in bar—the latter a counter-like convenience adjacent to a brass rail, and much used by a passing generation.

"Blah is used to express a variety of emotions, among them fatigue, disgust, ennui, disinterestedness, disbelief, scorn, the degree of any emotion depending up on the emphasis given the expressive diphthong."

THE CARNIVAL OF STARS.

An absolutely unique film is "The Carnival Number of Screen Snapshots," which has just arrived in Los Angeles, and will be flashed at the Kinema, in conjunction with the Charles Ray feature, "Scrap Iron," at the theater's grand reopening next Wednesday evening.

"Screen Snapshots" depicts every available phase and detail of the Actors' Fund Festival given on the Los Angeles Speedway a few weeks ago.

Over forty-five famous men and women who took part in the reel and who contributed their talents toward the success of the mammoth benefit are to be guests at the Kinema on Wednesday.

"Among those present," that they may see themselves as others saw them on the Speedway, will be Mary Pickford, Charles Ray, Douglas Fairbanks, Gloria Swanson, Bert Lytell, Bebe Daniels, Mabel Normand, Will Rogers, Pauline Frederick, Ethel Clayton, Lila Lee, Antonio Moreno, Charley Murray Louise Fazenda, Ruth Roland, Daniel Frohman, Elinor Glyn, Sir Gilbert Parker, Rita Weiman, Hoot Gibson, Rosemary Theby, Dustin Farnum, William Desmond, William Russell, Rupert Hughes, Hal Roach, Ted Sloan, Carter de Haven, Marjorie Daw, Tom Mix, Lee Moran, Edna Purviance, Gene Stratton Porter, Tew Shawn and the Denishawn Dancers.

Gamut Will Stage Music Festival.

The "goddess of music" is to be crowned at an elaborate allegorical pageant given by the Gamut Club for music folk of the city the 20th inst., on the grounds of the Sunset Canyon Country Club, in the Verdugo mountains. The affair will be the annual "Sylvan Gambol" of the organization, and promises to be by far a more entertaining event than any other the club has ever held.

"The quest for greater music" will be the motif of the annual jaunt of the musicians, and will be symbolized with a colorful production in which medieval costumes will be used.

Two main groups of singers, the Orpheus Club and the Gamut Club, will do the solo and chorus work, under the direction of Joseph Dupuy, who also is in general charge of the program for the gambol. He will be assisted by Hans Linne, and Raymond McFeeters, Orpheus Club accompanist.

On Saturday evening this year's club play, especially written and produced for the occasion, will be presented by a cast selected from club members. This will be followed by a camp-fire program of instrumental music, song, story and sentiment.

FILM THROWS LIGHT ON ANCIENT SYMBOL.

In "The Scarab Ring," the mystery photoplay, at Clune's Broadway this week, there is an interesting sidelight on the ancient legends that surround the scarab or scarabaeuse, a large black beetle found in Egypt and in prehistoric times held as a symbol of resurrection and immortality.

The scarab was a symbol of the sun god, Chepera, and signified also the world, man, only-begotten, father and generation. The ancient Egyptian believed that there were no females of this beetle and used the stone facsimiles as talismans and ornaments.

An ancient custom among the Egyptians was to put a scarab inside each mummy in place of the heart. In embalming the dead, Egyptians removed the heart and vital organs, placing them in a vase near the mummy case. As the ancients believed that the soul would some day return to inhabit the body they felt it necessary to insert something that would keep it alive. Thus arose the ancient belief that a scarab would keep the heart beating until the soul returned to the body.

Many strange tales were told of curses that were given by scarabs when the bodies of the sacred dead were molested. It was the custom among some of the Egyptians to chant a curse which would follow the hand that destroyed a mummy.

Evidently Harriet Gaylord, the author of "The Scarab Ring" was familiar with some of these traditions for her story has an underlying current of the curse of the scarab running through it.

MURTAGH NOW DIRECTS.

Henry B. Murtagh, organist of Grauman's Theater, has been made assistant conductor of the orchestra, sharing this honor with Jaime Overton, long popular in the position of assistant to Mischa Guterson. This move follows as a direct result of Mr. Murtagh's excellent work in leading "Brother Bill," played by the orchestra during Elks' week. Mr. Murtagh will continue his duties as organist, acting in his new capacity of assistant director as well.

Mrs. G. W. Ellington and daughter Miss Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. George Ellington and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Malone and children spent Sunday at Long Beach.

Mrs. B. F. Spriggs is spending several days with Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hillis at Seal Beach. Mr. Spriggs will join her on Saturday evening and they will return on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Crawford and children, John and Theodosia, motored to Venice on Sunday. Their daughter Miss Margaret, returned with them Sunday evening after spending a week with friends there.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Braley motored to Laguna Beach on Thursday. Miss Leora Nims and her sister returned with them after spending several weeks there.

J. E. Hibsch and daughters Mamie, Zelma and Ina, George and Olive Schnabacher and John A. Haywood spent Sunday at Lincoln Park, where they took in the concessions and enjoyed a row on the lake.

UPLAND.

Gilbert Pearsall, who is spending the summer at Alta Loma Rancho, the delightful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Lincoln Swift, entertained a coterie of friends at dinner Wednesday evening at The Sycamores at Red Hill. Dancing was enjoyed throughout the evening. Covers were arranged at the dinner table for Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Heinecke, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Colladay, Mr. and Mrs. Welles Thompson Ross, Mr. and Mrs. Swift, Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson Howe, Mrs. Leilia Upjohn, Mrs. McCormick, Miss Vera Demens, Leonard J. Frankish, J. F. Regis Toomey and Gilbert Pearsall.

The Rev. Bert Foster, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, and Mrs. Foster, returned Saturday from Balboa, where they spent several days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Augustus Hanson at their summer cottage at the coast.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Fossett and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Rogers returned Tuesday evening from a delightful motor tour to Yosemite Valley. They made the trip north by the valley route and returned by the way of the coast.

ONTARIO.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Benson (Constance Minter) recently back from their honeymoon, were honored Tuesday evening when members of the First Christian Church, in which they are prominent, entertained with a reception in the bungalow clubrooms of the church. Blossoms and greenery transformed the rooms into fairylike dells and happy informality marked the occasion. A brief program of music and readings added to the pleasure of the occasion and toward the evening's close a buffet supper was served. The guests of honor were presented with a handsome tapestry davenport. The reception was attended by 200.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Northcott (Dorothy Wilkins) were happily surprised Tuesday evening when members of the Ontario Volunteer Fire Department, to which the bridegroom belongs, gathered at their home, 710 North Vine avenue, for an impromptu reception. A mock wedding participated in by Arthur Peterson, Lea Westfall, Wiley A. Poindexter, and Chief of Police W. O. Hardy was a feature of the evening, and a musical program was enjoyed. Delicious refreshments were served.

Many Ontarians are at Catalina Island for their summer outings or are planning to journey thither in the near future. Dr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor and children have taken a cottage on the island for the month, having gone over Monday, as have also Mr. and Mrs. Ward Walker, and son, Clegg. The Walkers are to be joined shortly by Mr. Walker's father and sister, Edward H. Walker and Miss Lucile Walker of Peoria, Ill.

MANHATTAN BEACH.

Elias Hecht, flutist in the Chamber Music Society of San Francisco, which has taken up quarters here for the summer, spent last week in San Francisco.

Mrs. A. Abbott of Oklahoma City arrived recently for a visit at the home of her father, Ammon Daugherty.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter J. Grall and family have moved into their new home on Twenty-third and Manhattan avenue.

Mrs. T. N. Alder of Pasadena is here for a two weeks' visit with her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Withers.

HERMOSA BEACH.

R. L. Richardson of Winnipeg, Ala., arrived this week for a visit with his brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Morrison of Pasadena, who are spending the summer here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Hagenbuch and son, left Thursday on a two weeks' motor trip to the Santa Barbara Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Belcher of, Claremont have taken a house here on Hill street for a month's stay.

Dr. George Watson Cole, who is in charge of the great library on the Huntington estate at San Marino is spending his summer vacation here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Ellis of Los Angeles have come down for a month's stay on the beach. Both

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

[illegible] are prominent [illegible] circles in the [illegible]. The H. E. Bollenger family of El [illegible] are here for a few weeks' [illegible]. They have taken a cottage on Hermosa avenue.

Hermosa, Manhattan, Redondo and Los Angeles society was represented in the eighty women who played bridge for charity at the home of Mrs. Henry Kinsley, Wednesday afternoon. The party was given as a benefit for the Los Angeles Children's Hospital. Tea was served at the close of the games. Mrs. Kinsley was assisted in serving by Mrs. Herbert C. Howard, Mrs. J. Alexander, Mrs. Frank Pease, Mrs. Francis E. Rice and Miss Ryna Kinsley.

REDONDO BEACH.

Mrs. George Cate has returned home from a pleasant stay in the mountains near Redlands.

Mrs. Ralph Hanson, who has been visiting her mother, Mrs. E. Gillespie for a month, returned Monday to her home in Paso Robles.

Miss Letonia McDowell, who taught music in the schools here last year, has just returned home from attending the summer session at Berkeley. Miss McDowell expects to spend several weeks with friends in Long Beach before going to Taft, where she will teach music in the high school the coming year.

Miss Iona Gale is entertaining her cousin, Mrs. Mabel Nelson of Yorba Linda, this week. Mrs. Nelson is a very clever artist and a well-known designer of hand-wrought jewelry.

Miss Nina Mangold, who has been attending the summer session at the University of California, is home to spend a two weeks' recess with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mangold before the opening of the fall semester of the university year.

Miss Amy Morrell of Los Angeles and nephew, Lyman Morrell of this city, returned Monday night from a six weeks' motor trip to Carson City, Nev., and the Yosemite. They camped out on the way and enjoyed some good fishing in the Feather River. Miss Morrell is now spending a few days at the Morrell home here.

BREA.

Among those returning from summer vacations are Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Sargent and daughter Ina, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bryan and family from Big Bear, Esther Casner, Violet [illegible], Ina Prince, Mrs. A. J. Ross from Camp Baldy; James McGrath from the Big Tree district, and Mr. and Mrs. Merryfield and family, who have been spending some weeks at Catalina.

The Rev. W. Corlette, pastor of the Nazarene Church, with his family, will spend a few days at San Diego. The balance of their vacation will be spent at Redondo Beach.

George Schigenhaff and wife left Sunday for Santa Cruz and San Francisco, where they will visit with friends and later motor through the northern part of the State.

OLINDA.

Mrs. Bernard Raymond was a very charming hostess to a number of friends at a prettily arranged party at her home on Tuesday. The afternoon was enlivened by games and music, after which dainty refreshments were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Depew, Jr., and Mrs. George Swartz and daughter, Mr. John Swartz, Raymond [illegible], Mr. and Mrs. W. Raymond and Miss Della Bowie.

Picnicking with an old-fashioned [illegible] bake under the stars Thursday, a party of neighbors enjoyed a pleasant reunion, those participating being Mr. and Mrs. Frank Delby, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Little, Rev. and Mrs. Wilfred Kent, Dora and Leonard Little, Roy Delby and Everett and Earl Kent.

The Rev. Wilfred Kent and family were Ontario visitors Wednesday. Their mission was to present the Methodist Church offering of $35 to Miss Lillian Halfpenny, as a Christmas present to the Chinese mission. Miss Halfpenny will sail for China soon.

FULLERTON.

Mrs. N. Frank Morse of North Spadra Road, and her sons have returned from a month's outing in Yosemite.

J. Robert Saunders, noted violinist of Los Angeles, was a guest recently of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Evans of West Truslow avenue.

E. O. Winchester has returned to Fullerton after a four years' residence in Colorado.

Dr. Jesse Chilton and wife will leave Monday for a month's outing, visiting Lake Tahoe, Yosemite and other points of interest in the north.

LA HABRA.

A congenial motor party who enjoyed the boating at Balboa and the pleasures of the near-by ocean last Friday evening were Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Corbett and two children, Mr. and Mrs. George Beer, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moore and daughter Lucille, Mrs. M. Carlson and Charles Kinsell, accompanied by Miss Vera McVeigh and Jack McVeigh of Fullerton. The same party on Wednesday evening attended a dancing party with friends at Alhambra.

One of the Yosemite parties returning from the north and reporting a delightful sojourn in the valley was made up of the W. E. Robinson family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold [illegible], Miss Myrtle Leutwiler and her friend, Miss Katherine Boyd of Santa Ana. They visited the Giant Forest en route, and enjoyed camping at other interesting points along the road, following the mountain route on the way up and the ocean on the homeward trip.

Preparation has been made this week by efficient committees under Manager C. L. Crumrine for the annual picnic on Saturday given by the Citrus Association to employees. This is an annual summer event and arrangements were made for 350 people to meet in Orange County [illegible]ANO.

Celebrating the birthdays of [illegible] Armstrong and Ray Hawley, Mrs. Ray Hawley entertained a party of gentlemen friends recently at his home in Earlimart. A moonlight swim was first enjoyed in a near-by reservoir and later the Hawley home was the scene of a jolly party, which lasted well into the night. Music and different forms of diversion took up the time until the company dispersed. During the evening Mrs. Hawley, assisted by Mrs. R. A. Root and Mrs. [illegible] Herrington served a delicious luncheon. The guests included [illegible] Armstrong, R. A. Root, P. [illegible], Floyd Smith, Grant [illegible], R. J. Herrington, Samuel [illegible] Valente, Harry G. Hawley, Howard Clayton. [illegible] motored to San Jose [illegible] week, and returned home on Wednesday, bringing with him Mrs. Freels and daughters, Ilda and Ruth, who have been visiting relatives there.

Miss Margaret Burroughs, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Harvey Burroughs and Mrs. George Branch, gave a most delightful swimming party for more than a score of her little girl friends. The party was given at the Burroughs home on the county highway, where the reservoir had been especially prepared for the young swimmers.

SOUTH PASADENA.

The Misses Katherine and Rebecca Patterson of 1707 Oak street left on Monday for Catalina, where they will stay during the remainder of the month. Mr. and Mrs. John G. Carey and family of Wayne avenue are leaving on an extended outing at the beach resorts.

Others who left earlier in the season are at home again, among them Mr. and Mrs. James C. Pridham and children of Prospect avenue, who have been at Camp Angeles, where Mr. Pridham has been overseeing the erection of an attractive mountain home.

Mrs. J. Platt Brush and children of Bushnell avenue have also returned from a delightful outing at Big Bear Tavern.

Many South Pasadenans are this week sojourning at Long Beach, where they are in attendance at the Christian Church annual convention assembled there, while also enjoying the sea breezes and beach attractions.

While formal social affairs have been discarded for the summer months, those who remain at home for the present are enjoying informal get-together parties which help to pass the time pleasantly. The Sewing Club met on Tuesday night with Miss Ruth Winegard at her home, 2056 Milan avenue. After an evening spent in sewing for some charitable purpose, the hostess served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

The Five Hundred Club was very delightfully entertained on Saturday night by Miss Anna Herron at her home, 358 El Centro street.

While the Lincoln Park Study Circle has discontinued its regular meetings for the summer, there will be a special meeting of its members on Monday afternoon, August 7, at the home of Mrs. Marble on Palm avenue, for the purpose of discussing the program for the coming year. Each member is requested to come furnished with a suggestion for the line of study for the fall season.

On Tuesday the Misses Helen Blattner, Margaret Brinckerhoff, Alice Stockwell, Beatrice Hipp and Mrs. Glen Aron and Mrs. A. B. Rogers of Los Angeles motored to Hermosa where the day was spent on the beach. An enjoyable feature was the picnic lunch with which the company provided itself and which was spread on the sand after several hours spent in swimming.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Stick of 1701 Bushnell avenue entertained on last Friday night with a most delightful costume party at their home, the guests for the occasion being for the most part out-of-town friends. The costumes were very handsome. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Young and Miss Marian Young of Los Angeles, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warner of San Gabriel and Mr. Lester Warner, Mr. and Mrs. John Maltman of Altadena, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Keetch of South Pasadena.

Mrs. George A. Crandall of Prospect avenue was hostess on Tuesday afternoon for eight guests, honoring Miss Elizabeth Cosner of Tempe, Ariz., who is the house-guest for the summer of her sister, Mrs. T. R. Jones of Windsor Place. The afternoon was spent in conversation, after which Mrs. Crandall served refreshments.

DUARTE.

Miss Irma Moore of this city, who is having her vacation, has as her guest Miss Mary McCune. On Wednesday the young people went to the Moore lodge at Hermosa Beach to enjoy several days swimming and other beach sports.

Invitations have been issued by Miss Holmes for Tuesday evening when she will entertain with an informal dancing party in compliment to her house guest, Miss Marable.

The Duarte Chamber of Commerce has adjourned until fall. The next regular meeting will be held in October.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Moore, who have been spending some time at their beautiful home at Hermosa Beach, returned home Wednesday evening.

MONROVIA.

Mrs. O. J. Mendenhall of East Palm avenue and son Homer and daughter Frances left Sunday morning for the East. They intend to spend several weeks with friends and relatives in Ohio.

A very enjoyable week was spent by Miss Gladys McCormick as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Tietz and daughter, Miss Elsie, who are camping for a month in San Antonio Canyon, near Camp Baldy.

Mrs. J. D. Brown chaperoned a number of young people of this city who left on Monday morning for Balboa Beach. The party included Mildred and Lawrence Brown, Alieen Bateman and Miss May Couch of Long Beach.

Mrs. Theodore Gibson and her niece, Miss Mary Jane Gibson, left on Monday morning for Catalina Island where they will spend their vacation.

Mrs. M. S. Pottenger and children left Sunday for Balboa Beach for a three weeks' vacation. Mr. Pottenger will join them in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Berryman entertained with a family party at their home on Wild Rose avenue, in honor of Mrs. Berryman's mother, Mrs. C. M. Hewinson, on attaining her seventy-sixth birthday. Invited guests included the guest of honor, Mrs. Hewinson, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Whittaker, and daughter Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ferguson all of Glendale; Mrs. William Leavins and son Phillip of Terra Bella; Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Hewins and three children of Pasadena, Mr. and Mrs. David Relph of this city.

Mrs. D. E. Perkins entertained on Friday evening at her home on North Magnolia avenue in compliment to Miss Marguerite Whitney, who left on Sunday morning for Harrisburg, Va. Miss Whitney, who has spent the last year in Monrovia with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thomas of East White Oak avenue, will be missed by a large circle of friends.

On her return from a visit with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Gaylord of Berkeley, Mrs. Alexander Reid of North Melrose avenue, was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. E. J. Mapes, a teacher of Winnipeg, Can., who will remain through the summer vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Potts of Chicago spent Sunday with Robert Bultman and family of East avenue. Mr. Potts is an attorney of the middle western city. They are accom-

ALL WEEK'S HOSTS, GUESTS.

Mrs. Painter is a graduate of the University of Missouri and a member of the Alpha Phi Sorority. Mr. Painter is the youngest son of the well-known Jerome H. Painter of San Francisco. He is a graduate of the University of California and a member of the Delta Delta fraternity. The young couple are enjoying a honeymoon in the south, and on their return will make their home in Fresno.

Edward Christian and Pearl Elizabeth Pitman, well-known Orange Cove residents, were united in marriage in the study of L. Bowers of the Methodist church Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Christian will reside at Orange Cove, where the groom has erected a modern home.

LINDSAY.

Lieut. James C. Lough, U.S.N., is the house guest of his sister, Mrs. D. Johnson, after three years' service in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Born and Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Vivian have returned to their home in Los Angeles after being guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. for the past ten days.

Mrs. R. W. Fenn is in San Francisco assisting with the Chinese Mission work of the Presbyterian church.

To celebrate his birthday, friends of Harry Verfuth gathered at his home Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Fish and son have returned from a visit to their daughter, Mrs. Charles Pierce, in Santa Barbara.

Miss Minnie Metzler is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Metzler.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. M., Geneva Wilhoite Jackson and Thomas Rex Erixon were married very quietly Wednesday evening with only the immediate family present. The bridal couple left immediately after the ceremony and will make their home in land.

STRATHMORE.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Nichols have gone to Los Angeles where they are visiting.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hilger are leaving for their former home in Kansas, where they expect to reside.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pursell are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Pursell.

Miss Edna Buck is spending her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Buck.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Lamb attended the Presbyterian Synod as delegates, which was held in Berkeley during the week just past.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cone and Mrs. W. Cravens are spending the week at Gen. Grant's Park.

PORTERVILLE.

Miss Charlotte Lockart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lockart of this city, and Orville L. Buckley of Lindsay were married in Visalia Tuesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Buckley will make their home in Visalia. The bride is a popular young lady of this city, while Mr. Buckley is well known among Lindsay business men.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Basye of Porterville have gone to Carmel-by-the-Sea for the remainder of the summer. Mr. and Mrs. James Basye of Berkeley, and small son, Allan, will join them there. Messers Basye are brothers.

Mrs. Ada Turney of Third street, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Turney, and daughter, has gone to California Hot Springs for an outing.

Mrs. J. F. Boller has returned from Santa Maria, where she has been the house guest of her son, Villett Boller.

MUSTACHE CUP COMING BACK?

One of the Questions Now Troubling the Minds of Britain.

Fashion in face fungus change like everything else. A short time back there was good reason to fear that the sideboard whiskers (previously associated entirely with the warriors of the Iron Duke and the butlers of the Victorian era) would spread like a disease among the knuts of the knation. The idea no doubt was that the said knuts had experienced so many close shaves between 1914 and 1918 that they wanted a change. But mercifully the danger passed. We are told that the toothbrush mustache is giving place to something longer and fuller. So before we know where we are we may have a revival of the Portcullis or the Walrus, with its accompanying horror—the mustache cup! This, on top of the coal strike and the Irish question would just about put the lid on things.—[Passing Show.

The Seamstress

On Husbands, as a Handy Excuse.

Ain't it grand to have a husband for an excuse when you don't want to do anything? My land! I've seen women so considerate of their husbands when folks asked 'em to do something what they didn't want to do that you would think that they never moved off of one spot or took a breath onless their husbands told 'em to, but—

Ma'am? Yes'm, of course they got to have some kind of a excuse to get out of things. Sometimes it looks like to me that most folks are shirkers when it comes to onpleasant duties. . . .

No'm, I'm sorry to say that white silk skirts ain't so very stylish no more. It looks like they are passing out real fast. And cotton ones, too, are right few and far between when it comes to real stylish folks. . . .

Yes'm, every onct in a while women take a notion to things what ain't comfortable and will wear 'em if they die from 'em.

Well, you know that flannel skirts in the middle of the summer don't even sound sensible, less'n you are going to the seashore. That's what they are wearing now, either white flannel or cashmere or men's-wear serge or something woolly like that and then they get on woolly white sweaters what's sure to warrant their name on a hot day. . . .

Well, of course, white flannel shrinks and gets yellow and thickens up and all them things. But they's some kinds what don't do it so bad. You know—

Ma'am? Yes'm, I know they say that you don't have to wear no petticoat with the white flannel, and it ain't a bit warmer on that account. But you just stand in the sunlight with a skirt on what aint plaited and I think you would decide to wear a petticoat.

Ready-made white flannel skirts cost about twenty dollars when they are well made and well tailored, and you can get silk ones for ten dollars and satin ones for a heap less.

It certainly is too bad for such pretty things to go out of style. But if I had one I certainly would wear it. It certainly will stay in through summer and into the fall. But my land! You got to make the best of the changin' fashions; because it ain't going to do you no good not to. Only it's bad luck when something comes along what is oncomfortable.

Ma'am? Why, I think the white silk sweaters are the prettiest, but they are the most expensive, too, and the little gauze woolly ones are real pretty if they are oncomfortable. . .

Ma'am? Why, yes'm, it looks like to me that white is the latest thing what you can have. Mis' Gray's two girls come in yesterday whilst I was a-sewing there and said they counted fourteen white sweaters and skirts at the Country Club that day. And all the girls is crazy about white hats, too, to wear with 'em. Yes'm, they have gone crazy again this year over white. It's mighty pretty, but it looks like to me that the white costumes with the bright jade and orange and blue and red hats look mighty pretty, too, with the white. . . .

Well, I think the prettiest material for a white hat is a white gros grain ribbon; Yet and still, they have white straws trimmed in white wool what are mighty pretty, too. It's the first summer for a long time that they have worn white hats much. . . .

Yes'm, you can make a white ribbon one yourself. Take two and a half inch ribbon about four and a half or five yards. It takes two lengths as ribbon whipped together to make a double piece five inches long. You use this for the round top piece. And then you sew the ribbon to this all around several times until the crown is the height you want it, two widths is about right and the third width makes the band what goes around the head. Then you begin the brim by sewing on another width, fulling in enough to make the brim stand out straight or turn a little, just as you like, and you add another width and full that on just like you want it to turn. Instead of whipping the ribbon by hand why you stitch it together, so that it is firmer. You don't need no wire in it and you don't need no trimming unless it is a stiff flat bow on one side. The last row of ribbon can be buttonholed on the edge with angora if you like it. It makes it kind of becoming. Heh? Oh, Lonny says he—oh that's my husband—he don't like a white hat on me much, he likes it faced with something else if it is white. And I don't want the trouble of a-making one for myself neither. And that's a good excuse for me to wear this old black thing what I got. Didn't I tell you that husbands are a auful good excuse sometimes? Some of 'em what ain't good for nothing else are right handy for that. . . . .

Ma'am? Well, what I meant a little while ago when I started in on this was that I know a woman what has a sick sister what she ort to do something for. That sister ain't got nobudy to take care of her but a 15-year-old girl and she needs help auful bad. But the woman don't like to make herself no trouble and to be the care like what she would have oncomfortable and to have some of the care like what she would half to do. And so she says that her husband won't give his consent and she owes her first duty to him, although he's away something like six monthes out of the year, and she says it ain't her place nohow.

Well, I got a sneaking suspicion that her husband hasn't said much about it what his wife ain't dictated. And it is easy for her to git her duties off her mind by excuses to herself, that she is plum satisfied. You know them ain't reasons to other people, they are just excuses to yourself. . . .

Well, and then I knew two or three women what wouldn't do no work enduring the war and two or three what passes up their friends in trouble by giving some of them flimsy excuses about their husbands not wanting them to do nothing. Well, and they always manage to git their husbands' consent to be away from home on a bridge party or a shopping tour or a golf game.

And whilst I know some men don't like to have their wives do nothing but doll up and have pleasure because the wives are so cross and disagreeable after they done a good, but oncomfortable deed, why I think, in most cases, them women are hiding behind a excuse hoping that folks will take it for a reason.

WOOD LIGHTER THAN CORK.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2. — A new exhibit in the National Museum displays samples of the lightest wood known—balsa.

A beam of balsa a yard long, three by four inches thick is lying on the table. You bend to pick it up, preparing for its lightness. Yet the sensation of finding a beam of wood no heavier than a fairly heavy book takes you by surprise. It recalls the fake weights which comedians lift with so much elaborate effort in the vaudeville skits. A tag says that the beam weighs 1.6 pounds.

In the tropics where balsa grows, men carry long thick trunks of balsa trees without the effort necessary in hauling other logs. Balsa is only about half as heavy as cork, which we regard as a symbol of lightness.

Near the beam in the exhibit is a box about a foot long and a little less in height and width. This box, too, is surprisingly light. But that is not its most interesting feature. It is an ice cream container. The label explains that one quart of ice cream will remain firm in this box for five hours with an outside atmospheric temperature of 75 deg. In other words, a box of this wood is a sort of iceless refrigerator. This is due to balsa's insulating properties.

When experts became interested in the commercial possibilities of balsa they examined the cells and found them to be barrel-shaped with very thin walls. The soft, porous structure of the wood accounted for its lightness and also for its being a good insulator against cold and against heat. In a test made with a fireless cooker contrivance of balsa wood, food placed in the cooker at night was still hot the next morning.

Facts learned by the various experiments are being put to practical use. Balsa is being used extensively for refrigerator linings on ships and for ice boxes.

Is Holding His Own

"Ten years ago I received such wonderful help from your medicine for my stomach trouble that I have recommended it to hundreds of other sufferers. Recently a friend of mine whose brother in a distant city was stricken with acute indigestion and not expected to live, got his brother to take a bottle on my advice. I have just received word that his brother is holding his own, and I am confident that Mayr's Wonderful Remedy will entirely restore him." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

SECOND FLOOR

Men's Suits $39.50

The price of these Suits can give no adequate idea of their worth.

They have been very greatly reduced, being taken from Robinson's regular stock of high-priced Suits.

Made of fine worsteds, tweeds and cashmeres in several styles and colors, they are light weight suitable for present wear.

Many are full lined—others only partly.

While they last, $39.50.

Men's Palm Beach Suits $22.50

True economy means buying the best—always.

—There is only one Palm Beach Cloth—the best.

The Palm Beach Suits at Robinson's represent only one grade of tailoring—the best.

The combination of Palm Beach Cloth and Robinson tailoring means economy in its true sense.

Palm Beach Suits for Men—$22.50.

Palm Beach Trousers, $5.95

What is true of Palm Beach Suits is just as true of Palm Beach Trousers.

And these are exceedingly low priced. They may be had for $5.95.

Autumn Styles

Afternoon Frocks

These are the Frocks whose coming many have awaited with interest.

As some one has aptly said, uneven hangs the hem on many a smart, smart frock! This may be due to drapery, loose panels—what flattering lines they give—or a novel sash.

Sleeves may be short or long, puffed or cut on the Jenny models.

Elaborate beading almost veils some of the frocks. Embroidery predominates on others.

The young girl or woman who has a penchant for simplicity will find among these many dresses ordained for her. Simple, but with the air of being perfectly thought out and evolved!

Crepes plain and in the brocaded weaves; crepes disguised with a satin front, but STILL crepes at the back; heavy Canton crepes in varying degrees of crinkled-ness—really a revel of crepes is on this season in the afternoon frocks!

Prices are $49.50 to $175.00.

THIRD FLOOR

Dinner and Evening Frocks

Lace, georgette, the softest of crepes and the crispest of metallic-embroidered taffetas, and again lace!

Ruffles of narrow black Valenciennes lace arranged vertically on the skirt and set very close together are a youthful feature of a chiffon evening frock.

Loose basque lines, fur trimmings, hand-made flowers and clusters of grapes, bouffant hips, gorgeous colorings and uneven hems label these unmistakably as the new frocks for early fall. A number, however, are of solid black, or black relieved by a brilliant rose—for so popular is the vogue for black that any "chronique" of what is new in frocks would be incomplete without mention being made of it.

Prices are $49.50 to $195.00.

THIRD FLOOR

Fuchsia Hats

The fuchsia and begonia—the hollyhock and morning glory—have come out of their retirement in an old-fashioned garden.

For they furnish inspiration for the fall shades in Hats! And that means fame to any flower.

Some are trimmed with ostrich in fuchsia colorings; another has hackle over brim and crown.

They are the smart Hats that look well with furs.

THIRD FLOOR

New Suits

Of course, the suit coats are long—mostly to the knees. And they are slightly fitted to give correct lines of slenderness.

Thus they are as different from those of last season as could well be imagined.

Twill cord and tricotine fashion suits, to be coveted for grace of silhouette and beauty of workmanship.

These fabrics have a new rival—deep pile marvella—hitherto considered a coating material, it has come over into the realm of suits with the utmost grace.

Suits of twill cord and tricotine have this advantage; they may be beautifully embroidered or trimmed with bands or braid. The marvella, on the other hand, keeps to strictly tailored lines.

Prices vary from $49.50 to $250.00.

THIRD FLOOR

New Sweaters

Sweaters and Slip Ons are as original as the new music—and just as alive.

New models for fall are in. Soft tones and high colorings, newness in weaves, in sashes, pockets and collars; everything proclaims them as late arrivals.

Sleeveless Slip Ons of wool have silk pipings and girdles of contrasting shade, such as beige and orange.

Sports Sweaters of pure silk have plaids and bars that are unusual.

A Ribbonzene Sweater shows a novel feature in a chenille Tuxedo collar with an additional throw collar of chenille. These are in orchid, jade and tan.

Many imported Sweaters are also included in this showing. All are moderately priced.

THIRD FLOOR

Over The Skirt Blouses

Youthful models in all black Georgette—are favorites in Paris, and after seeing these Blouses one is convinced once more that Paris most decidedly knows what she is about!

Insets of cut work in self material give a lacy, filagree appearance to some of the models. The sash may tie at both sides—a very debonair whim of Dame Fashion.

Aside from the all-black Blouses in this autumn showing, there are others in colors. A model in fine ecru net is trimmed with real Irish lace and girdled in rose and blue satin ribbon.

This is indeed a showing of Blouses that stresses the mode for fall in almost endless variations.

THIRD FLOOR

FURS THAT HAVE SOARED TO HIGH PRICES HAVE REACHED TODAY A LOWER LEVEL IN PRICE THAN MANY OF THE NECESSITIES COMPOSING THE FEMININE WARDROBE.

THE PENDULUM HAS SWUNG TO THE EXTREME OPPOSITE DIRECTION UNTIL WE HAVE FURS OF THE FINEST QUALITY TODAY LOWER THAN AT ANY TIME FOR THE PAST DECADE.

QUALITY HAS IMPROVED. ROBINSON FURS ARE OF THE FINEST GRADE. THESE FURS, WHICH ARE NOW OFFERED AT 25% DEDUCTION, ARE ROBINSON'S FURS IN EVERY SENSE OF THE WORD.

COATS AND WRAPS IN THIS COLLECTION REFLECT EVERY NEWNESS IN LINE WHICH PARIS HAS SO ABLY PRODUCED.

CARACUL AND BROADTAIL—THE TWO PARISIAN FAVORITES ARE SHOWN IN THE NATURAL AS WELL AS THE NEW TAN SHADES.

THE HUDSON SEAL COAT HAS BEEN TREATED TO NEW DESIGNS OF COLLARS AND CUFFS. INSTEAD OF THE 3-INCH STAID BELT OF PAST SEASONS, A GIRDLE OF FUR HAS BEEN INTRODUCED.

THE SMALLER AND SHORTER WRAPS IN THE COATEE AND SHOULDER CAPE FAMILY ARE FASHIONED WITH MARKED ATTENTION TO NEW STYLE TREATMENT.

FURS, THEREFORE, IN THIS AUGUST SALE HAVE NOT ONLY LOWERED PRICES TO COMMEND THEM, BUT AN ABUNDANCE OF NEW STYLE FEATURES.

PATRICIAN IN QUALITY AND APPEARANCE, THESE FURS WILL BESTOW THE GRACE OF A PRINCESS UPON THE FORTUNATE WOMEN INTO WHOSE POSSESSION THEY FALL.

25% Off

Acting early, moving perhaps a step in advance of the season, Robinson's opens the doors of Autumn. The first of the fall fashions are revealed.

The beauty, at first glance, bewilders.

Furs, and Frocks, are featured. A few hats which with feminine intrepidity have ventured ahead, add color to the romance.

But Furs deserve the praise. This page has been prepared to honor Furs, to tell of the [illegible] showing of Furs and to tell of the Sale of Furs at 25% deduction.

MAKES MOVE FOR ECONOMY.

Government Departments to be Reorganized.

Joint Committee of Congress Working Hard.

Hope Ultimate Saving Will be Half-Billion.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.
[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The American government's first great move for economy in administration, already under way in the inauguration of the budget system, is to be aided materially by the reorganization of the executive departments of the government. For some time the Congressional Joint Committee on Reorganization has been quietly at work. It is composed of three Senators, three Representatives and Walter F. Brown of Toledo, O., chairman.

Mr. Brown is devoting all of his time to the business of mapping out a new working plan for the government departments, which will enable the executive branches of the government to operate more smoothly and effectively, and at the same time at a considerable saving in money. Mr. Brown's task is nothing more nor less than to put the greatest piece of business machinery in the world, the government of the United States, on an economical footing.

MACHINE IS CLOGGED.

It is no secret that government machinery now is anything but the smooth-running organization that such big corporations as the United States Steel Company and the Standard Oil Companies have built up. It is old-fashioned and clogged with dead wood, hampered by needless duplications of effort on the part of the many branches of the executive end of government, bound down with red tape, loaded with useless papers and records, and hide-bound in many instances by outworn traditions.

Mr. Brown is not going at the task like the ordinary efficiency expert. He is not figuring out some way in which a clerk can rubber-stamp thirty additional letters each day by adopting some curious twist of the wrist in using the stamp. He is going at it along very broad and general lines. He aims to save hundreds of millions of dollars.

REAL WISDOM NEEDED.

It is fully realized by the joint committee that myriad elements must be considered in their task, and that great harm instead of the hoped-for great good might easily come out of their efforts unless they are guided by real wisdom. It is realized that the system in vogue now has grown up with the nation for nearly a century and a half, and that the whole machine cannot be taken apart bodily and put together again haphazard with any expectation that it would run easily and economically.

Broadly, the committee has laid out the executive work of the government along twenty-three distinct branches. These branches are fiscal affairs, criminal investigations, administrative service, national defense, defense and prosecution of suits, territorial and colonial affairs, communications, including the postal service; commerce regulation, foreign relations, regulation of banking, assistance to navigation, trade promotion, industry promotion, agricultural development, public education, public health, public works, conservation of natural resources, labor problems, administration of the public domain, primary statistics, rehabilitation of war veterans, and immigration, including naturalization.

EACH SUBJECT CHARTED.

Charts have been made for each of these subjects. Then investigation has been made to see how many departments, bureaus and commissions of the government have been duplicating each other's work. The result of this has been the discovery of scores and scores of overlapping efforts, evidence that widely separated departments have been spending valuable time and effort doing the same work and getting the same results, duplicating not only the work, but its cost as well.

The joint committee has as its general goal rebuilding the governmental departments so that each will have a great major purpose, and the activities which naturally fall within the scope of that department will be assigned to it.

PROBABLE SAVING.

When the committee began its work, it was hoped that not less than $300,000,000 might be lopped oq the yearly bills of the government, but as the work has progressed, new possibilities have been shown and it is now more likely that a saving of $500,000,000 a year can be worked out. One reason for boosting this estimated saving is the suggestion that the present War and Navy Departments be amalgamaed into one Department of War, with Army and Navy branches.

When the plan on which Mr. Brown and his committee are at work is completed and ready to go into effect, there is sure to be tremendous opposition from many quarters. Every man and woman who would be affected is going to fight against it. As Congress must, of course, approve of the Brown plan before it goes into effect, the pressure will be brought to bear on Congress. A lot of propaganda has already been afoot to ditch the scheme of saving, but President Harding's ultimatum that any government clerk attempting to hamper the work of reorganization would be dismissed, has had its effect. The flood of form letters to members of Congress ceased, which was taken as evidence that those conducting propaganda were men interested solely in holding their own jobs.

PROPAGANDA AT WORK.

There is propaganda of other sorts at work, of course. Prominent among the active groups is the educational group, which is striving hard for the inclusion of a department of education, instead of a department of public welfare, in the reorganized government machine. For a great many years the educational forces have made this demand, and strong pressure is brought to bear on Congress right along for this purpose. This is offset to some extent, though, because the educational forces have brought certain religious forces into their fight, and the old Catholic and Protestant question has arisen in the matter of the proposed creation of a department of education. The Catholic group wants the government to take little hand in the direction of educational matters.

The proposal to amalgamate the War and Navy Departments is certain to meet bitter and determined opporition. The cobination of the departments naturally would eliminate many of the posts held by high ranking Army and Navy officers, and these officers and their probable successors, with their friends and followers, are expected to fight hard against the move suggested as an economy measure.

MEANS PAY-ROLL CUT.

If Congress adopts the plan being worked out by Mr. Brown and the other members of the committee, it is going to mean a tremendous cut in the Federal pay-roll. It is estimated that not less than 30,000 names will be cut off, and the number may go as high as 50,000. The bulk of these clerks would be those employed in Washington, but Federal offices maintained lsewhere would be affected, too.

Experts estimater that the average government clerk costs about $2000 a year. The average pay is in the neighborhood of $1200 annually, the balance of the $2000 being made up in the cost to the government of providing a place for the clerk to work, office supplies, and the like. Ttaking this figure as a fact, that discharge of 30,000 clerks would mean a saving of $60,000,000, and even $100,000,000 of government expense would be cut off if the government got rid of 50,000 clerks, which some members of the joint committee regard as highly probable.

Moundsville, W.Va.—"I had taken doctor's medicine for nearly two years because my periods were irregular, came every two weeks, and I would suffer with bearing-down pains. A lady told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how much good it had done her daughter, so I took it and now I am regular every month and have no pain at all. I recommend your medicine to everyone and you may publish my testimonial, hoping that the Vegetable Compound does some other girl the good it has done me."—Mrs. GEORGE TEGARDEN, 915 Third Street, Moundsville, W. Va.

How many young girls suffer as Mrs. Tegarden did and do not know where to turn for advice or help. They often are obliged to earn their living by toiling day in and day out no matter how hard the pain they have to bear. Every girl who suffers in this way should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and if she does not get prompt relief write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., about their health.

Dr. Valeria Parker.

"It is the boys who are setting the pace for gaiety, which the girls think they must live up to," declares Dr. Valeria Parker of Washington, D. C., noted sociologist, who has just been appointed secretary to the Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board. "The boys demoralize the girls. They spend all their money on clothes, and all they think of is having a good time, so it is no wonder girls go to extremes in dress and conduct. It is just a case of competition."

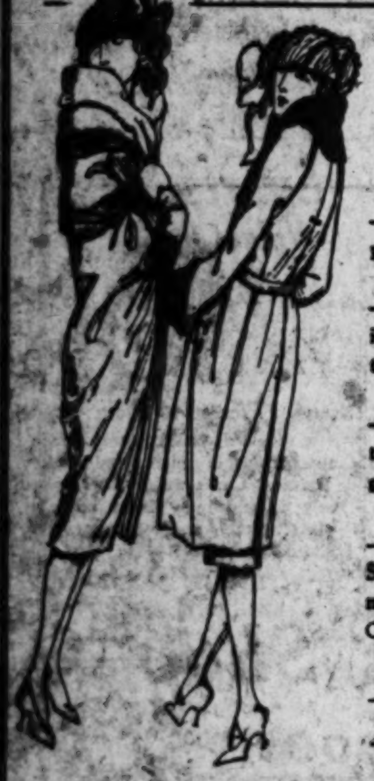
It Is Doubtful if Any "Ville-Value" Has Excelled These—

229 SAMPLE COATS at $17.50



—And if the price seems too insignificant—too far below what you have set as your purchasing limit, then there is all the more reason why you should not fail to investigate this remarkable offering Monday.

—229 Coats—Sample Coats—were placed at The Ville's disposal—for a price that seemed utterly insignificant.

—And The Ville has decided to offer them at a price which is lower than their wholesale cost. In some instances several times lower than their wholesale cost.

—There are some two of a kind—some three of a kind—but the majority are one of a kind—and there are only 229 altogether. Coats for street, motor and for evening wear.

—Their materials are Tricotine, Polo Cloth, Scotch Mixtures, Satin, Tricolette, Pongee, Shantung Silk, Velour, Veldyne, Normandie Cloth, Bolivia, Chinchilla, Marvella, English Whip Cord, Covert, Silk Poplin, Canton Crepe and Velvet.

—Among the colorings are Navy, Black, Tan, Brown, Red, Nile, Rose, Copen, Gray, Carmel, White, Henna, Sorrento, Stripe and Plaid Effects, Chinese Blue and pretty mixtures.

—The styles are straight-line models with raglan sleeves, particularly suited for motoring and sports wear—cape models, Dolmans and dressy Coats—some especially attractive for evening wear. All lengths—box, medium and full—are in evidence.

—Many of the models are entirely quilted, others have deep bands of quilting at the bottoms and quilted collars and cuffs. Rows of fringe lend interest to cape collars and hems; gold stitcheries border wrappy coat armholes; silk embroideries and braidings in elaborate designs adorn many of the models; combinations of silk and wool fabrics are interesting. Gathered shawl collars of taffeta and straight collars of silk duvetyne are no small part of the smart fashion touches that give distinction and individuality to this group of Mid-Season Wraps.

—The Artist has sketched 15 of these splendid Coats that will be $17.50. The windows display many more.

—There is no doubt they will go in a hurry at such a seemingly absurd price.

FRANCE'S LOVE IS UNREQUITED.

Fancy Free, but Would Like to Wed America.

United States, Though, Wants to Remain Bachelor.

"Le Matin" Editor Tells of Country's Wishes.

BY STEPHANE LAUZANNE,
Paris Editor "Le Matin."

Nations are just like women, they sometimes find themselves in extremely difficult sentimental situations. Today France finds herself in one of these situations.

In truth, France, who is at present entirely untrammeled by any alliance or pledge, would only be inclined to marry one single nation in the world, and that is America. But the American people, for numerous reasons, do not wish to hear of marriage with anybody whomsoever, and America desires to remain a bachelor. Thus, France, being denied the partner of her choice, feels disposed to turn down all the other wooers to her hand.

COLDLY RECEIVED.

This is exactly what has recently happened regarding the British alliance. At any other time this offer would have been accepted with joy and eagerness; but today it is received coldly and there is nothing that proves it will be accepted. The dominating reason for this is that France fears such an alliance may displease America. And now, more than ever, France desires to please America. Ex-President Poincare, in the statement herein below, has expressed the French feeling in remarkably exact terms:

"Just as England would not come to our help, if by any impossible chance we ever became the aggressors of Germany, we also could not possibly promise to aid her eventually in a war which would not be strictly a defensive one. In particular, we must, above all, guard ourselves against all agreements which would be liable to lead us, indirectly, to untimely contests with the United States of America.

"We are the friends of Japan, and the visit of Prince Hiro-Hito to Paris has recently consecrated this friendship anew by well-seasoned demonstrations. But England is the ally of the government of the Mikado. Tomorrow, in the very near future, a thousand questions may arise in the Pacific between the United States and Japan, which will be embittered by the hatred of races. How far will England then be drawn by her alliance? No one is in the confidence of fate. We have, therefore, the right and the duty to maintain our freedom so that we ourselves may not be carried away later on on the tide of adventures.

"Yesterday, Mr. Briand very fitly requested M. Viviani to reassure President Harding regarding the attitude taken as regards the matter of the Island of Yap by the government of the republic, and the statement of the eminent French delegate has produced a most favorable effect at Washington. It is, however, well understood that this proof of our friendship is not a mere occasional present, not any more so than was the voyage of Mr. Viviani a mere manifestation without future result.

RELATIONS UNCHANGEABLE.

"Our relations with the United States are unchangeable!"

It would not be possible to express French opinion better as regards the offer of the British alliance and I would be greatly surprised if Premier Briand, in the recent conversations he has had with Lord Curzon, has not expressed himself somewhat similarly.

In order that a British alliance be accepted by France, a multitude of conditions are required, but two are especially essential: First, we must know whether England intends to renew her alliance with Japan, on what terms she proposes to renew it, and against whom this alliance is directed; then France will have to be certain not only that such an alliance does not displease America, but even that it be both encouraged and approved by her.

In a word, any proposal in marriage from London, in order to be accepted, must not be made in Paris, it must first of all be made at Washington.

COURTESY IN A CAGE.

Bankers Consider Politeness in the Transaction of Business.

The tellers of the bank are the points of contact with the bank's customers, where the nerves are most sensitive. But there are tellers who care nothing about it, and there must be a great many of these, otherwise there would not be so much preaching about courtesy. The matter came up in a recent conference of bankers in Philadelphia, where the question was asked whether better results might not be achieved by substituting women tellers, especially women paying tellers. Will the line at the window be more patient if a woman serves at the other end? And is femininity less subject to these spells of uppishness and surliness that we have to submit to so frequently?

As a rule the people who go to the tellers' windows are the employees of the customers and not the customers themselves. The discourteous or peevish teller feels no restraint to control his temper toward any of these. The latter are likely to swallow their resentment and say nothing about it. On the other hand the mental and nervous strain under which so many tellers are compelled to work, should be allowed for. The line should realize that this job is not a soft snap. A cross word or a sharp retort may be a mere symptom of strain, and should be regarded as the manifestation of a physiological rather than a moral condition.—[Bankers' Home Magazine.

Not a Word.

There was nobody who could play the violin like Binks, and he was delighted when asked to play at the local concert.

"The instrument I shall use at your concert," he explained to the host, "is over 200 years old."

"Oh, that's all right, old chap. Don't worry about that," replied the host. "I shan't tell, and no one will ever know the difference."—[London Ideas.

CARROTS SOURCE OF VITAMINES.

Results of Investigations of Noted Scientists of London.

Researches of the Lister Institute in London assign a high place to the carrot as a producer of vitamines.

It was Funk, in a German book, "Die Vitamine," who coined the word in 1914 to name the salubrious food element found in the outer envelope (pericarp) of the rice grain.

If a population feeds on rice grains from which the pericarp has been stripped by polishing, the infectious, neuritic and progressively paralytic disease known as beriberi flourishes. In Newfoundland and Labrador, where beriberi is rather common, Dr. Grenfell insistently recommends the use of bread made with the whole wheat grain.

Vitamines must be present in our diet if the proper chemical changes (metabolism) are to follow the assimilation of our food. The horse had no Lister Institute to tell him, but "horse sense" led him to eat carrots; and every horseman knows that carrots are to horses what fish is to cats.

We have still a lot to learn about vitamines, but we cannot go far wrong if we follow the example of the horse in eating carrots, as we already have done in the case of oats.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

LEGIONNAIRES WED FREE.

An offer to perform free marriages for members of the American Legion and their fiancees at the convention here October 31, November 1 and 2 has been received by the convention executive committee from the Rev. John W. Inzer, national chaplain.

Chaplain Inzer obtained the idea recently when a member of the Legion journeyed from an eastern city to Chattanooga, Tenn., to have the chaplain perform the ceremony.

"That was Legion loyalty," Chaplain Inzer wrote to A. E. Hutchings, "and I wondered if there were not many others who might desire to have the national chaplain marry them."

Chaplain Inzer will make no charge for his services. The convention committee, desiring to aid in the plan, will pay for the marriage licenses for any Legion couples, Mr. Hutchings said. Chaplain Inzer left only one string to his offer:

"Of course, I would expect anyone who had been divorced to show scriptural cause for same."

The convention committee will expect to be notified in advance of the arrival of wedding parties so arrangements may be made for them. Relatives accompanying brides-to-be, it is planned, will be entertained at private residences.—[Kansas City Star.

BITS OF VERSE.

Loneliness.

I sit upon my lonely hill
Above the little town
Just at the farther edge of day
When one white star looks down.

The huddled houses murmur soft,
The drifting shadows meet,
And little lights show red and warm
A-down the drowsy street.

The slow stars gather while I watch;
The houses, one by one,
Put out their lights and go to sleep—
At last the day is done!

I sit, of all the town, awake—
So quiet that it seems
The hill, the starry night, and I
Are fragments of their dreams.

But, oh, I am not quite content
To watch here all alone—
To be of others' dreams a part
And never have my own!
—[Abigail Cresson in New York Times.

A Forest Lullaby.

Wind among the green leaves singing,
Bend the branches as you go;
Gently, gently, that their swinging
Hush the little heart below;
Still the busy little fingers,
Softly close the dark fringed eyes,
For no gleam of daylight lingers
In the dusky, twilight skies.

Silver stars come peeping, peeping,
Weaving with your shining beams,
Round my drowsy blossom sleeping,
Fairy spells of happy dreams;
Lullaby, O Captive rover,
All your playmates are at rest;
Bees have left the scented clover,
Baby birds are in the nest.

Little rabbits warmly cuddle
In the grasses soft and deep;
And the wee white daisies huddle
In the shadow fast asleep:
Lullaby, my bird, my blossom;
Sleep, my light-winged butterfly,
Cradler soft on earth's brown bosom
Till the morning you shall lie.
—[Shariot M. Hall in the Kansas City Star.

Drums Up Time.

Tick-tock, tick-tock,
From the pendulum of the ancient clock
That stands so tall in the dusky hall
The measured minutes duly fall.
Tickety-tick with never a stop
Runs the ivory toy on my dresser top;
Tick-tock, solemn and slow,
The clock in the living-room below.

Tickety-tickety, loud and strong, shelf
All night through and all day long.
The nickel clock on the kitchen
Clatters away to its cheerful self.
Tick-tick-tick is the ever small sound
Of the little watch I carry around.
These are the drums of Time that beat
For all humanity's marching feet.
—[Minna Irving in the New York Herald.

Dead Waters.

When men reap only where they have not sown
And share those things it is not well to share;
When none may say, "This is my very own;"
And there is nothing left to dream and dare,
Then will there be no hope and no despair.
No battle bravely lost or nobly won;
But unimaginable darkness where
No wind shall stir, nor any water run;
Nor shall they mourn a long forgotten sun
Nor wail the lack of unremembered stars.
They shall be born, and die—and all be done
Silently, in dungeon with no bars.
They shall watch old fires sink and old faiths cool
With eyes grown duller than a stagnant pool.
—[John French Wilson in Contemporary Verse.

Big Game in Carolina.

Mighty fond of hunting coons
Are Palmetto gentlemen;
Sporting is the best of boons
For Caucasia's Upper Ten.

Loud the view halloo resounds;
Biggest game you ever saw;
Coon that weighs 200 pounds
Unprotected by the law.

"Make the Nigger climb a tree,"
Up the luckless Darky goes;
Target quite exposed is he,
Guns are sighted by his foes.

"Fire!" Observers from the town
See the flashes, hear the zipps;
Dead the coon is falling down
Rifle wounds show bloody drips.
Flasks are passed from man to man.
Laugh and jest, and merry cheer,
Paint the picture, if you can;
Open season all the year.

JAPAN'S STAMPS.

Imperial Chrysanthemum Crest on All Issues Since 1872.

To commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of its modern postal system and the use of adhesive postage stamps, Japan has just issued a jubilee series of stamps and official picture post cards. The stamps issued by Japan since 1871, comprise some very beautiful and interesting specimens, and while specialists in philately have not yet given as close attention to the postal issues of that country as to many others, Japan has always been a very popular country among collectors. Another point in its favor is that during the last half century it has never printed a batch of stamps for revenue only, speedily replacing them by another issue. This method, adopted by some South American countries several years ago, has recently been duplicated in a more violent manner by practically all of the new Middle European nations created since the close of the war, causing many of the old-time collectors to refuse to have anything to do with the mass of these new issues, which have been quickly demonitized.

The first Japanese stamps were issued in March, 1871. The set comprised four values, engraved and printed on thin native paper. Within a labyrinth border the design shows two dragons with tails crossed, their bodies forming a three-sided frame for inscribing the value in Chinese numerals. The stamps were hand printed, square in size, imperforate and without gum. Owing to the extremely thin texture of the paper, it is very difficult to obtain fine specimens of this first Japanese issue. Their scarcity is also enhanced by the fact that they were in use less than a year, being superseded in February, 1872, by a new series.

Later in the same year, due to the growth of the postal system, the first chrysanthemum set of stamps was issued and ever since that time, Sept. 1, 1872, the chrysanthemum has been a distinguishing feature of every Japanese stamp. The chrysanthemum design used is that of the imperial crest, and it may be interesting to know that the correct imperial crest is a chrysanthemum of sixteen petals. The flower of that number is exclusively reserved for the imperial use, as similarly, was the five-clawed dragon in the Chinese Empire. Extremely heavy penalties are imposed upon those who counterfeit or otherwise represent the crest in that form. This fact is valuable to remember in detecting counterfeits of the rare Japanese issues. It has been found that the great majority of Japanese counterfeits show the chrysanthemum with either fewer, or more petals than the Imperial sixteen, the counterfeiters, by this clever method, saving themselves from the severe penalties in case of detection in forging the imperial crest.

Another interesting fact about the Japanese stamps is that every issue has been designed and printed in Japan. China, practically all of the South American countries, and many in Europe, on frequent occasions, have been obliged to go to another country for the printing of their stamps. While the design on many of the Japanese stamps is very complicated, abounding in great detail, the issues of the last fifty years rank well among the best types of stamp printing seen in any of the European or American issues.—[New York Times.

JAPANESE BUREAU WAKING UP.

The Imperial household department, now awakened from the centuries of slumber due to the surging waves of modernizing influences, has at last come to "leave the old shell," according to the Maiyu Shimbun. Preparations are being made for the change, so that upon the return of the crown prince, the old style red tape will be completely done away with.

The Maiyu says that when the crown prince was about to leave Japan for his trip abroad, Mr. Takejiro Tokonami, Home Minister, asked the future emperor of Japan that His Highness pay close attention to the relations of the British imperial household members with the people of England and what that household is doing in the way of social welfare work, so that upon his return he might wisely lead his people and ministers to improvement. The crown prince readily promised to remember the request.

The crown prince has been democratic, altogether beyond the imagination of the people at home, while traveling in Europe, and association with different persons, "even surprising the western people, who had not expected that he would be so democratic." The news of how he fared during his trip has given an excellent opportunity for the backward officials of the imperial household department to reflect upon their shortcomings, and they are now ashamed of themselves, says the paper.—[Japan Advertiser.

THE CLIMATE OF FINLAND.

The climate of Finland is rigorous but healthful, marked by long winters and short but hot summers. It lies within the zone of cyclones and anticyclones, which pass over Northern Europe from west to east at intervals of two or three days throughout the year and give variability to the winds and weather. The mean annual temperature varies between the southern and northern boundary from 40 to 34 degrees Fahrenheit, ranging from 20 to 8 degrees Fahrenheit in January, and from 64 to 62 degrees Fahrenheit in July. The extreme range of temperature is about 110 to 115 degrees Fahrenheit. The prevailing winds in winter are from the south and southwest and west. The amount of rainfall varies from ten inches in the northern to twenty-five inches in the southern part, being greatest during August.—[Kansas City Star.

"CLASSY" DRESSERS THERE.

How to Prove It?

An American in dear old London was bragging about his auto. He ended his eulogy by declaring:

"It runs so smoothly you can't feel it, so quietly that you can't hear it, it has such perfect ignition you can't smell it, and as for speed—boy, you can't see it!"

"But, my word, old dear," interrupted the Briton, anxiously, "how do you know the bally thing is there?"—[American Legion Weekly.

KING SOLOMON IS OUTDONE.

Science Determines Parents by Blood Test.

Life Fluid of the Father and Child Used.

Recent Proof at Bay City Establishes Claim.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Many centuries ago King Solomon, in his great wisdom, hit upon a simple and excellent way of finding out which one of two claimants was the mother of a certain child. He merely offered to cut the child in half and award a portion to each. One woman agreed, the other demurred, and the wise patriarch decided that the one who objected must be entitled to the babe.

Now the claim has been brought forward that the fatherhood of children can be determined by surgery of a much less drastic kind. It is claimed that examination of the blood of a child and of its male parent will show conclusively the relationship. This test was taken as conclusive evidence recently by a judge in San Francisco. One Paul Vittori, having denied vehemently that Mrs. Vittori's babe was also his, and Mrs. Vittori having been quite as insistent that it was, the scientific man was called in.

ELECTRONS ADJUSTED.

This scientist, Dr. Albert Abrams, took a drop of blood from the infant and one from Vittori. The "electrons" of the two drops were adjusted in what was called an "oscillophore," and the doctor announced that the "electrons" synchronized in their vibrations, therefore Vittori was the father of the child. Superior Judge Graham, sitting in the case, thereupon ordered Mr. Vittori to pay his wife $25 a month for the support of the baby.

An "electron," it was brought out, is an infinitesimal bit of matter, and it seems that your blood is just teeming with electrons.

MEXICAN WATERS TO BE DAMMED.

Large Irrigation Project Will Augment Supply of Water for Aguascalientes.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AGUASCALIENTES (Mex.) July 30.—One of the largest irrigation projects in Mexico is under way near here. It consists of the construction of a large dam across the Santiago River and the creating of a big water storage reservoir, as well as the building of an extensive system of irrigation canals and ditches. The cost of the works is to be borne jointly by the Federal and State governments. Besides affording a water supply for reclaiming a vast area of rich lands, the reservoir will augment the water supply of this city. Engineers are now making the survey for the project, preliminary to starting construction of the dam.

the base of this famous station of the Old Baldy ever- outstretching the Beaubien-Maxwell land grant, equal to three states the size of Rhode Island. In the shadow of the heights, piled in such wondrous beauty, stood the Maxwell palace where frontiersmen like Kit Carson, Dick Wootton, Don Jesus Abreau, Col. St. Vrain, and ex-Governor Boggs made their rendezvous for years. Along the running waters of the Cimarron, the Penil and Vermejo, 5000 Utes and Apaches roamed in wanton freedom. In full view, and over the tortuous mountain passes, pioneers dragged immense wagon trains on the way to the gold fields of far-off California. Amidst Old Baldy's fastnesses were the famous hiding places of desperate outlaws like Griego, Poncha, Clay Allison, Chunk, Coal Oil Jimmy, "Long" Taylor, and scores of other bandits equally wild and fierce.

OBEYS HEAVENLY VISION.

In the gambling hells of the Cimarron fortunes were made and lost in a night. Within reach of the hermit's home was the rude adobe of Kit Carson, the celebrated Indian scout, whose bones now rest at Taos under the shadow of the great Indian pueblos. Thus was Augustiniani environed by a motley and reckless citizenship. He breathed the air of pioneer days, endured the hardships of the eternal snows, and faced the constant dangers of border warfare—all because he had seen the apparition of the Virgin's hand among the flowers and perfumes of his Italian home. He did not dare disobey the heavenly vision.

Near the summit of Old Baldy there is a perennial spring whose cold and sparkling waters leap from beneath its very crown. About these gushing mountain waters there lingers the story of the hermit. It is said that when he first reached the summit, searching for a cave in which to live, he was almost famished on account of thirst. With his staff he smote a rock and from it sprang this beautiful stream that has not ceased to flow since that day.

CROSSES STILL REMAIN.

Though many thousands of feet above the valley, numbers sought his cave. Augustiniani erected fourteen huge crosses, the ruins of which still stand as silent monuments of his devotion and zeal. From among his curious and devout visitors he formed a society called the Brotherhood of the Holy Cross. His only exaction was a pilgrimage in May and September. They must ascend the peak and say prayers around these crosses.

In the May pilgrimage of 1867, he made a farewell speech that crushed the hearts of his followers. It was then he revealed to them the hand of destiny in his call to the land of Old Mexico. Before his departure he visited Father Baca, of Las Cruces, who presented him with gold for his long journey. He sought meditation for the night in the Organ Mountains. Taking his farewell of Father Baca, he said:

"Tonight I will be in my cave and will build my last fire on the peak to tell you good-by. I will pray the rosary and I want you to do likewise with your people on the roofs of your houses. If you do not see the fire you may know that I am dead and you may come tomorrow and get my books and property."

No fire was kindled on the peak that night. The next day a company ascended the heights. Amidst the very clouds, they found the body of the old hermit stricken through with many an arrow flung from the bows of the bloody Navajoes.

FOR AND ABOUT WOMEN.

The French government has conferred the medal of French Gratitude on twenty-seven nuns for their work in the war.

Snuff-taking was a common practice among English ladies of quality as late as the beginning of the nineteenth century.

In the village of Kineton, Warwickshire, Eng., the women save all the pieces of fat and make soap in their homes. They supply the whole village with soap, both for toilet and household purposes.

The poorest Arab woman paints her eyes with kohl to make them appear larger and more brilliant.

To be in style in the Congo the women wear anklets weighing as much as twelve pounds.

Dowager Queen Margherita of Italy has one of the finest private collections of pearls.

Only about 11 per cent of New York State girl workers are members of trade unions.

Among the Arabs the wife walks behind the husband.

In Belgium women have been employed in the railway, postal and telegraph services since 1882.

As a means of instilling confidence, the girl patrons of the Y.W.C.A. swimming pools at Toronto, Can., are encouraged to learn trick swimming, and as a result they have a great variety of water stunts to show.

Once an Arab girl is married she never leaves her house again.

Women motor-bus conductors in Japan receive on an average $18.50 a month.

Women grow old among primitive people much earlier than in higher civilizations.

More than 35,000 spectators attended a recent football game in England in which teams of women played.

The University of Pennsylvania is to have a new clubhouse as well as a new dormitory for women students.

California's claim to having the only woman railroad president in America is vigorously disputed by the State of Georgia, which rises to remark that it has the only real and truly woman railroad president in the person of Mrs. Cora B. Williams, who is president of the Georgia, Florida & Alabama Railway, a road about 200 miles in length.

The "queen of women mountaineers" is Mrs. Fanny Bullock-Workman, the most intrepid woman climber the world has so far known, who, with her husband, has conquered many of the most difficult Himalayan peaks, beating one world's record after another.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Mrs. Johanna Barber Lovelace, who knew the Shawnee chiefs when that tribe occupied most of what is now Southern Wyandotte county, died recently at her home near Turner, Kan. Her entire estate, estimated at between $130,000 and $150,000, will go to Baptist church work. She was 90 years old.

Mrs. Lovelace aided in the establishment of the Baptist Theological Seminary in Kansas City, Kan., in 1901, when she and Mr. Lovelace gave the Merrick K. Barber endowment fund to that institution.

Mrs. Lovelace did not leave a will, all the money, lands and other properties being transferred by deeds or instruments signed by her. A. J. Stanley, her attorney, said the properties would go to the Kansas Baptist Convention, which is the incorporated part of the Baptist denomination in Kansas, and the Baptist Missionary Society of Kansas. J. P. Crawford of Topeka, will be the executor of the estate.

"Part of the property will be used for the support of small churches unable to support themselves and aged ministers," Mr. Stanley said. "Mrs. Lovelace had everything so arranged that all the property passes without a will. All of it finds its way to some kind of Baptist church work."

Young America, healthy, happy and energetic, has become an inspiration to thousands of children throughout the world. Our school girls and boys are spurring to new aspirations and kindling to new hope the children of many lands who know them only through their generosity and their friendly sympathy. As members of the Junior American Red Cross they have rallied to the aid of the distressed and, in return, they have received as much as they gave—an intelligent understanding of the children of the world and the consciousness of service well done.

Eight hundred mothers and children, to whom a trip down the bay forms the ideal of midsummer joy, had an outing recently as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Astor. On every succeeding Friday until the end of September other hundreds, selected by the New York Children's Aid Society from among the deserving poor living in the most congested sections of the city, will enjoy similar trips at the expense of Mr. and Mrs. Astor.

The noisy, happy crowd was taken aboard a huge barge from a dock in the lower reaches of the East River at 9 o'clock. For three hours the barge was towed about the harbor and then to the society's summer home for children at Bath Beach, where the party was landed at noon in time for a hearty meal. Then there was a three hours' romp on the beach and in the water. Late in the afternoon the excursionists were landed at the East River dock, a tired but a happy crowd.

For many years members of the Astor family have provided these midsummer Friday outings through the Children's Aid Society and the total number of overworked mothers and underfed children who have enjoyed them exceeds 50,000.—[New York Herald.

HISTORIC OHIO GROUND.

Plans are being made to hold the annual meeting of the Franklin County Pioneer Association on August 23 on the spot where the first settlement was made in what is now Blendon township, 115 years ago. It was on Aug. 23, 1806, that this settlement was made in what was yet a part of Sharon township. In 1815 it became Harrison township and has been known as Blendon since 1825.

In September, 1805, two Connecticut men, Edward Phelps, Sr., aged 44, and Isaac Griswold, 26, arrived with a party of eastern people, who, that year, settled Granville. After resting a few days with their travel friends there, the two men came on to Alum Creek, a distance of twenty-three miles now, road measurement, to inspect lands on that creek that they were looking for. Later they went on to Worthington, which has been settled two years before that time, some of the families in that settlement being old friends of theirs back home.

Then they went back to Connecticut and returned with their wives and eight children, a sister of Griswold and a mechanic named Ethan Palmer. Two months had been spent in the journey out from Connecticut, in wagons drawn by six yoke of oxen. It is proposed to hold the pioneer meeting at the house at the southwest corner of Blendon Corners, which is the original Griswold homestead. The farm is still owned by three children of J. Warren Phelps and their uncle. Mr. Phelps's grandparents built on their arrival in 1806 a cabin a fourth of a mile west of Blendon Corners, on the north side of the road.

The camp ground of the Y.M.C.A., called Wildwood, is situated on a portion of the original Phelps farm. J. Warren Phelps has the original deed and a plat of the survey of the farm, made by Col. James Kilbourne, in 1807; also a receipt for his pay for four days' surveying, $3—less than a third of what a plumber now charges for a single day's work. This party of pioneer settlers came from Windsor, Hartford county, Ct.—[J. H. Galbraith, in Columbus Dispatch.

QUEER BOATS ON THE TIGRIS.

By far the most interesting craft on the upper Tigris are the qufa and the kelak, this latter coming from up-river and descending to Bagdad.

The qufa, as seen in Bagdad today, is a circular tub made of interwoven osiers covered outside with pitch. The large ones are as much as six feet across and four or five feet deep. They are propelled by two men, who stand close together and, leaning over the edge, dip their paddles deep into the water and sweep them away from each other.

In summer these coracles come floating down to the city, spinning slowly round and round, piled high with fat, juicy melons, their gunwales almost awash. But they are steady enough boats, not easily capsized.

The kelak, on the other hand, is really a raft made up of large numbers of inflated pigskins lashed together and decked over with timber and brushwood. These float down stream with the current, often carrying firewood, cut in the mountains at the source of the Tigris, to Bagdad.—[Columbus Dispatch.

Stirring Tale of Northwest Mounted Police

There is a romantic glamour about the Northwest Mounted Police that offers a wonderful appeal to every one. And the traditions of these fearless, scarlet-coated riders of the North are unrivaled in the matter of thrilling drama and adventurous incidents.

In "Man Trackers," this week's attraction at the Superba, there is given to the screen one of the most thrilling chapters from the romantic history of these heroes of the North. The story was written by George Plympton, and it co-stars George Larkin and Josephine Hill, supported by a cast of unusual excellence.

Those familiar with the traditions of the Northwest Mounted Police will perhaps recall the incident which has been written into the plot of the "Man Trackers." A young sergeant of the mounted loved the daughter of the inspector. His rival for her hand was the son of an influential citizen of the community. The rival plotted against him with a gang of criminals and made it look as though the young officer had shot at him without provocation. He was sent to prison, cashiered out of the service, and utterly disgraced. His return to right his wrongs was one of the most dramatic events of the North country, not long ago, and has been perpetuated in this picture with a smashing climax of amazing unexpectedness.

Through every scene the dramatic action of the story is piled up toward this great unexpected and stirring climax. Suspense and thrills are interwoven throughout the story's unfolding; there is a punch planted in every incident, and a heart tug in the big scenes, that grips and holds the spectators in a tensity of silence.

Magnificent scenery furnishes a background of unusual splendor for the "Man Trackers," against which the dramatic events of the story are enacted.

The supplementary comedy is "Society Dogs," in which the chief actor is that dog wonder of the films, Brownie.

A Very Important Announcement About Diamond Prices

By Feagans & Co.

To admire some particularly fine diamond owned by a patron has been a pleasure frequently accorded Feagans and Company. Almost invariably this admiration expressed has been followed by the owner's query: "Do you think this diamond is as valuable as when it was purchased?"

So often has this question been asked that it is deemed most opportune to place before our clientele the true status of the diamond market.

To you, Madame, and to you, Sir, who are the proud possessors of diamonds, it is only necessary to say that the diamond is one of the few commodities whose basic value has been maintained. And the worth of the diamond above all else is immutable—stocks, bonds, securities and even the moneys of nations fluctuate but the inherent value of the diamond remains unchanged.

The great London Diamond Syndicate which controls ninety-five per cent of the world's output of diamonds have stated over their own signature that they see no future possibility of any reduction in the price of diamonds at the source.

So it may be a matter of congratulation for those who own diamonds that they may now receive the sincere assurance that the intrinsic worth of the diamond will not decline and that there is every reasonable probability of their attaining a much higher value.

There may be, however, as there always have been from time to time in the past, certain intermediate conditions in the diamond market causing a temporary under-valuation of these gems—just as a bear raid on a railroad stock will depreciate the price but will in no wise affect the physical valuation of the railroad itself. These conditions are, to be sure, only temporary and do not change the permanent basic value of the diamond.

We are now passing through just such a period. Some of the important diamond cutters and importers, owing to economic conditions, have been forced to liquidate their stocks of diamonds regardless of their cost and true worth. Feagans and Company are convinced that these liquidations have forced the prices of diamonds to a point far below what may be expected in the future and that these conditions now existing will be of short duration.

As a result Feagans and Company with their close, intimate contact with the diamond centers of the world—a relationship enjoyed for over forty years—today see opportunities to make selections from choice diamond stocks at prices greatly below the normal valuation of these gems.

And because Feagans and Company have ever maintained the policy of promptly establishing a valuation on their diamonds commensurate with existing conditions—whether these conditions be local or universal—they take pleasure in announcing that these opportunities which are now afforded them will find reflection in a revised classification of gems in their famous collection.

That this revision offers opportune advantages to the prospective purchaser of diamonds will be convincingly demonstrated by a careful inspection of these flawless gems, and by a comparison of values, which is welcomed.

And to those who know full well the prestige enjoyed by Feagans and Company and the quality of the gems in their collection it will be understood that reference is made only to stones of such perfection that the powerful magnifying eye-loop will detect no flaw in them. No mention is made nor is any reference intended to imperfect stones for these have no place in the stocks of Feagans and Company.

They Should Fly Away

—Dresses at $24.75! Dresses of beauty and verve! The season's Mode, many of them not a week in the store, but hurrying out again to make way. And hundreds of others with former pricings higher—higher — all hurrying away at $24.75.

—Dresses of Canton crepe—rich-textured, crepe de chine, charmeuse, satin, tricotine, mignonette, georgette, some beaded, some embroidered, trimmings of braid, of cire ribbon, of steel beads, beaded tassels of black grosgrain ribbon in loops.

—Dresses at $34.75, of the same materials as those at $24.75, but just a little richer in detail, and as wonderful as those at $24.75.

100 Women's Coats and Capes, $18.75

—Two groups—one gathered from Bullock's own stocks, and amazingly higher priced—now $18.75, and one a special purchase to make an amazingly desirable August Clearance offering. The odd coats from Bullock's stocks include sports models, one at least by a famous maker. Tricotine, velours, tricolettes—the materials and linings are good quality messaline.

50 Wonderful Wraps Reduced, $35.00

—Wraps mean Coats and Capes, in this case—practically all of them regular stocks reduced down and down. Chinchilla, bolivia, tricotine—a few marvellas, twillcords—rich-textured materials that will make you long to slip into them.. Why some of these garments are lined with crepe de chine—and you know what that means.

300 New Jersey Suits, $14.75

—There are four styles—new shawl collar models, full Tuxedo models, notched and regulation tailored collars, patch and set-in pockets, pinch-backs, plain or with box pleats. All the desirable colors and black—at $14.75.

—At Bullock's—Monday—Bullock's Women's Garment Sections.

Jersey Sports Coats Clearance $7.75

—Again the Coat Section sends forth a clarion clearance call. Two styles—Jersey Sports Coats and good Jersey Sports Coats, at $7.75—Sizes 34 to 44—in black, navy, red, green, brown and other colors. $7.75—Third Floor.

—Haven't the prices on this page made you wonder?

—Of course they have. Others are wondering, too.

—No need, however—For this is Bullock's August Clearance.

—"That means we must not stay," cry the Coats, the Suits, the Dresses, the Skirts. And——"Make way," cry new styles, and new values, "were coming. We're almost there. Make way."

And hastily, before they do come, Coats, Suits, Dresses, now at Bullock's, are priced to send them forth in a hurry. Perhaps they have only been at Bullock's for one week, still they must go. Regardless of their own newness, regardless of their cost, regardless of their present prices, regardless of the originality of their styles, even though they may be Fall models, regardless of source, design, style, beauty—and they have all these things a-plenty—regardless of every consideration except haste and hurry, out they go, at prices that will send them as quick as women can find them and make them their own.

Because—it is Bullock's August Clearance.

"Why, this coat at $18.75 is a ———— model," naming a famous maker's name. "And this at $35.00 was formerly marked ———."

So it goes—the story of this Bullock's August Clearance of regular Bullock stocks. This is the picture in words, but it needs your own eyes to tell you the real strength, the amazing bigness of the story. Don't wait. Other women will not wait. Come to Bullock's—early as possible, Monday—August 8—Women's Third Floor Garment Section.

BROWNATONE

KING OF SONG WAS TIRELESS.

Caruso's Golden Voice Never Lost Its Freshness.

Earnings from Records Put Opera in Background.

Gave Money for Every Cause; Generous in America.

BY EDITH JAMISON LOWE.

As I write I am inhaling the faint aroma of a faded rosebud which blossomed some years gone by in the garden of one one of Caruso's country homes near Florence, Italy. There is nothing that can vivify the imagination so keenly as a faint aroma, suggestive of flowers, trees, azure skies, in fact, all the magic of an Italian primavera. This was a lovely moss rose, and it ornamented the center of a bouquet of lilacs—a rose queen of all flowers, straight from the garden of king of song.

The following, translated from an article by Aldo Chierici, an intimate friend of Caruso, printed in Il Giornale Italiano of New York, describes the daily routine of the great tenor when he visited his Florentine villa, Bellosguardo.

"Among the various properties of Caruso, the predilect is the villa Bellosguardo, situated above Lastra a Signi, upon a high hill. Here the tenor remains quiet for a few days, that is, quiet by way of expression, because every morning he goes to Florence upon business, or to Montecatini to drink the water. Upon his return he dispatches the affairs of his vast agricultural agency and in the afternoon he sings for three or four hours.

"The villa Bellosguardo formerly belonged to the Marchesi Pucci, and its surroundings are princely. There are great walks lined with trees centuries old, statues, fountains, lakes, elegant Italian gardens and surrounding all there are twenty farms.

"Very soon the works of art which Caruso collects all the time and everywhere will be arranged in place. Caruso has bought and continues to buy an unheard-of quantity of famous works of art, contenting himself for the present with piling them up in various rooms. There are columns of pictures, both antique and modern, which reach the ceiling, and statues by various sculptors in every corner. The villa will be a magnificent museum revealing the tenor's passion for art and his good taste.

"At the distance of eleven kilometers in a direct line one may see immersed in the golden summer the tenor's beautiful villa, Belvedere at Cercina, which is enriched at least sixteen pianos and also sixteen farms.

"The habitation of the tenor is a place of study and annoyance. There is not a widow who does not turn to him for assistance, not a fiesta that does not want him for a patron.

"The most distressing of all Caruso's visitors are the seekers of autographs. They pester him wherever he goes. He contributes sums of money to every conceivable cause, especially in America.

"Enrico sang all of the part of 'Julien,' the new opera which he is now learning to sing in New York, while his accompanist, Maestro Scognamiglio, hummed the other parts.

"'Julien,' or 'La vie du Poet' by Charpentier consists of a prologue and four acts.

"The opera up to the present time (1913) has been sung in Paris only, and the music, which is here and there very abstruse, is full of difficulties for the singer. Charpentier was thirteen years in composing it.

"Caruso sang for three hours at full voice, without being preoccupied by the French pronunciation, just as if he were singing in Italian; his powerful voice, full of fascination, which has become extraordinarily robust in the middle notes and losing very little of this character in the high and low notes is still fresh, agile. His success which pursues him tenaciously, I might almost say ferociously, is justified without exception.

"He ran a scale from C to B-flat and back to the lowest tones of the best baritone, displaying the vast vocal resources of which he is absolute master. His high notes are as delightful as they were in his early days.

"And after three hours of uninterrupted music, when I thought he must be tired, when any other tenor would have stopped, I heard him say, 'And now that my voice is warmed up, I will try the new songs which I must sing for the grammofono.'

"When we think that he sings for records one day every year when he passes through London, we realize that from a financial standpoint, the opera is of secondary importance.

"He proceeded to sing, his voice still fresh, some of Tosti's latest songs, 'Tormento' 'O dolce Meraviglia' and 'Perdutamente.' He sang Tosti's 'Parted' in English and then a beautiful number 'Lasciati Amar,' written for him recently by Leoncavallo.

"In Italian, French and English he continued to sing an hour longer."

BANK KEEPS ITS GOLD UNDER WATER

Only an Expert Swimmer and Diver Could Reach the Precious Metal.

No other bank in the world is protected as is the Bank of England, writes William S. Walsh, who collects odd bits of information. This unique protection is due to an artesian well in the bank. This well supplies the bank with its water independently of the rest of the city; it is 400 feet deep and supplies 7000 cubic feet of water an hour.

The bullion department, which holds the ingots of precious metal, is nightly submerged in several feet of water by the action of special machinery. Anyone attempting to rob the bank, then, must be an expert swimmer and diver. In the morning the water is pumped away and the ingots are readily accessible again.

However, the water still protects the other departments of the bank. Its supply is almost unlimited, the bank knows, and its protection is practically absolute when it is used. The bank has very delicate machinery arranged so that even the lifting of one coin from a pile will release a catch which in turn releases a supply of water.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Of the many thousands of photographs of Thomas A. Edison, one taken early in 1906 remains the favorite of Mrs. Edison. Because of her preference, it has acquired a value far beyond its intrinsic worth. Recently it figured in a suit instituted in the Federal Court by Birch-Feld & Co., Inc., to restrain the B. C. Forbes Publishing Company and Bertie C. Forbes of Englewood, N. J., from continuing to use the photograph in alleged violation of a coypright and the payment of $1 was asked from the defendants for every copy sold by them or found in their possession.

The plaintiff stated that it obtained sole rights to the photograph from Joseph Byron of this city. In addition to the penalties already mentioned it asked the court to order the destruction of all copies of the picture and of all plates of it in the possession of the defendants.

TAR AND FEATHERS SWEEP TEXAS.

Orgy of White-Capping Follows Reviving of Ku Klux Klan Over State Though Chiefs of Southern Secret Order Deny the Responsibility.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Aug. 4.—For the last few weeks a veritable wave of tar and feathers, often accompanied by whippings, has been sweeping over the State. Governor Neff has been appealed to from many quarters to exercise all the authority at his command to ferret out and put a stop to the violences. The affairs closely follow the revival over the State of the Ku Klux Klan, but officials of the order deny its members are responsible. The Legislature, which is now in special session, has taken cognizance of the deeds of the bands of masked and ghostly uniformed men who are wont to sweep down upon their intended victims in their homes, in hotels, upon the streets and country roads, wherever they may be found. Gov. Neff has been urged to submit for enactment a bill prohibiting anyone wearing a mask or disguise of any kind. Legislative investigation is also proposed.

DISROBE, TAR WOMAN.

Even women are not immune from "punishment," merited or unmerited, according to the viewpoint, as was shown a few days ago when Mrs. Beulah Johnson, who was employed in a hotel at Tenaha, was taken out by a party of masked men at night, placed in an automobile, conveyed to a lonely spot in the country, partly disrobed, tar and feathers applied to the upper part of her body, and her hair cut off. She was then returned to the main street of the town and dumped out.

"I was sitting on the porch of the hotel about 8:30 in the evening," Mrs. Johnson said, in describing her harrowing experience, "when three automobiles filled with men drove up. The men got out and grabbed me and placed me in one of the cars. I was taken into the country about three miles, blind-folded, stripped of my upper clothing, and coal tar was poured upon my body. They took some shears, at least they sounded like shears, and cut my hair off. As they poured the tar on me one of the men said:

"'Don't pour it in her eyes.' This was the only word spoken during the trip out and while they were tarring me. Then they put me in the automobile and took me back to Tenaha. They stopped in the main street, and pushed me out of the car. Then they started and I reckon at least fifty shots were fired. I ran back to the hotel and with coal oil I managed to get the tar off. Then I went to Center."

The woman's hair was cut in gashes. She is said to have had long beautiful black hair. As she spoke of this she wept and said:

"I would have rather they would have shot me than to have done my hair this way. It wouldn't have been so bad if they had left it so I could have had it trimmed."

"I can't understand why they wanted to do this," she said sobbing. "I haven't done anything, except I have been married three times. My first husband died. My second husband is living and I married Mr. Johnson. I didn't have a divorce from my second husband; that is why they filed a charge of bigamy against me. Unless that is why they done this I don't know what it was for."

"We have been unable thus far," said Sheriff W. M. Smith, "to find any clews that will lead or warrant us in making arrests."

In some instances the operations of the vigilantes have been confined to written warnings to law violators to leave town within a given number of hours; in other cases no warnings preceded the punishments. Charitable donations have also come from mysterious sources, accompanied by a brief note. In Dallas a contribution of $500 was received a few days ago by Mrs. Emma Wylie Ballard, child welfare director, the sum to be used for the benefit of homeless babies. The note accompanying the money was signed, "Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, Realm of Texas."

In one instance at least a band of highwaymen used the name of Ku Klux Klan to assault and rob, their victim being Earl H. Peters, an insurance man of Chandler, who was sandbagged and robbed of $250. He was left unconscious by the side of the road, and will die of his injuries, it is stated.

It was on April 1 that the first "punishment" was inflicted in Texas. That night a band of masked men in Dallas seized Andrew Johnson, a negro bell boy, and after taking him to the country and whipping him, branded the letters K.K.K. with acid on his forehead. Newspaper reporters were taken along by the men and enjoined to write a true account of what happened. Johnson was accused of familiarity with a white woman.

A short time later a Houston lawyer was punished by masked men, tarred and feathered and left in that condition on the main street of the city.

At Beaumont, Dr. Paul was tarred and feathered by a band of masked men, said to have operated in the name of the Ku Klux Klan.

Ku Klux Klan parades were staged at Columbus, May 15; at Brenham, May 19, and at Dallas, May 21. On May 24 John T. Moore of Dallas was flogged by masked men. He was charged with aggravated assault.

Warnings signed "Ku Klux Klan" were posted in Hearne, Robertson county. Among other things, these warnings said: "We are opposed to violence and mobs." They also said: "Gamblers, grafters and bootleggers must go."

At Dayton, 200 men in white robes and helmets staged a silent parade, which was referred to by a dispatch from there as a parade of the Ku Klux Klan.

At Dallas, Ed Engers, an oil-filling station operator, was seized by masked men and given twenty lashes for alleged cruelty to his wife. After the whipping he was handed a $5 bill and warned not to return to Dallas.

K.K.K. PLACARD.

At Belton a negro named Collins was seized by a small group of masked men, taken outside the city and given fifty lashes. Later he was returned to Belton and told to walk the streets until midnight and then leave town. He carried a placard on the back of which read: "Whipped by the Ku Klux Klan." The negro had been held on a charge of making insulting approaches to a white woman, but was released after the grand jury, which failed to convict him, adjourned.

On June 19 a report was received in Houston that three men had been tarred and feathered at Goose Creek. Later it developed that two men, B. L. Bledsworth and Olan Jones, had been seized, carried into the country, and given a hearing on charges of being undesirable citizens. They were tarred and feathered, then brought to town and left. A placard was fastened on Jones's back, giving the alleged causes for punishment.

On June 21, another Goose Creek man, Will Stewart, a jitney driver, was seized by three unmasked men and taken to a place where a party of twelve men were waiting in the woods. He was stripped of his clothes, beaten and given a coat of tar and feathers.

On June 27, Ku Klux Klan placards of flaming red letters were posted in conspicuous places at Austin. The notices contained a warning to loafers, idlers, bootleggers and violators of the law on morals.

Three unmasked men visited the Protestant Orphans' Home at 804-806 Kentucky avenue, San Antonio, and presented the matron an envelope containing $100, together with a letter signed "Ku Klux Klan."

At Ft. Worth, a body of men took a man from his home to a lonely spot on a country road and administered twelve lashes. It was charged that the man had mistreated his wife.

On July 8, at Austin, a proclamation signed "Ku Klux Klan" was found tacked to a tree in the capitol grounds. The warning said that idlers, vagabonds, bootleggers, agitators and a number of other classes of people must go and that 100 per cent Americanism must [illegible] Austin.

A CURIOUS CASE OF FRIENDSHIP.

Blackbird in the Role of Nurse to an Injured Thrush.

A lady of Penzance, who is a great lover of birds, says Mr. W. H. Hudson in his recently published book, "Adventure Among Birds," noticed that a blackbird and a thrush always came together to her lawn, where she was in the habit of placing food for the birds. Then she noticed that the blackbird fed the thrush, picking up the crumbs of bread and putting them into its mouth. Looking more closely, she discovered that the thrush's beak had been cut off close to the head, probably by a steel trap or a sudden-death spring trap, such as the children in Cornwall commonly use to catch or kill small birds. The thrush was incapable of feeding itself.

CITY MAY LOSE AIR INDUSTRY.

Chicago and Detroit Seeking to Capture Business.

Local Encouragement Urged to Bring Factories Here.

Writer Asserts Others Will Follow; Logical Center.

BY OLIVER K. JEFFERY.

An airplane manufacturer of this city states that recent action taken by eastern cities is conclusive evidence that they consider aeronautics a worthy industry for them to offer sufficient inducements to cause them to establish there.

Chicago is to hold a great pageant of progress this month, and many of the largest business interests have launched a campaign to evolve from the aviation events the permanent establishment of the country's largest aircraft factories in that city. They feel confident that city will become the center of air travel in the United States.

DETROIT PREPARES.

An article in the Literary Digest of July 16 expresses Detroit's attitude toward flying. That city is credited with having contributed the great Liberty motor to the Allies as her share of winning the war, and she so systematized the in industry that the motors were being turned out like so many animal crackers.

The article states that now is the proper time to prepare for the harvest that is coming in the air industry. Some far-seeing men agree with the idea, and while the automobile industry is waiting to see what is going to happen with the excess space and machinery added during the war emergency, the University of Detroit has gone ahead with plans to establish a five-year course in aeronautics. The university is confident Detroit will become the aircraft and aircraft-equipment center, and the demand for men trained in aerial science will be far greater than the present supply.

PROOFS GIVEN.

The question is asked why organize for an industry that is still undeveloped? What further proof is needed for aeronautics than the accomplishments of the war; the government air mail service now in operation over a year with a record of 96 per cent efficiency; the freight and passenger lines established in various parts of the country, and the strides made by all Europe. Europe today is far in the lead of America in aerial advancement and will, in my opinion, remain so until the financial interests of the country are fully awakened to the actual money-making possibilities of the business.

The writer has followed aeronautics closely for many years, believing in its great future, but will not admit that any eastern city will become the actual center of aeronautics if Los Angeles will seriously consider its opportunity. There is no logical reason why this industry should necessarily become centered in any eastern point. Most of the materials are and always will be shipped from the Pacific Coast; labor is available here, and of the very best, because the building of future airplanes will be practically a wood-working job and the entire coast has skilled woodworkers in abundance.

Detroit, at present, the home of the airplane motor industry, is in the lead, but I believe the present type of motor is about antiquated, and will soon be replaced by a new one utilizing a different fuel, and it will be just as practical to build this motor here as elsewhere, while it is [illegible].

AVIATION NEED.

The need of aviation now is a new standardized type of plane. It must be one that offers a far greater factor of safety than our present planes, one giving absolute comfort to passengers on long flights, one that can travel at a speed of 100 miles an hour or faster, and carry a load sufficient to make aerial transportation profitable without excessive charges. This type of plane is possible, and may be constructed in this city.

LOGICAL CENTER HERE.

Los Angeles is the logical aeronautical center of the United States. It has every advantage—360 flying days in the year mean unlimited factory output as planes may be continuously tested, thus avoiding factory congestion and storage. Also the southern route from this city offers an open flying lane to the entire continent the year around.

The airplane industry will be one of attraction to any city. It offers a huge field for national publicity; the class of labor it employs is an asset because it engages bright, clean, energetic and skilled young men, and the wages are exceptionally high. The factories are an addition to a city as they are neat and clean, without smoke or dirty surroundings. Los Angeles can add a substantial industry to its pay roll if a small effort is made in proper time.

It is a safe prediction that if one or two of the larger type plane factories are encouraged to establish here most of the others will follow and we will soon have a pay roll equal to any present industry of Los Angeles.

THE PASSING OF "BUCK AND BRIGHT."

On ox team, the only one in the county, has become the property of the Otter Tail County Fair Association. It was discovered after careful search of the county, to figure in a pageant celebrating Fergus Falls' semicentennial. Now it has become, like a relic in a museum, a pioneers' menagerie.

There are pioneers living who can recall when not only the region of Otter Tail county, but indeed all the cultivated areas of Minnesota were farmed with ox teams, the number exceeding that of horses, even here in Hennepin county. The ox team it was that turned the furrows which started Minnesota to yielding its bounty of grain; the oxcart it was that long preceded the train as the freight carrier of the Northwest; the ox it was that served as the locomotive of the plains in the early day of guarded caravans that threaded the trails of the great West.

Now time has brought changes, a million dreams beyond the uttermost fancies of the pioneers who drove old Buck and Bright along the trail or urged their toilsome way ahead of the furrows. Transportation has been revolutionized, not once, but several times, by the engineers of progress. And one of the widest reaches of Minnesota is combed to find a single relic of old days when the ox was the mainstay of agriculture and transportation—less than a half-century away.

Come on—let's hop into our airplane and fly up to Fergus Falls to have a look that the curiosity.—[Minneapolis Tribune.

PALE MAUVE IS THE RAGE.

Princess Mary Starts Things in London Fashions.

Short Skirts in England Are the Rule.

King George Successful as a Stock Raiser.

BY LADY MARY.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Pale mauve has become the fashionable color here since Princess Mary took it up with such devoted persistence. It suits her rather well, but on some of her followers — heavens! That is one trouble with a society in which one or two or three or four women occupy pre-eminent positions.

The chicest of costumes are in evidence and they offer the English beauty another opportunity to prove how slightly she values the old tradition of secrecy with regard to her legs. The average British woman of today who is at all up to date feels that an exposure of her legs is no more immodest than an exposure of her nose.

At the bathing beaches the one-piece holds full sway. From what I see in the American papers I judge that American girls dressed as most English bathers dress would be sent to the—what is it you call it? Oh, yes, the "calaboose"—for life.

Of course, a tremendous amount of what you in America love to call "guff" was printed on the recent occasion of the King's birthday—his fifty-sixth. I believe the most outstanding fact about His Majesty is one which seldom had been given attention. I saw his face light up the other day, when I was a member of a party at the royal show farm at Windsor, and watched him as he inspected and petted some wonderful cattle. He loves them. That is clear. And he understands them. That also is clear.

By the way, he is one of the largest and most successful stock breeders in the world and his cattle command the highest of prices, strictly on merits. At the Smithfield show and at the Slough December cattle sales they are always in demand. The Queen loves them, too, but is a little timid of their horns.

Not so Princess Mary. She is a quiet girl, but on occasion—when, for instance, a pet cow becomes too inquisitive with a damp muzzle—she can solve the problem in true milkmaid style.

ENGLAND TO SELL 30,000 HORSES.

War Office Negotiating for Disposal of Mounts Used in Mesopotamia.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Aug. 6.—It is now announced that the War Office is negotiating for the sale of the 30,000 Army horses in Mesopotamia, which the Colonial Secretary said were to be destroyed, owing to the high cost of bringing them home.

Age of Opportunity.

Old-time Mosquito (to Young Mosquito:) And to think that when I was your age I could sting girls only on the face and hands!—[American Legion Weekly.

CUTTING THE COST OF SODAS.

Chicago opened her cheaper soda campaign July 7. Several days later the Bronx youngsters marched upon their borough president with the same demand. Boston youths have held an imposing demonstration.

Chicago newspapers report her campaign with maps, war correspondents and boxed lists of the fortresses daily stormed by the reformers — "emporia," where ice cream soda sells for a dime, with the war tax sometimes included and sometimes additional.

No one would refuse the soda fountain a due profit; but when one drug store on Wilson avenue, Chicago, the self-styled "Paris of America," charges 25 cents and a neighbor 11, who will deny that something is amiss?

It is time the soda fountain was again made safe for democracy.

Men began to fear its conquest by aristocracy when it was moved from a corner to the place of honor in drug sores, confectioners, cigar stores and groceries; when artists took the place of clerks, and when nut banana splits, frosted cocoanut fantasies, lovers' delights and whipped cream pistachio symphonies began to be created.

RIDING WAS UNMANLY.

Advancements in Transportation Methods Met Opposition.

In 1560 a church dignitary exhorted his ecclesiastics in France and Italy "to set their faces against the unmanly fashion of riding in carriages."

History does not recount whether or not he was able to check this "unmanly fashion," but, at any event, he failed to totally stop it, for the coach became recognized as a real convenience, and was leading slowly but surely towards the enlightenment and prosperity of the people.

In England similar hostility greeted the advent of horse-drawn coaches. An irate but ultra-conservative gentleman went so far as to petition the government to stop their use. "They can prove neither advantageous to man's health or business," he wrote, "for what advantage is it to men's health to be called out of their beds into their carriages an hour before day in the morning, and be hurried from place to place till one hour within night?"

Perhaps this standpoint was not so utterly absurd if viewed in the light of centuries ago. When communities lived aloof from the rest of the world, when each group was sufficient unto itself, and when each family farmed its own means of subsistence, made its own crude clothing and built its own shelter, there was but scant need for intercommunal or internal travel. But a day came, during the early Victorian period when, with the demands of increasing trade, there came a positive need for more extensive travel. Then the carriage gained recognition as a business in all progressive countries. In fact, the horse-drawn coach became so well thought of that the public met with great disfavor the introduction of the mechanically propelled vehicle. The steam-driven road vehicle first seen in the last years of the eighteenth century, was declared a menace, and the railway locomotive an absurdity. But, finally the horse and carriage were forced to give way, as the requirements of business and the need for quicker transportation asserted themselves.

In every age the development of transportation has met with antagonism, bitterness and obstinacy. Perhaps the occasional disparaging remarks and the unfortunate spirit of a few legislative acts directed against the modern automobile are to be expected, for always there will be a certain proportion of the world's population who do not fully grasp the full purposes of the inventions and improvements that speed the wheels of progress.—[Winnipeg Free Press.

On His Constitutional Rights.

A salesmanlike looking inspector stopped over night at a small-town Kansas hotel, and was surprised to find a dirty roller towel in the washroom. Indignantly he said to the landlord, "Don't you know that it has been against the law for years to put up a roller towel in this State?" "Sure, I know it," replied the proprietor, "but no ex post facto law goes in Kansas, and that there towel was put up before the law was passed."—(Topeka Capital.

"My Reduction Was Fully 66 Pounds"—"Friends Tell Me I Look Several Years Younger," "My Waist Reduced 8 Inches"—and Legions Report Better Health, Increased Endurance, and a More Youthful Appearance

WHILE YOU REST! In the quiet of your own home, without the knowledge of friends, foes or family and even while you rest and eat all the food you need—that's the simple, safe, pleasant and easy way to get rid of surplus flesh and burdensome weight. That's the KOREIN way and doctors say, it's the natural way to get thin.

Men Who Puffed! [illegible] with slight exertion and [illegible] of invigorating outdoor [illegible] ashamed to be seen in a [illegible] got rid of their sluggish [illegible] and regained active, boyish [illegible] beyond belief.

Women So Fat! [illegible] gay colors and attractive garments made them stand out in an unsightly, conspicuous way, reduced to proportions enabling them to wear charming, fluffy, latest styles.

You Who Are Burdened [illegible] obesity do not need to be told [illegible] is unsightly, uncomfortable and embarrassing. Many [illegible] do not realize the positive [illegible] of allowing this unnatural [illegible] of fatness to continue. But Why Remain Fat? [illegible] and in danger when you [illegible] reduce safely to healthy, attractive proportions through the KOREIN way?

Read This Letter [illegible] the countless women and [illegible] who have reduced their weight [illegible] Korein method, is [illegible] whose letter follows: [illegible] long time I have been wanting [illegible] what good the Korein [illegible] has done for me. [illegible] day I picked up a newspaper [illegible] an advertisement about fat [illegible] this. I phoned right [illegible] to the drug store for a package [illegible] Tabules. My weight had [illegible] two hundred pounds for several [illegible] it was 204 when I started [illegible], and you can imagine [illegible] I felt. I followed the directions. I bought more as needed—seven packages in all. The directions were easy and pleasant to follow.

"As I gradually became slender, everybody noticed the wonderful improvement in my appearance.

"My reduction was fully 66 pounds and the photograph that I send with this letter shows me reduced to 138 pounds. Of course I have recommended Korein to others and I give you permission to print this.

"Friends tell me I look several years younger. I certainly feel much younger, too. My waist measure has been reduced 8 inches. I would rather die than take on that terrible burden of weight again."—Mrs. M. L. Liemyer.

Lasting Reduction

Geo. C. Reynolds, President of the Royal Fellowship, reduced 64 pounds in 1915 and just recently has confirmed the reduction giving praise to KOREIN. He averaged four pounds less weekly for 16 weeks. Think of the benefit—he became younger in appearance, gained alertness in body and mind, and probably added several years to his life.

This Is the Time of Year to begin and reduce steadily. Amaze yourself and others by the improvement in your figure and personal attractiveness. Become more efficient. Add years to your life and life to your years.

It's So Easy

and inexpensive for you to prove beyond doubt just what the Korein system holds in store for you that you should not delay another day. Go to any busy druggist in this city and obtain a small box of Korein Tabules (pronounced "Koreen"). Directions and positive guarantee are enclosed in every box.

Just Take One of the small KOREIN Tabules after each meal and at bedtime, follow the same, simple, directions accompanying each box of Korein Tabules as thousands of others are doing since the introduction of this pleasant, simple method. Depend upon results. Let your mirror and the scale show the improvement. You'll be delighted!

Weigh Yourself

and take your measurements with a tape the day you start on the KOREIN road to safe reduction—and again at the end of two weeks. Know, for yourself, what it means to be able to reduce as much as you wish, while you rest and yet eat all the food you need.

WRESTLES WITH FARM PROBLEM.

Mexico Seeks to Avoid Injustice.

Dividing Big Estates is Slow Work.

Agrarian Policy is Slowly Being Solved.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

MEXICO CITY (Mex.) Aug. 6.—Solving the agrarian problem in Mexico is necessarily a slow process. Avoiding injustices in some instances to land claimants is said to be almost an impossibility. The difficulties in the way of taking over and dividing up the big estates accounts for the slow progress made. Although prominence has been given the land question by different political elements since the regime of Diaz, it may be interesting to note that it was during the latter years of the Diaz administration that the first steps were taken in the matter of rendering government aid for the development of the agricultural land of the country.

This took the form of loans for the construction of irrigation systems and other improvements with the view of increasing agricultural production. It was only two or three years prior to the overthrow of Diaz that this new agrarian policy was established. The sum of $25,000,000 gold was borrowed by the government from Speyer & Co., bankers of New York, to be loaned to land owners. It is now alleged that not more than one-third of this sum was ever used for the purpose for which it was borrowed, and that the remainder was squandered or dissipated by the government authorities.

TREVINO LOSES ESTATE.

An echo of the loan which the government made for the construction of irrigation works took place recently when the big landed estate of Gonzales Lorenzo Trevino, which borders the Rio Grande on the Mexican side, between Eagle Pass and Del Rio, was taken over by the Federal government in default of payment of the loan which had been made for the development of this property. This government loan was 4,000,000 pesos, to which Mr. Trevino added 2,000,000 pesos, all of which sum was expended for the construction of an irrigation system that brought about the reclamation of a large tract of land.

But for the fact that this valuable estate was ravaged time and again during the long revolutionary period the irrigated land would, it is stated, have brought returns sufficient to have taken care of the government loan.

One of the chief issues and pledges of the different revolutionary parties since the Diaz regime has been that of dividing up the big haciendas and distributing the land among the landless. Notwithstanding the promises very little has been accomplished.

The first agrarian commission was created during the administration of the late President Francisco I. Madero, Jr., and this government agency, with changes of personnel and laws governing it, has continued through the succeeding administrations. Originally, it was contemplated that confiscatory methods should be adopted in taking over the properties of the wealthy land barons who were at the time, perhaps, political refugees. This policy was applied in a number of instances, but practically all of the estates that were confiscated under that plan have been returned to their respective owners. Notably is this true as to the several million acres owned by Gen. Luis Terrazas and the different members of the Madero family.

Close study is being made of the agrarian problem by President Alvaro Obregon and members of his administration whose province it is to deal with that phase of internal affairs. There has been a reorganization of the agrarian commission and a change in its methods of operation. Alfonso Madero is at the head of the commission at this time and he is giving the manifold details of the work his earnest attention.

CHURCH LANDS SEIZED.

One of the interesting features of the work of the commission is that of dealing with the lands which, it is alleged, the Catholic church surreptitiously holds. There has already been taken over by the government church property in the State of Puebla valued at 20,000,000 pesos, the title to which, while not held directly by the church, was, it is alleged, owned and operated for ecclesiastical benefit. Investigations are now being made by the agrarian commission into the Catholic church lands in other States of the country, with a view to their confiscation and division among the people.

Instead of taking over big landed estates without recompense to the owners, it is the present policy of the commission to issue bonds in payment of these holdings. Wherever it is shown that land owners have unlawfully taken possession of property belonging to the people of a community, these holdings will be returned to their rightful owners, it is stated. This has been done in a number of instances and is the chief cause of criticism and protest against the agrarian policy of the government.

STEAL BIBLES FROM HOTELS.

Five per cent of the red-edged Bibles placed in hotel rooms throughout the country by the Gideons, traveling men's religious organization, are stolen annually, and have to be replaced.

"Some take them, read them, become penitent and write in, asking how much the Bible is worth, or send $5 or so," said A. B. T. Moore, national secretary of the Gideons. "Others merely take them and keep them." Mr. Moore says there are about 416,000 Bibles in the hotels of the United States and Canada. They now cost 85 cents each, where formerly they cost 35 cents.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

Irish Bull.

On election day McCarthy and Dunnavent each had succeeded in casting fifty-nine votes. At the sixtieth voting place a judge looked at Dunnavent suspiciously and demanded to know his name.

"Rosenbloom," Dunnavent replied.

"You're a liar; get out of here," said the judge.

"You're another," answered Dunnavent, "Rosenbloom's me name and that's the name I'm going to vote by."

All might have gone well had not McCarthy called from the rear of the line: "That's the boy, Dunnavent. Don't let 'im bluff ya."

Ask to see the contents of the mattress you expect to buy; then you will understand why Barker Bros.' Mattresses are BETTER.

There's a Certain Keen Joy in Living Which ONLY SOUND SLEEP CAN BRING

Unless your bed allows you to relax perfectly, your sleep is disturbed, and you are denied that complete restoration which even many hours of "light sleep" cannot bring about.

So, you see, it is really the DEPTH of your sleep which counts, rather than the length of time.

If your bed is a PERFECT bed (firm, yet resilient and yielding to the slightest pressure from any part of the body); if your bed fits you as a bed should fit the individual, your nerves and muscles are coaxed into a state of relaxation wherein deep, sound slumber is made possible, and this, if it is allowed to continue uninterrupted for a reasonable length of time, will banish weariness and fatigue much more effectively than—and in one-half the time of—sleep which is constantly being disturbed by slight annoyances and discomforts caused from an imperfect bed.

At Barker Bros. you will find THE PERFECT BED — the bed which fits YOUR BODY.

And – if you take advantage of the price-savings made possible by BARKER BROS.' ANNUAL AUGUST SALE—you may select your bed from Barker Bros.' ENTIRE line of SIMMONS METAL BEDS AND SPRINGS, the entire stock of Barker Bros.' BOX SPRINGS and most of the better grades of BARKER BROS.' OWN-MAKE MATTRESSES — all of which are priced at important reductions.

HAYS'S POLICY IS ANNOUNCED.

Humanizing Plans Are Outlined for Postoffice.

Insurance Man to Head New Welfare Board.

Service With Consideration of Workers is Aim.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6. — The announced intention of Postmaster-General Hays to improve working conditions of postoffice employees has been followed by the appointment of Lee K. Frankel, vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, and one of the best known experts in health and welfare, as head of the new Welfare Bureau. Mr. Hays, outlining his plans for the new Welfare Department, says:

"I have visited some of the larger postoffices and viewed working conditions personally. I have had a number of postmasters from the larger postoffices, representatives of the employees, and welfare workers from several large industrial plants in conference concerning welfare work in postoffices.

"From my own observation and what has been gathered from the conferences of postmasters and employees, it is very certain that a great program of improving working conditions among the employees of the Postal Service awaits us.

"We are going to have a welfare department in the Postal Service just as definite in its duties and certain in its functioning as the fiscal department or any other department. It will be in charge of an individual competent to look after it, doing nothing else. Every other large industry in the country has adopted welfare measures. This humanizing business is not original. It has been the definite trend of American business for the past generation. Just how far I can go with it in the Postoffice Department I don't know, but it is certain that very much can be done, and not in any sense in lieu of wages. All the things that are done successfully for the welfare of the employees in other successful business must be done as far as possible in this, the greatest of all businesses. Why it has not been seriously undertaken before by the Postoffice Department is difficult to understand. It is certainly one of the very definite purposes of the days just ahead. If we can improve the spirit and actual conditions of the 300,000 men and women who do this job, that in itself is an accomplishment, and it is just as certain to bring a consequential improvement in the service as tomorrow's sun.

"The postoffice buildings are under control of the Treasury Department, not the Postoffice Department. When a dark, dingy room needs painting to give light to it; when alterations are necessary to give ventilation; when space is required for a rest room and a lounge to place in it, these things must all be obtained through another department of the government.

"If first-aid remedies are required; if a chiropodist is engaged to look after the feet of such employees as carriers or distributors; or the use of a woman attendant for the women employees is desired, more or less restrictions operate against obtaining these. All of these benefits and very much more in the direction of welfare work are provided by private institutions for their employees with full public approval and commendation. To these wise managers of private business it is not alone altruistic, but plain common business sense. To propose something like this among government employment meets with the prejudice of some that the government employees have sinecures and fat jobs and are not entitled to this consideration.

"There is no occupation in any line of work which calls for a higher grade of intelligence and for more real, hard labor than in the postal service. The postal workers are a hard-working class of employees. We have just got to get away from the idea that government employees are to be less favorably treated than those in private employment.

"The one most important element in any service is the spirit of the men doing it. And we must get away in the postoffice service from any idea that labor is a commodity. I would reiterate the suggestion that that idea was abandoned 1921 years ago. I am determined in all seriousness to go to great lengths to develop the spirit in the department that we are three hundred thousand partners. The working conditions, in many places, are unsatisfactory, and a large amount of work must be done in that direction. There is no doubt about the quality of our employees. They have the brains and they have the hands to do this job well, but some place along the line the heart has been lost out of the works.

"I have said that it is my opinion that the postal establishment is most certainly not an institution for profit nor for politics, but an institution for service, and it is the President's most earnest purpose to improve that service. You can't expect men and women to give service if they are to be shuttlecocks of politics.

"It would be my very greatest satisfaction if in this effort I contribute a little to the end that the postal service be made more and more a desirable career into which the young enter with a certainty that their service will be performed under reasonable conditions for a reasonable wage and for an appreciative people.

The men and women who constitute the great army of employees are doing a distinct government and public service, and they are entitled to an appreciation commensurate with the efficiency and importance of that service. The first element of a proper appreciation is to make certain that honest and efficient service shall be honestly recognized and that the merit system shall control without any subterfuge under any circumstances whatsoever. I have said, and I repeat, that my purposes are:

"(1:) To make such rectifications as in all decency and fairness must be made to assure a square deal.

"(2:) To strengthen and broaden the Civil Service at every point wherever possible, to the end that merit may govern.

"(3:) With absolute fidelity to put the entire service upon a purely business basis so sound and so serviceable that no political party will ever again dare attempt to ignore or evade it ultimately."—[The Nation's Health.

MUSICAL.

TOURS ABROAD AGAIN.

LESTER DONAHUE POPULAR IN BRITISH METROPOLIS.

Lester Donahue, whose original success in music is always associated with his residence here, is again achieving favor abroad. His concerts in London and elsewhere in the British Isles have attracted may tributes of praise, and, at last accounts, he was anticipating carrying his tour to the European continent.

Mr. Donahue was among the first American musicians to visit London last season, and the popularity that he then attracted, induced him to return for another series of summer appearances.

Grauman Summer Concert.

Another popular three-part program has been aranged by Mischa Guterson for the Grauman orchestral concert this morning. Two soloists—Miss Vera La Mar, dramatic mezzo-contralto, and Hans Hanke, pianist—have been engaged, while the third attraction will be the orchestral numbers.

Miss Vera La Mar has appeared in New York and Chicago concert circles. At the present concert she will sing "Habanera," from Bizet's opera, "Carmen."

Mr. Hanke will play the "Rigoletto" paraphrase, by Liszt.

Mr. Guterson has arranged a delightful orchestral program, which he has named "A Summer Concert." "Maytime," selection (Romberg;) "Summer Evening Waltz" (Waldteufel;) "The Brook" (De Boisdeffre;) "Midsummer Night's Dream," overture (Mendelssohn,) and "Moonlight Sonata" (Beethoven,) will make up the numbers.

For Chicago Teacher.

A musical program was given recently at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Maginnis in honor of Mme. Regna Rinne of Chicago. Mme. Rinne has been associated with the Chicago Conservatory for many years and is now to locate in Los Angeles. Among the guests were Gertrude Ross, Florence Middaugh, Mary Orcutt, May McDonall Hope, Constance Balfour, Charles W. Cadman, Henri De La Plate and Raymond Harmon.

Heads Dominant Club.

Mrs. Bertha Winslow Vaughn, vocal instructor, was recently elected president of the "Dominant Club."

Will Visit in East.

Florence Middaugh, contralto, will leave the 15th inst. for a month's visit in the East. Miss Middaugh has a large list of engagements booked for the early fall and winter, and will also reopen her studio for teaching on returning to Los Angeles.

Enlarges Repertoire.

Leoline Walton, pianist and teacher of Berkeley, Cal., has been in Los Angeles all summer, coaching with Brahm Van Den Berg. She has increased her repertoire, especially the modern, for her work in Berkeley next season. Mrs. Walton will give more of her time to her concertizing than formerly, and will make several appearances in Northern California this season.

Ambassador Concert.

The Ambassador Artist Ensemble, Henri J. Van Praag, director, will hold its usual concert in the Ambassador lobby this evening.

The soloist is Miss M. Paddleford, soprano, who will render an aria from "Carmen" by Bizet, and Keith McLeod's "In Dreams I Linger."

Following is the program:

Overture, "Mignon" .... Thomas
"In Dreams I Linger" .... Keith McLeod
Miss Paddleford.
"Kol Nidrei" .... Max Bruch
Cello obbligato, Ludwig Opid.
Aria from "Carmen" .... Bizet
Miss Paddleford.
Grand Fantasia, "Faust" .... Gounod

Miabelle Everett Vacations.

Miabelle Everett has closed her studio for the months of August and September, and will resume her teaching work October 3.

During the past year Mrs. Everett has given one day each month to class instruction, but during July she devoted each Friday afternoon to class lectures and analysis of technique. At these lessons each pupil is required to illustrate vocal principles. Criticisms by pupils are encouraged, and vocal faults are explained and corrected.

The entire class attended a picnic on last Saturday afternoon and evening on the Malibu Road beach.

Violinist Clever.

Miss Marion Burge Smithson, girl violinist, played with success at the garden party given by Mrs. Newton in Sierra Madre in honor of Gov. and Mrs. Stephens. Miss Smithson gave the "Sierra Morena" by J. Monasterio, and "Old Refrain" by Kreisler. She has an excellent bow arm and displays a depth of feeling rarely heard in one so young.

Van den Berg Pupils.

An informal students' recital was given at the studios of Brahm van den Berg in the Majestic Theater Building, Wednesday evening. Mr. Van den Berg holds one of these recitals each month, as he considers it part of the education of each pupil to appear before an audience as often as possible.

Miss Lois Putlitz, a pupil of Christiaan Timmner, played two violin solos, "Chant Arabe" (C. Pacini,) and "Rondo Brilliant" (Cecil Burleigh).

The piano solos were as follows:

Fantasie and Fugue .... Bach-Liszt
Etude, "Visions" .... Liszt
Wilhelmina Rector.
Andante and Polonaise .... Chopin
Marjorie Hicks.
"Rigoletto" Pharaphrase .... Verdi-Liszt
Verna Kloess.
Three Preludes .... Chopin
Leoline Walton.

Singer Recovers.

Beatrice de Troost, who has been seriously ill for several months, has resumed work in her studios in the Majestic Theater Building. During the coming season she plans to appear on club programs and to present at least two recitals in Los Angeles. Her illness last season being responsible for the postponent of the Russian program which she had prepared, she will present it this year. The second program is to be varied in many languages.

Opera Singers at Orpheum.

An attractive musical combination will be presented by the Orpheum next week in Marion Weeks, the American coloratura and Henri Barron, the tenor. Both were members of the Chicago Grand Opera Company and have a repertoire of exceptional merit, it is said Miss Weeks will render the "Doll Song" from the "Tales of Hoffman," among other numbers, to display her high tones.

Mr. Barron was first engaged as one of the tenors of the Savage English Opera Company, when that organization toured in repertoire. In Russia his native land he was a member of the famous Slavianski male chorus. Subsequent to his engagement with Savage he went to Europe and there studied with Vincenzo Lombardi. He was again brought to America to assume the leading role in "The Girl of the Golden West."

Vera La Mar,
Mezzo-contralto soloist at popular orchestral concert.

Talks on Ultra-Moderns.

Jennie Winston, prominent as a musician and a writer, has returned from the State convention of the music teachers association, where she spoke on ultra-modern music. Musical illustrations for her talk were given by Maud Wellendorff, pianist of San Francisco.

Whistling Quartet.

The Woodland Whistling Quartet, composed of Norma Beauchamp, Mildred Galbreath, Isabel Palm and Janice Larson, pupils of Agnes Woodward, director of the California School of Artistic Whistling, will present several numbers tonight at the Temple Baptist Church. Their selections with include the "Parisian Song" by Roberts and "The Star" by Rogers.

The girls have been studying for the past four or five years with Miss Woodward, and during the past two have appeared in programs at Grauman's and the Mission theaters, and also in concent events in Pasadena and San Diego. They have a repertoire of thirty or forty selections at their immediate command. All the girls have specialized in bird imitations and other virtuoso features of the whistling art.

Grunn Pupils Play.

A very interesting recital was given by the advanced piano students of Homer Grunn last Friday evening in the ballroom of the Little Theater. Numbers by Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Rubenstein, Grieg, Arensky, MacDowell and others lent distinction to the program. A concert study by Mr. Grunn himself made a pleasing impression.

The accomplishments of several pupils were especially displayed in concert renditions. Those taking part included Marguerite Porter, Grace Raley, Homer Simmons and Frances Cole, who played two original compositions.

Elgar Overture.

"Pomp and Circumstance," the overture by Elgar will be the principal number on the musical program arranged by Rene Williams for the reopening of the Kinema Theater next Wednesday evening. Several other attractive selections are included.

Three Arts Club.

The Three Arts Club is arranging a reception to be given at its new clubhouse, 1001 West Washington street, the afternoon of the 15th inst.

BEAUTY PLUS, NEEDED.

Gloria Swanson Says Good Looks Secondary for Success.

The theory that beauty makes the screen actres sis scotched by Gloria Swanson, star of "The Great Moment," which opens today at Grauman's Rialto Theater. While she has gained a large share of her prominence by virtue of her attractiveness, Miss Swanson stresses particularly other attainments for the success of the screen player.

"The idea that beauty is the greatest requisite of a screen star is all wrong," says Miss Swanson. "It is secondary to ability. Personality comes before beauty. Just as speaking ability and acting ability and personality come first on the stage, so do the latter two rank first on the screen. Speaking ability, of course, does not count on the silversheet.

"One need only glance at a list of the girls who have won beauty contests in the last few years to see that appearance is not so important. Only one or two of the hundreds of winners have ever become well known on the screen. Most of them have failed ignominiously. Why? Because they lacked either personality or the ability to act. The lack of either is disastrous.

"On the other hand, everybody can name at least a dozen very popular actresses who are not really pretty at all. Some of them are even homely. Yet they are stars and are popular. And just because they possess screen charm.

"They can reach right off the screen and grasp the heart of the audience. That is why I say beauty is a secondary matter, if not third in importance, in so far as screen success goes."

HELEN KLOKKE AT CARMEL.

Helen Klokke, dramatic interpreter, whose concert appearances in Los Angeles last season were personal triumphs, has been resting in Carmel-by-the-Sea, preparing her repertoire. She will appear before a number of the Southland clubs.

His Hunting and Her Fishing Over.

A young man in St. Johnsbury, Vt., looking rather sheepish, applied at the town clerk's office for a license.

"Hunting, fishing or combination?" asked the clerk who was busy with game licenses.

"Combination, I guess," replied the blushing youth. "We want to get married."—[Boston Transcript.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Music is having a busy time of it this summer. Compositions of all kinds will get slight vacations, and the musicians themselves—for the most part—are fiddling away steadily, and playing other instruments, and singing. Never before have we had quite so much music during weather when the mercury hovered near the top of its glass inclosure. It is an encouraging sign, for unless the people wanted to hear music there would be none. It must be gratifying to those who have done so much to show the public the entertainment value of melody and harmony to observe the progress made. Such men as Edward Bok, of Philadelphia; Elbert L. Carpenter of Minneapolis; William A. Clarke, Jr., of Los Angeles; George Eastman, of Rochester; Louis Eckstein of Chicago; Harry Harkness Flagler, O. H. Kahn, Clarence Mackay, Adolph Lewisohn and Charles M. Schwab of New York; Harold F. McCormick of Chicago; Will H. Murphy of Detroit; D. Z. Norton, John L. Severance and William G. Mather of Cleveland, and Mrs. Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati, are a few of the constructive music patrons throughout the country who are doing much for the art. To publish the names of all who are taking an active part in large musical enterprises would require a column of space; and each year finds an increase in the number of wealthy men and women who are interesting themselves in the work.

It is significant that during the business depression of the past eight months music has been affected far less than many of what we call essentials. There would seem here to be proof that music is itself necessary to so large a part of the people that they find it a hadrship to try to get along with a quantity materially less than they have been getting in the past few years.

I was talking a few days ago to one of the best informed music enthusiasts in this part of the country, a man who has himself figured prominently in providing practically for the needs of the public in a community which shall be nameless because by informant is a man of modesty.

George Smart,
Who will stage operatic ballet.

"When we find men and women living in places so remote from one another devoting their time and considerable money to fostering music it must be clear that it possesses unique elements to better the condition of the people.

"Take the decided strides Los Angeles is making in music. There is a city far removed from points where fine musicians can easily be secured to appear in public, yet there has been made available within two years a symphony orchestra of metropolitan quality. For his breadth of vision in having provided his fellow-citizens with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, Mr. Clarke has placed them in his debt . . . though, of course, this was the last thing he had in mind when he founded the orchestra.

"From what I hear of Mr. Clarke's deep interest in music, and his belief that taken properly to the people it adds materially to their content and happiness, I should not be surprised if ultimately he were to do for Los Angeles what George Eastman is doing for Rochester.

"The progressiveness of big-minded citizens in identifying themselves actively with useful forms of musical endeavor is constantly growing," continued my informant, "as is the amount of money they are placing at the disposal of a movement which is one of the best I know of for one side of our common welfare."

THE PILGRIMS' PAGEANT.

Impressively dramatic was the premiere of "The Pilgrim Spirit," which was given recently in the town of Plymouth, Mass., successively for several performances, and will have several more before the middle of August.

The reader, whose ancestors were among the courageously hardy voyagers who stepped from their ship to Plymouth Rock back in 1620, should feel a thrill at the thought of what has been done in the spectacular production which attracted many people to the quiet town on the New England Coast, and interested several of the foremost American composers sufficiently to write music for the production.

With 1300 people taking part in the celebration—which consists of four episodes and twenty-three scenes—one may permit the imagination fairly free rein. Prof. Baker of Harvard University wrote the text. The music was composed by George W. Chadwick, Chalmers Clifton (who also conducted the orchestra,) F. S. Converse, Arthur Foote, Edward Burlingame Hill, Henry F. Gilbert, Edgar Stillman Kelley, John Powell and Leo Sowerby.

It is impossible to go into the details with respect to either the work or its presentation; but there can be slight doubt that those who saw it and heard the music will not forget. The score was interesting because it offered individual touches of several musicians, all of them representative of the nation even though they differ in the degree of their gifts and methods.

Messrs. Gilbert, Kelley, Clifton and Powell appear to have succeeded moderately well with their tasks which were difficult because each composer was limited in the scope of what had to be written.

HERBERT'S CONTORTIONS.

Writing music and conducting it are, we sometimes discover, two entirely separate things. Take, for instance, the case of our old friend Victor Herbert, who writes a score with the ease some of us disclose in drawing a breath of air.

Victor took hold of the Stadium concerts this week as conductor, and we were treated—as we occasionally are when he leads an orchestra—to gyrations which would make envious many a professional gymnast. Victor has a double shuffle affect of the arms which seems to produce a shudder of the composer's body; but as it is apparent even when he leads his own composition, it is evident that it isn't the music which affects him, but probably the intensity of his endeavors.

The Stadium concerts continue to attract throngs in such numbers that it begins to look as though the deficit this season would be slight. Adolph Lewishohn, whose generosity and activity has made these affairs possible, started a movement to raise a guaranty fund of $50,000 in case it were needed. Something like $40,000 is already pledged.

Meanwhile, as these concerts continue, unhappiness has touched the members of the Musical Mutual Protective Union who might have had the jobs outside players now command. The local union is now begging to be taken back into the American Federation of Musicians' fold, and promises to be good if obliged.

OPERATIVC MATTERS.

Mr. Harold F. McCormack is in Europe, in the interests of the Chicago Opera Association, in which he is the most energetic worker. This organization has had a stormy time for the past year, but it begins to look as though the men who have assumed the financial responsibilities intend seeing to it that their best interests are preserved.

The Chicago Opera Association is one of great usefulness, and its future looms bright if care is exercised in certain directions and expenses kept within reasonable bounds. Some distinguished artists have been secured for the coming season, and it only needs efficient administration to bring this company to the place it deserves to occupy.

Assistant General Manager Edward Ziegler has just sailed for Europe to be gone until mid-September. He has some few business matters to dispose of, then he will proceed through France in search of rest prior to the big season which lies ahead.

Antonio Scotti and Fortune Gallo are busy on this side of the ocean, each with his own opera company, and both intent upon giving their patrons some fine performances.

We should have a fair quantity of opera during the coming season, and it will not be long now before it gets under way.

SWIMMING POOL ON BOAT.

As a fitting complement to a swimming pool built on a Connecticut estate recently, a ferryboat pavilion has been erected, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. This boat has all the fittings of a regular craft of its type, being equipped above with a lifeboat, life preservers, funnel and pilot house. The cabin is a spacious dance floor, where diversion from the swimming sport may be indulged in. The swimming pool forms a forward deck for the ferry, and is surrounded by a sidewalk set with benches and chairs.

"THE GREAT MOMENT."

When an :eminent author" enters the motion-picture field with an original story written for the screen and "not for publication" he or she ought to make a pretty big splash if he or she doesn't yant to be carried out on the ebbing tide.

It is confidently announced by all those interested that Elinor Glyn, author of "Three Weeks," and many kindred fulminations, has made this violent agitation with "The Great Moment," which she has been working on at Lasky's for some time, and which will be given its frand western East Siberia, Once Empire of Pacific Vikings, is Treasure House.

The Russians are trying to throw open East Siberia to American commerce and exploitation. The coast and Amur provinces form a commercial region accessible to traders from the Pacific, susceptible of the easiest and quickest development. For practical purposes the Russians divide its explored areas into those that are agricultural, those that are industrial only, and those that may become industrial. They are but a small part of the coast and Amur provinces. What remains that is partially known and what is unknown, is their main part; without then there would be no coast and Amur provinces.

UNEXPLORED TERRITORY.

Vast regions in East Siberia never have felt the foot of man as far as we know. What they contain remains to be found out. Investigation of flora and fauna was begun about ten years before American scientists appeared in Alaska. A great deal was learned and an immense amount of scientific material collected. But after two generations the examination of these materials has not been completed. It is only in the present generation that scientific, geological and mineral exploration began, and route maps were commenced. To travel it always has been necessary to have guides and even military protection. Except for the post roads from Russia the highways of East Siberia stopped.

There is a large scale map of the agricultural regions, and a small scale map of the industrial regions, of the coast and Amur provinces. Of the region which may be industrial in the future there, only a routing plan has been traced. Geographical knowledge of East Siberia for the most part is made up from the stories of hunters' marches. Only its coast line and outer boundary has been measurably traced scientifically. The rivers are known exactly, or within twenty miles of exactness, only where they fall into the sea. Except for a few like the Amur, their courses are guessed at. Merely the work of tracing route maps in the coast provinces will require five explorers for ten years, according to the calculations of the Geological Survey. A detailed map would require twenty-five explorers working for forty years.

East Asia has a complicated geology. Scientists qualified to properly explore it are rare. One of its explorers, Kansensky, who had a special knowledge, died of starvation in Petrograd during the spring of 1919 in the prime of life. Others were widely scattered by civil war, and the work of pathfinding in East Siberia stopped. Kamchatka, the peninsula of which is as large as our three Pacific Coast States, was left with the tracings of a route map of an area in size, less than one-eleventh of the province. The tracing of the route map for Kamchatka alone will require ten explorers twenty years to complete. And, after completing strictly practical maps of the accessible parts of East Siberia, to serve pressing economic needs, the Russian explorers and scientific investigators will continue wandering for generations in the taiga and tundra, before East Siberia will be fully mapped.

With only its known parts, East Siberia is relatively unimportant. Without its unknown parts, it is only a shell. It has been investigated less than any other part of Russia. The reason for this is its immensity, lack of communications and remoteness from the seat of administration in Europe.

SIBERIA MISMANAGED.

As Congress was unable to understand the needs of Alaska, the Czar was incapable of understanding those of Siberia. As we applied Oregon local codes of law to Alaska without consideration of the needs of the people, Russia kept the bureaucratic system in Siberia. And unable to know what was the matter, both administrations, as those know who have to fight Alaska's battles before Congress, resorted to commissions, boards, bureaus and all manner of regulators, investigators and spies. If Siberia was worse mismanaged, the Russians, in some respects, did better in Siberia than we have done in Alaska. In Siberia the population, at least has increased, while in Alaska, we drove it down to the point of catastrophe—from 75,000 to 29,000.

For nearly a decade East Siberia has been cut off from Europe, its communications are in the Pacific, and its affinity is with America. It is 1500 miles nearer Canada and our Pacific Coast States, than Yokohama, and nearer, by 2500 miles, than China. It is three hours' sail from Alaska. Its wealth of resources of Alaska furnish a proximate parallel. John H. Cobb of Juneau invoiced Alaska for the consources is such that only the residerátion of the administration of President Harding. He said, "Alaska is rich in natural resources, is a land of unrivalled beauty, and has a climate throughout a large part of the country superior to the climate of Northern Europe. No country produces so much wealth per capita or has so great a per capita commerce. It exceeds the commerce of the Philippines with more than 8,000,000 population. It has more coal than Pennsylvania, more gold than California, more copper than Utah or Montana, oil and gas deposits of unknown extent, pulp timber to supply the nation with paper, water power of untold extent, fisheries greater than the New Foundland banks, and an agricultural area greater and more productive than that of Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland combined."

VAST COUNTRY.

Compare this with the region opposite. That part of East Siberia having its permanent outlet and market in the Pacific, is three times the size of Alaska and though practically unknown in America, has all of which Alaska boasts, multiplied in most instances, by three. Americans, Germans, Britons and Japanese have tried to estimate the wealth of this last world's great out-of-doors. It is well supplied with harbors, two of which are not excelled elsewhere in the world. Its largest province is more than half the size of the whole United States. Its coast territory, which directly joins us on our Alaskan border, is larger than California, Oregon and Washington, with Texas and Arizona thrown in. It has telegraphs to Europe and China, and is widely linked to our coast by wireless. The longest continual railway reaches 2996 miles, whereas it is about 5500 miles from Moscow to Vladivostok. It not only has the longest railway in the world, it has labor, a system of trunk roads, and communications by sea. It has river navigation on the Amur corresponding to navigation on the Yukon and Columbia, and it has navigation on Lake Baikal and the Lena.

In 1919 the Siberian government appropriated nearly 2,000,000 rubles merely to take a census of the riches of its Aladdin treasure-box. At that time East Siberia's gold output, with obsolete methods, was $14,000,000. That of Alaska with all the advantages of machinery was only $9,000,000. And while government engineers said that $200,000,000 in gold could be picked up from the sand and gravel of Seward Peninsula alone, they pronounced Siberia the richest gold country in the world. Alaska has brought to the world a wealth of more than $1,000,000,000. Only misgovernment has prevented it having a population of 250,000 instead of 29,000, making it ten times greater than it is. East Siberia has still greater possibilities. Its development will pay on a greater scale, and by its development and that of Alaska, the face of the Northern Hemisphere, and of the Pacific area will be changed. Even more than Alaska, East Siberia will attract capital and industry. Nations are prepared and ready for its opening. It is ready for railroads. Connections between the Trans-American and Trans-Siberian railways have been planned, which, if constructed, would make a rail route between America and Asia by way of Bering Strait. East Siberia was discovered and scouted by Russians, and settled contemporaneously with the settling of New England. It is half way between New York and Moscow. It lies in the same latitude as Canada, Washington and Alaska. It is the only truly virgin territory left for exploration and development in the Pacific basin. Its distance from the seat of administration in Europe, and its inaccessibility to Europeans make it near and accessible to America. For seven years all Siberia has depended upon the Pacific for intercourse with the world. Its affinity with America and the community of Russian-American interests across the Pacific Ocean, present the greatest opportunities to Americans for its development.

BREAKING IT TO HIS HELPMEET.

Required Superhuman Self-Control, but He Finally Succeeded.

With regular and unwavering step he walked from one end of the room to the other—his hands clenched behind his back in an effort to control his overwrought feelings. Every now and anon he would stop and kick exasperatedly at an upturned edge of the Turkish rug.

He must tell her. There was no escape. It would not do to keep her in suspense any longer. Nothing was to be gained by postponement. He speculated whether he should inform her by degrees or whether he should speak out in a straightforward, simple manner. It was obvious that circumvention would only prolong the agony. He pondered upon the choice of words.

Then suddenly he braced himself and putting on a bold front walked upstairs to his wife's boudoir. With superhuman self-control he stifled a tremor in his voice as he exclaimed:

"Martha, I cannot withhold it any longer, I bought a pair of spats this afternoon."—[John H. McNeely in Life.

FRUITS OF MOTHERRHOOD.

Does motherhood, with its attendant cares and responsibilities make a woman less attractive in the eyes of her friends than she was in the days before her marriage?

Nine girls out of ten will answer in the affirmative and will cite a specific case where a pretty girl became worn and tired-looking by the time baby was 2 or 3 years old, neglected her appearance, became rusty on current affairs, dropped her friends and narrowed her life down to a round of baby caring, husband feeding and housekeeping.

This is undoubtedly true, especially among women unable to afford a maid or nursemaid. The constant focusing of one's thoughts on baby affairs, however dear to a mother's heart, will crowd out other broadening influences and tend to produce that disinterestedness and that uninformed state of mind so common to young mothers.

Such a condition is often avoidable, but more often it is not. The physical care of a baby plus the housework is as much as any one woman can do well and if she still has time to be fresh and attractive, then she has unusual strength and nerves or an unusually calm, quiet baby—which most babies are not.

Granted that she does become unattractive and stale in a social sense—to herself and to her husband she is developing character traits undreamed of and a wonder to herself. Like the sun's warmth on a budding flower does mother love bring forth patience and long suffering. The responsibility of a helpless baby develops stability and determination. The cry of a sick child gives birth to a fervent faith in God's mercy and a fear of his power.

The People and Their Daily Troubles

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

The Old Family and New.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

Chief among the knotty problems into which newlyweds bump, and over which most husbands and wives fight from the altar to the grave, is the question of how much a married man and woman owe to their parents and to each other, and which should come first in their consideration, the old family they have left, or the new one they are just establishing.

Curiously enough, this is a matter that people never seem to discuss before marriage, although there is nothing that more vitally affects their happiness and well-being. Probably this is because all lovers labor under the hallucination that they will be all-in-all to each other, and so they never dream of the day coming when they will be called upon to play second fiddle to their respective in-laws.

Certain it is, however, that there would be fewer wedding bells if many a man had an inkling that in marrying the beauteous creature he is courting he was also espousing her ne'er-do-well father, and shiftless mother, and a horde of needy little brothers and sisters, and that many a maiden would say "No" instead of "Yes" if she could foresee that the ardent swain who is wooing her would have no hesitation in making her a virtual slave to his people.

Yet so it happens, often and often, and the nobler the man and woman, and the higher sense of duty they have, the more likely it is to happen to them. For those with an ingrowing conscience cannot slough off responsibilities, and go away with a light heart to enjoy their own happiness. They must needs remember those they have left behind them who have been dependent on them for companionship, or financial support, and the temptation always is to bring this burden over into the new home, and bind it upon shoulders that should be free of it.

Women are the greatest sinners in this respect because family ties are not only stronger with women than men, but a family always feels freer to impose on a daughter and sister than it does on a son and brother. It's Mary and not John on whom the relatives come down like the wolf on the fold, and it's the wife's folks, instead of the husband's, who camp perpetually in the guest room, and are always under foot. It's the daughter whom the old father and mother go to live with, not the son, and you will find ten men supporting mothers-in-law, where one supports his own mother.

It is easy enough to see how all of this happens. Mary is a loving, dutiful daughter, and an affectionate sister. When she married she did not cease to be a daughter nor a sister, nor was her heart hardened against her family. Being away from home she perceives the family needs even more plainly than she did while at home, and she sends back her husband's money to her family. And soon the family begin to call on her for everything as if she were a free supply station for their wants.

Mother needs a change, and mother comes for an interminable visit. Sally wants to spend a winter in town, so Sally comes and upsets the flat, and crowds the master of it into a small closet of a room. Tommy wants to study something, or get a job, and must have free board and lodging, and so Tommy is foisted upon the unfortunate husband.

Many a married man finds that almost everything he earns goes to the upkeep of his wife's family. Many a man has his whole home life ruined by the presence of some members of his wife's family in it, and he can never make his wife see that she is dealing unfairly with him by shanghaing him into supporting those he is under no obligation to toil for, or by foisting upon him strangers who are distasteful to him.

Not so many men are guilty of the offense of putting their families above their wives, but occasionally one does it, and I have in mind a case that has just come under my observation.

A poor young man and woman got married and by working together and saving and scrimping managed to get a little shop of their own in which they were doing well. Along comes the man's father and persuades the son to sell the shop and give him the money to use in speculation. The wife protested with tears, but her husband could refuse his father nothing.

I have known other cases in which a man kept his own family absolutely strapped to lend money, which he knew would never be repaid, to a brilliant and extravagant brother. His own wife did her own housework, and haggled with the butcher over every penny, while brother's wife flaunted around in society, and scorned her humble sister-in-law.

To my mind the woman who takes her husband's money to lavish on her family, and the man who denies his wife the actual comforts of life to indulge the wastefulness of his people, are both dishonest. They are not playing the game. They are not acting fairly by each other.

The man who slaves at his business has certainly a right to the comforts and luxuries his labor earns. It is not just to him for his wife to deprive him of these in order to give to her family. The woman who is a real helpmate to her husband, who saves, and patches, and darns, and cooks, and pinches every nickel, is entitled to have the rewards of her thrift to do with as she pleases and her husband has no moral right to give them to another.

And neither a husband or wife has a right to inflict a disagreeable in-law upon the other, and thus poison all the joy of everyday living.

The man and woman whose sense of duty to their people is stronger than their sense of duty to the one they contemplate marrying, should stay single. It is their privilege to sacrifice themselves for their fathers and mothers, and sisters, and brothers, but not their privilege to offer up an innocent man or woman as a victim.

Of course, there is the duty that a man and woman owe to their parents and to their sisters and brothers, but the higher duty is undoubtedly the obligation a husband and wife owe to each other. For the family duty is one thrust upon us by others, but the duty to those we marry is an obligation we assume ourselves. That is a debt of honor that we must pay to the last farthing.

Making More Money.

This Man Knew How to Meet the Farmers' Needs.

IF YOU look for Larned, Kan., on the regular-sized map the chances are that you won't find it, for the latest census reports plus the natural pride of the residents only combine to give the place a population of 3500. But Larned is remarkable, not for its size, but for the fact that it has the largest and most complete store of its kind in the country—if not in the world—for the Doerr organization grants precedence to none when it comes to a matter of meeting the needs of its customers.

Albert A. Doerr did not, however, spring into proprietorship of this organization overnight, nor did he build up his big commercial machine in a short space of time. It is the result of years of work, of ceaseless battling against obstacles that would make the ordinary man throw up his hands and quit—a monument to perseverance and a keen analysis of the needs of the community.

Born in Pennsylvania, Doerr was forced to leave school at the age of 11 when his family moved to Kansas, but, as it afterward developed, his life among the farming element of the Sunflower State formed the best possible background for his later career, for he learned just what the farmer wanted and needed. When he opened his first store, some time after he had passed the thirty mark, he was, therefore, not at a loss to know the kind of goods to stock and the way in which to sell them.

The first Doerr store wasn't large, but its shelves held just exactly what the farming people wanted to buy, and it wasn't long before one addition had to be built, and then another, finally leading up to what is admittedly the most complete farmers' store in the world owned and operated by the man who turned his lack of early training to advantage in a manner that would cause many a graduate to blush with envy.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

Birds Neglected.

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am writing this on behalf of the feathered wards of the city of Los Angeles housed in Griffith Park.

I have visited the zoos in New York, Chicago, Denver, San Francisco and San Diego, but until today had not seen the one in Griffith Park, this city. When from a distance I spied the magnificent steel structure I thought I would find something equal to if not superior to those in the cities above mentioned, but was sadly disappointed when I came closer.

I don't think I ever saw a sorrier and more dejected looking lot of birds, and no wonder. The place was filthy; there was no place for them to build nests. Some discarded old tin cans have been hung up for that purpose. One white pigeon was nursing a brood of young on the floor in the rocks.

The worst feature was there was no fresh water. The fountains all appeared to be dry except one where a tiny stream filtered through dirty rocks.

My criticism is not because the collection is pitifully meager, but that even this small collection is not given decent care. If the city has not appropriated sufficient funds to do so, it would be far better to have none at all. The exhibit in its present state is a disgrace to the city of Los Angeles.

EMMA B. HARRIS.

One-Way Traffic.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is one way to save the lives of the people in our city, drastic, to be sure, but it will do the work.

One-way traffic on Broadway and Spring streets. Absolutely no turning of corners, and no motorcycles, or devil machines, as I call them, allowed on Broadway. Last week I saw two people knocked down by an auto turning from Sixth street into Broadway. I was nearly killed three months ago by a motorcycle while standing in the safety zone at Third street and Broadway.

By the above method pedestrians could cross the streets, having to watch only one way, while at the present time one must have eyes like a fiddler crab, and wings of Mercury.

MRS. KATHARINE DOUBLEDAY.

The Alien Tax.

REDONDO, July 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please permit a resident foreigner to express his opinion on the new alien State head tax which your paper has so ably condemned as both unjust and unconstitutional. This law is certainly in conflict with the Constitution of the United States and a violation of several treaties with foreign nations and all foreigners will be justified in refusing to pay this unjust tax and their nations will stand behind them in it. Opinion from Washington is also to the effect that it is not enforceable. Another phase of this law is that it will practically kill the Southern California tourist trade from Mexico and Canada in spite of all assertions to the contrary and in spite of the State Attorney-General's opinion that these tourists though foreigners are not so taxable. His advice to the tax collectors not to enforce the law against tourists will not work because there can be no discrimination in the law and other foreigners will be justified in hiring attorneys to get out mandamus or other writs to compel the tax collectors to collect from the tourists as well or not at all because attorneys declare technically all these tourists are foreigners if they fail to register as such with the government and declare they are aliens and this many will not of course do. Unless the law is soon repealed it will cause much trouble. It is another foolish State law which discriminates against harmless foreigners, especially the French, Canadians, Cubans and Mexicans. Personally I shall refuse to pay this tax and appeal to my Canadian government and they will protest to Washington. Our consul general says it is an outrage and not enforceable. Your paper is to be congratulated for being so fair and exposing this unjust law. Many Canadian ex-soldiers are praising your stand.

CAPT. JOHN L. MARTINSON.

Commandeer Houses.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I recently heard the story of a forester, who, when a forest fire threatened his district, forcefully commandeered the services of an escaping camper. The camper, becoming frightened at the order to back up his car, went over an embankment and was killed. In the emergency, the forester was no doubt within the law, yet a life, with all its possibilities and promise, as Bret Harte might have put it, paid its debt to the defiance of order.

"That order and law may be preserved and secured to the many, a life was sacrificed. That is stern justice! It may happen to you, or to me. And yet, in the light of its creation it is but right. Each unit of this republic should serve, and must serve the many. Where there is refusal or evasion, as with the camper, the service may be commandeered. Am I not right?

Then, in the name of the homeless, why not commandeer houses? There are hundreds, thousands now weed-choked and idle, awaiting sale. All were built to meet the need of the public. If my State and city can commandeer me, why can they not penalize vacancies, and relieve a situation rapidly becoming unbearable?

P. L. BRADLEY.

Cheddar Cheese.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 1.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your issue of date, I note in column 2, a question, asked and answered, "What is cheddar cheese? The answer does not convey the facts. Cheddar is a village situated some thirty miles south of Bristol in the fertile county of Somersetshire, Eng. The cheese made there is a full-cream, that is, made from milk as taken from the cow. The cheese when matured is a fine flavor, fat and short. Such is cheddar cheese. American and Canadian makes are as far removed from it in quality as champagne is from apple cider. "Gloster" cheese is similar to the North American product, "tough," generally.

I learned the cheese business in the wholesale district of Smithfield, London, E. C., Eng., so I know whereof I speak.

E. W. THORP.

The Speed Mania.

LOS ANGELES, July 30.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am only an ordinary mother and I do not know if this letter will ever be seen by the public through your big paper, but if you see it I am satisfied.

Now, I do not know how to say very much, but this I can say, as God is my judge, it is true.

I am just scared to death of automobiles and trucks, and do not know what to do to calm my fears when my children are out of my sight. I am always afraid they are going to be brought home dead or badly injured. I am just a nervous wreck from worry, and I have no doubt that there are thousands of mothers in this city in the same condition. I do not see how I am going to get over this agony of feeling.

Now, I have noticed several letters in your paper where it says that something can be done with a speed-indicating machine to stop accidents. If this thing is any good will you not do all you can to see that women and children can get some sort of protection, if it is possible. I don't want to take up your valuable time, but I can't help asking you to do this if you can.

People who have automobiles ought to be satisfied to drive quietly. I can remember when my father and myself were arrested for driving our team ten miles an hour, and we had to pay a fine. Now it seems that people can drive fifty miles an hour or more and kill and injure people and nothing is done to them. Surely women and children should be protected from them.

MARY GREENE.

Observing the Law.

LOS ANGELES, July 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I want to express my hearty approval of your editorial of July 23 under the caption of "No Ku Klux Wanted."

We have laws and courts of justice, why need any one take the law in his hands? The negro is a part of our great city and lives under the law and abides by the decision of his white neighbor.

Why go after him masked so long as he has no part in making the law, nor does he sit in judgment in executing them? Fifteen years a Times reader.

J. H. SHACKELFORD.

Question: How should a concrete floor be prepared for dancing?

F. W. C.

Answer: The floor may be treated with paraffin wax dissolved in turpentine, followed by a coating of powdered wax worked onto the floor in the same way that a wooden floor is waxed or polished. Or the floor may be coated with a lather of liquid soap rubbed in with a scrubbing brush. An occasional application of powdered soap will keep the floor in condition.

Q.: Are the peculiar papal powers handed down from the preceding Pope?

A. F. P.

A.: The peculiar papal powers are the Pope's in virtue of his being Bishop of Rome.

Q.: What is meant by the expression, "'Tis Lent, and the flag's down"?

I. R. G.

A.: Many years ago, theaters exhibited flags on their roofs to signify that performances were going on. In Lent there were no plays, consequently no flags.

ANOTHER GERMAN POST-MORTEM.

Marshal Von Hindenburg Discusses the Grand Strategy of the World War, Maintaining That It was the German People and the Politicians That Failed.

OUT OF MY LIFE. By Marshal von Hindenburg. Translated by F. A. Holt. Harper & Bros., New York.

This is the personal story of Germany's great military leader. Marshal Von Hindenburg is not seeking sympathy, neither does he pass the buck to any great extent. He gives us a somewhat clumsy picture of the part he played in the great tragic drama, but this picture is at times shot through with sufficient light to enable us to understand many things that were before somewhat puzzling.

The books is not, strictly speaking, an alibi. It is doubtful whether Von Hindenburg is capable of realizing that any act of his or of Germany as a whole needs an alibi. True, he does take a slam or two at the politicians and at others whom he chooses to designate as the "arm-chair strategists."

The book is totally devoid of humor, that is intentional humor, but an American reader finds much to chuckle over in its pages. To hear him tell it, all of Germany's woes are due to the politicians and the "weak-kneed" people who whined and lost heart because the German army did not totally destroy the enemy at one fell blow. In this particular the book resembles that of Ludendorff, but there is nothing like the whining note that runs all through the First Quartermaster-General's tirade.

When we read the chapters devoted to his personal affairs, his early training and his career in the army, it is easy to understand his point of view. Force, force, and still more force may be said to be the Alpha and Omega of his philosophy. Germany over all, ruled by the All-Highest War Lord. That, to Von Hindenburg would represent the ideal condition.

It is amusing to read of the shock which Von Hindenburg received when he learned that the Allies were employing propaganda to weaken the morale of his army. One would gather from his manner of speaking that Germany was too disingenuous to think of resorting to propaganda to aid in the gaining of her ends. We imagine that the shock came from a realization of the fact that this method of dropping propaganda behind the lines was somewhat effective. It must have been. Otherwise he would have spoken of it with scorn, for Von Hindenburg has a deep scorn for all failure—in the other fellow.

Again Von Hindenburg is an unconscious humorist when he attempts to give the impression that the German army was at all times numerically weaker than that of the Allies. In fact, his story would have us believe that the whole struggle was a sort of David and Goliath affair, with Germany virtuously playing the role of David.

While he refrains from criticism of his German military associates, he does at times attempt to convey the impression that Germany was more or less hampered by her allies, particularly Austria-Hungary, for which monarchy he displays the typical Prussian contempt. German diplomacy is also contemptuously referred to, and is unfavorably contrasted with that of English diplomacy, about the only accomplishment in which he is willing to concede that the English excel. He points out that the Germans had the English beaten repeatedly, but because of their stubbornness or lack of comprehension, the latter refused to admit defeat and came back for more. He seems to entertain a considerable degree of respect for both the French commanders and their men and he says the Americans are good fighters, but poorly officered.

His comments on the first Battle of the Marne are disappointing in that they consist only of a few general remarks. The loss of that battle is attributed largely to the fact that a number of the subordinate commanders lost touch with headquarters. The general plan of the battle, he says, was right. It was a German plan, and therefore could not be wrong.

One of the most startling admissions made by Von Hindenburg is that it was a fatal tactical error to continue the attack on Verdun after the defenders had shown that it was practically impregnable. Of this operation he says:

"The battles there exhausted our forces like an open wound. Moreover, it was obvious that in any case the enterprise had become hopeless; and that for us to persevere with it would cost us greater losses than those we were able to inflict on the enemy. Our forward zone was at all points exposed to the flanking fire of superior hostile artillery. Our communications with the battle line were extremely difficult. The battlefield was a regular hell and regarded as such by our troops.

"When I look back now, I do not hesitate to say that on purely military grounds it would have been far better for us to have improved our situation at Verdun by the voluntary evacuation of the ground we had captured. In August, 1916, however, I considered I could not adopt that course. To a large extent the flower of our best fighting troops had been sacrificed in the enterprise. The public at home still anticipated a glorious issue to the offensive. It would be only too easy to produce the impression that all these sacrifices had been incurred in vain. Such an impression I was anxious to avoid in the existing state of public opinion, nervous enough as it already was."

The Allies in general, he finds, at least on one occasion, as stubborn as the hated English. He complains that they refused to surrender, although the Germans had attacked them with all the force, vigor and daring of which the German army was capable. But let us read his own statement:

"There was no sign of surrender on the enemy's part. On the contrary, each military defeat seemed only to strengthen the enemy's lust for our destruction.

"This impression was in no wise diminished by the fact that here and there the voice of moderation was heard in the hostile camp. The dictatorial authority of the political organisms against which we were fighting was on the whole in no way injured. They held the wills and the resources of their nations together as if with iron bands, and by more or less autocratic methods, suppressed the capacity for harm of all who dared to think differently from the tyrants in power. To me there was something very impressive in the working of these autocratic powers. They kept their own hopes alive and turned the attention of their peoples mainly to the gradual relaxation of our efforts. In their opinion, these efforts were gradually bound to collapse."

The principal value of the book lies in the fact that in it Von Hindenburg lays bare the grand strategy of the war. This will make interesting reading for the military experts, but some of the revelations will also interest the laymen and will, undoubtedly, form the basis for attacks on many of the principal leaders of the Allies when history comes to be written and the praise and blame is dealt out impartially.

However, since much of the strategy of the German General Staff went to pot, it is at least fair to assume that they are not exactly the best judges of what might have happened had the Allied leaders had the foresight to act on what is so clear to German hindsight.

Adept though the author is with the sword, he is clumsy with the pen and he unconsciously lets us in on the fact that much of his fame rests on pure luck, or at least on a lack of foresight on the part of the generals opposed to him. He shows that the German forces were repeatedly in the most dangerous positions, but because the high command of the Allies did not know it, they were enabled, not through brilliant strokes of military strategy, but by pure luck, to escape.

Joins Harpers.

The Harpers announce that they have become the publishers of George Agnew Chamberlain, author of "White Man" and other successful books, including "Home." They will bring out, in early autumn, his latest novel, "Cobweb," a love story with a new mystery twist. Among the younger novelists Chamberlain stands out both for his achievements up to date and for his great promise. His romantic feeling as a story-teller and his experience in the field of adventurous exploration make him an important acquisition to the Harper family of authors.

RECENT FICTION.

INVISIBLE TIDES. By Beatrice Kean Seymour. Thomas Seltzer, New York.

"Invisible Tides," it would seem, are the desires, emotions, instincts and attachments to persons or places, "which drive to and fro those individuals who are bent on 'self-expression'" and fail to ask themselves whether they have anything more weighty than froth and bubbles to express.

The hero of this story is one Hilary Sargent, a minor artist, a good deal of a moral coward, but with some decent instincts. For instance, he, though a convinced pacifist during the war, nevertheless enlisted—much against the will of his Light o' Love—"because other fellows who hated the bloody mess as badly as he did, had been forced into the trenches." So he got himself killed and doubtless became "one of the soldier-saints burning their way to bliss" of whom Browning once discoursed. The heroine, Helena Courtney, perforce returned to the paths of virtue and to her lawful husband. She had, indeed, "nothing to give him," her heart being buried with her paramour. However "she wanted peace and retreat and healing," was sick of London and filled with nostalgic longing for the spacious and comfortable house on the edge of the Yorkshire moors, which had been the home of her wedded life. Moreover, she, who had always despised the emotion of pity, was now softened by sorrow and therefore pitied her husband, a real but somewhat obtuse saint, who "was willing to take her back on her own terms."

If there is any class of literature published and circulated this side of Gehenna which is warranted to give the hapless reviewer spiritual nausea it is that pithily described by Bernard Shaw as "narratives of clandestine adultery." From Walt Whitman to the sorry hero and heroine of "Invisible Tides" no normal individual can feel anything but contempt for the cowardly cheats who shrink from paying the piper. The really interesting sinners are those who play the game boldly and accept all consequences.

The style of this novel is passable but not in the least distinguished. If, as its jacket declares, it is "the best English novel of the year," this is certainly a barren season.

THIS LITTLE WORLD. By Florence Olmstead. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

Those who like a quiet story in which there is no agonizing passion, no sex obsessions, no raw realism, but much of quiet, everyday life, will seize upon "This Little World" with satisfaction. With all its quiet background—that of a small Georgian town—and its commonplace characters, the book is neither mediocre nor savorless. There is a droll quality that pervades it, expressed in pleasing little quips that arise from a deep-seated sense of humor on the part of the author, as spontaneous as it is delightful.

The people are the kind we meet every day. Some of them lovable, some exasperating, and some are merely "folks" to be put up with and made the best of. Sophy is a winsome bit of humanity, capable, for all her seeming sweetness, of making up her mind suddenly and thoroughly. The way she surprised the self-assured, successful man of business who took a little too long to make up his mind about the desirability of annexing her, is cleverly developed, the reader being in as much doubt as Sophy herself as to her matrimonial intentions until the very end of the book.

Sophy's sister Caroline is the gentle, subdued "old maid," not too old for romance to waken and develop her when the school-teacher turns lover. He is just pedantic enough to be amusing without becoming ridiculous.

There is a restraint throughout the book that prevents the characters from becoming caricatures, as they frequently are in stories of the pleasing love, happy-ending variety. Even "O. Henry," Sophy's provoking cat, is true enough to life to remind many readers of their own tabby.

If Mark is a hero made of paste and ink, he serves to add interest to the love tangle, and we feel that in Sophy's hands he will develop in the right direction.

"This Little World" has better characterization than that achieved by Miss Olmstead in "Stafford's Island."

TAWI TAWI. By Louis Dodge. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.

Louis Dodge is becoming known as a versatile writer of more than ordinary ability. His recent novel, "Whispers," ranks high among detective stories; his "The Runaway Woman" described with unusual skill two out-of-the-ordinary characters, a woman and a man who, for quite different reasons, were tramping it. They wandered together, loved and parted in a way that seems as possible as it was unconventional.

"Tawi Tawi" is not like either of these. It begins as a western tale along the usual lines. Fidesia, beautiful daughter of the Spanish rancher Valverde, is presented in misty outline, with her two lovers in deadly rivalry for her hand.

Then the author sweeps these lovers away, taking one to a lonely island of the Philippine group, where he meets untoward adventure. Mystery, horror, thrills are here, with the savage natives much in the foreground.

The description of the trip to the adjoining island followed by the attack of the natives and the escape of the whites, who undergo the cruelest suffering, is an excellent piece of writing, which would alone distinguish the book among others of its kind.

The weakest thing about the story is its central motif—the love of the two men for Fidesia. This is stereotyped, unconvincing, and trivial. Mr. Dodge's style is clean and clear, even though his short sentences grow tiresome. And the overworked word, furtive, might to advantage be cut out in a dozen places. Nevertheless, the book recounts some good adventure and so may be safely chosen for summer reading.

A CASE IN CAMERA. By Oliver Onions. The Macmillan Company, New York.

Like most mystery stories, it is the solution of a murder that this tale hinges about. At the London home of an artist a group of friends are assembled at a breakfast, which Philip Esdaile and his wife are giving prior to leaving for their country home.

As a last touch Philip decides to get a bottle of orange curacao from the cellar. Just after he has gone down the steps an airplane crashes from the sky and it is discovered that the pilot is killed while the mechanician is severely, but not fatally injured.

It transpires that at the very instant of the crash a pistol shot was heard. By whom or for what purpose it was fired no one seems to be able to determine. The mystery grows, the artist host, who had remained in the cellar for over half an hour, is brought under suspicion. Others are involved. An amateur detective forms his own opinion and gives no little trouble. In time all is explained in an original way, in which an unusual phenomenon has its part.

The story, written in a light, entertaining vein, with sharply drawn characters, is sufficiently exciting to suit the most exacting reader of such tales.

ADVENTURES OF THE NIGHT. By George A. Birmingham. George H. Doran Company, New York.

When Molly and her antiquarian father went looking for the treasure of King Cormac, the local police and the inhabitants of Inishheeny misunderstood. Their consciences were bad. They knew the secret of the island, and that secret was not the treasure of King Cormac, but some privily manufactured sample of the drink that cheers. Mr. Patterson of the police had some inkling of what was forward, and took a hand in the game, but who was Mr. Patterson to withstand Molly's beaux yeux?

The story is a delightfully Birminghamesque mixture of fun and adventure, romance and excitement. It all winds up with a burglary in which Molly plays the aggressive role, and attempts to steal back from Mr. Patterson a basket of innocent-looking fish which, as he discovered, masked something less innocent.

TOO BUSY FOR PUBLICITY.

An author has been found who is too busy for publicity! He is Gustave Geley, and his book, "From the Unconscious to the Conscious," is one of the latest and most important contributions to the science of modern psychology. When his publishers, the Harpers, wrote to him requesting an autobiography, his secretary replied from Paris as follows: "Dr. Geley begs me to acknowledge your kind letter and to say he has no photograph forthcoming and no hobbies to speak of. His biography, moreover, he says, is just this: director of the Institut Metapsychique; author of (1) 'Les Preuves du Transformisme et les Enseignements de la Doctrine Evolutionniste;' (2) 'L'Etre Subconscient'; (3) 'De l'Inconscient au Conscient.' Also much important work in the 'Revue Metapsychique' on materialization facts and philosophy. He is much too busy to send you any news items."

SAINT TERESA.

Henry Sydnor Harrison, author of "Queed," has written, after a long silence during the years of his war service, a new novel, "Saint Teresa." It is reported to be the story of a very modern Teresa, and her adventures in big business.

THOSE SAINTLY PURITANS.

DOGTOWN COMMON. By Percy Mackaye. The Macmillan Company, New York.

A rhymed narrative of gruesome rural happenings in old New England. Dogtown Common, three miles inland and above the sea, near Gloucester, was once a settlement populated by the families of seafarers. There the mothers, wives and young children lived, much of the time alone, while their men went on fishing trips to The Banks or on whaling expeditions.

Although the story is laid at a later date than that of the witch-hunting activities at Salem, a belief in the uncanny powers and pursuits of devil-serving old women still existed. The poet-author represents that such beliefs had a certain amount of foundation, in fact. Many of these women had been widowed and others rendered childless by the sea, which "took bitter toll" of most families. Hence, "long-brooding winter silences" and the condition of sad uncertainty in which they habitually lived stimulated a desire to peer into the future and to give much thought and heed to signs and omens.

The result of thus "stretching taut their starved spirits" was that, in such of them as were what is now known to psychologists as "sensitives," the psychic faculties became abnormally developed. They seem to have known something of hypnotism, telepathy and clairaudience, as well as the ordinary phenomena of present-day spiritism.

The deep interest felt by Mr. Mackaye in this bleak period of Puritan life has recently been stimulated by the publication of a book by Charles E. Mann, entitled "In the Heart of Cape Ann." This gives many curious and interesting facts concerning the early social life of that region. Indeed, some of the principal figures in Mackaye's vivid narrative-poem are historically authenticated.

The "heart-interest" of this moving tale resides in the pure and profound passion which existed between John Wharf, the village pastor, and Judy Rhines, the orphan niece of a so-called witch, one Tammy Younger, with whom Judy lived. The peculiar powers they were supposed to possess prevented these women from obtaining regular employment and they made a precarious living by means of rug weaving and fortune telling, while the older woman also held occasional seances when bribed to do so by adventurous young people. Poor Judy hated the life to which she was thus condemned. But when her lover attempted to have her allowed to attend church services he only succeeded in arousing animosity against himself. Finding her only friend threatened with proscription and dismissal she saw one way by which his offense might be condoned and her own escape from slander and persecution made certain—and took it.

'Tis a sorry tale of human intolerance, vindictive scandal, disappointed lust and man's inhumanity to helpless women. The author gives the legend sufficient verisimilitude to make it profoundly interesting. The descriptions of Cape Ann scenery are charming and the symbolism as unhackneyed as it is beautiful. There is a Dantesque touch in the portrayal of the vision seen by John as he stood by Judy's corpse. And in the voice heard by him he found a promise of love stronger than death and of "Life Everlasting."

CRITICISM AND COMMENT.

THE CONNECTICUT WITS AND OTHER ESSAYS. By Henry Augustin Beers. Yale University Press.

A collection of able and interesting essays containing some little-known literary history, well-balanced criticism, and amusing comment, the style reminding one of that prince of American scholars and gentlemen, Thomas Wentworth Higginson of blessed memory. None of the younger essayists possess this pleasant tang of expression, reminding the reader of barberry sauce sweetened with maple sugar, or of October cider.

The "Connecticut Wits" to whom Prof. Beers refers were John Trumbull, Timothy Dwight, David Humphreys, Lemuel Hopkins and Theodore Dwight, a distinguished coterie in later years. As young graduates of Yale these ambitious lads formed a club for the encouragement of polite learning and to "supply the new republic with a body of poetry on a scale commensurate with the bigness of American scenery, and the vast destinies of the nation." Emerson seems to have been speaking by the card when he said that the infant American nation never had any symptoms of water on the brain, but did occasionally seem afflicted with attacks of gas in the cranial region. Nevertheless all the young men "made good" in various ways, though not as they had so loftily planned. "The Singer of the Old Swimmin' Hole," an appreciation of Riley, ranks the Hoosier poet highly indeed, making him a finer artist than Lowell. Beers considers Hosea Bigelow above his station, which proves that the professor did not know the old-fashioned eastern farmer, whose light reading was Milton, Blackstone, Hugh Miller, Bunyan and the best of the non-conformist divines of two countries; whose younger brother was a member of Congress, and who had in his own youth "voyaged to the Banks," peddled tinware or lightning rods, "hired out by day's work, down to Providence, or else, 'driven stage'" to help that younger brother graduate from some famous college. Thus he touched the course of human life at many points, and also rubbed elbows with cultivated people. Men were not obliged to exercise their minds and bodies in such variegated ways in the fat lands of the Middle West, and so did not become Hosea Bigelows.

Prof. Beers writes of Emerson sympathetically, of Thackeray keenly and convincingly, and of Milton as Milton deserves. "The English Drama" is excellently surveyed and reviewed, but Prof. Beers makes too much of such ephemera as Pinero and Jones, who in ten years, at latest, will be more chaff for the burning.

"Connecticut Wits" is the finished expression of a sane, sincere and impartial critic, possessing toleration, humor and love of letters. "Men pass too surely; let, at least truth stay."

SONNET.

TO SERGT. JOYCE KILMER,
(Killed in action, July 30, 1918.)

In France he met the fate that heroes meet,
This poet, patriot, and soldier true,
Star-led by justice robed in sky-born blue,
He joined the colors, eager to defeat
The ruthless Huns. With courage high and sweet
As noon-day light, he served his country through
A time of peril, undismayed; he knew
That right must triumph over base deceit.

Close by the purling Ourcq he lies at rest,
Beneath Seringes' ruined hill renowned.
Ungarnered there the golden wheat fields toss,
And flaming poppies blow. There nature's breast
Is fair, unscarred; not bleak, but flower-crowned.
Forget-me-nots entwine his rough-hewn cross.

BELLE COOPER.

ROWLAND E. ROBINSON.

Rowland E. Robinson's posthumous book, "Silver Fields," a group of charming nature essays now published by Houghton Mifflin Company twenty years after his death, was written when the author was blind. An acquaintance says, "He is one apart from the throng of us, who Emerson says, 'are as much strangers in nature as we are aliens from God.'" He was enabled to do his writing by means of an ingenious device which consisted of a metal sheet provided with creases. Upon this he placed his paper and wrote, following easily the creases, which served at once to keep his line straight and to place them properly. Besides being an author, he was an artist of no mean ability.

Something New—"The Fill-in Book."

A story-drawing-book for children, "Tom and Tillie in the Country," will be brought out this month by the Harpers as the first in a series of "Fill-In Books." Cornelia Wright is the creator of this new idea in story and picture form. The book is called "Fill-In" because the pictures are not completed in order that the little artist and reader may crayon in the missing details. The story of Tillie's visit to her cousin Tom in the country and their animal friends will be accompanied by twenty-four "Fill-In" pictures which may be completed and colored with crayon or paints.

WELLS LEWIS.

Sinclair Lewis, whose "Main Street" continues to head the best selling lists, is in England for the summer, and has begun a new novel. Of course, H. G. Wells has been Mr. Lewis's model as a novelist, but few know that this admiration went to such a length that the Lewises have named their son Wells Lewis.

THE IMMIGRANT.

IMMIGRANT HEALTH AND THE COMMUNITY. By Michael M. Davis, Jr. Harper & Bros., New York.

Americanization from a new angle is treated in this, the fifth volume in the Harper's Americanization studies. Mr. Davis says in his opening chapter:

"The war forced Americanization upon the public attention. Some developed a definite conception of Americanization without much serious thinking. To them it meant teaching English and civics. It meant getting the immigrant naturalized. It meant making people Americans by putting them through certain instructions, crowned by the laying on of hands.

"But the war made many others think about this matter. It brought them to see that Americanization implies more than mere instruction and more than naturalization. The assimilation of ten, twenty or thirty million people into a nation of over 100,000,000 should mean mutual understanding, not the swallowing of one another. A common language must be achieved, but also mutually respected habits and standards of life. Full Americanization is impossible without an all-around transfusion of all the important elements in human life." Mr. Davis suggests that by studying the ways and customs of the immigrants, especially in the matter of food, we shall be able to help them to adjust themselves to new conditions with as few changes as possible.

"During the influenza epidemic in 1918, it was plainly demonstrated that neither district nurses, settlement workers nor visiting dietitians knew much about the foods of the foreign-born patients. Gallons of American soups and broths were served to these people, only to be thrown out untouched. This was at a time when diet was an important element in fighting the disease."

After a thorough investigation of the various foreign quarters, Mr. Davis states the following conclusions: Jewish children suffer from too many pickles, too few vegetables, and too little milk. Italian children suffer from too large an amount of macaroni, rice and lard, and an insufficient amount of vegetables and fruit; while among the Syrians, Armenians, Greeks and Turks, the children are usually well nourished with plenty of vegetables and minerals in their diet.

The problem before the dietitian wishing to restore health to a foreign community, Mr. Davis declares, is not so much to introduce a complete "American" dietary as it is to restore the former dietary balance by supplying elements the alien has not been able to obtain readily in this strange country. He says:

"An international menu should be used in institutions of all kinds receiving any number of foreign born. An international menu is one which is not confined to American dishes, but which contains each day at least one dish especially adapted to one of the nationalities or races represented among the patients. This would demonstrate to the patients that the dietitian has considered them and the psychological effect would help them physically.

"Published material which would enlighten Americans regarding the practical utility and enjoyability of many foreign foods could be widely used. A study of 'Foreign Foods' would be an Americanizing agent of practical value. American diet would be improved and enriched, and many Americans would be given a sympathetic appreciation and understanding of our foreign-born population through the practical medium of the kitchen and dinner table."

Mr. Davis attacks his subject from all sides. To the primitive mind, he says, healing seems a form of witchery or magic. He tells of a trusting Pole who paid $12 for a love potion in the form of a powder, which, put into his wife's tea, would certainly restore her waning affections immediately.

"Immigrant Health and the Community" not only presents important facts in the health problem of both the alien and his adopted community, but gives us a remarkably intimate insight into his tastes, habits and daily life.

GOOD SUMMER READING.

The habit of novels by Joseph C. Lincoln to outstrip each of their predecessors in sales, is again true of his new novel, "Galusha the Magnificent" (Appleton.) Mr. Lincoln has never written a novel that has received more widespread, popular favor in so short a time as this new tale of the sunny side of small town, American life. Booksellers everywhere are reporting the delight of their customers over this cheerful novel. A fellow author, who, though of the same name, is in no way related to the well-loved Joseph C., voices the general feeling throughout the country. From Washington, Natalie Sumner Lincoln, author of popular mystery stories, writes: "Galusha the Magnificent" has saved my 'reason'—a book that can make one laugh when the thermometer registers over 100 degrees is a book worth owning."

ELIZABETH BOYLE O'REILLY.

Elizabeth Boyle O'Reilly, whose book, "How France Built Her Cathedrals," was published by the Harpers, has taken an apartment in New York City where she will spend the summer. She is the daughter of the late John Boyle O'Reilly, the well-known Boston writer. Much of her time in recent years has been spent in France, where Miss O'Reilly was unconsciously gathering material for the work which has resulted in "How France Built Her Cathedrals." The bibliography in this book unlocks for the first time a vast amount of information and material which has not hitherto been accessible to readers in this country, most of the books being in French and some in Italian.

LABOR EXPERIENCE.

After having been delayed by labor troubles in the New York binderies, Lord Askwith's "Industrial Problems" is just published by Harcourt, Brace & Co. The author, as Chief Industrial Commissioner and chairman of the Government Arbitration Committee, has been settling the most important British labor disputes for the last twenty years.

INTERESTING BOOKS ON JAPAN.

BY JAMES MAIN DIXON.

AN INTRODUCTION TO THE HISTORY OF JAPAN. By Katsuro Hara. Yamato Society Publication. G. P. Putnam's Sons. The Knickerbocker Press, New York.

A DIPLOMAT IN JAPAN; THE INNER HISTORY OF JAPAN'S CRITICAL YEARS WHEN THE PORTS WERE OPENED. By the Right Hon. Sir Ernest Satow, LL.D., D.C.L. J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.

The Japanese understand the value of propaganda, and an organization has been recently formed, called the Yamato Society, whose object it "to make clear the meaning and extent of Japanese culture, in order to reveal the fundamental character of the nation to the world, and also the introduction of the best literature and art of foreign countries to Japan, so that a common understanding of eastern and western thought may be promoted." The awkward wording of this first article in their Rules does not hold out good prospects of finished literary productions, the publication of which is the first of the nine enterprises which it proposes to undertake. The members are all Japanese—leading merchants, professors and politicians.

This general sketch of the history of Japan, which has been intrusted to Prof. Hara of the Kyoto Imperial University, and is the first of the projected series, may give satisfaction to the author and his friends, but is valueless for propaganda. His preface is unfortunate. "Since the opening of our country," he remarks, "we have had many foreign scholars investigating ourselves, our origins and our history, which in most cases have been misunderstood and misrepresented. By some we are overestimated, flattered, caressed, and cajoled. By others we are undervalued, despised, and condemned. . . . Such an astonishing oscillation of opinion as regards the estimation of the merits and demerits of the Japanese nation and its history is more than to be endured."

Now the fact is, that while the daily press of our Pacific Coast may have been guilty of this "undervaluation," no nation has been more indebted to foreign scholars and authors of high ability for a just, enlightened and sympathetic study of its history and institutions. The names of Brinkley, Aston, Chamberlain, Satow, Hearn and Griffis have only to be mentioned in this regard. Prof. Hara is, at once, ungrateful and unjust.

The reader cannot even trust to the professor's transliteration of Japanese words. Why djito in place of jito, and Meidji in place of Meiji, when the Japanese sound is closer to the French j than to the English j with its dental emphasis? Moreover, all the histories give "Meiji," the remarkable epoch lasting from 1868 to 1912 when Japan modernized herself. Neither for its scholarship, nor its literary and historical judgment—to say nothing of the odd rhetoric—can this "Introduction to the History of Japan," show cause for its publication.

No doubt, as Sir Ernest Satow declares in an early chapter of his autobiography, "The history of Japan has yet to be written." There are chronicles of the early emperors and annals of leading families awaiting careful investigation. Yet up till now, by far the best work has been done by foreign experts like Sir Ernest himself and, as is evident from Prof. Hara's [illegible] no native school of [illegible] yet arisen. Brinkley's [illegible] the Japanese People," [illegible] his death by Baron Kikuchi, president of the Imperial [illegible] of Tokio, and published by the [illegible] cyclopedia Britannica [illegible] an excellent and thorough work, and the section on [illegible] the Cambridge historical [illegible] Ernest is well done. He [illegible] those young Englishmen [illegible] a career by the [illegible] whole consular system of the British Empire more than [illegible] ago. As he tells us in his chapter, he had read with [illegible] ing interest Lawrence Oliphant's account of Lord Elgin's [illegible] China and Japan. "One day on entering the library of University College, London, where I was studying, I found lying on the [illegible] a notice that three [illegible] student-interpreterships in China [and] Japan had been placed at the disposition of the dean. [illegible] chance for which I had been [illegible] Permission to enter myself for the competition was obtained, [not with]out difficulty, from my [illegible] having gained the first place [illegible] Japan." His "A Diplomat in [Japan]" does not tell the whole story of his gradual rise through consular [and] diplomatic appointments by ability and hard work, until he left Japan to be Minister to the court of Siam. The author's reminiscences to the [illegible] the sixties when the old feudal rule fell to pieces, told by [an eye]witness, an eager youth, who made himself a first-class [illegible] a master of the language, [are] replete with interest and will [be a] mine of information for historians.

PRIZE WINNERS.

This year's prize winners of [the] Pulitzer prize awards at Co[lumbia] University are both American publications. "The Age of Innocence" [by] Edith Wharton, was awarded [the prize] as the American novel published during the year, which best presents [the] wholesome atmosphere of American life and the highest [standard of] American manners and manhood. "Miss Lulu Bett," by Zona Gale, [a] dramatization of the novel of the same name, was awarded the [prize for] the original American play performed in New York, which best represents the educational value [and] the power of the stage in [raising the] standard of good morals, good [taste] and good manners.

Need we have Vulgarity With Our Realism?

There is much talk nowadays about "realism," and when that term is used many people think at once of vulgarity and hopelessness. That, however, is only pseudo-realism.

John Farrar (The Bookman) says: "Mr. Tarkington seems to have outplayed the year's crop of realists at every stroke." Booth Tarkington has found the real realism—"humor and tragedy skilfully interplaying."

An Advance Millinery Item That Should Play an Important Part in Causing Me to Forge Ahead Will Be That of

Beautiful Duvetyn Hats at $12.95

—I studied the advance millinery modes for late summer and early fall. I searched the markets for the rich materials I desired, had the hats made up in my own workrooms under my personal supervision, and finally marked them at the low-notch price of $12.95!

—Rich duvetyns in a variety of soft and vivid colorings, have been used in combinations with flowers, to form creations that are really works of art!

—The shapes are new and varied, both small and large types being well represented, in slashed, overlapped or whimsically draped effects. In some cases whole crowns of brims are made of velvet flower petals.

—You'll find these hats unusually distinctive and rich looking. At $12.95 they should be eagerly bought on Monday!

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

Latest Suit Style.

Dahlia cashmere suit, the coat of which is a loose box effect trimmed with broad folds of its own material, each fold finished with a quaint olive which adds a touch of distinctiveness. Note the new stock collar. (From Schotz Powers.)

Does jazz put the sin in syncopation? This is a problem for American parents to decide according to Mrs. Marx E. Obendorfer, national chairman of music of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. And the problem will be one of the vital ones to come before the women's clubs of Southern California during the coming season, for the chairmen, both of music and drama, of the various clubs are considering this question seriously as the programs for the year 1921-22 are beng compiled and work outlined.

"Dancing to Mozart minuets, Strauss waltzes and Sousa two-steps would never lead to the corset checkrooms which now hold sway in hotels, clubs and dance halls. Nor would a girl who wore corsets in the days of those dances been dubbed 'Old Ironsides' and left a disconsolate wall flower in a corner of the ballroom," says Mrs. Obendorfer in an article appearing in the August number of the Ladies' Home Journal.

How music may become a particular influence for evil and directing criticism to jazz is the theme of this magazine story. Offering proof that jazz does produce a definite demoralizing effect on the human brain, the writer says "Jazz was the accompaniment of the voodoo dancer stimulating the half-crazed barbarians to the vilest deeds."

After pointing out the evils created by jazz, Mrs. Obendorfer concludes with a plea for good music because of the help and inspiration its motto "To make good music department of the General Federation of Music Clubs has taken for its motto "To make Good Music popular and popular music good." Mrs. Obendorfer shows how the women of America can help the club women carry out this motto in every home firmly, steadfastly, determinedly, until all the music in the land becomes an influence for good and not evil.

Women's Athletic Club.

Much embarrassement has been caused the board of directors of the new Women's Athletic Club by the premature announcement through the evenings papers of the city early in the week of the purchase of a valuable lot for building. That a piece of property on Flower street, between Eighth and Ninth streets had passed into the hands of the corporation was, at the time of the announcement, incorrect. Authentic information regarding it will undoubtedly be given at the meeting of the board of directors at the Ebell clubhouse tomorrow, when the organization meets at 3 p.m.

When a body of women is negotiating for a place to build, it becomes almost impossible to make a purchase wisely and economically if inaccurate information, purporting to be accurate, is disseminated. It leaves no choice for the buying committee and prices are virtually sure to be advanced upon the publication of such a rumor.

The new clubhouse will contain a roof garden, a swimming pool, beauty parlors, baths, tennis courts, gymnasium and dancing floor. It is planned to make the structure one of the finest of its kind in the United States. Except for the little ripple of dismay among the members of the committee when the rumor was circulated, the plans are going forward efficiently and the organization is growing and prospering.

Those who are serving on the board at present are Mrs. Matthew Robertson, Miss Jane Humphries, Mrs. Hancock Banning, Mrs. Roy Jones, Mrs. Florence Wolfstine, Mrs. Homer Laughlin and Mrs. A. B. Barrett, all of whom hold office in addition to the following directors: Mrs. Frank Gibson, Mrs. Robert Gifford, Mrs. W. I. Hollingsworth, Mrs. R. D. Shepard, Miss Rosario Dockweiler, Mrs. Clara Erickson, Miss Florence Shindler and Miss Caroline Kellogg.

Foreign Relief Committee.

Nothing daunted by vacation diversions of the summer season or the indifference of the people generally as regards the situation of suffering in Central Europe the Foreign Relief Committee is continuing work industriously throughout the summer months. Tuesday around the luncheon table at the Brentwood Country Club with Mrs. Willoughby Rodman presiding and Mrs. O. E. Weed and Miss Ella Lownsberry directing the work, plans for the future were informally discussed. Those who were present were Mrs. Rodman, Mrs. E. S. Bogardus, Mrs. J. Wolcott Rhodes, Mrs. Micahel Creamer, Mrs. A. D. Houghton, Mrs. W. R. Burke, Miss Lownsberry, Mrs. Weed, Mrs. John Pavlowski, Mrs. Frank Baierski, Mrs. O. P. Clark, Mrs. Louis Gilhoursen and Mrs. Carrie S. Greene.

After lunch a new sewing circle was organized when seventy-five members from Los Angeles and the neighborhood of the Brentwood Club began the sewing of many garments to clothe the suffering children of Poland for the coming winter. Mrs. Pavlowski, whose husband is a Pole, told of the need where her husband's sister is working in Poland. The committee took action to send a portion of the garments they make to this station.

"Newborn babes in the hospitals of Europe are being wrapped in newspapers. Tens of thousands of children possess but one garment and expect to walk barefoot next winter," said Mrs. Pavlowski. "Many must stay in bed for lack of clothes and many a mother has sold her last skirt for food for her little ones and wrapped herself in an old shawl. Today, according to relief workers who are closely in touch with the situation, Europe is nearer nakedness than it has been since the close of the Napoleonic wars."

The meeting Tuesday was indicative of the zeal and enthusiasm with which this group of women would do their share to lessen the suffering. It is not food that is needed so much now, for the peasants have had time to sow and reap crops since the war; but there is no raw material to make clothes and this winter is looked forward to with dread by literally millions of women and children because of the suffering from cold.

Even those gently born feel this need. To Mrs. Rodman came the news recently of two gently reared and nobly born women, sisters, who themselves were on a relief committee working for their country women. When only one of these sisters appeared at the meeting for sewing she was taken to task by the rest of the circle because her sister had not come, too. Reluctantly the sister confessed that the two of them owned but one suit of clothes between them. At home they dressed in rags and so only one of them could come. Yet that one had come to help relieve others worse off than herself, and her sister felt the sacrifice she must make to remain at home.

The local committee are now making a drive for warm clothing. Anyone possessing such, either new or old, may have a share in the work by telephoning Mrs. Weed, Mrs. Rodman or Miss Lownsberry. Miss Lownsberry is a charming Quaker girl, who has spent many months in Europe and knows the need of these people. She was compelled to return to California because of her ill health.

The Girls' Corner Club.

It is a beautiful work that Mrs. Frances L. Neth is inaugurating among the business girls of the city. With her lovely attractiveness and, most of all, because of her love for girls, she will be a mother to many otherwise motherless. This is a safe prediction, for she has already proved to be that in other cities where she has organized a Girls' Corner Club.

Friday afternoon and evening it was "open house" to the girls and their friends at the club rooms, which have been remodeled and refurnished, at 739 Flower street. And girls came by the scores to meet Mrs. Neth and to hear her talk to them about the intimate, kindly, gossipy things that all girls love. It was in the evening she gave this talk, and Dr. James Francis, pastor of the First Baptist Church, inspired all of the girls to do finer and better things this coming year than they have ever done before.

The program of music, ballads, folk songs and love lyrics given by Mrs. Guy Bush was of the sort to make the program complete.

Philanthropy and Civics Club.

A program promising unusual interest will be enjoyed by the members of the Philanthropy and Civics Club at their meeting Tuesday, when the speaker of the afternoon will be Prince Raphael Emmanuel of Mesopotamia, who will speak on "Chaldea, Its People, History, Customs and Habits." Prince Emmanuel is a Chaldean Prince or Sheik, and is a direct descendant of those early Chaldeans from whom Abraham started out on his journey.

The Prince has appeared before a number of prominent women's clubs where his instructive and interesting address has been enthusiastically received. He will appear in native costume and at the close of the address will answer any questions about his interesting country.

The monthly birthday luncheon of the club also will be celebrated on this day, with twenty-one members gathering around the special birthday table appropriately decorated for the occasion and graced by a beautiful birthday cake. Each of the birthday guests will receive an artistic gift. The luncheon speaker will be Mrs. Ida McGlone Gibson, well-known newspaper woman.

Medal of Edstrom.

May Mott-Smith, internationally known artist, whose miniatures have attracted the attention of art lovers wherever shown, and who has won awards at important exhibits all over the United States, has the distinction of being the only woman medalist of renown in America. She has just finished a medal of the famous sculptor, David Edstrom, who pronounces it the finest likeness he has ever had. The medal will be exhibited at one or two of the larger women's clubs in the early fall, as soon as Mrs. Mott-Smith returns from Carmel-by-the-Sea, where she is sketching and planning her exhibits for the East and Europe.

Lambda Phi Sorority.

Knu Yhorke Lodge, the Holdredge cabin in Camp Baldy, last week, held a very congenial house party when the members of the Lambda Phi Sorority again entertained. At the end of the week the husbands and friends motored out from the city to join the group. The members present included Mrs. C. P. Taylor, Mrs. Vardaman Bailey, Mrs. Milan Mcloskey, the Misses Eva Faulke, Esther Gleason, Marguerite Pfieste, Miss Ruth Holdredge and Louise Waltz.

Big Sisters' League.

An informal luncheon meeting of the Big Sisters' League was held Thursday at the Training Home on Trinity street, when Mrs. J. Bert Stearns, president of the Woman's City Club and greatly interested in welfare work among girls, gave a talk; Mrs. Ida M. Gibson was a speaker also. It was planned to celebrate the opening of the new kitchen of the training home, given by Mrs. Anita Baldwin, with a jubilee program during the afternoon of September 1.

Personals.

Estelle Lawton Lindsay, who has just returned from an extended trip through the Orient, will be the first speaker for the Woman's City Club when that organization resumes meeting again next month.

Mrs. Jenny Reid, prominent member of the Friday Morning Club, is spending the summer at Cape May on the Atlantic Coast. She will return in time for the opening meeting of her favorite club.

Miss Elizabeth Pepper, member of the board of directors of the Friday Morning Club, has departed for a wonderful trip through the mountains of New England and the Canadian provinces. She will return for the first meeting of the club, although her mother and sisters will remain in the East until the latter part of November.

Mrs. Frank A. Gibson, prominent in Americanization in club circles throughout the United States, is visiting Mrs. J. D. Hooker at Cloyme Court, Berkeley.

CHICKEN DINNER FOR SUNDAY.

Beefsteak dinners, shore dinners and all other delicious dinners wax and wane in popularity, but the good old chicken dinner is always with us. The chicken dinner is a special favorite for Sunday. The young housekeeper may not have the following "old standbys" in her recipe file as yet, and may welcome my directions for them:

Fricasseed Chicken
Delmonico Potatoes
Green Peas
Simple Fruit Salad
Coffee Ice Cream

Fricasseed Chicken: Cut up a cleaned fowl and put the pieces in a saucepan with four tablespoons of beef drippings; let them fry in this grease until slightly brown on both sides, but take care that they do not burn. Then add enough boiling water to cover, one tablespoon salt, one-quarter teaspoon pepper, and a bouquet or herbs; let simmer until tender (for a chicken this will be about one and one-half hours; for a fowl it will take about three hours.) Make a sauce in another saucepan by melting two tablespoons of butter, adding four tablespoons of flour and mixing until smooth, then adding two cups of the hot liquid from the chicken saucepan and salt and pepper to suit taste. At dinner time arrange either split biscuit or toasted bread on a large meat platter, put the pieces of chicken on this, and pour over all the hot sauce. Or, if you do not care to serve the chicken on toast or biscuit, you can arrange it on the platter, pour the sauce over it, and surround it with a border of hot, cooked rice.

Delmonico Potatoes: Make a white sauce by melting three tablespoons of butter in a saucepan, adding three tablespoons of flour and mixing until smooth, then adding two cups of sweet milk, three-fourths teaspoon salt, and one-eighth teaspoon pepper. Now also add to the hot sauce one-fourth cup of either grated Parmesan cheese or finely-minced mild American cheese, and three cups of cold cooked white potatoes which have been diced. Turn this mixture into a buttered baking dish and sprinkle another one-fourth cup of the cheese over the top; dot with bits of butter, and brown in a quick oven.

Simple Fruit Salad: Four bananas cut into slices, four cups of diced apple, one cup of celery cut small and one cup of chopped walnuts. Mix these ingredients well together and cover with the following dressing:

Dressing for Simple Fruit Salad: Beat two eggs well and put them into a small saucepan; add to them one-half teaspoon salt, a dash of cayenne, one heaping tablespoon granulated sugar, one-half teaspoon prepared mustared (if liked,) three tablespoons of vinegar and three tablespoons of thick sour cream; let boil until very thick, then cool, chill and pour it over the salad just before serving.

Bride—Answer: Send for my printed-up article on "What Every Preserve Closet Should Have." The page of recipes includes directions for the "Three-day Cucumber Pickles," which you desire.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Kirkman in care of the "Efficient Housekeeping" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be inclosed with the question.—[The Editor.

SQUIRRELS HELP RAISE WALNUT GROVES.

Bouncing along the fence rail like a bit of animated thistledown, he managed to convey the impression that he hasn't a serious thought in his head, and few would suspect that the squirrel is the chap who supplied the American Army with the wood for their gunstocks, though he didn't mean to do it, of course. He was looking after his own food supply, saving the resources of summer against the famine of winter, but incidentally he placed a big deposit to man's account in nature's savings bank.

The Forest Service, United States Department of Agriculture, is authority for the statement that the squirrel, through his habit of burying nuts, has been the most important agent in the reproduction of the black walnut groves. The timber from the groves planted years ago by the squirrels satisfied an important need during the war, when walnut was used to make gunstocks and airplane propellers. Substitute woods for gunstocks have been tried by many manufacturers, but none has been found that proved as suitable for this purpose as the black walnut.

WHY

DOES WATER PUT OUT FIRE?

While the most common method of extinguishing a blaze is to throw water upon it, there is another effectual manner of quenching the flames—the application of sand. And both of these, strange as it may seem, act in precisely the same manner, though there is no apparent similarity between the two substances.

But sand, as we know, is nothing more than stone which has been ground up into small particles and will not burn because the inflammable substances have already been "burned out" by the heat of the earth in some previous age. Water, likewise, has already been "burned" or oxidized, being a combination of hydrogen and oxygen, and, in addition, is a splendid conductor of heat. Therefore, while there is a certain proportion of oxygen in water and this oxygen is, in itself, highly inflammable, the water draws the heat out of anything placed in it so rapidly that the burning substance is reduced to a temperature so low that it can no longer glow or burn. The flame is literally smothered in a surrounding blanket of noninflammable substance, and, cut off from the oxygen of the air, dies precisely as an animal dies if immersed in water, for a large percentage of oxygen is essential to both animal life and to fire.

GIRLS ENGAGE IN RAISING PIMIENTOS.

One of the aims in the club work among the boys and girls of the fifteen Southern States, conducted by the United States Dairy Association in co-operation with the State agricultural colleges, has been to foster the introduction and growth of crops of which there is a wide and steady demand, or for which a demand can be easily built up locally. The Spanish pimiento, formerly imported from Spain, is an example.

Club girls in the South were first interested about six years ago in growing pimientos by way of variety in their club gardens. Their work gave an impetus to local use of the peppers, both fresh and canned, and they shortly found that the pimiento was a valuable addition to chutney, creole sauce, Dixie relish, pepper relish, catsup and similar products which found a ready market. In 1919 southern club girls prepared over 120,000 pints of canned goods in which pimientos were used, and in 1920 over 200,000 pint jars of whole pimientos and pimiento-flavored relishes. The girls have found that the pimientos may be kept fresh during the winter months by packing them in sawdust which is scrupulously cleaned and thoroughly dry.—[News Letter, Department of Agriculture.

The Daily Fun Hour.

BY HONOR WALSH.

QUARRY RELAY.

The players take sides, an equal number on each side. If there is an odd player left over he becomes the referee. The players line up, single file, in two rows some distance apart, behind a starting line. In front of each team, but thirty feet or more away, are two circles called the quarries. In the end quarry on each side are placed four small stones or other objects, forming a square.

When the referee signals, the first player in each file runs forward to his full quarry and removes the stones to his empty quarry, arranges them there in a square and then hastens back to his line, touching the hand of the next player as he runs and taking his place at the end of his file. The second player cannot go forward until he receives the signal touch, when he rushes to his quarries, transfers the stones from one quarry to another, and runs back to touch the next player in his line before he, too, goes to the rear.

Each front player should have his foot on the starting line and his hand outstretched ready to receive the signal touch, so that he can dash off immediately to the quarries to transfer and rearrange the stones. Since both files are working at a rapid pace, each player in turn busy with his own two quarries, competition is keen. The side whose last player has been first to return across the starting line is declared the winner.

FOR SHAKESPEAREAN MOVIES.

The Shakespeare Memorial Theater at Stratford-on-Avon is to be used as a moving-picture theater when the building is not needed for the production of Shakespearean plays. The governors of the memorial association made the decision on the recommendation of the executive committee, which urged that only high-class films be shown. It is understood that financial considerations led the association to take the step, which, in some quarters, is regarded as a desecration.—[Indianapolis News.

There's a Reason.

The little one thought a minute, then answered: "Please, teacher, they weren't so used to lying in those days."—[Tit-Bits.

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.
Per E. B.

Up-to-Datest:

In the new gowns. Wing-like sleeves implanted in armholes recklessly slashed, and girdles brilliantly jeweled. The sleeves, in dressy frocks designed for dinner and dance use, drop to the hem of the frock and some of them sport slits through which the hands are slipped. The effect of a Burne-Jones picture is heightened by the half-veiled gleam, through the diaphanous sleeve drapery, of an elaborate ceinture, heavily beaded. Detail, in the clothes of autumn, markedly concentrates above the hip line and necks, sleeves and belts receive, each, an immense amount of attention.

A double belt consisting of twin ties of black and white silk is a feature of a stunning sweater of heavy-ribbed silk. The sweater shows a ground of oyster white, barred with lines of black, brown and green. The ties are slipped through metal rings at the back.

Harbinger of autumn cuts in fur wraps is a coatee in beige broadtail bordered with mole. Like all the new fur garments, this one has a collar that rolls in luxurious looseness almost to the tip of the coiffure.

Now is the Time to Buy:

Furs. At the risk of incurring a reputation for tiresome repetition, the observer for this column of the new in fashions and the worth-while in buyables feels impelled to follow the "when found make a note of" advice of Cap'n Cuttle in an insistence that now, of all months in the year and of all years in half a score, is bargain time in furs. Whether the money of her who aspires to possess this first of adjuncts to the state of good dressing is to be invested in skins of marten or mink, squirrel or sable, fisher or fox, investment at the present moment will bring the greatest returns in quality and beauty.

This good bargain news applies equally to furs of all grades and sizes, from the single-skin choker to the all-enveloping coat of kolinsky or broadtail, luxurious in lining, perfect in cut and workmanship and endowing its fortunate wearer with a feeling and a look of luxurious magnificence akin to nothing else in the kingdom of clothes.

Too great stress cannot be laid upon the wisdom of taking advantage of the present state of the fur market—a condition which, dealers say, will exist but a short time and which will probably never again occur.

Variety in Sports Attire of Autumn.

Consider the good fortune of the matron or maid of the immediate now, who, in addition to the fact that, in the matter of indoor clothes she is the picturesque heiress of all the ages of women's style in dress, is permitted a latitude in her selection of sports attire that is bewildering, a little short of revolutionary and utterly satisfying to the feminine heart.

In the house she may dress like Cleopatra; like a moyenage chatelaine; like Lalla Rookh or like her own puritan ancestress and be distinctly in the fashion of the moment. It seems like a piling up of the odds in her favor that, when she changes for the out-of-doors, instead of being restricted to a choice between a tailleur and the traditional standby in a one-piece serge, as was the case a brief time back, she commands a selection in skirts and sweaters and blouses; in slip-ons and ty-ons and slip-overs, in two-piece outfits and three-piece outfits that, if listed, would make a bulky catalogue.

It takes a bounding gait to keep up with the new in the so-called athletic type of attire in which the modish woman has elected to clothe herself during a large portion of her day, every day. While the sports clothes of autumn show no great departures, in curt or color, from their predecessors of the spring, there are so many of them that the restricting of a well-balanced wardrobe to a paltry two or three changes of sports suits for the season is, distinctly among the things not done.

What They Are.

The sleeveless slip-on in silk, to be worn over a handmade blouse of fine batiste or linen, is among the most potent fascinators of late summer and early fall. One of the most striking of these is in a ribbed silk of Scotch plaid effect showing gold and green lines against a background of navy. It has bindings of white around armholes and edges and its narrow tie belt is also in white.

The silk slip-on of hip length sometimes stretches into a full-length garment with swagger effect as is the case in a knitted sports dress of that charming green that is neither jade nor grass, but which has in its shadings hints of both. Sleeves and hem, in this case, are finished with an edging of silk crochet.

Showing the sort of thing an English girl wears on the links is a swanky little three-piece sports suit into which a famous London maker of out-door clothes for women has sewn his no less famous name. For material he has taken a plaid in indistinct shadings of rose and mauve, barred in henna that looks like nothing so much as a piece of glorified terry cloth. The skirt is short and full and is met at the hips by a wide cape, equally full. The latter has a long roll collar and tie ends. The third "piece" is, not the blouse—that you are supposed to be already possessed of—but a jaunty little soft-crowned hat of self-material, finished with a band and bow of rose-colored ribbon.

More of What They Are.

Another three-piece suit for sports wear that I saw being shown to a dark-haired girl with the glint of possession already in her eyes, the other morning, seemed to proclaim that the costume complete of knitted wool so approved in the early spring refuses to down. This particular one was a green-and-white joy and split happiness three ways into skirt, slipover and cape. Graduated bands of green lines ran round the skirt and the middy-like sweater turned up at its lower edge in a broad green cuff. The sleeves were long and the neck might be fastened high on occasion. The cape was a garment to conjure with, banded, like skirt and sweater, in green, and rolled high at the neck in a green collar.

No woman, I am sure, devoted to sports attire, would be able to resist the angora knitted cape of quality superlative I saw unboxed this same morning. Its ivory surface was striped broadly in mustard yellow, outlined in black, and it had, for a distinguishing feature, knitted straps crossing over the breast to hold the wrap snug and taut. Like all the outer garments of [illegible] this one had a collar which [illegible] fastened, stood high above the [illegible] and formed the most [illegible] chin cozies.

With your sports clothes [illegible] wear a scarf of smooth [illegible] woolly angora; of heavy [illegible] the silkiest of knitted silk, [illegible] scarf of some sort is [illegible] One of the latest of these [illegible] smooth finished worsted, and [illegible] pastel plaids of orchid and [illegible] mixed with white. It has [illegible] proportions and a fringe [illegible] own material.

It is Said That:

RUGS ADD BEAUTY TOUCH

If you are searching for floor covering that will add the final touch for a bedroom in old mahogany or a sitting-room boasting among its pieces of furniture a Martha Washington sewing cabinet, a spinet writing table or an escritoire of antique outline, you will be interested in the hook rugs which, in various sizes and colorings, are being shown.

Dealers in house furnishings and the larger rug houses have scouts constantly on the trail of these quaint bits of home-made carpet, the demand for which, it is stated, far exceeds the supply. AGAINST SHIMMY.

British Dancing Masters Oppose "Vibro-Massage."

The danger to British ballrooms by "shimmying" was discussed at an informal conference of more than 200 teachers of ballroom dancing at a meeting at the Grafton galleries, London.

W. Atkinson, dancing expert, recounted the horrors of the original "shimmy" as practiced forty-five years ago by the black population of the Southern States of America.

"Black shimmy parties," said Mr. Atkinson, "would often take place and no white man was allowed to be present.

"The dancers' chief object was to stay solemnly in the same place, slowly swaying from side to side, and rippling or 'shimmying' their muscles as if they were undergoing a course of vibro-massage.

"When a native saw a partner whose vibrations corresponded with his he went slowly across to her and they then danced together backwards and forwards, never moving more than four feet from the same place."

Mr. Atkinson added that the couple would shimmy for about half an hour and generally would be carried away on a stretcher.

P. J. Richardson, who presided over the meeting, finally reduced the controversy which followed to a resolution limiting the foxtrot to its former status, and recommending that "shimmying" should not be introduced into that dance.

The waltz was not considered, and after many different exhibitions had been given a committee of fourteen, including the chairman, was appointed to formulate proposals for the standard waltz.

The meeting ended amid cries of "down with variations!"—[Birmingham News.

EMBROIDER IN HOT WEATHER.

Summer is Excellent Time to Get "Pretties" Done.

Beautiful Stamped Linens Are Available for It.

Work Not so Tedious as It Looks at First.

BY [illegible] W. HOFFMANN.

Do your needlework for the summer while the summer is young! Don't fritter away the long afternoons on a piece of this and a bit of that and have nothing of value to show when vacation days are over. Think of something you have always wished for and resolved to have when you could afford it, or when you had time. Let this be the time.

For instance, if you have been longing for a really handsome embroidered linen luncheon set, but have avoided one because you felt you would never finish it, make that this summer's work. When every spare hour is spent on making a piece grow, it is surprising to see how the thing gathers speed after it gets a start.

The beautiful stamped linens are so lovely this season that even the busy women, who have not had time to embroidering for years, are trying to spare a few hours to it. The most important thing about these new stamped linens is that they are of genuine linen of the full, round thread derryvale weave. This will wear for many years so the worker has the satisfaction of knowing that her work is not for a season, but for a lifetime. Indeed, if she be of a sentimental nature, she will take delight in laying up treasure for her daughter and her daughter's daughter as the good mothers of half a century ago used to do.

THE GOOD LINEN.

The women were wise in their day. The material that was to be honored by the art of their hands was always of the finest quality, genuine linen. That is why some fortunate daughters—and even granddaughters—have remnants of bridal linen to keep as keepsakes. And how few really old silvering pieces are found! If anything grows old gracefully it is linen. Its lustre and silky smoothness seem to become more ingratiating with age.

No wonder the present-day woman longs to satisfy her own desire for beautiful embroidered linen, whether she is sewing that her own use, there is an abundance of lovely material at hand. Designers have given their best to the patterns and the manner in which they have been carried out is admirable.

The amateur, accompanied by ... to her a piece of work—one that is ... is likely to postpone ... until she has more time. The more-time stage is sort of twin sister to tomorrow. It has a way of never arriving. And so a woman goes on longing for the thing right within her reach, if she will only stretch her arm, just a little bit, for it.

Hand embroidery moves faster as the work progresses and faltering fingers grow swift and skillful. A piece that frightens one by its enormity when blank, loses all the terror it held for the worker within a week's time. And it is a work that rests the mind while the hands fashion a beautiful thing.

ANYWHERE, ANY TIME.

Embroidery may be done at any time, in any place, in any company. The conversation can go along freely for there are no stitches to count, no clicking needles to interrupt. It has always been a pastime occupation of gentlewomen.

Woman's time is too precious today to waste it, even in her leisure moments, on unworthy work. So, even those chance minutes of idleness should be made to count and go toward the production of something beautiful and of value. Then, too, there is something particularly seasonal about embroidering on linen in summer. There is a coolness and a freshness about it that seems to be part of the great outdoors.

Whether there is much time or little for the pick-up work of the season let it be something that is worthy of every minute that is spent on it. Plan the work according to the time that may reasonably be expected to be given to it. Naturally, it would be folly for the business girl with a two weeks' vacation to attempt the same thing as the home woman who has several hours a day to herself. There are lovely things in these new Irish linens for everyone. But the first consideration should be the material. Hand embroidery demands the full, round thread of the derryvale weave. And this season the shops are showing it in a wide variety of stamped pieces varying in size from a baby's bib to a table cover, in the heavy oyster white and natural brown coloring, as well as in the lighter weight and in huck for towels.

CURE THROUGH HARD WORK.

That the best medicine is cheapest, as well as simplest in its compounding, is pretty generally admitted. The truth is now attested by no less a personage than former Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois. Senator Sherman has been "doctoring" a long time. He was long in finding a cure, but the discovery came at last. Now his indorsement of it reads as glowingly as a letter from the firm friend of a patent nostrum.

"I spent more than $4000 with specialists attempting to get my hearing restored," declares Senator Sherman, "but it did no good."

Has not that the old-time ring? How the patriarchs of the days of cure-alls and their stanch supporters whose letters and pictures were published in the press come to mind! Yes, and we grow more eager to learn how the famous Illinois statesman "got cured." We hasten on to find out more concerning Senator Sherman's remarkable case.

"My eyesight failed, also," he continues, "and much of the time I could not read and was compelled to remain in a dark room. I nearly went crazy.

"A doctor at Johns Hopkins told me that my troubles were due to nervousness," the Senator explains, "and that puttering around with tools might help me. I took to carpentering, and my eyesight and hearing have been restored. I feel better now than I have for fifteen years. I can do a full day's work, can read and can hear without using any instrument."

Change of work and of interest and, therefore, of thought, did it! Our fathers had just such business and professional and political responsibilities as come to us. But they also took care of a horse, made garden, mowed the lawn, repaired the sidewalks about the property and built the fires. They were seldom troubled with nervousness. Senator Sherman had done nothing and thought of nothing in years, doubtless, except the work of his office. It was a too one-sided existence. It wore out his nerves in places—and they punished him for it. Then the new work took him away from the old life, the old line of thinking, the old ways of doing—and almost made a new man of him.

Good medicine, that—going back to more nearly normal living.—[St. Louis Times.

USE OF ALARM CLOCK.

Befied Horologe Banishes Worry Over Early Rising.

"You may think," said the young man with the horn-rimmed spectacles, "that the purpose of an alarm clock is to wake one up. But I've discovered that an alarm clock is used to enable one to sleep."

"I don't see how you make that out," returned his companion. "I know I use mine to wake me up."

"That's what I thought until this week," said the bespectacled youth, "but now I know different. It was this way: A week or so ago my alarm clock was knocked off the bureau, and as no self-respecting clock can be expected to stand that sort of treatment it refused to work any longer. Oh, well, I thought to myself, I can get up without an alarm."

"My getting up time is 7:15. The first morning without the alarm I woke up at 6 o'clock. I looked at my watch and then turned over for another snooze. But the thought suddenly occurred to me that I might oversleep. So I lay there tossing about until it was time to get up.

"The second morning it was 5:15 when I first opened my eyes. I tried to go to sleep again, but every five minutes or so I would wake up with a start and look at my watch, fearing I had slept too long.

"This went on for almost a week, and every morning I would wake up a little earlier. So yesterday in desperation I bought a new alarm clock. I'll have to live on beans till next pay day, but it's worth it. Last night I had my first good night's rest since my old alarm clock was broken.

"You see, when you have an alarm clock you go to sleep with the knowledge that you will be awakened at the proper time. Without one you go to sleep with the thought that you must be careful not to oversleep, with the result that you can't get a good night's rest. That's why I say that an alarm clock's best function is to induce sleep."—[New York Sun.

TO BRING ART TO THE MASSES.

Nonprofit Organization is Formed in New York.

Designed to Bridge Chasm Twixt Beauty, Utility.

Clearinghouse is Provided by Societies.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—To bring the enjoyment of art within the reach of the great mass of the American people is one of the objects of the Art Center, Inc., a new nonprofit making organization recently formed in New York. William L. Harris, managing director, in explaining its purposes, said "it is designed to bridge the chasm between beauty and utility, that has existed for the past 200 years, in the objects and surroundings of everyday life."

PROVIDE CLEARING HOUSE.

Seven societies are included in the new Center, to co-ordinate art in trade, to provide a clearing house for the crafts, and to advance the decorative crafts and industrial and graphic arts of America. It will aim to foster all arts adapted to common needs, promote good taste, assist all industries connected with home-making and quicken the manufacture of furniture, draperies, carpets, wallpaper, china, silverware and linen to meet the artistic competition of Europe.

Mrs. Ripley Hitchcock, president of the new venture, also was organizer of the Art Alliance of America, of which the Art Center, Inc., is the direct outcome.

"Our country," she said, "is a great industrial nation without any industrial art and not until we apply art to our industries will we be able to bring the enjoyment of art to the great mass of our people. The art directors of our publishing and advertising concerns spend every year more money for American art than all our art patrons in America. We shall endeavor to make Art Center, Inc., a place where creators of American art can exhibit their work and where the real patrons of American art, the publishers, advertisers and manufacturers, can see them."

Mr. Harris, who is a graduate of the Beaux Arts in Paris, and who has made church decoration his particular field, said that "the tendency in the world at large of separating art from trade has been greatly accentuated since the advent of machinery." "At the present time, the lack of trained workers and skilled designers is a real menace," he declared. "Many of our most valued industries are today absolutely dependent on skillful craftsmen trained in European countries.

GERMANS MOBILIZING.

"The Germans are mobilizing their industrial art forces right now to capture the markets of the world, and are devoting special attention to the weak spots in our industrial system, intending to profit by our impractical methods of education.

"Our students and artists need a thorough understanding of the many exacting requirements of modern manufacturers. Year after year our manufacturers have gone to Paris for designs because foreign designs could always be worked out on machinery. To have the foundation of some of the nation's greatest industries placed in foreign lands is politically unsound and industrially dangerous.

"As good or better drawings than those purchased abroad could be produced at home by our native artists if our earnest students were given the chance to acquire the absolutely necessary technical knowledge and experience. Art Center, Inc., will endeavor to disseminate this technical knowledge among the rising generation of our artists and designers. Americans have been prone to neglect the values of those profitable forms of technical education so thoroughly appreciated abroad."

SEVEN SOCIETIES.

The seven societies of which the center is composed are the Art Alliance of America, Art Directors' Club, New York Society of Craftsmen, Pictorial Photographers of America, Society of Illustrators, Institute of Graphic Arts and the Stowaways.

The Art Center, Inc., will have headquarters at 65-67 East Fifty-sixth street. The seven societies will have rooms there and there will be galleries for the exhibition of every form of American industrial art.

The board of directors includes: Mrs. Ripley Hitchcock, president; Charles Dana Gibson, vice-president; Col. Wade H. Hayes, treasurer; Heyworth Campbell, secretary, and Walter L. Ehrich, Ray Greenleaf, Mrs. John Henry Hammond, Charles E. Pellew, W. Frank Purdy, Henry L. Sparks, Charles B. Upjohn, Clarence H. White, Richard L. Marwede, and Dr. Charles H. Jaeger.

Among those on the advisory committee are Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Dr. John H. Finley, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Louis Comfort Tiffany, Charles Scribner, Jr., Mrs. Willard Straight, Frank A. Vanderlip, Mrs. John T. Pratt and Henry White.

THE ESSENTIALS OF COURTSHIP.

Things Necessary Described in Law Courts of London.

The five things necessary to courtship recently were described in the London law courts. According to counsel engaged in a breach of promise case, they are:

Love letters.

A ring.

Introduction between families.

Presents and "outings."

"Look back upon your own engagements," he urged the jury (which included two women.) "Can you say that during the period any one of the five was absent?"

The stages of intoxication were enumerated by a doctor at the Southwestern Police Court. He was giving evidence in a case in which a taxicab driver was charged with being drunk, and said the man was in "the third stage." The five stages, as defined by him, are:

General contentment, sense of well-being and happiness.

Flushing of the cheeks, a bright eye and hilarity.

Inability to exercise the muscles as the brain directs.

Drunk and incapable.

Coma.—[New York Tribune.

IS INTELLECTUAL CIRCUS.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Aug. 2.—High in the list of typically American institutions, together with Election Day and the Ziegfeld Follies is the increasingly popular form of entertainment kown as the Chautauqua, which has been termed the Intellectual Circus of America. Chautauqua authorities say that last year approximately one-third of the population of the United State—35,449,750 people—attended Chautauqua performances. It has been predicted that this year the number enjoying this form of educational entertainment and its sister type, the lyceum program, will reach the 50,000,000 mark.

Every state in the Union has communities which patronize the Chautauqua, but the Great Chautauqua Belt, as the trade term has it, lies in the middle western States including especially: Iowa, which has 436; Illinois, 352; Ohio, 317; and Pennsylvania, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Oklahoma. New York State has 201 separate Chautauquas aside from the great organization at Lake Chautauqua. Las year 8581 towns granted their inhabitants and those of neighboring communities the privilege of Chautauqua programs.

The movement is growing beyond the bounds of this country and at present two continents including four countries have Chautauquas in their midst. In North America the United States, Canada, and Alaska are favored with the presence of these organizations. Chautauqua programs are given in New Zealand. Chinese students in this country are said to be eager to carry the Chautauqua movement to their home country and Lloyd George, Prime Minister of England, has been quoted as giving the Chautauqua his heartiest approval.

There seem to be four prime factors in the psychological basis which lies beneath the marvelous success of this institution. They are the getting away of the members of the audience from their mere community interests; the getting together of a large body of people under the cover of one of these khaki-covered colleges; the formal discussion of big problems; and the decidedly informal atmosphere of the place where the program is given.

Above all, one should not forget, in this connection, what Gilbert K. Chesterton stated, namely, that the American people have a positively heroic capacity for giving and receiving lectures.

The little country of Belgium has been the scene of more important battles than any other country in the world.

At Britain's great air station at Croydon is to be seen the largest electric sign in the world. It is in the form of a gigantic star, measuring nearly a quarter of a mile from point to point. The electric lights forming the sign are sunk in the ground and covered with thick glass, so that airplanes can land on them without damage.

The world's geniuses had their eccentricities in the manner of doing their work. For instance, Schiller put his feet in ice while he sat in a room filled with the odor of bad apples. Milton buried his head in cushions and blankets. Rousseau preferred to have the sun heating on his head, while Shelley wrote with his head close to the fire.

Getting Too Fat?
Try This—Reduce

The day of the slim woman's triumph has arrived. "The thinner one is the more stylish," say the dressmakers, "and the more comfortable," say those whose fat makes summer intolerable. This would have been sad news for the fat woman a year ago. She would have had to try dieting or exercise. Nowadays, however, the woman who is too fat for the style goes to a druggist and gets a box of Marmola Prescription Tablets, one of which she takes after each meal and at bedtime and so reduces her superfluous flesh quickly. These tablets, being made in accordance with the famous prescription, are perfectly harmless, even on the hottest days, and they are also the most economical preparation a person can buy, for they cost only one dollar for a full sized box, one of which is frequently enough to start a person to losing fat at the rate of two, three or four pounds a week. Pretty nearly every druggist keeps this tablet in stock, but should yours be sold out, you can easily obtain a box by sending to the makers, the Marmola Co., 4612 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.—[Advertisement.

Blackheads Go Quick
by This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—soft ones or hard ones—on any part of the body, go quick by a simple method that just dissolves them. To do this get about two ounces of calonite powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—and wash off. You'll wonder where the blackheads have gone. The calonite powder and the hot water have just dissolved them. Pinching and squeezing blackheads only open the pores of the skin and leave them open and unsightly—and unless the blackheads are big and soft they will not come out, while the simple application of calonite powder and water dissolves them right out, leaving the skin soft and the pores in their natural condition. You can get calonite powder at any drug store and if you are troubled with these unsightly blemishes you should certainly try this simple method.—[Advertisement.

The velvet cape is indeed a thing of charm!

Boating on the lake is a joy just now, and the wonderful music, beautiful surroundings and delicious dinners are making Westlake Park Pavilion the rendezvous for pleasure-loving people. On the canopied piazza overlooking the water the famous Martha Washington fried chicken dinner is served for $1.50, steak dinners at $1.25 and roast dinner at $1. Fountain specials are served from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m.

The young man who is planning to go north to college is already thinking about his clothes which must, of course, be very smart and yet not necessarily unduly expensive. A bit of advice from you, Mother, anent the fact that Mullen and Bluett's are particularly interested in the college boy, and consequently are ready to stage an event which will appeal strongly to Father, too! They have earnestly desired for many moons to be able to offer a cleverly fashioned suit of excellent quality for the neat sum of forty dollars—and not until now have they found the quality, style and price all at once! And besides this, they are also showing a very spruce overcoat at $40 which will be capital proof against cold winds!

The very latest things in silk sweaters have arrived at Cowen & Son's, 724 S. Hill. Smart Tuxedo sweaters with long fringe finish slip-on models, both in silk and fiber, are in this display. Newest models in bathing suits are shown for the whole family, and these will also be made to order. A sale of Superyarn Artsilk—$1.25 spool for $1, or $7.75 a box—more than enough for a sweater—will be this week's offering. A full assortment of Fleisher's yarn in all colors is marked very low as is also D.M.C. crochet cotton.

The Nestle permanent wave as given by Mrs. Lux at the Nestle Shop does not remove the natural oil from the hair, but leaves it soft and glossy. She makes large or small waves and also gives a lovely permanent marcel which is the envy of all who see it! Have a talk with her on eighth floor, Brack-Shops. Phone 63332.

The chin scarf is a quaint, coquettish fashion, becoming to some.

Williams-Wear tub dresses are carefully cut and seamstress-made, and after an examination of these popular dresses and also a "trying on" you will be astonished at the reasonableness of the prices! See them, ninth floor, Brack Shops.

Don't fancy that we will wear our dresses long in this country—not yet.

Such a variety of meats and fowl prepared in the most tempting ways known to the culinary art are always to be had at the Elite dinner service, together with the most delicious chilled salads and frozen desserts one could wish for! Drop in at 641 S. Flower any time from 11:30 in the morning and try one of their tempting fountain specials.

I've been struck by the self-reliance, poise and joy the hard-of-hearing gain from Miss Anderson's lip-reading classes, Pacific Coast School, 608 Citizens' Bank Bldg.

Miladi no longer drapes her cape about her like a toga—she wears it military style, fastened at the neck and flowing freely in the breeze!

Think what a privilege—to be al-lowed to select a beautiful lamp from the largest stock in the United States at the wonderful August sale at Robinson's! There will be Bridge lamps, Torcheres, and lamps of all descriptions ranging in price from $20 to $450, including shades. You should see them—it's a treat whether you need one or not!

Don't forget the kiddies' smart shop—the Vanity Fair, 631 W. Seventh! There you will find the most adorable frocks for little girls and swagger suits for boys. Besides, they make exquisite lingerie for grown-ups.

A complete costume of black is very smart, however, whether we care to wear it or not!

The ostrich is a mighty proud bird these days—and he has a right to be! Aren't his graceful feathers worn in every conceivable fashion—whole hats are made from them—not to say trimmed with them—and they are used to add a graceful touch to parasols, to wear around miladi's neck in the form of a smart boa; they enhance her cape and little evening slippers—in fact, they are the rage! The show rooms at the Cawston Ostrich Farm are veritable gardens of beauty—there you will see the latest models in feather hats, the newest fans and fancies!

Is Dollie sick and all unstrung? Have her made new again before the Christmas rush at the Doll Surgery, 324 S. Hill.

Those gray hairs at the temples— why not have them touched up to match the rest of your hair? Edith Naftel has a vegetable dye which is harmless, and works wonders. 202 Haas Bldg.

You're sure to be charmed with those smart fall hats at the Make-Over Hat Shop, 688 S. Alvarado! They do the cleverest make-over. You'd never know your old hat!

Life never becomes monotonous to the girl who knows the joys of using Butterfly Tints. These tiny bits of fairy magic, can change the most colorless blouse into a garmen to be proud of. Oh, yes, you can dye feathers, raffia, wool, chenille, silk, organdie and flowers. I understand that wonderful results have been obtained in making "Batik work"—with these marvelous Butterfly tints. Ask for them at your druggist's or neighborhood drygoods store.

Don't just give the children "bread" when they are hungry—but see to it that they eat bread which nourishes and which is indeed the "staff of life!" Young's famous milk bread is a wonderful food for growing children—they like it and it contains great food value." Young's market bakeries are celebrated for their bread, cakes and pastries—the best of ingredients being used in everything they make. There are bear's claws and race tracks—pound cakes and little tea cakes—jelly rolls and pastry tarts and, well, just ask for anything—you're sure to get it!

Smart knitted capes will be offered at half price this week by Cowen & Son, 724 S. Hill: $9.75 values at $4.75, $13.98 models at $6.99, $15.75 values at $7.88, $16.75 values at $8.37 and $18.50 values at $9.75. Some of these have angora collars and others scarf collars of the same.

Little tots and girls up to six-teen years can be outfitted by the special measure system at the Peggy Specialty Shop, 1907 West Seventh. Exclusive designs in most adorable frocks are shown; materials can be selected from their wonderful stock. Wilshire 296.

The midsummer piano sale at the Smith Piano Company is really worth your consideration. I happened in there this week and was so impressed with the values that I thought it too bad if you should miss it. You know they have a wonderful stock of standard pianos, some baby grands among them—all beautifully finished and wonderful in tone, and these can be bought on reasonable payments. The phonographs, too, are the best of makes and are included in the sale. Don't forget Christmas is coming, stop in and see them at Ninth and Grand!

You will enjoy the dinners at that charming new Dining Room at 845 S. Burlington—the appointments are delightful and the service of unusual excellence. This is not surprising for the management consists of Miss Myers, formerly manager of Blackstone's Tea Room and Mrs. Webber. It's a wonderful place for private luncheons and bridge parties. 52134.

Yes, Hambright buys diamonds and if you have any you are not making use of, you had better sell them at once, for they are worth a lot of money these days and Hambright knows diamonds and will value them correctly. You can rest assured that he will pay the market price for them—and you will be able to use the money for things you really need. 511 Story Bldg.

Too fat? Too thin? Not exactly well? You can be brought to normal weight and measurements and be vastly improved in health by the Reiss system—without drugs or starvation. It's intensely interesting, too. 802 Title Guarantee Building, 220 West Fifth. Phone 67815.

Lots of folks could have more joys if they would only turn things they don't use into money—for instance, diamonds they never wear! Now, I know a man who buys diamonds at the topmost market price—and that's high today—and if you will take your gems to him he will place a value on them and you can be sure that it is right! Go see Mr. Fergusson at 206 Haas Bldg.

Yes, the Vanity Fair Tea Room is open again and you had better phone for reservations! This is one of the most-talked-of dining places in town—service is delightfully quick and the food unexcelled! Drop in for lunch or dinner at 937 S. Hill and judge for yourself!

The velvet cape is indeed a thing of charm!

To be perfectly happy and care free while on your vacation, you should guard against those unprincipled folks who might filch your treasures! The big storage vaults of the Citizens' Trust and Savings Bank will accommodate anything you wish to leave—rugs, draperies and even trunks of things! Call at 736 S. Hill, or phone Pico 4180.

Very smart are ear-rings formed by alternate rings of jet and seed pearls.

A feather hat can be made out of your old ostrich plumes or, in fact, out of any feathers you may have—if you take them to Vallely & Vatcher, 640 Broadway, sixth floor, opposite Bullock's. They will also make them into fancies and will remodel your old marabout.

Black and white combined makes a very clever frock.

Chestnut—the artist fur designer —offers to remodel your furs this week at a 50 per cent discount, and that means that you will have a smart up-to-the-minute fur, cleverly made. He also has marked his fine stock of fur garments and chokers at half price for the August sale. 808 W. Seventh, 62433.

Skirts not only reach the ankles in Paris, but some of them actually touch the ground in places!

Well, every once in a while they do break in while folks are out of town—and they always help themselves to the choicest of your valuables! Why not feel free from worry—take your treasures to the Guaranty Trust and Savings Bank, Spring at Seventh—they will store anything in vaults or safety deposit boxes! Phone 10312.

There is the new full skirt and there is also the slender silhouette!

Hudgen's Permanent Wave Shop always has the latest fads in permanent waving, as they do absolutely nothing but the waving. They have the new patented rewaving pads which wave only the new growth of hair that has grown since a previous wave. They also are applying the new horn wrap that waves so close to the scalp. Both Frederics and Nestle systems used. This is the oldest wave shop on the Coast, and the largest west of New York. Entire front fourth floor Brack-Shops, 7th and Grand. Phone 62863.

Mr. Howes has just returned from the East with a wonderful stock of indestructible pearl necklaces at very reasonable prices. Run in and see them on fifth floor, Brack-Shops.

Drooping plumes are the keynote of hat fashions.

It's no trouble at all to make your own frocks if you will just let the Elite Button Company help you out! They will add the finishing touches, such as scalloping, hemstitching, plaiting, embroidery work in the newest designs and they will make the cleverest buttons! Mail orders are carefully filled at 603 Title Guarantee Building.

FOOLPROOF FEET.

Too Many of Us Have Got Them and Too Many of Us Walk Wrongly.

The human foot is one of the most beautiful and useful instruments ever conceived, but, unfortunately, it is not what a motorist calls "foolproof."

There is a great deal of misunderstanding about our feet. We treat them outrageously, as either custom or fashion may dictate. As a result, about one-third of the population is splay-footed, another third walks like a hen on hot cinders and the remaining third may be said to walk fairly naturally.

The foot has a graceful arch running fore and aft. We take this longitudinal arch, turn the toes outward so that the heels meet at an angle of forty-five degrees, and then, as the diagram shows, put all our pressure in a skew direction across the arch. No railway engineer would dream of building a straight-arch bridge to carry loads neither across nor along the arch but irregularly askew over it.

We ought to walk with our great toe pointed straight in the direction of progress, as Indian runners do, and "spring from the great toe." Instead, most of us "take off" in a lumbering sort of way from the ball of the great toe.

The arch of the foot is supported largely by the tendon which runs under the foot to the great toe itself, and this neglect of use renders this tendon weak and lax, and causes depression of the arch. The best cure for weak arch is the practice of raising oneself upon the great toe, that is, doing as a penalty exercise what you should have done all along naturally. If you will try when walking to keep the feet straight, and to end each stride with a little "spring" off each big toe alternately, you will be rewarded by finding that progress seems easier, quicker and more buoyant.—[London Daily News.

DWARF TREES.

They Are Raised by Reversal of Nature's Method.

In Japanese horticulture the art of landscape gardening on a miniature scale plays an important if not a leading role. A village or a single home surrounded by beautiful country will be formed within a plot a few yards square by the Japanese artisans.

A river with its bridges, lake with tiny ships on its silvery surface, roads, gardens, field—all these features are to be found in the more pretentious Japanese miniature works. Hence it is not surprising to learn that the Japanese, in order to carry out their miniature landscape gardening with the utmost realism and fidelity, have had to raise dwarf trees for this purpose.

So the custom of dwarf trees has become an established one in Japan, some of these trees attaining the age of 200 years. The whole system of culture of these tiny trees may be summed up as the reversal of nature's method. It really consists not in the survival of the fittest but rather in the survival of the unfittest, so to speak. A poor, weak seed is usually chosen and planted. As soon as it has attained some growth the leading shoot is trimmed off. The little plant then grows two other shoots and these are carefully watched.

When one shoot exhibits a strength that is vitally greater than its fellow it is at once cut off and the weaker shoot left untouched in order to form the future dwarf tree's main stem or trunk. This system of trimming and cutting is followed punctiliously. Water is seldom used—only such small quantities as to keep the little plant actually alive. The tree is kept in a pot too small for its full development and the roots are constantly pruned. The shoots are carefully trained and bent to follow the growth of a large tree.

All of which, it goes without saying, requires great patience; but this is a commodity with which the sons of Nippon are endowed to a degree approached by few of the Caucasian races, and the Japanese horticulturist never tires of watching the growth of his tiny trees. When such a tree has been growing for about five years it can be left to take care of itself, since it has become accustomed through its training to follow the rigid course laid out for it and can then be trusted not to strike out again in the pursuit of its natural size and vigor.

In this manner magnificent specimens of dwarf trees are produced which compare favorably with anything found among their big brothers in the untrained forests of Japan.—[Scientific American.

BIG FLIGHT OF GEESE IN SOUTH DAKOTA.

Reports to the Bureau of Biological Survey, United States Department of Agriculture, from many parts of the country indicate that the unlawful killing of migratory waterfowl during the spring flight was greatly reduced this year as compared with the heavy slaughter during the spring flights in former years. It has been found that a large majority of people are impressed with the fact that the government's work for bird protection is not only a wise conservation measure but is necessary to perpetuate hunting as a sport. The Federal law protecting migratory birds is thus being better observed and birds are not being molested so much in spring as formerly, with the result that they are now breeding in many places from which they were formerly driven because of constant disturbance from spring shooters. A message from one of the wardens regarding the spring flight of geese in South Dakota shows the excellent results being secured under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act regulations. "Never, even in the memory of the 'old-times,'" has Eastern South Dakota seen a spring flight of wild geese such as has taken place this year. They have flocked into lakes and fields in countless thousands."—[News Letter Department of Agriculture.

Ethnology of Porto Rico.

Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man, Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aboriginies are now to be found, except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone-inclosed plazas, on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No trace of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type.—[Christian Science Monitor.

THE SCILLIES.

Islands off Cornish Coast Where Wind and Sea Rule.

Some twenty miles southwest from the end of Cornwall the traveler will see a dark blur low on the horizon, presently to resolve itself into a ring of black rocks, capped with green, broken with the white foam of the leaping waves. The ship will slow down, seeming to feel its way 'round a dangerous and impenetrable coast until a passage opens on the left, and almost in a moment is swung 'round into the little harbor of Hugh Town on St. Marys.

In front lies a placid expanse, calm as the lagoon of a coral atoll, and, like it, ringed 'round with islands large and green, or small and black, a defense through which the Atlantic shows its white breakers, but fails to disturb the central peace. The pacific illusion will be heightened if at dusk a visit is paid to a dim grove on Tresco. There the waves boom behind a thicket and send flecks of scud across the trees. And there on the green lawn stands the strangest assemblage of carved and painted images, all in the same convention. They rise ten to twenty feet from the ground, are tall and slender, curved like the necks of swans. There are rude figures of men and dolphins, of deep breasted women and of strange beasts, all revealing an intention, threatening and imminent, of moving toward you. They are the figureheads of ships wrecked off the Scillies, many of them generations old, preserved by an odd and pious fancy of some former Lord of Tresco

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS,
WARTS AND MOLES.

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 300 hairs an hour. I have had 24 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert. Work done at your home by appointment.

WANTED—
IS THERE A BROAD-MINDED EXECUTIVE IN THIS CITY who realizes that a man can only do his best work when his mind is free from financial worries? One who will pay a man enough salary so he can live decently (not extravagantly,) and bank some money each week? It is very difficult to put forth one's best efforts when one does not get a sufficiently large enough salary to enable one to save at least $10 a week. I spent two years in the army during the war and am consequently not enabled by high wartime wages; I have a thorough knowledge of general office work, understand book-keeping and have had a little experience in selling; also have a knowledge of shorthand and typewriting, and have had considerable experience as a correspondent. I can save $10 a week on a salary of $30 a week, and would be willing to start for that amount on any legitimate proposition. I do not intend to work forever for $30 a week, but that of course will be up to me. If you feel that you would care to interview a young man who will work for YOUR INTERESTS, who is CONSCIENTIOUS, WILLING and who IS NOT a clock watcher, and who will do any kind of work (not necessarily office work,) Address N, box 185, TIMES OFFICE.

WANTED—By married man, 38 years old, thoroughly experienced book-keeper and salesman who has successfully handled home office and for the past four years has been traveling auditor for large motion-picture producers. THE MOST EXTRAORDINARY LIST OF HIGH-GRADE PIANO BARGAINS EVER OFFERED IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA.

WE ARE CLOSING OUT OUR ENTIRE LINE OF

at less than their cost to us.

Since we first advertised these wonderful bargains, a week ago today, we have been literally swamped with orders for them. There are now only two or three Grands and a very few Uprights left. After these few remaining instruments are gone you will again have to pay the regular Sohmer prices. This is the piano-buying opportunity of a lifetime. Take advantage of it NOW.

$750 Uprights have been repriced to $532.25.

$700 Uprights have been repriced to $488.75.

A $1250 Grand model has been reduced to $879.75.

ALSO USED UPRIGHT PIANOS $205 UP.

Makes included are the well-known Kurtzmann, Krakauer, Brinkerhoff, Lafargue, Estey, Sohmer, Steinway, Mason and Hamlin, used, Packard used, Lester used, Kimball used, and others.

USED GRANDS FROM $595 UP.

Including the famous Steinway, Sohmer, Kurtzmann, Krakauer, makes; some can scarcely be told from new instruments.

ALSO MANY BIG BARGAINS IN PLAYER PIANOS PRICED FROM $450 UP.

Including many standard nationally known brands.

TEN REASONS FOR BEING OPTIMISTIC.

WRITER CITES HIS VIEWS ON PROSPERITY IN THIS COUNTRY.

(1.) The great mass of people in this country still have their Liberty Bonds. It is true that corporations and many small holders have sold theirs. The great bulk of wage-workers, however, still retain theirs, and they will not cease buying merchandise so long as they hold Liberty Bonds.

(2.) Prohibition is a great factor for prosperity, the importance of which is not fully realized. Previous to July 1919, about $3,000,000,000 a year was being spent by people of this country for drink. About 20 per cent of this money has gone into the savings banks; but the balance has gone into building homes, buying merchandise—raising the standard of living.

(3.) The Federal Reserve System is working well. It is popular to criticise the Federal Reserve Board; but such criticism is usually directed against their good acts rather than against their bad ones.

(4.) Advertising has become a great economic factor for the producing and steadying of business. The old form of advertising, which was largely of the luxury type, has been replaced by a new, productive form.

(5.) Though our foreign trade has greatly grown during the past five years, it is no greater proportion of our total trade than it was. If we lost all our export trade today, it would reduce our total business only about 5 per cent.

(6.) Standardization in manufacturing is rapidly increasing, but great improvement can still be made. The Ford system can be applied to a great many commodities other than automobiles.

(7.) The seasonable fluctuations in industry and commerce are being gradually ironed out. Part of the loss through seasonable manufacturing and purchasing is being eliminated by concerns taking on different lines. Thus, the coal merchant is going into the ice business and vice versa.

(8.) Taxation will surely be reduced. Not only will the government reduce expenditures, but our system of taxation will be changed so far as to encourage production rather than penalize it.

(9.) Modern education for executives and employees is rapidly being introduced. Industrial education is constantly growing in scope.

10. The United States has accumulated great wealth during the past five years, and has paid almost all of its foreign indebtedness. We are now a creditor nation instead of a debtor nation. Our people are the richest of any on the face of the earth.—[Roger W. Babson in Forbes Magazine.

FARM RISKS GREATEST IN PLAINS STATES.

Risks in the production of three great staple crops—corn, wheat and oats—are greatest in the Plains States extending from Texas to North Dakota. This general fact is established by the average deviation of the yield per acre from the average yield, computed by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, for these three crops for each State from the records of fifty years.

On the other hand, the North Atlantic and the Western States are regions of comparatively low risk or deviation of yield per acre from the average for wheat and oats, and the entire Atlantic Coast and the West for corn.

The great corn belt, with its enormous production and surplus above local consumption, is, after all, prominently subject to risks of weather, insects and disease in the production of crops and, while it would be going too far to say of this region as a whole that the results of its agriculture are either "a feast or a famine," yet there is a tendency in this direction as the area covered by the average becomes more restricted to county, township and individual farm.

ALL ABOUT NEWFOUNDLAND. The island of Newfoundland belongs to Great Britain. It is on the northeast side of the Gulf of St. Lawrence and is separated from the mainland by the Straits of Belle Isle, about twelve miles wide. It has an area of about 40,200 square miles. Cape Race is the southeast point of the island. The surface is rugged and mountainous and the soil rather poor. The deep-sea fisheries are about the only source of wealth and industry. The island was discovered by John Cabot in 1497. Many attempts were made to colonize it, but it remained unsettled until Lord Baltimore settled in the great peninsula in the southwest and named it the province of Avalon. Its history was a record of rivalries between the French and English fishermen until, by the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713, ratified by the treaty of Paris, in 1763, the island was ceded to England.—[Indianapolis News.

Bulgaria's Queer Taxes.

The peasants are now firmly established in power in Bulgaria and legislative bodies, both state and provincial, in which their representatives are in the majority, are engaged in transferring the burden of taxation to the shoulders of the despised city folk.

The district council of Roustchouk has evolved the following taxes which it styles "American":

For carrying a parasol, 50 levas (nominally worth 19 cents each), yearly; for wearing skirts more than eleven inches above the ground or silk stockings, 500 levas; for wearing gloves between April 15 and September 15 without a doctor's certificate, 200 levas; for wearing jewelry, 300 levas; for keeping pet dogs, 500 levas; for use of walking canes by persons less than 50 years old in good health, 100 levas; for wearing shoes with tops exceeding eleven inches in height, 200 levas; for wearing fur tippets or muffs, 500 levas, and for using a baby carriage in cities, 200 levas.—[Kansas City Times.

LIMA INFESTED BY JAPANESE.

Proud City of the Viceroys Has Real Problem.

Press Seeks Protection from Peligro Amarillo.

Market Places Dominated by the Orientals.

BY JOHN W. WHITE.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LIMA, Aug. 6.—Lima, known throughout the Spanish-speaking world as the proud City of the Viceroys, the city whence the Spaniards under Pizarro directed their inquisition against the Incas, has become so infested with Japanese that the Peruvian newspapers have repeatedly during the last three years called upon the government to protect the country from further spread of the "Peligro Amarillo," or yellow peril, as they call it.

MADE LIVE SUBJECT.

Some time ago the Japanese question was made a live subject throughout South America by the statements of the Lima newspapers that the Japanese were not only replacing the lower classes of natives by immigration but that they were intermarrying with Peruvians of the laboring class in such a way as to make the yellow peril a real one to the Peruvian people.

This campaign has been kept up intermittently ever since, and not very long ago one of the newspapers of Lima went so far as to say that the lower-class Peruvians in some localities were acquiring a distinctive oriental countenance and that hundreds of Peruvian girls were wearing veils to hide their slant eyes and other traces of Japanese blood.

MARKETS FLOODED.

Tourists in South America usually make their first excursion include the market places, as these show the natives in their own element better than they can be seen anywhere else. But when one enters the big market place in Lima one is inclined to forget that it is Peru and wonder if it might not be some place in the Orient; for almost nothing is seen of natives except the servant girls who are marketing. Nearly every stall is kept by Japanese. Japanese women squat in the aisles, surrounded by their chickens and turkeys; Japanese boys sell lard by the spoonful and wrap it in the wide leaves of the banana tree instead of in paper; and Japanese men sell meat and vegetables.

In most of the South American countries the street peddlers are largely Turks and Syrians, who push a cart or carry a basket from house to house selling kitchen utensils and cheap novelties and toilet articles. But on the west coast of South America this hawking trade is almost exclusively in the hands of the Japanese. These peddlers, after carrying a basket or pushing a cart for a few years, save enough out of their penny profits to set up a store in any hole in the wall, and both Peru and Chile today are covered with these tiny oriental shops.

ORIENTALS DOMINATE.

This is especially true in Southern Peru and Northern Chile, that is, in the nitrate ports of the west coast. In these towns the Japanese occupy entire sections, and it is not unusual to walk several blocks before finding a single individual who does not bear evidence of oriental blood in his veins.

Japanese immigration to the nitrate ports has been on the increase since Japan entered the World War, as Japanese steamers come out to the west coast in ballast to load nitrate for Japan. One of the two Japanese steamship lines which recently were subsidized by the Japanese government makes regular calls at all these ports with immigrants of the laboring class. It is not unusual to see from two to four Japanese cargo steamers at one time in such small ports as Iquique and Arica.

The Japanese in these localities line entire streets with their squalid huts, made of corrugated galvanized iron, with the earth for a floor and without windows. And each one of these one or two-room huts accommodates several persons and sometimes several families. Few of the Japanese immigrants have the means to bring out families with them and the feminine side of their establishments are usually represented by half-breed women of the country, who contribute liberally to a growing Japanese tainted population.

Freak Storm Gives Imperial Light Sprinkle.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Aug. 6.—Following a mild electrical and wind storm last night, Imperial Valley was visited by one of the freakiest rainstorms in its history. The precipitation generally was very light, registering but a trace in the gauges in several sections, but at Brawley, Bard and in parts of Lower California the land received a thorough drenching. Calexico and El Centro did not receive enough rain to settle the dust. At Brawley the precipitation was approximately a quarter of an inch, although no rain fell in Calipatria. At Niland rain fell heavily for a few minutes. Reports from Bard, on the Colorado River, state that roads were flooded.

FOREST FIRES MAY WIPE OUT VILLAGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BANGOR (Me.) Aug. 6.—Forest fires sweeping up from the southwest on a twelve-mile front threatened tonight to surround and wipe out the village of Howland, thirty-six miles north of this city, and fears are felt for the safety of the 750 inhabitants. Fire fighters, steam fire pumps and thousands of feet of hose have been rushed to Howland, but latest reports from the district were that the fire was gaining headway. Seven houses in the village are reported destroyed.

A. B. Adul and Harvey McQuisten defeated Evan Rees and Louis Thalheimer, in the doubles championship. All live in Dallas.

WOMEN'S .. WORK .. WINS .. HIGH .. PRAISE.

Big Newspapers Eager for "Pilgrimage Play" Pictures.

TOURISTS returning to the East from Los Angeles have been so glowing in their praise of the "Pilgrimage Play," with its beauty of production and the splendor of its dramatic presentation, that the biggest newspapers in the United States have been telegraphing requests for pictures and "copy" on the play.

Announcement to this effect was made yesterday by directors of the Pilgrimage Play Association as they prepared to open the fifth week of the production tomorrow night.

The New York Times, the Boston Post, two papers in Baltimore and Los Vecinos, a publication that circulates through the twenty-two republics of Central and South America, have requested information and pictures on the play. The Boston Transcript, one of the best daily papers in the country, has already published a full page account of the play, with many illustrations.

The management announced yesterday that the production is now in its closing weeks and may be terminated at any time. For the last weeks, new car service has been started, with plenty of cars waiting at the door of the theater when it closes every night, these cars connecting with all interurban lines. Parking space is also to be found on the theater grounds.

The work of the women in the "Pilgrimage Play" cast has brought much favorable comment. Among these women are Bertha Fiske as Mary Magdalene; Florence Reed as Mary, the mother of Jesus, and Gwendolen Logan Hubbard as Mary of Bethany. Gloria Rollin as the Samaritan Woman, and Margaret Brewster as a woman of Jerusalem have also been showered with praise.

Public Hearings on New Zoning Law Scheduled.

To acquaint the public with its plans for the zoning of Los Angeles, before those plans are submitted to the City Council for ratification, the City Planning Commission will hold a series of public meetings in various sections of Los Angeles. At these meetings the purposes of the commission for the district in which the hearing is held will be explained. As a matter of convenience the city has been divided into meeting districts, within each of which public hearings will be held at the most convenient places available, and residents of the various districts will be urged to attend in order to acquaint themselves with the zoning laws to be enacted within their district.

The first district for which a hearing is scheduled is that lying between Melrose avenue and Sixteenth street, west of Hobart Boulevard. On Thursday evening, August 11, at 7:30, a meeting will be held in the Los Angeles High School, and on the following evening at the same hour a second meeting is scheduled for the Cahuenga school, at Second street and Hobart Boulevard. The public is urged to be present at both hearings.

VISALIA MAN TAKES OVER TULARE BAKERY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VISALIA, Aug. 6.—Don Case, well-known proprietor of Case's Confectionery store in Visalia, has purchased the California Bakery in Tulare from S. G. Dillashaw and J. L. Ashtion and will take possession immediately.

Mr. Case will continue to handle the bakery goods of the California Bakery and in addition operate the soft drink fountain and lunch. He will add a short-order service and will use the establishment in Tulare as a plant for making confectionery to supply the store there and in Visalia.

RAIL CLAIMS ARE REJECTED.

Additional Compensation is Denied Roads.

"Inefficiency of Labor" Loss Was Appeal.

Interstate Commerce Body Makes Ruling.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Claims of the railroads for additional compensation on account of purported inefficiency of labor during the guaranty period of six months following the termination of the Federal control were rejected by the Interstate Commerce Commission today.

The commission held in a formal decision that in fixing the maximum amount to be included in operating expenses for maintenance under the guaranty provision of the Transportation Act, the basic measure shall be the expenditure for maintenance during an average six months of the test period adjusted to differences in the cost of labor and materials and in the amount and use of the property in accordance with the provisions of the so-called standard contract. It held differences in "the cost of labor" as those words are used in the standard contract "do not include changes in the quality or effectiveness of labor, but only changes in wages."

The commission also held that in fixing the maximum amount to be included in operating expenditures for maintenance under the guaranty of the charges representing depreciations and retirements, shall be computed upon the same basis as those which were used during an average six months of the test period.

In making its decision relative to the question of inefficiency of labor the commission adheres to the view held by James C. Davis, Director-General of Railroads. Such settlements as have been made by Mr. Davis with the railroads for the period of Federal control have been in accordance with this position.

Recognition of the claims of the railroads for the entire period of Federal control and the subsequent guaranty period would mean an additional cost to the government of several hundred million dollars.

It was announced by President Harding recently when refunding legislative was sought from Congress that the roads had agreed to waive temporarily their claim for additional compensation because of labor inefficiency. They did not bind themselves to press the matter in the courts later.

The decision of the commission was by a majority vote, but was not unanimous. Dissenting views were filed by Commissioners Daniels, Potter and Campbell. Seven members approved the majority findings while Commissioner Hall did not participate in the case.

SEARCH IN EUROPE FOR MAIL LOOT.

Officials Declare Worthington Has $250,000 Worth of Property in Chicago.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—While the arm of the government was reaching across the Atlantic today to six European cities, Paris, Rome, Prague, Berlin, Warsaw and Posen, and securing part of the fortune John W. Worthington is alleged to have accumulated through acting as a fence for mail robbers, W. S. N. Hughes, a real-estate man of Terre Haute, Ind., was divulging other assets in Chicago to attaches of the District Attorney's office.

Almost simultaneously, it became known that the mysterious "Marie" whose photograph was found on Worthington's desk, was Miss Marie Reidy, a furniture designer, who formerly lived at the Maldern Arms Hotel here. Miss Reidy left the hotel August 1, leaving no forwarding address. Federal authorities believe she has gone to Los Angeles, although to some of the hotel guests she said she was going to North Dakota, and to others she spoke of going to Quincy, Ill.

Hughes, according to his own statement, had been associated with Worthington for years, acting as his agent and trustee in real-estate deals, and has even held title to property for him for a consideration.

John Clinnin, first assistant District Attorney, expressed the belief, after questioning Hughes when the latter appeared voluntarily in his office today, that Worthington is possessed of $250,000 worth of real estate in Chicago and vicinity.

At the conclusion of his statement, the real estate man promised to return Monday for a more detailed accounting of his dealings with Worthington. At that time other witnesses will tell of their knowledge of Worthington's affairs.

The government's first step to restrain Worthington from withdrawing deposits totaling $490,000 in European banks was the obtaining of a restraining injunction against him.

Worthington now is in jail, but his lawyers hope to obtain bond for him soon. As a precaution against losing the money overseas should Worthington get access to his checkbooks, the Central Trust Company, receiver for Worthington's Central Securities Company, asked the injunction.

ALL THE WORLD'S EYES ON HARBOR.

Single Week Brings Delegates from Many Lands.

And Los Angeles Exporters on Questioners' Bench.

Busy Section of Local Chamber of Commerce.

The foreign trade department of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, under the management of Clarence H. Matson, is giving that expert in foreign trade matters plenty of work for himself and his growing organization, while it becomes increasingly evident that the port, the harbor, the transportation lines, the warehousing facilities and other arteries of a world-trade center are the subject of interested investigation locally and abroad. A report of one week's activities tells a part of the story in the following partial list of interviewers and interviewed:

Within the space of two hours, one day during the past week, conferences were held with a Chinese who desired to get in touch with firms interested in trading with China; a San Francisco importer who has located here and is helping to make Los Angeles a great market for imported coffee; a man who has just returned from a two years' tour of Europe; a man just up from Mexico, where he has lived since 1910, and who is taking on lines to be sold in Mexico; and a man who has just located in Los Angeles after six years' residence in Singapore. These were in addition to the Los Angeles firms seeking foreign trade information, and shortly afterwards came an Arabian from Assint, Egypt, 250 miles up the Nile from Cairo, who desired aid in studying the motion-picture industry here.

This man was Tewfik Saleh, from the American Mission College at Assint, who is taking a course in the United Presbyterian Theological School at Pittsburg. He says that the moving picture is so largely entering into the life of the people of Egypt that he desires to study them in the making. French and Italian pictures are shown as well as American, but the subtitles are all in Arabic. Mr. Saleh says the mass of the people cannot read, however, so titles mean little to them.

Among other recent visitors to the foreign trade department were the following:

I. K. Wilson, of Los Angeles, who has been in business in Guatemala for a year and a half, was looking into the markets here for certain of his Guatemalan products and also details as to markets in Guatemala for Los Angeles-manufactured goods.

Mariano Hernandez, a wealthy dry goods merchants of Monterey, Mex., who, with his family, is spending some time in Southern California and investigating Los Angeles as a place for purchasing manufactured goods.

Al Davino, president of an aerial apparatus company, who has a contract for installing an aerial railway in a Central American republic, and desired information in connection therewith.

J. C. Robinson, an extensive seed grower of Rocky Ford, Colo., who desired information on foreign markets for certain garden seeds. The trade extension department is now gathering material for a report on this subject. Some of the Robinson Seed Company's seeds are grown in California.

Eugene Cherry, Los Angeles representative of the American Handle Company of Jonesboro, Ark., was given reports on hickory handles and also trade lists of hardware importers in Japan, Manchuria, China, Straits Settlements, Hongkong and Mexico.

CORK INDUSTRY.

A new industry in Los Angeles is the Pacific Cork Company, manufacturers and importers of cork and cork specialties. This company was furnished with trade information and the best routes for importing cork from Spain.

Earl S. Hayes called and stated that he had formed a connection in Trinidad to import hides from that island and was given shipping information.

Y. Staalduynep, who has recently acquired a deposit of sodium sulphate in the Mojave Desert, was given information as to shipping facilities from this port.

Clarence G. Weisbrod, who has been traveling in Siberia and China for two years for a large Los Angeles dry goods house, was entertained by the foreign trade committee at lunch and gave an instructive talk on present conditions in the Orient.

F. Marshall Sanderson, president of Jones, Sweet & Co., of Shanghai, who has recently come from China with a view to locating in Los Angeles, was given information with regard to local trade conditions.

W. F. Schaubacher, who has acquired the rights for certain moving pictures in Argentina and expects to go to that country shortly, was given information relative to Argentina.

A. Kawano, a Japanese, who has lived in Los Angeles for several years, called to say that he is going to Japan for a year or two, and desired to take with him the representation of Los Angeles products for those markets. He was placed in touch with Los Angeles manufacturers who are interested in the Orient.

Dr. H. Robert Welti of Berne, Switzerland, a member of the Swiss mission for economic studies in the United States, was in Los Angeles for several days and was given information as to markets here for Swiss goods, and also placed in contact with exporters of certain lines of goods for which there is a market in Switzerland.

Dr. A. M. Monsanto, who has been in Los Angeles from Argentina for several months, sailed on July 16 for Buenos Ayres, taking with him the representation of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, the Boyle Manufacturing Company, Sunset Paint Company, Petroleum Export, Pacific Ready Cut Homes, Germain Seed and Plant Company, Auto Theft Signals, Oriental Incense and Sunset Perfume Company and Los Vicinos.

I. Berkwood Hobsbawn, consulting chemist from Valparaiso, Chile, called for information with reference to the important chemicals in Southern California.

A crude rubber broker from Seattle told how he is opening offices in Los Angeles to handle rubber through this port, and he was placed in touch with firms handling rubber.

Manuel F. Tiaogui, a Philippine business man and manufacturer, accompanied by Cristoval Regidor, of the Philippine Bureau of Commerce and Industry, called to obtain information as to marketing Philippine products in Los Angeles.

J. B. Richards of Torreon, Mex., called to give information as to business possibilities in Central Mexico. He stated that the mines are opening again, and some of the smelters are getting under way. He also states that there is a demand for pumps and irrigation machinery on ranches east of Guadalajara. One ranch in that vicinity recently has purchased about $1,000,000 of new sugar machinery, according to Mr. Richards, but the order was placed in England.

W. J. McLennan, who has recently come here from Sydney, Australia, to locate, was entertained by the foreign trade committee at lunch and explained opportunities for exporting Los Angeles products to Australia.

The representative of a manufacturer of abalone jewelry was given information as to exporting jewelry to England, and also importing semiprecious stones from Germany.

J. B. Sprague Johnson, representing a San Francisco foreign trade house, called for information relative to foreign trade opportunities in Los Angeles. Mr. Johnson had just returned from several months in South America. He stated that conditions are slowly improving in South America, except in Chile, where the closing of the nitrate and copper industries has created an extreme depression.

M. Tachibena, an officer of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Tasuahima Maru, which brought a cargo of hardwoods, porcelain, toys and baskets on its maiden trip here from Japan, called for port information.

HONDURAS EXHIBIT.

Dr. M. D. Morelos, a physician and business man of Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was entertained by the foreign trade committee, and spoke of business possibilities in Central America. He was also placed in touch with Los Angeles business houses and placed considerable orders here. Dr. Morelos also made a proposition to the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce to place an exhibit of Los Angeles products in the Honduras Chamber of Commerce at Tegucigalpa.

A. W. L. Dunn, who has recently inaugurated the importation of coffee from Colombia, has called several times lately to discuss the development of trade between Colombia and Los Angeles. Mr. Dunn has built up a considerable coffee business through a personal investigation of the industry in Colombia.

C. W. Edgerton, works manager of the Coatesville Boiler Works, at Coatesville, Pa., was given information as to shipping and port facilities, and the possibility of carrying a stock of boilers and tanks here.

The cases mentioned are only the high spots out of hundreds of calls from those seeking foreign-trade jobs, or otherwise giving evidence that fame as a port parallels the fame of its manufactures, and all-year climate; but they indicate plainly the beginnings of the big place Los Angeles is occupying in the public mind of all the world.

FAMILY SINGING A GOOD HABIT.

New England Paper Sees Beneficial Influence in the Old Songs.

"Why," asks a contemporary writer, "do so few parents nowadays sing either to or with their children?" She goes on to urge a revival of this fine old custom.

Perhaps, as she suggests, the phonograph, with its music-making facilities, or the automobile and the movie, forever dragging people from their homes, or jazz with its exotic and difficult cadences have driven the old sweet airs and the habit of family singing from the American homes.

Old hymns of noble verse and nobler music, beautiful old ballads in settings of simple, but perfect melody, are a valuable part of the equipment of any life and memory. Every little while new music of real merit is produced, which should be added to the collection, as pearls are added to a string.

Homes in which such songs are sung, homes in which fathers and mothers sing such songs first to and then with their children, are among the greatest influences of civilization. More important than the songs or the singing is the habit instilled in early life of finding pleasure in simple family association within the walls of home itself.—[Concord Monitor.

WELL-KNOWN REALTY FIRM REORGANIZED.

Owing to the retirement of George Giles, senior member of the realty firm of Giles and Laack, from business, a reorganization has been effected and the firm will operate in the future under the name of Laack & Williams. Mr. Giles's interests in the business have been acquired by Ralph O. Williams, formerly the manager of the residence property department of the Wright-Callendar-Andrews Company. Mr. Laack retains his interests in the business, and becomes the senior member of the firm. Both Mr. Laack and Mr. Williams are well known among realty men of the city. Present offices of the firm will be retained in the New Pantages Building, and a long term lease has also been taken on the corner of Sixth Street and Oxford avenue, where an office will be opened.

BUILDING FIRM TO LOCATE AT EXETER.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EXETER, Aug. 6.—Answering the Exeter Chamber of Commerce's call for more houses, to be sold on the easy payment plan, the Fresno Building Corporation, a concern that has been doing business in Fresno for the past ten years, and which is one of the largest firms of the kind in the State, is planning to come into Exeter and put up a number of houses to be sold on easy terms. pended in this work must come from Exeter and the local secretary, with a representative of the building company investigating the sentiment of business men, find it favorable. Sale of stock will begin immediately and following that the construction program will start soon.

FOR SALE—

YES, I KNEW, AUGUST IS NO TIME TO SELL a fine home—but sell I must, so I'll make a midsummer, LOW-TIDE, August-only price on my 10-room residence.

$10,900, worth $25,000.

Only a step NORTH of Wilshire Blvd., an EAST front cement stucco and rich red brick home of dignified lines, commanding a view all over Wilshire. Choicest hand-rubbed mahogany, all walls hand-decorated in oil, fine lawn and shrubbery, double garage, plastered inside.

FOUR fine bedrooms and open-air sleeping porch, TWO handsomely tiled baths and shower, also maid's room and bath. There's a dainty breakfast room as well as sun room. NOBODY HOME—immediate possession. For key phone 66740, MR. BATTELLE or MR. CROMLEY.

PURE COLONIAL—MY FINE CORNER.
$13,900—$2500 Down.

Yes, I'll cut the corner for you. Built this near Wilshire Blvd. less than 2 years ago. Two-story New England colonial, 3 bedrooms, just ONE beautiful tiled bath and tiled shower, double garage. A cool, restful, dignified home that would cost you $11,000 to build today and the lot is worth easily $4000. Look at the terms. Look at the PRICE. Look at the house and you'll appreciate that I want to SELL. Phone 66740, MR. DARE or MR. BATTELLE.

ENGLISH BRICK AND STUCCO BUNGALOW.
$10,500.

Six rooms PLUS—there's much more than most 6-room homes offer. Fine breakfast alcove besides 3 dandy bedrooms. EACH independently reached from the hall and bath, which is tiled with shower. Highest ground in Wilshire, block from car. Price was $12,500, but owner, a business woman, alone, says SELL. Phone 66740, MR. DARE or MR. CROMLEY.

DAINTY SPANISH BUNGALOW, 6 ROOMS.
$8850.

In the settled and "finished" part of Wilshire. A real gem, all hand decorated walls, French gray woodwork, choicest floors. This is the ONLY home in the neighborhood for less than $10,500 or more. Asphalt paved, close to car, stores. The little lady who designed and built this has had to leave—we have the key—she wants at least $3000 cash. Phone 66740 and we'll show you a BARGAIN.

FOR SALE—

WILSHIRE'S FINEST BUNGALOW.

On a street where values never decline. On a high, terraced and beautifully landscaped lot, is located this very fine bungalow.

There are 5 big rooms. The living-room is 26x16 with big fire place, and heaps of well-arranged windows. Finished in clear cedar with 5 coats of best enamel. The dining-room is the equal of any to be found in the finest home in Los Angeles. It is both artistic, well planned and large. There are 2 large bedrooms all opening with French windows on to a big porch, vine-covered. Basement with best gas furnace. Also big furnished attic which you can use for servants if desired.

There are no signs on this house, and we cannot give information over the phone, but we will be glad to call for you and show you through it. If you value LOCATION, CONSTRUCTION and big beautiful rooms with comfort, then arrange with us to see this wonder home. We invite you to bring your own architect or builder. We know that they will tell you, you could not replace it for the price we are asking for it, on an ordinary lot.

EVERYBODY IS LOOKING FOR A HOME WITH AN INCOME
FOR THE PRICE OF A HOME.

The handsomest designed exterior, and thoughtful and conveniently arranged DUPLEX HOME in the city. Seven large rooms in each flat, on a 60x150-foot lot, east, in a wonderful neighborhood, one block from Wilshire Blvd. The living-rooms, libraries and dining-rooms are finished in solid mahogany. Real open fireplaces, three bedrooms, 2 baths, etc. The plumbing, hardware, lighting fixtures, in fact, all material and labor in this building are of the best money can buy, together with the latest of refinements in every detail.

IT IS TRULY A WORK OF ART.

There are thousands of homeseekers in Los Angeles looking for just this kind of a home. It rightfully is the safest and best proposition for any man in moderate circumstances. Why? Because the rent money of one flat will pay good interest on the entire investment. This is an unusual opportunity for a man with a few thousand dollars. The price is only $22,000, which is about $5000 less than what it should sell for.

See owner at once.

FOR SALE—
WOULD YOU BUY A HOME
Provided I financed the construction and build to suit your desires?
MY AIM IS TO ARRANGE PAYMENTS TO SUIT YOUR MEANS.

If you do not own a lot I can sell you one out W. Adams way—the city's rapidly developing section—for $400 down and terms for bal., which gives you a deed, thereby enabling you to build and own your home. The price of these lots is $750 to $1250. On car line (25 mins. to 6th and Hill), palm trees, electroliers, etc. Some homes under construction and reasonably priced. Or will buy a lot for you in any part L. A.

HOW MANY YEARS HAVE YOU PAID MONEY TO OTHERS TO LIVE IN THEIR HOUSES? WHY NOT BE YOUR OWN LANDLORD AND PAY THIS MONEY TO YOURSELF? YOU OWE IT TO YOUR FAMILY. LET ME HELP YOU PAY THIS DEBT!

FOR SALE—SERVICE WITH SAFETY.
TODAY'S FOUR BEST BUYS:

(1.) Hollywood Blvd., corner, close in. We have for sale for a short time one of the few remaining corners in the heart of the business district, between Cahuenga and Highland ave. and the price is right.

(2.) Sunset Blvd., corner. Bargain. We can deliver a large unrestricted corner west of Western. 300 ft. deep at the unheard of price of $105 per foot. Just think of it!

(3.) That new tract "properly priced." Have you seen our new high-class bungalow and residence tract in beautiful West Hollywood on Hollywood Blvd. at Ogden Drive. All street and utility improvements including sewers and ornamental lights, 50-ft. lots as low as $2500, 1-3 cash. You can't beat it in Hollywood. Only 30 lots left.

(4.) WHITE PLASTERED BUNGALOW BUY. We have a charming 7-room well-built bungalow located west of Western, north of Hollywood Blvd. Excellent view. FOR SALE—

BEAUTIFUL COUNTRY HOME
Orange Grove and Vineyard.

40 Acres. $27,500.

For the benefit of you late arrivals from the East and Middle West, who are not familiar with the location of Exeter, will advise that situated about half-way between California's two largest cities, Los Angeles and San Francisco, in the great San Joaquin Valley, will be found Tulare county, and, lying on the east side of this county, is one of the richest agricultural belts to be found in the world; it extends over an area of some sixty-five miles in length by about ten miles in width, and skirts the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, which rise majestically in their snow-capped splendor as a background to the picture of green vineyards and thrifty groves, pretty villages and towns, with which the picture abounds.

In the center of this rich belt will be found Exeter, and just one-half mile north, situated on a paved highway, is the country home we are going to tell you about. It consists of 40 acres of as fine soil as lays out of doors, improved to 20 acres of fine, thrifty navel orange trees, mostly in full bearing, with a good crop on the trees, which will be ready for the Christmas market. 10 acres in grapes, age 2 years, and staked, which will bear six tons in grapes per acre next year, 6 acres of which are planted to Thompson Seedless and 4 acres to Emperors. 10 acres planted to Emperors last spring, perfect stand, which will come into bearing in two years.

A good modern house, with two large porches, one of which is screened, good barn and outbuildings; 2 good wells and pipe lines complete. A Cleveland tractor and all necessary implements in good condition. An ideal homeplace, well located and considerably underpriced. This fine piece of property is owned by a nonresident and is being offered for sale for the first time, at less than half of what it will be worth two years hence, all in bearing, with sufficient income right now to pay good returns on the investment. Can be handled on any reasonable cash payment down, with liberal terms on the balance. HOMESEEKERS, INVESTORS AND SPECULATORS, GET BUSY. See, phone or write.

H. C. BALAAM or G. F. VAUGHN,
Exeter, Cal.

FOR SALE—
CARLSBAD-BY-THE-SEA.

The time for planting of winter crops of green peas at Carlsbad is fast approaching. If you have found ranching unprofitable in your present locality, better come to Carlsbad, where the fertile soil, efficient water system and the mild even climate produce the most tender crops during the winter, when other districts are too cold, therefore, our ranchers get very high prices for their products. If you really want to make money where living conditions are most favorable, where you will be on the main line of railway, State highway, close to the sea, come to Carlsbad NOW.

PERCEPTION.

Edison says the American people have lost that "PERCEPTION" which endowed them with the strength and tenacity to develop this western country of mountain and desert. I do not believe it. There are yet people who can see the possibilities in an undeveloped section. Here in this foothill country, with its superb climate (no wind, fog or snow,) with its plentiful and sure supply of water for irrigation (besides 30 inches of rainfall,) its pure, soft spring and well water, with its leadership for 60 years in deciduous fruit growing, with its pleasant scenery of hills, woods and streams, its splendid transportation and marketing system, there are thousands of acres of the very finest fruit land, which is being discovered by "PEOPLE OF PERCEPTION," and is bought by them for $30 TO $125 PER ACRE.

And in a few years this cheap land will be producing for them from $200 to $500 worth of fruit per acre every year. This country has escaped the emigration of the plains-bred people and also the land booms, so a virgin opportunity awaits "PEOPLE OF PERCEPTION."

If you are a "PERSON OF PERCEPTION" you will say, "It may be that chance I have been looking for," and immediately start investigating.

CATTLEMEN.

The time to buy is when prices are low—now is that time. The census figures just published show a marked decrease in the number of cattle; the increased number of cows and calves slaughtered during the past eighteen months portend a further shortage in the years immediately before us. Tell me what you need and I will find the class of range you want, either lease or purchase; my associate in the South is qualified to assist you.

PECOS COUNTY OIL FIELD LOOKING BETTER EVERY DAY.

Lease No. 1, now drilling, and Lease No. 2 and No. 3 to start drilling in the near future.

I have just returned from a 10-days' trip to Pecos county, where I closed a deal with a drilling contractor to drill my three wells.

Geologists advise me that my leases are on excellent structure, and that I should get big production in all of my wells.

Now is your greatest opportunity to make some big money by purchasing a 20 years' commercial oil lease on the structure in eastern Pecos county, and share in the production of my three wells.

I am going back to Pecos county next week to start another well.

Delay will certainly cost you money. Quick action may make you a fortune.

Our titles are absolutely perfect; locations cannot be beat, and our prices are right.

The greatest selling proposition ever offered salesmen and brokers, and the best investment for the investor.

ORANGE, LEMON, WALNUT GROVES—For Sale and Exchange.

For Sale.

FOR SALE—

ORANGE GROVE.
BEST BUY IN THE POMONA VALLEY.

This grove produced over $25,000 in crops the past five years, an average of over $5000 per year.

10 ACRES, ONLY $11,000.

There are over 1000 full-bearing trees, soil is excellent and well fertilized; trees free from scale and in fine shape.

BETWEEN POMONA AND CLAREMONT.

The land and water alone are worth more than we are asking for the entire grove. It's a snap for some one and if you have any doubt about the value, just price a few groves in the same locality. None under $2000 per acre and few for sale.

You can buy this grove with a cash payment of $4000 or more, plenty time on the balance.

NO TRADE CONSIDERED.

Our orange growers are our most prosperous citizens. If you mean business and want a grove this is your opportunity.

CLYDE A. GATES & SON,
9 Brady Block. Pomona, Cal.

WANTED—
ORANGE GROVES
IN ORANGE COUNTY.
We have two clients for whom we are looking for orange groves. One wants 30 to 40 acres, with or without buildings, and will go as high as $3000 per acre for good grove, or will take a cheaper one. He desires to turn as part payment a smaller, but very fine grove, nicely improved, at $75,000, clear and assume and pay cash difference.

The other client wants a smaller place, with buildings preferred. He will turn in a good 50-acre ranch in Tulare county, on paved road, one-half in alfalfa, balance all in crops, good soil; house, barn, large pumping plant affords abundance cheap water; located in grape district. Price $20,000. Will assume or pay cash difference for good deal. He is priced at cash value.

FOR SALE—
COME TO HOTEL HEADQUARTERS.

A SENSIBLE INVESTMENT IN APT.-HOUSE. We offer you a three-story brick apartment-house containing 75 rooms, located in the Westlake district, ground, building, and furniture for $75,000. You can assume a first mortgage of $25,000 and pay the $50,000 in cash or securities. We can resell the furniture for $20,000 leaving your actual present cash investment only $30,000. The building will rent for [illegible] per month. Figure this deal two ways. You can buy the building, ground and furniture and resell the furniture and keep as an investment; or if you are looking for furniture and lease and have the price, you might as well purchase building, ground and all, which is one and the same thing.

AMERICAN PLAN HOTEL. We offer the furniture and lease of a beautifully located American plan hotel containing over 100 rooms, 50 per cent baths, an established high-grade clientele; takes [illegible] to handle the furniture; all cash. The details of this proposition will be furnished those who are entitled to same on personal application.

APT.-HOUSE, FURNITURE AND LEASE. Approximately 85 rooms; walking distance West Sixth street; rent $650 per month, good lease. Present income over $2200 per month; net profits over $1000 per month; furniture less than two years old. We have an exclusive agency for 30 days. Can handle this for $25,000 cash.

HOTEL, SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY. Hotel of 25 sleeping rooms; main highway San Joaquin Valley, four store rooms; 50 per cent baths; brick building, 2 stories; furniture and building practically new. Price of building, ground, furniture and all $35,000, one-half cash. Just the place for man and wife.

ITALIAN FASCISTI.

Veterans Banded Together to Fight Against Communism.

Who are the Fascisti? Italians derive their name from Fascio, a bundle, and as they describe themselves as a band of comrades formed to bind Italy together, and as their enemies call them a bundle of mischief makers, the derivation is obviously correct.

They originated as "Il Fascio il Combattimento"—"The Comrades of Battle"—ex-soldiers, who formed a league some months after the armistice to resist the wave of Communism which swept over the country, and which, as a matter of fact, threatened to destroy the very foundations of the unified kingdom of Italy. The government, which at first tacitly encouraged their attacks on Communism, now finds the movement has got out of hand. All the hot-blooded youth of Italy marches under the Fascisti flag, which has become not only a threat to Communists, but to law-abiding Social Democrats, as well as to all races which seem in any way to thwart the extreme nationalist aspirations of Italy.

It was the Fascisti who were behind D'Annunzio at Fiume, and have still not forgiven the governments of Italy and France for dislodging the adventurous poet. They it is, too, who are ready today for wars with Jugo-Slavia, Serbia and Austria. Indeed, it may be said of them that in their youthful enthusiasm they set no limit to the number and size of the countries they are prepared to "take on."—[London Graphic.

SOME DRAWBACKS TO "THE NATURAL LIFE."

Explorers or medical investigators into strange or curious lands all over the world invariably find the inhabitants have some disease or pest stealthily or openly making yearly inroads. The laity is astonished at these findings, seeing the savage leads what they call a "natural" life, without ony of the many curses which civilization brings. They forget that natural does not mean entirely healthy. It may damage a man mentally and physically, or the natural conditions may act against human life, as in the tse-tse fly, still unconquered in Lake Pleasant in South Africa, and which evicts man from home and land quicker than any European landlord.

I refer just now to the rat-borne plague which almost seems a natural condition of foreign or isolated seaports. Warnings, appeals, are made by health officers, who, in addition to their manifold duties, cannot be rat catchers also. A warning comes from Newcastle, New South Wales, that the rat-ridden condition is highly dangerous, especially because a serious outbreak of plague is reported from the Asiatic East, which might extend to Australia. "So far, nothing has been done," except by the rats!

They, of course, are men imported, but like the rabbits and dogs in Australia, have borne a natural and highly worrying condition. When advising patients to live as near to nature as possible, it should be inquired on what conditions she permits man to live, and what she gives him to fight.—[New York Medical Journal.

Tempus Fugit.

One of the terrible things in life is the speed with which time flies, compared to the way it dragged along when you were a child. To the grown man, life is just one income tax installment today and another tomorrow. Yet he can recall the time 'way back yonder when he sent to the mail order house for a new catcher's mitt and the weary weeks and months he put in waiting for it to arrive. The actual time between the mailing of the order and the receipt of the mitt was three days.—[Kansas City Star.

BARON TAUCHNITZ.

Publisher Was on Friendly Terms With English Writers.

The recent death in Berlin of the second Baron Tauchnitz, head of the German publishing house of that name founded by his father in 1837, will recall to many Americans the pleasant hours they spent while abroad reading the excellent editions of English authors issued by the famous Leipzig concern. It is interesting to note that the relations between barons, particularly the father and the English and American writers whose works they printed, were most friendly, thanks to the scrupulous honesty and fairness of the German publisher who refused to take advantage of the international copyright situation.

In a letter to him in 1865 Carlyle said to the elder Tauchnitz: "No transaction could be handsomer on your part, and you may believe me I am very sensible of it." Dickens wrote him in regard to "Dombey and Son," when nine other novels of his had already been published by Tauchnitz: "I am quite at a loss how to answer your question, as I really do not know what it would be fair and reasonable to require from you. But I have every reason to rely upon your honorable intentions, and if you will do me the favor to state your own proposal, I have little doubt that I shall be willing to assent to it." And later Dickens wrote: "I cannot consent to name the sum you shall pay for 'Great Expectations.' I have too great a regard for you and too high a sense of your honorable dealing to wish to depart from the custom we have always observed. Whatever price you put upon it will satisfy me. You have always proposed the terms yourself on former occasions and I entreat you to do so now."

Longfellow corresponded with the Baron. In one of his letters he states: "I hope that the 'Tales of the Wayside Inn' may be as successful in Germany as you anticipate, and I am sure that in your 'Collection' it appears under the most favorable auspices . . .

With many thanks for your letter and handsome remittance for copyright." Said Stevenson in 1884: "I am pleased indeed to appear in your splendid 'Collection,' and thus to rise a grade in the hierarchy of my art."

It was about four years after establishing his business that the first Baron Tauchnitz conceived the idea of publishing novels and other English works for continental circulation, and thereafter for fifty years the "Tauchnitz Edition" was the only authorized collection of literature published outside the country of its origin in its own language. The first volume, issued in August, 1841, was Lord Lytton's "Pelham;" the next, "Pickwick Papers;" the third, "Eugene Aram," and the fourth, Fenimore Cooper's "The Spy." In 1860 the catalogue contained 500 numbers; in 1869, 1000; twelve years later, 2000, and at the opening of the war in 1914 about 4500. Most of the books were novels, but there were also dictionaries, histories, poetry, essays and works of travels and biography. No. 1000 was an edition of the New Testament with notes showing the differences in the various versions.—[New York Times.

ANCIENT CUSTOMS RETAINED IN JERSEY.

Some curious legal survivals still linger on the island of Jersey. If any inhabitant of the island thinks his property is being encroached upon or his rights are infringed he may raise the "clamour." Kneeling on the ground in the presence of two witnesses he cries. "Haro! Haro! Haro! a l'aide, mon prince; on me fait tort!" and then he repeats the Lord's Prayer in French.

Thereupon all proceedings are immediately stopped and the case has to be heard in the Royal Court. If, for instance, the controversy concerns a piece of land on which a building is being erected not another brick may be laid until the court has issued its decision.

It was formerly believed that the cry of "Haro!" was a contraction of "Ha-Rollo" and that the appeal of the aggrieved person was, therefore, to the ghost of Rollo, the first Duke of Normandy. Recent research, however, has proved that the custom was in common use before the invasion by Rollo and his Northmen and the word itself is now supposed to be derived from the Frankish verb "aran" to shout. It is, therefore, nearly akin to our "hurrah!"—[Manchester Guardian.

WOULD SELL "MAILED FIST."

The mailed fist of the German ex-Emperor is offered for sale in Berlin.

The ex-Empress Augusta having heard her husband mentioning the "mailed fist" and the "shining armor" repeatedly in his famous speeches which enlightened the whole world, made up her mind to make Willie an extraordinary birthday present. She gave an order to a famous English silversmith to make an image of that "mailed fist" of solid silver.

The fist arrived in good time and Augusta placed it on the breakfast table of the Kaiser. It was expedited somewhat speedily into the corner by the receiver, who for some reason did not seem to be pleased with the present. From here it was picked up quietly by the Empress and sold later to a man who is in possession of it today. Since he is a good patriot—and a business man—he is trying to sell it, preferably to an American.—[New York Sun.

How Much?

"As soon as I found there was a possibility of dishonest profit being made in the position, I got out of it," said a business man.

"Yes, go on and finish the sentence," returned the reporter.

"I have. I said I got out of it."

"Yes, yes; but my business is to discover what you got out of it."—[Houston Post.

HEART DISEASE.

Physician Says It Is Not So Common as Supposed.

That a great many people suffer anxiety on account of supposed diseases of their hearts is very certain. That the current statistics of heart disease are exceedingly unreliable is also most probable. They are founded on single signs and symptoms which have been detected, and the meaning of which has often not been understood.

In view of this, great public importance attaches to a statement made by Sir James Mackenzie in the Lancet as the result of his extended research work at the new St. Andrew's clinic. It is:

"To begin with, to be able to undertake an inquiry into prognosis, it is necessary to have a knowledge of the symptoms of heart failure; and so far very little has been done to discover what these are, for a great many signs which have no relation to heart failure have been mistaken for signs which gave that knowledge. An investigation into this subject has revealed the fact that no physical sign or peculiarity of the heart itself can ever give the information as to its functional efficiency, so that one can say that no abnormal sign is of itself a basis for prognosis.

"This statement of fact should be widely known so that alarming forecast of dissolution and also doubtful or mysterious suggestions of evil to come may so far as possible be avoided. The truth is that until we know more of the manner in which symptoms are produced we cannot afford interpretations which may have been put on them. Disease of the heart itself is not common, but frequent—in spite of statistics to the contrary. Until we know on what evidence these statistics have been produced we should refuse to accept them.

"This is not to say that the heart does not suffer in various general conditions of infection or exhaustion. It assuredly does. But if we forget the general condition we see only an effect and shut our eyes to the cause. This is one of the basal reasons why the future of health in this country depends on the insight and opportunities of the general practitioner."—[London Times.

FIRST LOCOMOTIVE EXHIBITION RUN.

Seldom has the inventive genius of mankind had better opportunity to display her achievements in contrasting array than when, with hundreds of men, women and children as onlookers, the DeWitt Clinton, the first locomotive ever to run in this State, with her train of three tiny coaches, made a run of a mile from from Ninety-sixth street and the Hudson River to One Hundred and Sixteenth street and return, carrying as passengers a number of girls and men arrayed in the costumes of 1831, the year she made her first journey.

Alongside of her ran a modern locomotive built in 1916, while out on the river passed modern steamers and at anchor lay two of the latest types of Navy destroyers. And, as if to make the contrast stronger, overhead flew a huge seaplane, measuring in its wingspread and boat length larger dimensions by far than that of the tiny railroad train below.

The occasion for this display was the official starting of the earliest railroad train of New York State to Chicago, where it will be placed on exhibition at the Pageant of Progress to be held in that city from July 30 to August 14.—[Brooklyn Eagle.

PROBLEMS OF ANTS.

It has been found that the population of an ant hill has solved many complicated mining problems. Thousands of ants working instinctively perform miraculous engineering feats with amazing efficiency and without profiteering. Each ant finds its own work and the team work when big problems must be solved is surprisingly efficient. When one shift of workers tires or must stop for food or rest, its place is taken by other workers equally skilful so that not a moment is lost. When an ant becomes covered with dirt, others immediately clean it by washing and brushing. During their mining operations in digging holes and removing stones an ant is often injured, whereupon others rush to its assistance and carry it to a quieter gallery where first-aid may be administered. The resourcefulness of these little engineers has been found to anticipate many of our recent efficiency methods.—[Toronto World.

Buy Dessert at Fruit Stands.

People are eating fruit this year as never before, a condition which the police have recognized by the renewed enforcement of an old city ordinance requiring the provision of receptacles for fruit skins eaten by purchasers before the stands.

It was further revealed that the most popular fruit eaten by the dessert watchers was the orange. The reason given was the published announcement recently of a certain doctor that oranges contain water soluble, antineuritic vitamines in high degree.—[New York Sun.

Keeps Tab on Pet Dogs' Diet.

Butcher shops on Ninth avenue in the vicinity of Fifty-fourth street have a specialized trade which includes that of furnishing meat to pets. There are many chorus girls in the neighborhood and all of them have their cats and dogs.

"I've got special books to show what the beasts like," said the butcher. "These women come in, or telephone, and says they want some more meat for 'Cutie' or 'Taffie,' or whatever the beast's name is. I haffta know what kind he likes. If I don't they get sore."—[New York Sun.

PAY TEN-CENT FINE.

Motorists who have been out through New Jersey on Sundays report getting arrested by motorcycle cops on a road just outside of Hackensack. But they add to this commonplace report the announcement that they were glad to pay the fines.

"We were running at a fair rate of speed," said the automobilist, who was fat and jolly, "when I jammed on the brakes just in time to avoid hitting a small boy in a policeman's suit. He said we were speeding and the fine was 10 cents. It seems he was saving up for a bicycle. So he stood in the middle of the road and stopped the cars. He said most of them came through, but his job was dangerous, because some folks pulled him in the car and gave him a spanking."—[New York Sun.

INDIANS WOULD REGAIN LANDS.

Million and Half Acres in Texas Involved.

Sent to be Filed in United States Supreme Court.

Cherokees to Cite Old Treaty With Houston.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AUSTIN (Tex.) Aug. 6.—According to information received by the late Attorney-General, the suit of Cherokee Indians for the recovery of all the land embraced in two counties and parts of three other counties, in the northeastern part of this State will be filed in the Supreme Court of the United States on November 14. The fact that the disputed territory is now thickly populated, divided into well-improved farms, and dotted with thriving towns and villages, makes the proposed suit one of importance. A copy of the proposed petition in the case has been served on the Governor and Attorney-General by Attorney George W. Fields of Oklahoma City. The claim is based on lands ceded the Indians by the Republic of Texas, and included in the bill is a copy of old treaties, excerpts from Texas historians, to the effect that the Indians were given lands and then deprived of them, and a copy of an opinion by Atty.-Gen. G. W. Terrell addressed to Sam Houston, President of the Republic of Texas, dated Sept. 10, 1841, in effect, recognizing the claims of the Cherokees and holding their land not subject to settlement by colonists.

CLAIM SEPARATE NATION.

Under the rules of the Supreme Court of the United States only a sovereign State or a foreign country can file an original proceeding in that tribunal. In this instance the Cherokees set forth that they are a separate nation. They describe themselves as a civilized nation banded with the Shawnees, Delawares, Kickapoos, Quapoos, Choctaws, Boluxes, Jawanies, Alabamas, Cochaties, Caddos of the Neches, Tahovcattakes and Unatuquous.

Territory claimed by the Indians is described as "being all the lands in Texas lying north of the San Antonio Road and the Neches River, and west of the Angelina and Sabine Rivers," approximately 1,500,000 acres.

SETTLED LANDS IN 1822.

It is recited in the bill that the Indian nation, settled, on the East Texas lands in 1822, when Texas was part of Mexico; that they continued to occupy the lands and that on Nov. 13, 1835, after Texas had declared her independence of Mexico, a treaty was signed with the Indian nation confirming title to the lands, this being to prevent the Indians from becoming an ally of Mexico. This and other treaties are included in the bill, also references to Yoakum's history of Texas, Starr's history of the Texas Cherokees, the Cherokee Expulsion from Texas, by John H. Reagan, volumes of the Texas Historical Association and Bancroft's History References to the Cherokees, all to show that the Indians owned the lands and were driven out of Texas. Thomas Jefferson is quoted as always having upheld the rights of Indians as a nation to their lands.

FIFTY SHIPS IS QUOTA FOR PONTOON BRIDGE.

DRAW WOULD PASS WATER TRAFFIC THROUGH PROPOSED MAKESHIFT AT YONKERS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The significance of the bill introduced into the United States Senate to authorize the construction of a pontoon bridge across the Hudson is explained by George A. Post, president of the Hudson Bridge Corporation and originator of the project.

"The idea," said Mr. Post, "was originally conceived by W. K. Welch, chief engineer of the Palisades Interstate Park Commission, when he heard that the wooden hulls built by the Shipping Board were a dead weight on the hands of the government. It occurred to him that those hulls might be utilized to construct a temporary vehicular and foot bridge across the Hudson from Yonkers to a point near Alpine, N. J."

Fifty ships would be employed in the construction of the bridge, which will be 5000 feet long. The type of ship to be used is known as the Ferris wooden cargo ship, 263 feet long, 45 feet, 2 inches beam, and 26½ feet draught. The government has 180 of these hulls, which Chairman Lasker of the Shipping Board has said must be sold, given away or sunk.

The proposed bridge would cost about $2,000,000. At first it would have two roadways, each ten feet wide, with additional space for pedestrians. If traffic warrants extension additional roadways might be built until the entire 263 feet, fore and aft dimensions of the pontoons are covered. The ships would be anchored by screw piles. In the center a drawbridge, or jackknife device would be placed to permit the passage of river craft. The average depth of water at the location of the bridge is about forty feet, with a tidal rise of four feet to six and one-half feet, and the current has an average speed of three to four miles an hour.

Mr. Post, who is president of the Hudson Bridge Corporation, said the plans had been approved as feasible by Gustav Lindenthal, chief engineer of that corporation. If Congress passes the bill, Mr. Post added, construction will soon be commenced.

DENOUNCED THE FLAG; JAILED FOR TEN DAYS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—For uttering a denouncement against the law and against the United States, while in a fit of temper, William Ryceswich, an apartment-house owner of 131 Eckford street, was sentenced to serve ten days in the City Prison by Magistrate O'Neill, sitting in the Williamsburg court. Ryceswich was placed under arrest by Patrolman Thomas Schaffer, one of his tenants, who charged that in the course of an argument with his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Schaffer, over the right of the landlord to remove furniture from a bin in the cellar, Ryceswich was heard to say, "To hell with the law and to hell with this country."

Not satisfied with saying it once, Ryceswich repeated his denouncement, Officer Schaffer testified. Ryceswich, it was brought out, has lived in this country for twenty years and has never taken out citizenship papers.

CURFEW FOR FRAT BOYS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—According to an order signed by Justice Adolph A. Hoehling, in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, festivities, celebrations and all other hilarity at the fraternity house of the Gamma Eta Chapter of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity of the George Washington University, in the fashionable residential section of Washington, must cease hereafter promptly at 11:30 p.m. and not begin again until after 8 o'clock in the morning.

In establishing a curfew regulation the court specifically prohibits the use of profane and indecent language, loud and boisterous talking, unnecessary noises by jazz or other instruments and the honking of automobile horns and the use of the cut-out on machines after the hour mentioned.

Complaint was made by Mrs. Alexandra McDonald Lee, who lives next door to the college boys, that she and her family were constantly annoyed by what are generally termed "rough-house" performances in the fraternity house.

The court also banned the unnecessary use of electric lights, which Mrs. Lee claimed shone in her windows. Dances must be confined within the hours specified.

Deputy Sheriffs Fight a Battle With Gamblers.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—Deputy sheriffs yesterday fought a battle with gamblers, touts and racetrack followers after they had raided the Palatine (Ill.) racetrack, arrested seven men for book-making and seized several thousand dollars in cash. The encounter was witnessed by 5000 persons, who had gathered at the track to witness three trotting races and make bets on them.

The attack upon the deputies was made to take from them the money they had seized and not to release the prisoners. Nearly 100 gamblers and touts joined in it and the fifteen deputies, led by Deputy Sheriff Otto Gneuwich had to fight their way through the crowd, driving back the men, who made frantic efforts to grasp the money, which had been seized. None of the money was lost.

RUSSIANS MODIFY ELECTIONS LAW.

VLADIVISTOK MAKES CHANGES; COMMUNISTS' VOTES ARE BARRED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 2. — The Vladivostok government has adopted modifications of the election law introduced by the Kerensky government.

The stipulations include:

(1.) No Communists are permitted to vote.

(2.) No persons sympathizing with Communism may vote.

(3.) Members of the National Assembly will be obliged to give a written declaration that they do not belong to the Communist party and that they will not assist the Communists.

(4.) Besides Communists no anarchists and members of the "Left Social Revolutionary Internationalist Party" may vote.

The liberal press organs strongly protest against these modifications, demanding that they be abolished, that the population be permitted to vote freely and that the deputies to the National Assembly be given freedom of speech.

BOSTON ACQUIRES HISTORIC SPOT.

DORCHESTER SCOTT ESTATE TO BE USED AS PARK; SITE OF FIRST FREE SCHOOL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—Another spot closely associated with the early history of the Massachusetts Bay Colony has been acquired by the city of Boston for park purposes. It is the Scott estate in Dorchester, where was erected what is said to have been the first free school.

On the plot of ground which marks the intersection of East Cottage, Pleasant and Pond streets, Dorchester residents of 150 years ago held their town meetings. Nearby, according to records, some of the first colonists in this vicinity pitched their tents after landing, at what is now known as Savin Hill Beach. Later settlers deposited their valuables on the lot each night, leaving them under protection of an armed colonial soldiers, and returning for them early the next day.

QUESTION OF OPIUM BOTHERS JAPANESE.

EASTERN NATION WILL SUFFER FROM LACK OF DRUG CONTROL IN KWANTUNG.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

TOKIO, June 29.—(Delayed in Transmission.) The Japan League of Nations Association yesterday adopted a resolution that the opium question claims serious attention not only from the standpoint of humanity, but also from an international point of view. The difficulty requires not only international cooperation for its solution, but necessitates positive steps being taken by the Japanese Empire, which is destined to suffer most seriously from the malcontrol of opium in Kwantung Province.

Concerning the labor question another resolution said: "The government should be encouraged to enact labor laws based on the agreements passed by the Washington labor conference with due regard to the spirit of international cooperation underlying those agreements."

CONVICTS TO MAKE THEIR OWN CLOTHES.

WASHINGTON TO DISCONTINUE JUTE MILLS AND OPEN UP TAILOR SHOPS.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

OLYMPIA, July 30.—Washington has decided to discontinue operation of the jute mill in the State penitentiary at Walla Walla, Wash., and to turn the prisoners to making clothes for the inmates of State institutions.

For thirty-one years the jute mill, the horror of the convicts, has been manufacturing sacks for grain. The mill never made money, and in the last ten years lost almost a million dollars, according to State officials.

"As a reformative and regenerative influence, the jute mill is an absolute failure, and as a financial investment, it has been expensive to taxpayers," E. L. McArdle, State Director of Efficiency, said recently. "It operated in competition with labor in India, the poorest paid in the world."

POLISH STUDENTS GET A MEAL A DAY.

FIFTEEN THOUSAND FED BY AMERICAN RELIEF BODY AT UNIVERSITIES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WARSAW, July 18.—Fifteen thousand university students in the main educational centers of Warsaw, Lemberg, Cracow, Lublin, Posen and Vilna are being fed one meal a day by the American Relief Administration of the European children's fund this summer. Warsaw has five kitchens devoted to serving food to 3264 students, the other towns having smaller numbers.

The Polish Ministry of Approvisation has been assisting in this work, having furnished the American relief workers with 180,000 pounds of potatoes at 50 per cent below market price. Government authorities of Posen made an out and out gift of 20,000 pounds of potatoes to be used locally in the student feeding.

The students benefitting by this special provision of the A.R.A. are all over 17 years old, the students paying the nominal price of ten marks to assist in covering the rents, service and supplementary foodstuffs purchased locally. At the present rate of exchange ten marks is about one-half of an American cent in value.

In addition to this task, the A.R.A. is feeding more than 1,300,000 children in Poland up to the age of 17 years.

START INVESTIGATION OF COUNT KAROLYI.

HUNGARIAN PREMIER HOLDING QUIZ ON TREASON AND OTHER CHARGES.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

BUDAPEST, July 21.—Count Bethlen, the Hungarian Premier, has set in motion an investigation of the various acts of which Count Michael Karolyi, "the grand old man of Hungary," now an exile from his native land, stands accused. These include the allegation of high treason made before the National Assembly by Prince Louis Windischgraetz in connection with the organization of the Hungarian revolution.

Several members of the Independence party are involved in the same accusation which is based partly upon the text of memorandums that Karolyi is declared to have addressed to the Entente governments during the war.

Prince Windischgraetz cites Clemenceau's replies to interpellations in the Chamber of Deputies, in which the French Premier said he had proof that Karolyi entertained close relations with the soviets. From all the documents and evidence which Windischgraetz has handed over to Premier Bethlen, he deduces that Karolyi volunteered to Entente governments to start a revolution in Hungary and that he conspired to that end with revolutionary elements in different countries.

MINISTERIAL SUPPORT FOR CHURCH TOLD.

TOTAL FOR 1920 WAS $24,988,323, ACCORDING TO SURVEY JUST MADE PUBLIC.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The total ministerial support of the Methodist Episcopal Church for 1920 was $24,988,323, according to a survey made public today by Dr. C. M. Barton of the division of appropriations of the Methodist committee on conservation and advance. Of this amount, pastors' salaries, including house rent, were $21,944,613; the district superintendents' salaries, $1,369,221; bishops' salaries, $314,080, and for conference claimants or for preachers' pensions, $1,360,409.

For building and improvements, the church spent $10,655,179; and on all indebtedness, $4,636,796; and for all current expenses, $11,210,835, a total of $51,481,133.

Centenary and other apportioned benevolences for the church were $16,089,675; woman's missionary societies and childrens' day funds, $3,073,672, a total of $19,163,344.

Dr. Barton said that this gives a total disbursement for the Methodist Episcopal Church for the above purposes in 1920 of $70,644,480.

WASHINGTON PAYING BONUS TO SOLDIERS.

EACH EX-SERVICE MAN TO RECEIVE $15 FOR EVERY MONTH IN ARMY.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

OLYMPIA (Wash.) Aug. 2.—Payments of the cash bonus voted by Washington for the World War veterans from this State will be completed some time in September, it is believed.

Each Washington resident who served in the Army, Navy or Marine Corps is being paid $15 for each month of service. Already more than $7,000,000 has been paid out and there is approximately $3,000,000 left to pay.

Approximately 30,000 claimants have been paid to date, and additional payments are being made at the rate of 430 a day. Thus far, 56,000 former soldiers, sailors and marines have filed claims for the bonus.

Originally the people voted $11,000,000 for the bonus, but it is now believed the sum will not be sufficient, and State officials are trying to devise some way to raise the additional money, so that no veteran will be required to wait until the Legislature meets again in the fall 1922.

SUGAR CROP OF RUSSIA MENACED.

Plague of Caterpillars Fresh Worry and Menace to the Muchly-Harassed Reds.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIGA, Aug. 6.—A plague of caterpillars has appeared in the Chernigof district, the center of the sugar beet district of Russia. Unless large supplies of insect fighting apparatus and poison are received within the next two weeks the whole sugar crop of Russia may be destroyed.

Writing in Economic Life, the official journal of the soviet government, K. Taranenko gives a vivid picture of the destruction wrought by the insects in the sugar beet belt and calls upon the national commissariat of Agriculture to come to the rescue.

Contributing to the seriousness of the present situation is the shortage of insecticides, he writes, and he goes on to relate how in response to a requisition for 2,700,000 pounds of chlorides and 720,000 pounds of paris green made by the national sugar commissariat the sugar industry only received a scant 36,000 pounds which have made no impression on the plague.

"Unless immediate steps are taken all agricultural districts are going to be affected by this blight of caterpillars.

"Already about 90,000 acres of crops have been destroyed and in one section the caterpillars are inches deep and cover the ground.

"That is not all. It is also expected that our other crops will be eaten by these insects. In the eastern districts the grain crops are in serious danger."

M. Taranenko continues to relate how during the last year the soviet meteorologists predicted a drought. In spite of this no heed was taken to the warning, he states, and prophecies made by agricultural experts that the drought would be accompanied by insect plagues fell on deaf ears.

"We must not forget that conditions have been bad during the last three years, that there has been an insufficient supply of fertilizer and that the soil is almost exhausted," he continues.

"Because of this we have on our own responsibility ordered large supplies of insecticides which must reach us within the next two weeks if we are to save even a small portion of the crop.

"All entomologists should be mobilized and sent to the sugar beet districts. At present there are only three men fighting the plague."

CREDITS ODD REMEDY WITH CURE OF GIRL.

SMOKING OF CHILD'S FOOT OVER LAMB'S WOOL SAID TO HAVE CURED LOCKJAW.

COLUMBUS (O.) Aug. 6.—That smoking the child's foot over lamb's wool, a remedy which has been handed down in her family for the past seventy-five years, was what cured Nina Helen Arnold of lockjaw is the belief of Mrs. Mary E. Sprague. Accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. Sprague went to the Arnold home when she read of the child's illness, and told Mrs. Arnold of the remedy.

Willing to try anything in an effort to better her daughter's condition, Mrs. Arnold consented to the employment of this method. A fire was built of wood in a bucket, and when only coals remained lamb's wool was placed over the coals to smoke. The little girl's foot was then placed over the smoking wool and the bucket wrapped in a blanket to prevent escape of the smoke. A 45-minute period was consumed in the treatment, which was repeated twice later in the day by Mrs. Arnold herself.

She is at a loss to explain just what cured her daughter as so many methods were tried, but believes the smoking of her wounded foot helped. Mrs. Sprague declares she has cured cases of lockjaw twice previously by this method, both of which were girls who have since grown to womanhood. Both cases were severe ones which had been given up by attending physicians when Mrs. Sprague's remedy was employed.

Jilted Woman Slays Lawyer Say the Police.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Miss Olivia M. Stone, a Cincinnati nurse, waited yesterday at a street corner in Brooklyn for Ellis G. Kinkaid, an attorney, and killed him with a revolver, according to the police.

It was the story of the revenge of a jilted woman. She had followed Kinkaid from his original home at Covington, Ky., to Cincinnati and and thence to New York. Her claim on the lawyer's affections was based upon her assertion that he had taken her to Atlantic City in May, 1918, where they had lived as man and wife.

FRENCH CONTRIBUTE AMERICAN GOODS.

STOCKS PURCHASED FROM THE ARMY TO BE GIVEN RUSS FAMINE STRICKEN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Aug. 6. — France's contribution to the Russian famine relief will consist largely of the huge stocks purchased from the American Army, which include thousands of tons of canned goods, such as corned beef, corn, tomatoes, fruits, beans and butter, and every conceivable form of preserved foodstuffs.

Owing to the difference in French taste, it is almost impossible to sell American canned goods, and as a result thousands of cases of food have been ruined by exposure to sun and rain. Red Cross supplies of medicines and surgical instruments for fighting disease will be sent to Russia.

O. D. uniforms and other army clothing and shoes, which were bought by the French from the Americans will be sent to clothe the half-clad Russians.

Russia is expected to pay for the supplies in concessions when a stable government is established.

TO ADVERTISE BONDS.

Supervisors Act to Sell Securities of Several School Districts.

Some time ago the Board of Supervisors asked for bids on school bonds and no bids were received. The apparent reason was that the bonds had to be sold at par with accrued interest. Since then the market has improved and there is a demand for bonds.

The Supervisors ordered yesterday the following bonds advertised:

Citrus Union High School, $40,000 at 5½ per cent; Norwalk school district, $40,000, 6 per cent; Manhattan school district, $36,000, 6 per cent; Pomona high school district, $425,000, 5½ per cent; Burbank, $160,000, 5½ per cent.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The bright days of summer are, paradoxically enough, usually considered the darkest of the year by the average business man, who is impatient with the manner in which his cherished business deals drag along, apparently never approaching the desired consummation. Everybody has gone fishing, and there is no getting down to brass tacks on any proposition. That is the complaint most frequently heard during July and August. With the approach of September, in the usual course of events, things begin to look up a bit, and the early fall months sees the resumption of activity on a normal scale.

Whether this summer is the exception that proves the rule or not, the old complaint that "there is nothing doing" is heard much less frequently than it was last year. Realtors, who are usually loath to confess that business is good, are much less vociferous this summer in their denunciations of the vacation period; some of them even have the temerity to admit that business is pretty good. At any rate, property is moving, good deals are pending, and the condition of business in general is such as to forbid even the most chronic pessimist from getting altogether too lachrymose over the situation of things in general.

Admissions that "business is pretty good," however reluctantly given, are borne out by the activity in the County Recorder's office, and in the offices of the building department. The dry statistics compiled by these two organizations are of interest in that they show that people continue to buy property, and to build upon it, and upon this activity the business of the realtor is founded.

While the building record for the past month was not exceptional, as far as valuation goes, although it led the pace of the highest July in valuation of any in the history of the city, it was of particular interest in the matter of home building, which showed a distinct gain. More permits for dwellings were issued, as compared with the preceding month, and the percentages of the total was nearly 60 per cent of the total valuation, as compared with 11 per cent of the month preceding.

Despite the fact, however, that the realtors are busy even during the supposedly summer lull, they are preparing for a busier fall and winter season. The autumn and winter months of last year were record breakers in point of the transfer of real estate, but realtors are expecting even greater activity this year. All in all, the banner year in building and realty activity which was confidently prophesied when the present year was yet young, appears now to be assured of fulfillment, and when the trial balance is taken, and the year's books are finally audited, it is apparent that [illegible] will have set for her- [illegible] pace.

Homes Worth Seeing.

With the amount of home building which is going on in the city at the present time, it is evident that there are thousands of people who are vitally interested in this subject. Books on architecture, landscape gardening and interior decoration are probably being studied with more eagerness than ever before. People are on the search for ideas; every man has his dream of the home place, and now he is working out the means for bringing that dream into realization.

Soon there will be vouchsafed to the prospective home builder the opportunity to glean his ideas not from books, but from actual models, for according to those who are engineering the coming Industrial Exposition, now little more than a week away, one of the principal features will be a home exhibit, showing all of the newest labor-saving devices, the late advances in construction methods, modern types of architecture, landscape gardening, electrical devices, and all of the modern adjuncts of the home.

It is an opportunity too good to miss for the man who is planning to build his own home this year, or

HOME FOR LIGHT MANUFACTURERS

Twelve-Story Building to Rise on Wall Street.

Plans Completed and General Contracts Awarded.

Will Represent Investment of Half Million.

Factory space and facilities for light manufacturing in Los Angeles have been lacking since the big industrial development began a few years ago. Factory space for lease has not been available in a number of instances, and a number of manufacturers, intending to locate here, have been forced to postpone action on that account. To meet this situation, a local firm has completed arrangements for the erection of a large building to be devoted exclusively to manufacturing, with all the modern equipment for efficiency that can be found in the most advanced buildings of this type in other industrial cities.

These plans, as announced yesterday, provide for the erection at the northwest corner of Seventh and Wall streets of a twelve-story and basement class A building. Contracts for the erection of the structure are held by the U. S. Construction Company, represented here by J. D. Roberts, and work, it is stated, will be started in the near future. The Klein-Norton Company, wholesale clothiers, will finance the erection of the building, which will represent an investment of about $500,000.

The new building will be of reinforced concrete throughout, with plaster exterior and cast stone ornamentation. All partitions will be of hollow tile, and steel sash, and plate-glass windows will be used extensively on all sides of the upper floors, furnishing a maximum amount of light and ventilation for the industries which will occupy the building.

Special facilities for light manufacturers will be afforded in the equipment. The main lobby, finished in marble, will be located on the Seventh-street side of the building. This lobby will contain two fast passenger elevators. There will be an additional lobby, designed particularly for the handling of freight, on the Wall-street side, and access for the two freight elevators which are included in the plans will be had from this entrance. In addition, a loading dock at the rear of the building will be served by a high-powered elevator which will run to all floors.

HEATING EQUIPMENT.

Aaron Norton, vice-president of the Klein-Norton Company, is also the present of the Federal Automatic Water Heater Company, which will supply the new building with all the necessary appliances for heating and for thermo-storage. These appliances will be made in the local factory of the Federal company. The building will contain a total floor space of about 175,000 square feet, including the full-sized basement, where the boiler rooms and heating appliances will be located. The upper floors will contain no partitions, but the building has been so planned that these floors can later be subdivided. Train & Williams are the architects for the structure.

The construction of this building by the Klein-Norton Company will be regarded as a decided forward step toward relieving the existing congestion in the industrial center of the city. A large number of applications have already been received for space in the new building, according to Mr. Roberts, of the construction company.

OFFICES MOVED.

F. Winstanley, realty broker, has removed his offices from the Citizens' National Bank Building to the Pacific Mutual Building.

SOLD AT AUCTION.

Kemp & Ball report the sale at auction of the two bungalows for W. L. Oge at 1306 and 1312 Orange Drive for $18,150.

To be erected by the Klein-Norton Company at Seventh and Wall streets. Work will be started immediately by the United States Construction Company, which holds the general contracts. Train & Williams are the architects.

COLLEGE BUILDINGS UNDER WAY.

First Units of School of Christianity Now Being Built; Others to Follow.

Work is now under way on the first units of the fine group of buildings to be erected for the California School of Christianity on a five-acre site bounded by Vermont avenue, Monroe, Madison and Marathon streets, just south of the southern branch of the University of California.

Two buildings of the dormitory group are under construction, and one of these, the women's dormitory, will be ready for occupancy early in September. Temporarily the first floor of this building will be used for classrooms and the administrative offices. The other building will be a dormitory for men. These buildings are each 42 by 106 feet, and contain two stories and a basement. The exterior walls are of tapestry brick, with tile roofs. The entire dormitory group, when completed, will consist of five buildings facing on a quadrangle.

At an early date the administration building, which is to face on Vermont avenue, and which will have a frontage of 150 feet, by 210 feet in depth, will be started. This building, in addition to housing the administrative force, will have an assembly room with a seating capacity for 500 people, on the first floor, and the second floor will contain all the necessary recitation and classrooms for the college.

On either side of the administration building, and connected thereto with open cloisters, will be one-story buildings, 40 by 50 feet, for the library and study hall, making a total frontage on Vermont avenue of 270 feet. The chapel will be placed between the dormitory group and the administration building, and will have an auditorium seating 750 people. Other buildings for the president and the faculty will form a part of the college group.

The gift of $400,000 by C. C. Chapman, together with the funds contributed by more than 4000 subscribers, creating a fund of $878,500, has made it possible to erect this fine educational group. Robert H. Orr is the architect.

PICTURE STUDIO.

The Cosmoart Picture Corporation will erect a new picture studio, to cost $20,000, adjoining its present plant at 3700 Temple street.

INDUSTRIAL EXPOSITION OPENS NEXT WEEK.

Commerce Chamber Stages "Greatest Step in Los Angeles Progress," and It's Free to All.

All Los Angeles, all Southern California, and all the strangers within our gates are invited by the world's biggest Chamber of Commerce, comprising over 8200 members, to come, freely and without price, to see what the enterprising and foresighted among the 3500 manufacturers are producing in Los Angeles, and in the metropolitan district stretching from the mountains to the sea and to the Mexican border, have prepared in the way of an Industrial and Trades Exposition, as evidence of progress made, and as earnest of the still greater progress yet to come to the Southland—favored by nature with delightful all-year climate, and through the ingenuity of man turned into a "land of milk and honey," made to blossom as the rose, and to produce sustenance for all the world.

COMING OUT PARTY.

This "coming out party" of Los Angeles as the tenth industrial city of the United States, will last for one entire week, beginning Monday, August 15, at 10 o'clock a.m. and will continue every day from 10 until 2, for the specially invited guests from all over the world, and from 2 until 10 p.m. for all the public, with daily programs of entertainment, and nightly displays of fireworks, and a liberal education in productive arts for all who care to attend.

At 9 o'clock on Monday morning The Times' siren will let its voice be heard in the land, and will be joined by all the other sirens and whistles and bells, in all the factories and buildings so supplied, and even the shipping in the Harbor will screech its joy at the prospect of bountiful cargoes that will result as the lesson of Los Angeles' productive capacity is borne wherever men engage in trade and commerce.

The Governor of the State and the Mayor of the city will head a parade of automobiles at the same hour and when the parade reaches the exposition building at Seventh and

LOMPOC SITE OF BIG INDUSTRY.

Celite Products Company Has 2200-Acre Tract.

Engineers Develop New Ways to Use Diatoms.

Ship Twenty Miles of Freight Cars in 1920.

Recent great enlargement of engineering quarters, laboratories, microscopic and mechanical research laboratories, at their 2200-acre deposits and workings at Lompoc, about 150 miles west and slightly to the northward of Los Angeles, together with the growing importance of the insulating and filtering products of the great white deposits in the hills about the thriving town in one of the most fertile of the little valleys with which Southern California abounds, has directed commercial and financial attention to the operations of the Celite Products Company of California, because of their expansion in the last few years into the multimillion class.

The Celite Products Company, through its two principal commodities, Sil-o-cel and Filter-cel, and the activities of its engineering staff in developing constantly broadening fields for the use of these commodities, has developed a new industry in which Southern California leads the world, and is carrying its fame into many industries where these products are employed to improve or perfect methods or commercial products resulting.

The present invested capital is large—more than $5,000,000—and the annual output of Sil-o-cel and Filter-cel now exceeds $2,000,000, with every prospect that this will be quickly doubled and that within a short time the annual business will be $4,000,000 or more. The company is owned by Duluth capitalists who are reticent about their investments, no stock being for sale; but with ample means at their disposal they are going ahead with plans for making the most out of the richest and purest deposits of "diatoms" so far uncovered, at Lompoc, Cal., in territory tributary to Los Angeles.

"IN THE BEGINNING."

The first forms of life from the time when "the waters covered the deep," were the diatoms, which even now are the first forms of living organism wherever there is water. They are forming constantly in the oceans, on whose beds new deposits are being laid for future ages. They form in rivers, creeks and pools, and even in the eave troughs on the houses they are deposited in the form of films of moss or fungus. The diatoms are invisible to the naked eye, but each is a cell of protoplasm, and when the protoplasm has been discharged the dead cell remains a microscopic mite of silica of indestructible hardness, which, deposited in masses forms the diatomaceous earth that is the basis of the industry of the Celite Products Company of Los Angeles.

GEOLOGICALLY.

The United States Geological Survey gives the following general information on diatomaceous earth.

"Diatomaceous earth, called also infusorial earth and kieselguhr, is a light earthy material, which from some sources is loose and powdery and from others is more or less firmly coherent. It often resembles chalk or clay in its physical properties, but can be distinguished from chalk at once by the fact that it does not effervesce when treated with acids. It is generally white or gray in color, but may be brown or even black when mixed with much organic matter.

"Diatomaceous earth is made up of remains of minute aquatic plants and is composed, chemically, of hydrous silica. Owing to its porosity it has great absorptive powers and high insulating efficiency and is an effective filter. The hardness, the minute size and the shape of its grains make it an excellent metal polishing agent.

Heretofore, diatomaceous earth or even next year. An exhibit of this kind, complete in every detail, has an educational value, and is well worth seeing, not only once, but several times.

FACT AND COMMENT.

Safety of Investment.

When the prospective home builder has completed his survey of this exhibit, it will be worth his while to make as careful a study as his time will permit of the industrial exhibits, for which the show is being held, primarily. It will be an eye-opener for many people who have heretofore had no adequate conception of what the city is accomplishing along this line. The oft-repeated statement that the value of Los Angeles' manufactured products is running over $800,000,000 per year probably makes little impression on the average man; but the sight at first hand of these Los Angeles-made goods in the process of manufacture, even on the limited scale which is necessitated by the lack of floor space, should create an impression not soon to be forgotten.

Moreover, if there exists any doubt in the mind of the man who wants to build his own home here as to the advisability of so doing, a few hours spent at the exposition will do more to relieve that uncertainty of mind than could any amount of discussion with architects, builders and business acquaintances. With the resources of the city displayed in concrete form, and with the assurance that these resources are rapidly increasing in volume and wealth, insuring beyond a doubt the greater Los Angeles, any lingering question as to the safety of investment in a home place should soon be dispelled.

BECOMES SALES MANAGER.

A. H. Wilkins has been appointed general sales and advertising manager of the Janss Investment Company. Mr. Wilkins has been associated with the advertising department of the company for the past ten years. Up to the present time the direction of sales has been under the personal supervision of Harold Janss, but the increase of subdivision work undertaken by the company, and the heavy sales at the company's tracts have necessitated the new appointment.

SEVENTH-STREET SALE.

Richard M. Bishop, representing the owners, R. P. Bishop, W. F. Bishop and J. O. Koepfli, reports the sale of the southeast corner of Seventh and Beacon streets to W. W. Paden. The property, improved with a one-story building, containing seven stores, is 150 by 140 feet, to an alley in the rear. The new owner was represented in the transaction by H. K. Huntsberger and E. B. Giffen.

LOS ANGELES TO AFRICA.

Export Official Tells Rotarians of Great Gains in Foreign Trade.

In an address on the foreign trade possibilities of Los Angeles, before the Rotary Club at the Alexandria Hotel last week, Clarence H. Matson, head of the trade extension bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, made some interesting points in regard to the new conceptions of Los Angeles' manifest destiny as a leading industrial and shipping center of the Pacific Coast. Mr. Matson said, in part:

"It may surprise you to find that certain ships that moor at Los Angeles also drop anchor at Durban and Cape Town in South Africa, yet such is the fact. This line, Osaka Chosen Kaisha, maintains a monthly around-the-world service. Its ships go from Los Angeles to Puget Sound and thence home across the Pacific to Yokohama and Kobe. Then they make various Chinese ports, then down to Singapore, west to Colombo, and across the Indian Ocean to South Africa. Thus it is possible to load Los Angeles merchandise on a ship at our docks, and it will be delivered from the same ship on the docks at Capt Town.

"But after calling at Cape Town, this Japanese ship takes its course westward again, crossing the South Atlantic to Buenos Aires, and after calling at the great Argentine city it turns northward to Santos, Rio de Janeiro and other ports in Brazil, then up to Havana and to New Orleans, thence south again through the Panama Canal and up the Pacific Coast to Los Angeles once more.

"It is quite possible that it would be better from a standpoint of time not to use this line for a shipment to South Africa, but to ship the merchandise through the Panama Canal to New York by any one of a half dozen lines that afford frequent sailings from here to the eastern metropolis, and then transship to South Africa. But the point is that our harbor facilities and modern steamship transportation have brought South Africa to our doors.

"It seems a far cry from Los Angeles to Bethlehem, but if you visit Bethlehem in about ninety days you will probably find Los Angeles-made abalone jewelry on sale in the bazaars around Bethlehem's market place.

"Nor is this the only Los Angeles product used in Judea. About four months ago the president of the Palestine Bee Keepers' Association visited my department. He had been sent to America to study bee culture, which brought him to California, and—of course—to Los Angeles, although he had never heard of this city before. And he found made here the things he wanted in his business back home, and so he bought hives and other supplies. These can be put on a Pacific Mail steamer in Los Angeles, taken off at Alexandria, Egypt, and these transshipped to Jaffa, Palestine. And that is why bees on the hills of Judea today are packing their honey in Los Angeles-made hives.

OIL WELL SUPPLIES.

"Oil-well machinery is an important Los Angeles export. In the last few months we have sent large shipments to Colombia and Ecuador in South America; and to the Dutch East Indies, Straits Settlements, and British India, on the other side of the world, and to our immediate neighbor, Mexico, and some to South Africa.

"It is not necessarily the large exporter that makes foreign trade, however. The little fellow can do it as well as the big concern. We are selling from 150 to 200 different commodities to Mexico every month, although none of them very large in volume. This indicates that a considerable number of Los Angeles houses are doing business with Mexico.

"Petroleum products and cotton are our largest items of export—gasoline to New Zealand and Australia, kerosene to the countries of the Orient, and raw cotton to Japan and Liverpool.

GROWING EXPORTS.

"Time was, however, when Los Angeles was almost entirely an import port. We shipped out almost nothing. Until after the European war broke out we had nothing to export. Steamship men complained that even though they brought cargoes to us, they could get nothing to take away. But in the last four or five years this has changed and in recent times we have exported far more than we have imported.

"Few persons realize how our water-borne commerce has increased—not entirely our foreign trade, for Los Angeles is still comparatively new in that—but in domestic and foreign trade combined. Only a few years ago we had no harbor to speak of—some people do not know we have one now. Yet today the port of Los Angeles is handling more tonnage by 40 per cent than is Seattle, which counts itself one of the world's greatest ports, and within five years I firmly believe that Los Angeles will be the leading port on the Pacific as it is already the largest city in population.

"In two years' time our offshore shipping has increased from six unimportant lines to forty-two services and we are just getting started. What will we have in another five years?

BUILDING UP TRADE.

"A word as to how foreign trade is built up: Perhaps the most important part of Mr. Hoover's Department of Commerce is the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. It is divided into Latin-America, European, Near East, Far East, Russian and other divisions. It has commercial attaches and trade commissiones in all important countries of the world, and it is daily receiving reports from them as well as from 400 to 500 American consular officers. This information is edited and published for the benefit of American business. The bureau publishes little daily pamphlet called Commerce Reports, in which much of this information is disseminated. On the last page of this pamphlet is given what are called trade opportunities. A trade opportunity cites the fact that a merchant in some designated foreign country desires to purchase certain merchandise, but the name of the merchant is not given in the published information. That is reserved only for firms that have filed certain information with the bureau and have been listed on what is known as the Exporters' Index. This is simply to assure the bureau that the firm is American—in other words to protect American business against its foreign competitors. This reserved information can be obtained by any firm applying for it.

Why I Live in Maywood

California.

433 MAYWOOD AVE.
MAYWOOD, CALIF.
August 8th. 1921.

Gentlemen:-

When I first came to California I made my home in Long Beach but soon tired of the inactive life.

Nineteen months ago I moved into our new home on the acre purchased from you and now have 60 healthy fruit trees which will furnish us with plenty of fruit next year. 30 grape vines are loaded with fruit now and over 800 boxes of berries have been marketed so far this year at and average price of .12½ with several weeks of the season ahead of us.

I have corn averaging over seven feet tall grown without irrigation on ground which has already produced a crop of potatoes this year.

Ten does with a registered Flemish Giant Buck have furnished us with all the rabbits for our own use and cleared $80.40 the first six months of this year. We keep an average of about 100 chickens will net us about $2.00 apiece.

We have never had to seek a market, our customers are glad to call at the house and take our s urplus of everything grown.

I trust that this will answer your inquiry as to why I like to live in Maywood.

Yours very truly,

KNOWLEDGE

—the Foundation of
Southern California's Growth

We tell the world
about Los Angeles

Knowledge is a definite force. It knows no "ifs," "buts" nor "ands." It is not hesitant and wavering. Knowledge is as far removed from mere "belief" as rumor is from fact.

It is this definite, unshakable knowledge of Southern California's great natural assets—imparted to thousands of men and women by the educational tours and lectures of Southern California's Excursion Subdividers—that has played so important a part in Los Angeles' steady growth and increasing property values.

Next time you see one of the big busses glide by, remember—it is the modern way of showing and selling real estate, the Los Angeles way. You are assured of courteous, considerate treatment if you are a guest of the excursions of any of the following concerns:

TUNA PRICE-CUT ON NEW PACK.

Fishermen's Strike Settled on Reduced Basis.

Fourteen Packers Resume the Operation of Plants.

Eat Tuna and Save Fifteen Cents on Tin.

The "fish story" that the ultimate consumer will devour with the time-honored and well-known "gusto" distinguishing matters of genuine news interest, is the tale of the settlement of the fishermen's strike on a basis that takes 10 cents to 15 cents off the retail price of every can of albacore, tuna, bluefin, yellowtail and sardines in oil, mustard or tomato sauce, bringing these popular marine foods from the Los Angeles ocean front, back to almost the prewar price.

The industrial side of this story relates to the resumption of work in fourteen of the twenty-seven fish-packing plants spread along the coast line from Long Beach to fishermen's wharf at Los Angeles Harbor, giving remunerative employment, not only to hundreds of fishermen, but to additional factory hands, and bringing a return to prosperity to many who have been stranded during the tedious months of absolute shutdown, while prices and wages have been in controversy.

Two at Long Beach, two at Wilmington, two on Terminal Island, and eight at Fish Harbor, making a total of fourteen, represent the packing plants that will resume operations immediately, leaving the remaining thirteen to oil up their machinery in readiness for later resumption, when the sardines come in.

To the general public it means tuna, bluefin and sardines for 15 cents a tin to 25 cents a tin, in place of the 25 to 40 cents that have ruled for several years. And the packers have taken their losses on the remaining pack of last season, putting the reduced prices into effect at once, instead of waiting for the cheaper fish from the new catch.

The albacore fishermen will now receive $130 per ton for the white-meat albacore, as against $210 per ton paid during and since the war. Similar reductions have been accepted and contracts signed, for the dark-meat bluefin and for the sardines that will later swarm in local waters. All these reductions are already reflected in the prices to the consumers.

While other large and basic industries are coming into the Los Angeles metropolitan district, which includes all these water-front towns, at a rate of speed that robs the fish canning industry of some of the primary importance it enjoyed for many years, it is still a leading industry, and is susceptible of development to much larger proportions in the hands of skillful producers and merchandisers, and B. Houssels, secretary of the Fish Canners' Association, expresses confidence that the resumption of work in the plants means the beginning of a new era of progress for the fishing and fish canning industries as a whole.

Last season's pack is now fairly well cleared out of the warehouses of the packers, says Mr. Houssels, and he adds the cheering conviction that there will be gradual additions to the resuming plants, until, when the raw material for oil, mustard and tomato-sauce sardines is available in the late fall, there will be resumption all along the line.

Sun Drug Pays Large Sum for Hollywood Lease

The substantial growth of Hollywood and northwest Los Angeles has caused the W. Ross Campbell Company to extend their operations to this field. Their latest deal of importance in the Hollywood section, involving a consideration of over $120,000, was the leasing of the ground floor of the two-story brick building at the southeast corner of Hollywood and Cahuenga avenues to the Sun Drug Company, for a long term of years.

The property belongs to the estate of Ida Wilcox Beverage. The ground floor space, 55 by 115 feet, is now occupied by the Security Trust and Savings Bank, Hollywood branch. The bank will move between now and the first of next year into their new building being erected for them across the street. The Sun Drug Company will remodel the building and open up their new branch store there about Jan. 1, 1922.

REFUNDING LAW NOW IN FORCE.

License Fee Paid Out by Realtor Under 1917 Act Will be Returned Soon.

The State law, refunding to California realty brokers and salesmen, the license fee collected under the act of 1917, and which refund was secured for them largely through the efforts of the California Real Estate Association, went into effect the first of this month. The State Real Estate Commissioner, Edwin T. Keiser, will send out these refunds just as soon as the State Department has checked through the list and ascertained to whom the refunds are due. Many of the brokers and salesmen who would receive this refund have followed the lead of leading California realtors in assigning their refund fees to the State Association as an endowment for the official State journal of realtors, California Real Eestate, published at Oakland.

The 1917 law, the first real estate license law in the nation, was held to be unconstitutional on the ground of making certain exemptions, but it had been operating for several months and the fees, collected four years ago, had never been returned to the brokers. Until the State association took this matter up vigorously and with the various lawmakers, there seemed little chance of the bill going through. As an incentive to the newly-founded State magazine, owned and published by the State association, the refund is being made as an endowment quite generally throughout the State, in order to strengthen the work of realty board organization. There are now thirty real estate boards in California, nearly all affiliated with the California Real Estate Association and functioning for the benefit of their respective communities. Each member, also each refund man receives the State journal.

The California Real Estate Convention, at which various national convention, legislative and other State matters will come up, will be held shortly, probably at San Francisco, to determine plans for the State gathering.

California Real Estate Association membership day in which all local boards are invited to participate, is set for Saturday, Oct. 15, 1921, when every board member will endeavor to secure one new member for the State association.

BROADWAY LEASES.

Extensive alterations on the building at the northeast corner of Second and Broadway have been completed, and leases to the total value of $70,000 are reported by R. A. Rowan & Co. as follows: 229 West Second street to Weiss & Weiss for men's furnishings and trunks; 231 West Second street to S. M. Kaufman for a fur store; 140 South Broadway to B. J. Lambross for a candy store; 142 South Broadway to Benjamin Zuckerman for a fruit store; 144 South Broadway to Bary Sweatman for a hat and cap store; 126 South Broadway to Charles Kongos and Peter Costopulos for a shoe store.

MAYWOOD SHOWS SOUTHEAST PACE.

Half-Acre Homesites Close to Many Industries.

Sell Two Millions in the Last Two Years.

Big Concerns Concentrate on Its Borders.

No great city or industrial and commercial center can be made up entirely of palaces, nor of residential districts parked and beautified for the well-to-do or those in more or less easy circumstances; and while attention has been concentrated in the last year or two on the residential developments to the westward—both north and south—progress of equal importance has been apparent to the eastward—from Pasadena to Huntington Beach—and the Laguna Land and Water Company calls attention to the fact that in addition to the taking up of much of the industrial property that had been set aside for factories out of its original 2727 acres of Maywood, there have been sold over $2,000,000 worth of homesites in the residential portion, or at the rate of $1,000,000 a year for modest homes.

Maywood comprises the old De Baker Rancho, just south of Vernon and east of Huntington Park, and under the ownership and development of the Laguna Land and Water Company, incorporated for this especial purpose, sales as noted have been made since May, 1919, when the as yet unincorporated town was first placed on the market, after extensive expenditures in improvements such as the drilling of three artesian wells and the grading of twenty miles of streets.

INDUSTRIAL CENTER.

The 400 acres lying north of the Salt Lake tracks which bisected the original tract, were disposed of to a local syndicate known as the Industrial Center Corporation, for purely factory development, and under the management of W. H. Daum this has been made the scene of one of the most remarkable factory construction activities in the history of American community building.

Fifteen large industrial plants are now in operation on the acres that were barren a few years ago, including the Atlas Fire Brick Company, Commercial Acetylene Company, Killefer Manufacturing Company, Metals Extraction Company, Pacific Coast Brass and Manufacturing Company, Pacific Ready-Cut Homes, Axelson Machine Company, Hercules Founderies, Madsen Iron Works, C. H. Ruth Manufacturing Company, Veal Reed Chair Company, Warman Steel Castings Company, West Coast Glass Company, Western Forge and Manufacturing Castings Company, with the Southern California Iron and Steel Company now busily at work on its new plant in that district.

President Weaver of the Chamber of Commerce has bought a tract for a new plant for his Weaver Roof Company, and sites have also been sold to the Leach-Biltwell Motors Company, Jackson Iron Works and the Western Cooperage Company, all of which concerns propose to erect large manufacturing plants on their sites—some to start this year and all to begin as soon as general and individual conditions warrant the investment.

Eight hundred homes have been built on the Maywood tract within the last two years and building is now going on at a rapid rate. The lots are quarter-acres and half-acres, giving sufficient ground for home gardens, chicken raising or rabbit hutches. That this will become the great home district for the workers in the near-by industries is apparent the section already making fast progress in this direction.

Extension of the yellow car service is understood to be under contemplation and lowering of the red carfare will do much to hasten the building up of this new community. Business districts have been laid out and the tract offices of the Laguna Company are now housed in a handsome two-story store and office building in the center of the tract, on asphalt-paved street, lighted with boulevard lamps, and surrounded with every evidence of keeping the pace set by the other outlying subdivisions.

Attractive Improvement for the Harbor District.

BIG INDUSTRY NEAR LOMPOC.

infusorial earth has been largely used as a fine abrasive in the form of polishing powders and scouring soaps, but of late its uses have been considerably extended. Because of its porous nature it has been used in the manufacture of dynamite as a holder of nitroglycerin, but not recently in the United States. It is used by sugar refiners for filtering or clarifying. Its porosity also renders it a nonconductor of heat and this quality in connection with its lightness has very greatly extended its use as an insulating and packing material for safes, steam-pipes, boilers, metallurgical apparatus, in making insulating brick and as a fireproof building material. In this country it is used in the manufacture of records for talking machines. In Europe, especially in Germany, infusorial earth has found extensive application. It has been used in preparing artificial fertilizers, especially in the absorption of liquid manures; in the manufacture of water glass, of various cements, of glazing for tiles, of artificial stone; as carrier for ultramarine and various pigments, aniline and lisrine colors, in filling paper, and in the preparation of sealing wax, fireworks, gutta percha objects, Swedish matches, solidified bromine, scouring powders, papier mache and many other articles."

THE PLANT.

The Celite Company's principal offices are in the Van Nuys building in Los Angeles, besides which it has fifteen offices and warehouses in the principal American cities from coast to coast. The plant at Lompoc is on a spur of the Coast line of the Southern Pacific Railroad, and embraces 2200 acres or nearly four square miles in the hills near the town. Improvements include ten miles of water mains from local reservoirs, eight miles of telephone lines, twenty miles of high-tension lines for power, sixteen miles of hard roads, several hundred houses built entirely of Celite, for the families of such of the 1000 men employed as wish to live in the hills, the necessary buildings for handling and shipping the bricks cut out of the deposits, and the recent laboratory increases.

In order to replace the old laboratory in which the pioneer development work in connection with these products was done, the Celite Products Company has built a large laboratory which is now being equipped with the most modern apparatus for the determination of thermal conductivity and other uses to which Celite Products are put.

There are, in all, two buildings, the larger containing the library, office and various departments, and the smaller building located a short distance away contains the furnaces, retorts, ovens, motors and such other heavy, heated or moving machinery as would increase the fire hazard or prevent accurate measurements because of vibration.

The personnel is headed by competent engineers and has been divided into five departments, suitably equipped to take care of the work assigned. The technical library will be enlarged to allow the men to make available all technical investigations carried out in other fields.

This organization and equipment is being concentrated on developing the most effective use of the materials, standardizing the methods of application, determining the most economical forms of insulation for different types of equipment and other investigations which will allow the user of Celite products to derive from them their maximum effectiveness.

ENGINEERING.

The salesmanship which has developed this business into one of magnitude, is engineering skill and research. Mechanical, electrical, chemical and other analysts and investigators have found new uses for the insulating, filtration, and other avenues in which the Celite products would get results heretofore impossible, and then it was an easy matter to sell the Celites. This is the reason for making the laboratories the most important part of the plant.

In the steel and foundry furnaces they are now used extensively. They have brought in high-pressure filtration in the sugar mills. They are generally used for fireproofing, sound deadening, insulating for heat retention. In cement kilns and all forms of ceramic kilns they have made new and improved materials possible. They are used in the new cooking fats that have displaced the lard of other days. They are the body of many of the finer soaps. The citric acid of the Coast depends on it for its filtration processes. Sil-o-cel or Filter-cel is the handmaiden of industry from steel and iron, clay products, oil refining, sugar-making and foods, in a great variety of ways, and the point of emphasis is the fact that again, as in many other directions, Southern California is the source of the raw material and the seat of the resultant important industry, leading the world in its line.

Fifty trainloads of Celite products were shipped from Lompoc in 1920, being about twenty miles of freight cars, and the constantly developing new uses mean a much larger output each year. August Fitger of Duluth is the president of this company; his son, Arnold Fitger, is the resident vice-president, and also serves as secretary, and R. J. Wig, formerly of Philadelphia, is the chief engineer and second vice-president. To these men and their organization is due the lifting of the diatom from a negligible factor to one of the chief resources of modern engineering—mechanical, electrical and chemical.

California Bank Will Establish Harbor Branch.

On August 1 the California Bank will start work on its new branch building to be erected on recently acquired property at the southwest corner of Pacific avenue and Tenth street, Los Angeles Harbor. The bank will occupy handsomely equipped quarters, 35 by 60 feet, on the corner, and provision is made in the plans, which were prepared by architects Walker and Eisen, for future enlargement of these quarters.

The remainder of both frontages of the building will be devoted to modern stores. There will be five stores, seventeen feet wide, on the Pacific-avenue frontage, and seven stores, fourteen feet wide, on the Eleventh-street side. The exterior of the building will be finished in stucco, with ornamentation in cast stone. The Spanish Renaissance type of architecture will be employed. The new branch will constitute the nineteenth location of the institution in Los Angeles and suburban communities.

FOR FIFTH STREET STORE.

C. B. Weaver Company has secured a permit for the wrecking of a portion of the building now occupied by the Fifth Street Store, to make way for the new twelve-story class A building to be erected on the present site at Fifth and Broadway. The building will be of steel-frame construction, with brick filler walls, and terra cotta facing. Work will be started in the near future. Aleck E. Curlett is the architect.

Calif. Bathroom Sets, $100

Complete to Rough Plumbing

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week will be the last opportunity for some time to purchase these California Bathroom Sets at $100. If you are going to build now or any time in the near future, it will pay you to get one of these sets.

These fixtures are all factory seconds and in this case that means that the enamel is slightly wavy, but none is chipped or cracked. Really, this imperfection will not affect the life or wearing quality of the fixture, and unless your attention was particularly called to it on many of them you would not notice it.

Includes your choice of a 5 or 5½-foot California type recessed tub, pedestal lavatory; both equipped for hot and cold water, with No. 1 grade "A" fittings and supplies; a low toilet with either a cast iron white porcelain enameled or vitreous china tank; birch-mahogany seat, with nickel-plated post hinges; complete with angle valve and all necessary screws and washers to install.

75 Low Toilets at $25 ea.

We've just 75 of these toilets, factory seconds. Tanks of cast iron, white porcelain enameled. The enamel shows pit marks. The bowls are seconds, and, while sanitary, show irregularities and roughness.

To sell these 75 toilets quickly we are making the price $25 complete to the rough plumbing, including angle valve and all necessary screws and washers.

Portable Showers, $12

A dandy portable shower. It fastens right onto your bath faucet. Has practically all the advantages of the much higher priced shower bath equipment—just like illustration.

Pedestal Lavatories $20 and $25

Still a great number of these pedestal lavatories, factory seconds, but some are in excellent condition, none are chipped or cracked. Fittings not included at this price.

Flat Rim Tubs, $30 and $38

Factory seconds of the California type, flat rim tubs, intended for use in tile recess; many have used them in recesses and cemented them in. The price without fittings.

Plumbing — Repairs — Jobbing

If your plumbing needs repairing, just call us on the phone, we will have one of our expert plumbers go out promptly to repair the damage—prices are moderate, too.

We have competent crews of men to install fixtures either as a whole contract on a new house, or to put in additional fixtures in your present home.

This Urn Chandelier, $9.50

An exceedingly popular semi-indirect lighting fixture—has attractive glass bowl like illustration and suspended by three massive chains finished in "brushed brass." Ask for our No. 1966.

Veneer Panels

Take the elevator to the second floor and see for yourself the large stock of high grade veneer panels we are offering. Note, too, the savings that you can effect on them—they are in practically all standard sizes. These are much used for paneling of rooms and interior finish work generally.

Build With Schumacher Wall Board

LUMBER

Whether you need the lumber for one house or a dozen, or just enough for a chicken coop, it will pay you to buy your lumber from us. Our immense yard at Vernon enables us to bring in lumber by the shipload, with all the economy that this means.

Factory Seconds, $40

You can build almost all kinds of houses and outbuildings, using Schumacher Wall Board for interior and exterior. It means an economy of time and labor, as well as material. Simply paint the side exposed to the weather and you have a good, durable, weather-proof siding.

We've a good stock of factory seconds on this Wall Board in 4-foot widths, from 6 to 12 feet long.

A Rare Opportunity To Buy Western Avenue Frontage!

Mr. Oliver Morosco, Creator of the great Moroscotown project, has directed me to sell at once 8 splendid lots fronting on Western Avenue at Melrose Avenue and Marathon Street.

A fine speculative opportunity—440 feet on this Avenue of Amazing Growth, by 130 feet running to a 15-foot alley—ripe now for business development!

"This frontage is too valuable to hold for Moroscotown uses!" is Mr. Morosco's decision—and we know now that his judgment was sound when he selected Western Avenue at this point for his Moroscotown enterprise.

These 8 lots are priced to sell—and they'll go quickly! Don't delay your bid!

EXHIBIT HOME PRODUCTS SOON.

Alameda streets, these dignitaries, with President Sylvester Weaver of the Chamber of Commerce, will open the "coming out party" with appropriate welcome to visitors and guests, and formally inaugurate the most ambitious commercial undertaking that Los Angeles has thus far included in its energetic development program.

BUYERS' PROGRAM.

The official program for the entertainment of the invited guests, buyers and directly interested public, as announced by the Chamber of Commerce, is as follows:

Daily luncheons at the Exposition Building during the week.

Interesting and instructive program have been arranged for each luncheon. Cabaret at each luncheon.

Monday noon—Welcome luncheon to visiting buyers. Principal address, Gov. Stephens. Other speakers, Mayor Cryer and President Weaver of the Chamber of Commerce.

Tuesday noon—Textile day. This program in charge of textile and apparel manufacturers.

Wednesday noon—Home products luncheon. This is the annual home products luncheon at which everything served is produced in Los Angeles and samples of local produced products are given away in special containers.

Thursday noon—Furniture day. This program in charge of the furniture manufacturers.

Friday noon—Retail merchants' day. The program for Friday's luncheon will be devoted to the retail merchants and under their charge.

Saturday noon — Purchasing agents of Southern California. At this luncheon, the Purchasing Agents' Association of Southern California is going to take the program and will be prepared to tell the local people and outside buyers what the Purchasing Agents' Association of Southern California is doing for them.

The price of the daily luncheon is $1.25. Tickets are on sale at the Chamber of Commerce and at the restaurant on the fifth floor, Exposition Building.

Tuesday evening—Grand ball, Hotel Ambassador, August 16, at 8:30 p.m. Members of the Chamber of Commerce and their wives are cordially invited to this ball. Tickets on sale at the Chamber of Commerce at $1.00 each. A buffet supper will be served in advance of dancing. Informal.

Friday evening — Grand stag banquet, Hotel Ambassador, August 19, at 7 p.m. This affair is open to members of the Chamber of Commerce and Los Angeles business men. Tickets will be $3 each, on sale at the Chamber of Commerce. A splendid program of entertainment has been arranged by the theatrical people. This will be an event worth while. Informal.

Each day's event at the big industrial exposition will be a special treat and you are urged to attend these luncheons, which take place between 12 noon and 2 p.m. Be sure and visit the exposition. It is open to the public from 2 p.m. to 10 p.m.

PUBLIC INTEREST.

For the general public, from 2 to 10 o'clock each afternoon and evening, there will be programs of interest on every one of the seven great floors in which the exposition is housed. On the seventh floor will be moving pictures, concerts, lectures, eating rooms and innumerable entertainment features not programmed; but there will be something doing all the time, in sufficient variety to interest people of many different tastes.

Throughout the exhibits, on all floors, there will be a succession of entertainment features in connection with individual or group displays. Many of these will show the actual shop operations in gay settings and will be instructive as well as entertaining. Demonstrations and lectures will be features at many of the exhibits also.

WOMEN'S FASHIONS.

The displays of Los Angeles-made apparel for women, girls and children will be turned into something of a style show, and there is reported to be keen rivalry among the various garment makers in picking the most beautiful women to be found in and out of the movies, for the "formal" display of the things of silk and lace and linen and cotton, that hide or reveal their wearers during the twenty-four hours usually called a day.

Something like 150 displays will be shown in this section, and it is forecast that there will be more men than women who will be interested in what is made in Los Angeles for women's wear, under the display conditions prevailing.

What Los Angeles is producing to make the thousands of new homes going up every month throughout Southern California: wood, stone, stucco, brick, tile, plaster, lath, shingles—in myriad forms, interior finishes and living conveniences, from cellar to roof and from kitchen or laundry to sun parlor or patio, how electricity takes the place of hired help and eases all the burdens of the home maker; the hundred or more novelties originating in Los Angeles and giving to Southern California homes first place in applying every newly discovered advance in domestic comfort and lure of homes, even the organizations for supplying the money with which to build the homes will be on the job, to show that the rent-payer is overlooking the one best bet toward financial start and eventual independence.

The ceramic trades and arts will be on hand with many devices for showing how the humble clays are turned into things of beauty or utility. The furniture trades will show many of their processes from wood carving to silk upholstering. The electrical trades will show light and power in many of the newer forms just discovered and will produce many surprises, without shocks.

Even the laundry owners will show why Southern California sends 32 per cent of its washing to the power laundries, as against an average of only 10 per cent throughout the rest of the country; and their exhibit will be among the most elaborate and expensive in the building.

Foods and beverages in countless forms may be had hot off the kettle or cold off the ice, and candies may be eaten from the end of the finger that fashions them, with fruit juices as they drip from the press, or cakes as they pop off the griddle. Here is the lure for the epicure, and warning for those who fear to grow fat.

The public is invited to this "coming out party," by the Chamber of Commerce, representing 8200 members, 3500 industrial establishments, 108,000 of the freest workers in the world in America's tenth industrial city, center of a metropolitan district richest in the United States in comparison with any equal area.

GETTING READY FOR BIG EVENT.

Reservations Made for Local Delegation to Next Year's Realty Convention.

Preparations are already being made for a big attendance by local realtors at the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, to be held in San Francisco early in May of next year.

Frank Ryan, president of the Los Angeles Realty Board, and C. C. Tatum, vice-president of the organization, have made reservations for forty rooms, with bath, at the St. Francis Hotel for the convention period. The St. Francis Hotel will be the headquarters of the local delegation during the convention.

FLAXSEED MARKETS IN THE NORTHWEST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DULUTH, Aug. 6.—Flaxseed market again weakened in the absence of support from crushers and limited buying orders from the country on account of trading restrictions. Maximum declines of 3 cents were scored, but rallies came around the close. September flaxseed closed 1½ cents lower at 2.01 asked; October, 1 cent lower at 2.03 asked, and November, 1½ cents lower at 2.04 asked; on track and to arrive, 2.00.

Minneapolis flaxseed demand good; No. 1 seed on spot quoted at 1.98@1.99; to arrive, same. Receipts, 3 cars; last year, 3 cars; shipments, 4 cars; last year, none.

Two New Banks for Suburban Los Angeles.

Jonathan S. Dodge, Superintendent of Banks, has granted a permit to C. H. Eubank, David P. Fleming, J. A. Weldt, Earl S. Wiatt, E. Opp, J. H. Patrick and Paul M. Gregg to organize a new bank to be located at Wilmington and known as State Bank of Wilmington.

This charter will be granted under an amendment to the Bank Act which permits the establishment of a bank with $50,000 capital in territory that has been annexed to the city of Los Angeles. The new bank will conduct a savings business solely and while it will be owned by the same stockholders that now own the First National Bank of Wilmington it will be under separate management and location.

A permit has also been granted to R. F. Kitterman, C. C. Cooper, George T. Paine, E. L. Osborne, H. S. Webb and E. U. Emery to act as an organization committee for the purpose of establishing a new savings bank in the city of Glendale, to be known as the First State Bank of Glendale with capital stock of $50,000.

This institution will conduct a savings bank and safe deposit box business in a location on Broadway. The stock will be owned by the stockholders of the First National Bank of Glendale, but there will be separate management.

TULARE IMPROVEMENT.

Electric Hatchery Will Erect Home; Tire Distributors Open Branch.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

TULARE, Aug. 6.—J. W. Frew, proprietor of the Tulare Electric Hatchery, is planning to build a fine concrete building north of the Santa Fe tracks on Front street to house his new hatchery and two mercantile businesses. The building will be 50 by 75 feet an dwill face Front street. Plans have been drawn by J. R. Henderson, architect, and submitted to Mr. Frew. Work on the building will be started at once.

A new wholesale tire distribution establishment, carrying a stock worth approximately $75,000, has opened for business at 224 King street. This concern covers a territory of seven counties in the San Joaquin Valley for the sale of tires and similar territory. Frank K. Bibb, manager of the business, formerly operated from Hanford as headquarters. He announces that branches will be formed in other cities in the county later. Clyde Wolfe will have charge of the sales of automobiles and William Senna will supervise the service department. A large auto display room will be a special feature, while the service department will occupy large quarters in the rear.

MAIN STREET STORE LEASED TO JEWELER

A new jewelry store is to be opened at 244 South Main street by F. E. Riskin, who until recently operated a jewelry establishment in Oakland. E. M. Roberts of the sales and leasing department of the W. Ross Campbell Company negotiated a lease from the Harris Newmark Company on the Main-street property for Mr. Riskin, who will take possession immediately. The ground floor storeroom at 245 Werden Place has been leased to the Van De Camps Dutch Bakers, who will make this an annex to their large bakery establishment on adjoining property. The deal was put through by Harris Q. Brown of the W. Ross Campbell Company sales and leasing department.

DRY GOODS FIRM ADDS TO FACTORY QUARTERS.

The Cooper Coate and Casey Dry Goods Company, one of the city's largest manufacturing and wholesale firms, has secured a lease on an entire floor in the five-story Kellow & Brown Building at 428 Boyd street for factory and storage purposes. The new factory will add its capacity to the output of several other plants operated by this company in the wholesale district.

The leasing transaction was handled by F. J. Huesman of the commercial properties department of the W. A. Heitman Company. The A. A. Kraft Candy Company was the former lessee of the premises.

CLASS A BUILDING.

Architects Morgan, Walls and Morgan have completed plans for a two-story and basement, class A building to be erected on East Third street, near San Pedro, for the Crane Company. The building is designed for the addition of four stories later.

THEATER AND STORES.

Whiting Thompson has completed plans for a one and two-story brick store, theater and office building to be built at Vermont avenue and Fortieth Place for L. H. Mitchell & Son. The building will contain ten stores, four offices and a theater auditorium.

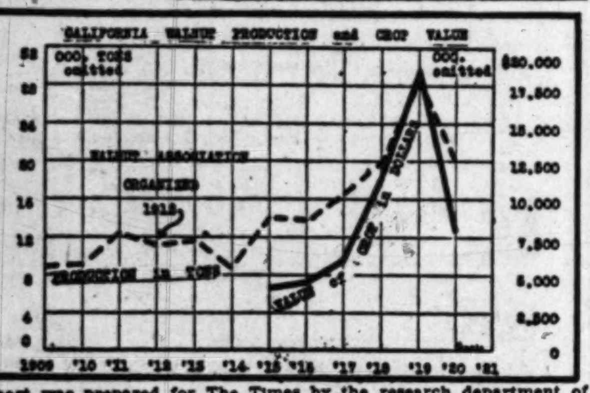
DAILY TRADE TALK.

Walnuts are Golden Nuggets; Wonderful Growth of Industry; Crop This Year 70 Per Cent of Normal.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

One of the most important influences in the development of Los Angeles county and Southern California has been the wealth that the walnut crop has annually returned to this locality. The accompanying chart from the research department of the First National Bank and the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank graphically shows the sharp increase in crop value from the year 1915, valued at $4,030,224, to 1920, when the return amounted to $8,989,650. The peak of crop value was in 1919, when the value was $17,922,240.

With the organizing of the Walnut Association in 1912, the production of this crop was greatly increased, 1919 showing a gain of 150 per cent for the seven-year period from 1912. The yield for 1920 was not so good, but did, however, show a gain of 8727 tons over 1912.



This chart was prepared for The Times by the research department of First National Bank and Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank.

California produces 72 per cent of the walnuts consumed in the United States; the remaining 28 per cent is practically all imported from China, France, Italy and Chile, since no other section of the United States produces walnuts upon a commercial scale. Further, the California production comes almost exclusively from the southern part of the State with Los Angeles county leading in acreage with 29,012 acres; Orange county, 20,211 acres; Ventura, 17,729 acres; Santa Barbara, 5580 acres, and Riverside, 2867 acres. These figures include nonbearing acreage. In the entire State there are 60,800 acres bearing and 23,900 acres not yet in bearing.

As to the crop for 1921, no official estimate has been made by the California Walnut Growers' Association, and will not be made until the last of August. At that time every grove in the State will be visited and an estimate made by both the grower and the association's agent. At the present time the best approximation of the crop to be harvested this fall is that it will be 70 per cent of normal, which will mean an actual production about equal to that of last year—19,977 tons. This production will be below that of 1919 owing to a late frost which caused considerable damage in some sections. What the price will be is largely a matter of personal conjecture, but it must be born in mind that all the 1920 crop has been marketed.

No little credit for the progress of this industry is owing to the California Walnut Growers' Association, a co-operative nonprofit organization of growers which handles from 80 per cent to 85 per cent of the State's crop. This organization is exemplary in its perfection of marketing and the economies it accomplishes.

The achievements of this last year are especially noteworthy. The executives of the organization, realizing that there should be price adjustment all along the line, voluntarily reduced their prices one-third. Further, because wholesalers did not show a disposition to buy more than immediate needs of any commodity, and preferred to run out of goods rather than carry a large supply (for the reason that prices were steadily declining,) the association shipped carload lots to the distributing centers and sold small quantities as they were needed. The benefits of reduction in price was thus given to the public, and the crop marketed in good time.

The future of this industry is exceedingly promising. The consumption per capita in the United States is only one-half pound per person, while in California it is almost two pounds per person, and, therefore, the market for this Southern California product can apparently be increased from 200 to 400 per cent. In addition, when exchange rates reach normal, there is every probability that this crop will have a strong export demand.

The budded variety of walnut is the type almost exclusively planted in California. It comes into bearing in two or three years. However, the period of profitable bearing does not come until seven to nine years after planting, and the tree does not reach full bearing until 14 to 15 years of age. In fact, the maximum production is not attained until the tree is 25 years old, and there are groves in this State that are now showing their greatest productivity at from 40 to 50 years of age. It is clearly evident that with the proper care a walnut grove will continue to return profits to its owner for a century or more.

The walnut trees are usually planted in January, February and early March. The crop is harvested from the 15th of September to the 1st of December, with the peak coming between October 1 and and November 15.

THE BOND MARKET.

There is cumulative evidence that the bond market is headed upwards and that the bargain days are nearly over. With easier money rates security prices are bound to rise, and for some time investment houses have been urging their clients to take advantage of a situation which many think will not be duplicated for a long time.

Call money is again being freely loaned at reasonable rates, and time money is available under less stringent circumstances than have been laid down heretofore. Stock and commodity markets have undergone drastic liquidation, and hence these markets do not create the demand for money they formerly did.

Institutions and individuals are finding less urgent demands for surplus funds, and turn naturally to the bond market to secure an adequate yield. Institutional buying of bonds has been very limited for the past few years, but in the last month it has become apparent again and the present buying appears to be but a forerunner of that which will eventually develop.

BUSINESS NEWS.

Security Trust and Savings Bank, with deposits of $90,125,000, ranked seventeenth in deposits among the great State institutions of the country doing a trust and banking business, according to the statements of June 30, and ranked second among all institutions of the kind west of the Missouri River, being exceeded only by the Bank of Italy of San Francisco, which showed $151,099,000, and which ranks ninth in the United States.

For the credit of Los Angeles, it may be said, however, that the local institution is entirely contained, main bank and all branches, within the city of Los Angeles while the Bank of Italy, with main offices in San Francisco, has a very large part of its deposits in branches over the State, including several in Los Angeles.

The figures for the State banks were collected by the Wall Street Journal of New York City. Thirty-three State banks and trust companies in the United States are credited with gross deposits of more than $50,000,000. Guaranty Trust Company of New York heads the list with deposits of $534,460,000, followed by the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, with deposits of $267,176,000. Of the institutions standing ahead of the Security Bank of Los Angeles, eight are in New York City, two in Cleveland, two in Chicago, and one each in Boston, Buffalo, Pittsburg and San Francisco.

Institutions west of the Missouri River with deposits above $50,000,000 are the Bank of Italy, Security Trust and Savings Bank, Commerce Trust Company of Kansas City, with deposits of $78,025,000; Mercantile Trust Company of San Francisco, $59,181,000, and the Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, with $58,303,000.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE.

World international trade in 1920 aggregated approximately $100,000,000,000 in stated value against $63,000,000,000 in the closing year of the war, and $40,000,000,000 at its beginning.

The 1920 figures of world trade, says a statement by the National City Bank of New York, which has accumulated them from official sources wherever available, are based upon the published trade reports of about twenty principal countries whose international commerce ordinarily forms about two-thirds that of the entire world, and adding to the official total of these twenty countries an estimate for the others based upon their latest official returns, it seems apparent that the face valuation of the merchandise forming the imports and exports of all countries in 1920 will approximate $100,000,000,000 against $63,000,000,000 in 1918, $40,000,000,000 in 1913, $20,000,000,000 in 1900 and $10,000,000,000 in 1870, when the United States "took off its coat" and entered seriously into world trade.

One especially interesting feature of this comparison of world trade in 1920 with that of the earlier years lies in the increasing share which United States manufactures form of world trade. Prior to the war, we supplied but about one-sixth of the manufactures entering international trade and in 1920 nearly or quite one-third. Prior to the war, our manufactures exported amounted to little more than $1,000,000,000 per annum and in 1920 were more than $4,000,000,000, having thus increased 300 per cent in value in the 1913-1920 period, while world international trade was increasing 150 per cent in nominal value in that same period. The official valuation of our manufactures exported in 1920 was nine times as much as in 1900 and manufactures formed 52 per cent of the total domestic exports in 1920 against 45 per cent in 1910, 35 per cent in 1900, 21 per cent in 1890 and 15 per cent in 1880.

A study of the details of the 1920 trade figures indicates that imports form an unusually large share of the aggregate international trade of the world. As nearly as can now be determined the nominal value of the merchandise imported by all countries of the world in 1920 will aggregate about $55,000,000, and the exports about $46,000,000,000, making the share which imports formed of world trade in 1920 about 55 per cent as against an average of about 52 per cent in the prewar years, this high ratio of imports to exports in 1920 being due in part to the large sums which transportation added to the values of the exports when they became imports, and in part to the fact that in many countries the 1919 advance orders of importers proved greater than the exporting power in 1920, the year in which the merchandise reached the importers who had ordered them in the flush times of 1919. This abnormally high importation of many countries in 1920 is apparently one of the causes of the very heavy fall off in our exports in 1921, especially as the excessive imports of 1920 consisted chiefly of manufactures.

BONDS READY.

Blair & Co., who participated in the marketing of the $15,000,000 Chicago and Northwestern Railroad Company 6½ per cent issue recently, announce that the bonds are now ready for delivery at the office of the United States Trust Company, 45 Wall street, New York City.

EAST BAY BONDS.

An issue of $2,500,000 of bonds of the East Bay Water Company is being handled by Stevens, Page & Sterling, Blyth, Witter & Co., and others. These bonds bear 7½ per cent interest and are offered at par. They are secured as a direct obligation of the company and by a mortgage upon all of its properties now owned or hereafter acquired. They will mature Sept. 1, 1936.

Based upon the number of services in use, the East Bay Water Company is the second largest privately owned water utility in the United States. The total number of services installed as of Jan. 1, 1921, were 70,203, an increase in the past ten years of 27,528, or 65 per cent. Water for domestic and industrial purposes for the cities of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and smaller communities on the eastern shore of San Francisco Bay is supplied by this company exclusively. The total population served is about 350,000.

THE COUNTRY OVER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) Aug. 6.—No development of recent months has so stimulated the business confidence of the South as the advance of $5 a bale in the price of cotton. A spirit of optimism has been aroused and in every line of business there are evidences of renewed activity based on assurances that the South will market its chief crop this fall at prices that will encourage liquidation of long-standing obligations. Many believe the advance in price is only a forerunner of further advances as the effect of curtailed acreage and inroads of boll weevil become more evident.

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Aug. 6.—The conspicuous feature of commerce in general throughout the district is a firmer, livelier and broader optimism. Business men are sure they see an open road ahead. This optimism has its source in easier financial conditions in agricultural districts and progressive readjustment of business in the cities and towns. There are signs of a vigorous liquidation of retail stocks at lower prices.

DETROIT (Mich.) Aug. 6.—While changes have been slight, they have all pointed this week to a steady upturn in business in this territory. The bulk of workers again are earning enough to lay money aside. Returns from early crops are flowing into the country banks and wholesalers say demand for nearly every kind of merchandise from upstate is quickening. Collections are better throughout the district and the employment situation is improving as is shown by increased attendance at amusements.

BRINGING MONEY TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

DURING the recent past, Blyth, Witter & Co. has been instrumental in bringing millions of dollars to Southern California. We have been associated, for example, in the financing of such well-known Southern California companies as Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, San Diego Consolidated Gas and Electric Company and Southern California Gas Company.

The benefits resulting from this financing are far-reaching. Not only will much of this money (the total is over seven millions of dollars) be actually spent here, but the development which it makes possible provides increased activity in every line of business.

For example, the population of a community can grow no more rapidly than its utility companies can provide electricity, gas and other services. In financing additions and betterments for these local utility companies, we literally made room for more homes in Southern California.

Investment in sound bonds is itself a definite social service. Our hardware merchants, our shoe dealers, our grocerymen, our laborers, our doctors, our lawyers—men and women in every walk of life receive a benefit from the money you invest in the bonds of local concerns. Our primary service, however, is to investors in providing them with safe investments and in rendering a valuable supplementary service in connection with their investments.

If you have money to invest, it will pay you to see us about good, sound bonds. We have a limited amount of the bonds of the above mentioned companies which we highly recommend. Call, write or phone us today for information.

Past, Present and Future

With operating costs tending toward lower levels; with no large inventories to "write off," and with new applications for power being received daily, the situation of the hydro-electric companies of California is most favorable.

The growth and development of the SAN JOAQUIN LIGHT & POWER CORPORATION have been, and probably always will be, parallel to the growth and development of California. The Company's first hydro-electric plant was installed in 1896. Today ten of these plants are operated by water power, with three steam plants in reserve. Seven principal counties of the great San Joaquin Valley are served, with a population of 400,000.

We are offering for conservative investment a limited amount of Unifying and Refunding Mortgage 7% Bonds of this Company.

The time to buy low-priced securities of a speculative-investment nature is during periods of depression. Such a period is being experienced now throughout the world, and will be followed by the ultimate period of trade activity with rising prices in all lines.

The investor with some money and a little patience who acquires securities of merit at present prices will reap not only income on his money, but market appreciation in excess of 100%. We will be glad to forward market suggestions, together with a copy of our "Investor's Pocket Manual" showing relative price ranges, capitalization, etc.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—Operations on the short side of the stock market were renewed today and the price movement was downward. It was a typical half-holiday session of midsummer, with a small attendance and perfunctory trading. Transactions in the two hours were 140,000 shares.

Such speculative ventures as were undertaken were mainly for the decline. Absence of support for weak spots in the list and lack of outside demand favored this attitude by traders, and the encouraging inferences drawn from the weekly reviews of the mercantile agencies were unnoticed. The closing was heavy.

United Drug was again under pressure. Baldwin Locomotive, Famous Players retail stores, coppers and chemicals were other stocks in which the recession was pronounced. The railroads were dull with losses of a point or more in Union Pacific, Louisville, Texas and Pacific, Lackawanna and Delaware and Hudson.

Absorption of bonds was on a good scale and some representative issues made large fractional gains, United States Steel 5s were higher, as were New York Central debenture 6 1-4s, Bethlehem Steel 5s, Oregon Short Line refunding 4s, Interborough Rapid Transit 5s and Colorado and Southern Refunding 4½s. Total sales, par value, $4,060,000. Liberty Bonds were irregular, with the Victory issues continuing to lose ground.

Foreign exchange rate again went up. Sterling gained 1 cent. The feature of the bank statement was an increase of $32,101,000 in reserve, making the total $19,780,000 in excess of legal requirements, in place of the deficit reported last week.

NEW ISSUE

$5,000,000

THE OTIS STEEL COMPANY
First Mortgage Twenty-Year 8% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds
Series "A"

Dated August 1, 1921 Due August 1, 1941

Interest payable February 1 and August 1
Authorized, $15,000,000. Series "A," to be presently issued, $5,000,000
Redeemable in whole or in part at the option of the Company on 6 weeks' notice on any interest date up to and including August 1, 1924, at 110 and interest; on any interest date thereafter at 107½ and interest up to and including August 1, 1926 and thereafter at 107½ and interest, less ½% for each 12 months or part thereof elapsed after August 1, 1926.

Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1000, $500 and $100, registerable as to principal.

Interest payable in New York at the office of Blair and Co., and in Cleveland, without deduction for any Federal Income Taxes to the extent of 2% per annum which the Company or Trustee may be required to withhold.

THE UNION TRUST COMPANY, CLEVELAND, TRUSTEE.

For information regarding this issue, we refer to a letter, dated August 3, 1921, from Mr. G. Bartol, President of the Company, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned on request, some of the items of which he has briefly summarized as follows:

BUSINESS established in 1873, consists principally in the manufacture and sale of steel plates, sheets, castings, pig iron and coke by-products. "Otis" products bear a high reputation, having been sold for the past 48 years. Customers include railroad companies, boiler manufacturers, shipbuilders, automobile manufacturers, oil companies, machinery concerns, etc.

PURPOSE, to pay off approximately $3,500,000 current indebtedness and to provide additional working capital.

FIRST MORTGAGE: Bonds are to be secured, in opinion of Company's counsel, by direct first mortgage on the entire fixed properties now owned. The mortgage will also cover similar property hereafter acquired.

VALUATION: the general property account (less depreciation) is valued at $16,099,583, the securities owned in other companies are carried at $1,404,124, and net quick assets as of June 30, 1921 (after giving effect to proposed bond issue) at $7,384,344, an aggregate of $24,888,051, equal to nearly 5 times the proposed $5,000,000.

NET PROFITS after depreciation for the 4½ years ending June 30, 1921, available for interest before Federal taxes (apart from inventory adjustment since December 31, last) averaged $4,149,716 per annum, or over ten times annual interest on these bonds.

After provision for Federal taxes said net profits averaged for 4½ years $2,167,988, or nearly 5½ times the annual interest charges on the new Bonds; this average includes the unprofitable six months ended June 30, 1921. Since July 1st, encouraging improvement has occurred in volume of orders received.

Net profits available for interest for year 1920 before Federal taxes were $1,615,008 an after provision for Federal taxes were $1,543,482, or approximately four times the annual interest on the new Bonds.

FINANCIAL CONDITION: after giving effect to proposed bond issue, current assets as of June 30, 1921, were $8,366,189 and current liabilities $981,845, or a ratio of over 8 to 1. These net quick assets alone equal nearly 150% of the proposed $5,000,000 issue.

SINKING FUND payable semi-annually commencing May 1, 1923 will provide for retirement through redemption or purchase annually of $250,000 of Series "A" Bonds.

PLANTS have combined annual approximate capacity of 360,000 tons of pig iron and 450,000 tons finished steel products.

The legal proceedings in connection with the issue are being passed upon by Messrs. Cravath, Henderson, Leffingwell and de Gersdorff, New York, and Messrs. Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, Cleveland, Ohio.

Interim Receipts or Temporary Bonds will be deliverable in the first instance. All offerings are subject to authorization of the issue by the stockholders, to approval of proceedings by counsel and "when, as and if issued and received."

ORANGES.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 6.—The market on California Valencia oranges continues to improve steadily. Prices the past week advanced fully 25 to 50 cents per box over a week ago on desirable sizes.

One of the remarkable features of the summer fruit business in the last few years has been the rapid rise of the Valencia summer orange business. Not many years ago the summer orange was a scarce article. Today this business, in the face of all the summer small fruit competition, is almost as great as the navel orange business during the winter and spring months.

Small-size Valencias are now plentiful, large sizes scarce as in the navel season just closed.

An abundance of 216s and smaller makes these sizes the best buy, as the large sizes are commanding a premium.

For several months growers have been picking for size, leaving the small-sized oranges on the trees in anticipation that this fruit would mature in large sizes.

The campaign now is to get the trade to sell the bargain sizes by pricing in odd lots at even money or by pushing sales in larger units, such as pecks, half-boxes and boxes.

From the standpoint of the wholesale and retail trade this is a desirable situation, as a great quantity of the oranges going into consumption during the summer months are used in fresh fruit drinks, salads and other light summer dishes. These small-sized oranges are especially adaptable for this use.

F.o.b. quotations, usual terms, on desirable sizes are $4.25 per box on fruit from the foothill districts and $4.75 on Orange county fruit.

LEMONS.

The market on lemons is easier and lower. Generally cool weather is the prevailing report from middle western and eastern market centers. The trade is buying very cautiously.

The activity of the various price investigation committees has had a tendency to hurt the retailers who are well stocked up on high-priced lemons. Jobbers are not affected to any extent as they have been buying for immediate needs only.

Shipments the past week dropped to 185 cars as against 388 cars the previous week.

F.o.b. quotations are lower, ranging from $4.50 to $5 per box on best grades.

There are 62,000 boxes of foreign lemons on hand and available for sale within the next thirty days, not including two cargoes, quantity unknown.

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—The financial community this week seemed to be on a fair way to recovery from the blues. Measured by the movements of stocks, there was little to indicate a recovery from the confirmed pessism of the speculative element, for net changes as a rule were unimportant. Nevertheless the market had intermittent periods of real strength, and from various quarters came reports which encouraged the belief that prospects were brightening.

The week began with a spirited advance, with the best demand for railroad shares. The upturn, cut short after two days, was followed by narrow and uncertain movements. There was a gradual weakening of the list, which became more pronounced late in the week. Trading was largely professional with little public participation, and the reversals in trend apparently were due to the speculative position of the moment.

Further readjustment of steel prices was said to have brought out a somewhat larger volume of orders, and there were reports of increased production at some centers. Another decrease in unfilled orders is looked for, however, in the report next week of the United States Steel Corporation. The weekly reviews of the mercantile agencies was cheerful. It was set forth that although revival of business could not be described as general, it was sufficiently well defined in some quarters to strengthen hopeful views. Sugar stocks responded to firmness of the market for refined sugar, and the inquiry for the leading railroad shares reflected the improved earning statements of the carriers.

Bonds made further gains on a demand relatively more active than that for stocks, although they figured in the decline late in the week.

Hardening of money tended to check operations for the long account. After last week's drop to 3½ per cent, the lowest in nearly two years, call money rose to 6. Withdrawals from New York banks by the interior, following the decline in rates here, were largely responsible for the week's advance. Requirements of the agricultural sections in connection with the marketing of the crops figured in the movement.

WHEAT MAKES BEST FINISH IN CHICAGO.

GAINS OF 3-4 TO 1 1-4; CORN IS 1-8 HIGHER TO 1-8 LOWER; RYE UNCHANGED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 6.—A rally came to the grain markets in the late hours of the trading after an early break that carried prices for September corn and oats to new low levels. Wheat made the best finish, with gains of ¾ to 1¼ cents, while corn was ⅛ cent higher to ⅛ cent lower, oats ⅛ cent higher, and rye unchanged. Trading was mainly in evening up for the week, the support coming mostly from buying against weekly bids, in which there was a profit.

Considering the depressing factors, the light outside support and the heavy unloading by leading longs, the markets gave a good account of themselves for the week.

The decline in wheat prices continued to bring in good buying by exporters, but failed to help the markets speculatively. There were sales of 1,000,000 bushels for export. Cash prices generally were weaker and lower, although premiums here were firmer on hard winters. At Kansas City 548 cars were received and 250 carried over from Friday unsold, with 1000 expected Monday. Elevator room there is scarce and the terminals are said to be blocked.

Aside from the export business and the wheat figures, there was little in the market news. The winter wheat movement is falling off. Chicago had 1,257,000 bushels fewer than the previous week, or 4,287,000 bushels, while primary receipts were 18,956,000 bushels, 7,654,000 bushels more than last year and 4,241,000 bushels fewer than the previous week.

Prices were the lowest of the week in the early trading, with September down to $1.18 and December $1.22, a rally of 1⅛ to 2⅛ cents from the low point, and the close ½ to ¼ from the top.

The corn market was weak early on selling due to the posting out of condition 505,000 bushels in South Chicago elevator "C" and annexe. The few local professionals who had recently made liberal sales, and a great deal of liquidation, which carried September down to 55⅝, with a rally of 1⅛ cents later, while December, after touching 56, rallied 1⅛ cents, and both months closed slightly below the top. The week's receipts show a decrease, but a larger business is expected.

Spreaders and changers furnished a large part of the business in oats. There was selling of a large line against purchases of corn by local traders and buying of September and selling of December, and vice versa, by elevator interests and speculators at 6 cents difference. The market was oversold on a decline to 36 cents for September, the lowest of the season, and a covering movement brought an advance of ⅜ cent, with the close at nearly the top. The week's movement at primary points was 9,875,000 bushels more than last year and about a record.

Aside from a little selling of September and buying of December rye at 1 cent difference by local elevators and the selling of rye and buying of wheat at 14 cents difference by speculators, there was little in the rye market. Prices moved up 1 cent and closed ¼ to ½ cent from the top.

FIRST COTTON PRICES WEAK, DUE TO CHECK.

ADVANCE HALTED; MARKET IS FIRM AFTER REALIZING SALES ABSORBED.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—After yesterday's strong advance and while southern spot markets showed general and strong upturns last night, there was enough active southern selling at the opening of the New York cotton market today to check further advance and weaken first prices 5 points. The early buying was by local and Wall-street interests. Gossip around the ring led stress on the weaker technical position as a result of yesterday's covering of a big line credited to a Wall-street operator.

After early realizing sales had been absorbed the market showed renewed firmness on reports of an active spot demand from Wall street and the South yesterday and complaints of continued crop deterioration, closing steady, net 8 points higher to 3 lower.

After the Wel
Comes in
What then?

When your company hits oil—where do you
Are you sure of dividends, or have overcapi expenses destroyed profits?

Look at this map of our property. Convince yourself we are as sure of hitting oil as it is possible to be (entirely surrounded by producing wells—10 gushers from 1500 to 11,000 barrels, 1½ to 4½ miles distant) and then read our position on a point really more important:
How do you know you win when we hit oil?

Production of near-by wells

Lucky, 13, 2 miles east	7000 barrels
Lewis, 2 miles southwest	2300 barrels
Magnolia Foster, 3½ miles northeast	3500 barrels
Gibson, 3½ miles north	1700 barrels
Duke, 4½ miles southeast	4300 barrels
Glasscock, 1½ miles southeast
Blackwell, 4 miles west
Ranger Duncan, 3 miles north
Foote, 4½ miles southeast
Knowles, 4½ miles southeast

YOU GET THE MONEY

If you had $80,000 to put into oil, here's what you might do: Set aside $40,000 to contract for a well, guaranteed down to pay depth; with the other $40,000 get your land, buy tanks, steam engine, piping and take care of other expenses.

If you brought in a 5000 barrel gusher, with oil at $2 a barrel, your daily income would be $10,000 gross. Say half went for operating expenses, you are still netting $5000 a day.

In theory a smaller investment should give you the same proportionate return. But many a well such as this has been brought in by companies that paid little or nothing in dividends. Maybe the company had a million dollar capitalization so $100 worth of stock was but one ten-thousandth of the total, maybe there were a lot of officers' salaries, maybe the directors decided to reinvest this money.

I know a lot of oil drillers and field workers. They like to stake a hundred or two on oil—but they don't like the average stock company. At their request I worked out this plan.

IT MEANS THIS:
This table shows how much money you get every month on each $100 invested if we get a 200 barrel a day well, or bigger wells up to 10,000 barrels:

Production per day barrels	Monthly income on $100 invested with oil at $1.00 per barrel
200	$ 3.50
400	7.50
600	11.25
800	15.00
1,000	18.75
2,000	37.50
3,000	56.25
5,000	93.75
10,000	187.50

I have 40 acres as shown above. I have contracted for a well to cost $40,000. I am 800 interests in this well, at $100 each bring in a well, for one-half of the oil bear all expense of producing, pumping and delivering oil to Pipe Line Company other half belongs to the holders of the free of all costs. Each owns one-eighth of this half, and each receives a check share each month, direct the Pipe Line Company ing the oil.

If we hit the oil, you win—AND YOU KNOW MUCH. No directors can what to do with the is yours.

My friends and other have learned of my joined at once. One in $5000, taking fifty eral have taken ten the balance of the and start the well, I this public invitation integrity, ask for

And because I want every should the move ever with produ put down NO EXPENSE.
